Walter's interest in the fortune was not so great; he was wealthy enough to wed a penniless bride; but he did rejoice that Stella's family was equal to his own.

He was an aristocrat to his fingers' tips.

One of his favorite maxims was, "Blood will tell." He believed it firmly, and had taken considerable trouble, and gone to some expense, to prove that the Derwents and Messengers were old stocks whose ancestors had ever been of noble natures and knightly actions.

"What do we care for pedigree and family trees?" he asked, when Walter hung up the certificate of the Derwent lineage on the library wall, and placed "Burke's British Peerage" on the most prominent book-shelf.

"You don't deserve to belong to a decent family, if you really feel so," he said coldly. "For myself, I cannot understand any man being so dead to honorable feeling that he cannot rejoice to know that for nine generations his ancestors on both sides have been gentlemen and ladies who have never been guilty of a dishonorable action."

"Now, Walter, do not become so indignantly furious. I do not say that I don't rejoice, as you call it; but I fail to see why Americans should make a parade of their family trees in that style."

He pointed to the richly emblazoned shields and other marks of heraldry that adorned the walls.

"Have your own opinion," Walter said coldly; and Arthur never again made any allusion to the subject.

Mr. Jameson had grown to regard Stella as a daughter; she had wrought such a change in his niece's temper and manners that he felt extremely grateful. He watched with some anxiety Walter Derwent's visits to the house. He knew that Derwent was an intensely proud man; he would never marry a girl of low origin, and Mr. Jameson, although he recognized the fact that Stella was an educated lady, was a little surprised that she never made any allusion to her past. She received no letters, and no one ever called upon her except Edith.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

THE CREWS WONT SERVE.

Newport News, Va., June 15.—The engineers, stokers and ordinary seamen who have been in service on the scout ships Yale and Harvard will refuse to go to sea on the vessels when they leave this port as auxiliary cruisers. These men were in the employ of the American Line when the steamers were leased by the Government. and they signed articles of agreement for one year, but claim they did not enlist in the navy and therefore cannot be compelled to go into service on a war-ship, especially as most of them are subjects of foreign powers.

THE ATTACK UPON MANILA.

London, June 15.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, forwarding advices he has received from Manila up to June 8, says: "On June 5th the insurgents forced the passage of the Zapote river and captured Las Pinas and Paranaki. Since then up to the time my advices left Manila, the fighting has been continuous and the Spaniards suspect that the insurgents are fighting under American guidance. The defenders of the city have suffered severely from the incessant attacks and from want of food and rest, and the hospitals and churches are crowded with wounded."

WILL GERMANY INTERFERE?

London, June 15.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says: "It seems almost impossible that Germany can have the idea of risking a war with the United States by interference at Manila. Nevertheless it is equally possible to ignore the significance of the fact that ideas of repeating the successful Kiao Chou experiment are evidently floating in the brains of naval personages whose influence is so great that the matter deserves attention."

TWO EARLY BUNGLES OF THE AMERICANS.

Toronto, June 15.—It is apparent from a perusal of the news contained in the despatches published this morning that those leading the land forces of the United States have made two blunders and learned lessons which, if heeded in the future, will save them from disaster. The landing party of marines at Guantanamo Bay have been so harassed by the Spanish guerillas that they have fallen back upon the beach and have not even pitched their tents, showing that they are holding themselves in readiness to make for their ships in case of serious further attack. The choosing of an encampment upon a hill surrounded by bush, which would naturally exhibit their men as easy marks for hidden riflemen, was a mistake in elementary tactics which American military officers should not have committed. Moreover, why men should have been landed at all so long in advance of a force of occupation is difficult to explain, unless by the eagerness of the Americans to "play at fighting." It is extremely amusing, also, to read of a large fleet of transports on the eve of sailing delayed by the sudden discovery that no pilots had been provided to conduct them to the place of rendezvous. These things make it very clear that the forces of the United States are engaged upon their first expedition outside their own country and are consequently showing every sign of apprenticeship. They must guard, however, against allowing ignorance of vital matters to bring about a catastrophe when they land upon Cuban soil.

HEROES OF THE MERRIMAC

Receive their Rewards Although Languishing in Spanish Prisons

Blanco Refuses to Exchange Them—The Capt. General Says that He Has no Authority from Madrid to do so

Washington, June 15.—Substantial recognition has been given by The Navy department to the members of the crew who took the Merrimac into the entrance of Santiago harbor and sunk her across the channel under the very muzzles of the Spanish guns.

Official recognition was taken of their valor when Secretary Long signed the orders to Admiral Sampson directing the promotion of all the members of the crew. Lieut. Hobson's reward will come later, through Congress.

The men still linger in a Spanish prison, and Captain-General Blanco refuses to treat for their exchange, but when they return to their ships their promotions will be awaiting them. The orders sent to Admiral Sampson direct the promotion of the men as follows:—

Dante Montague, master-at-arms, to be a boatswain, from $50 a month to $1,000 a year.

George Cherette, gunner's mate, to be a gunner, from $50 a month to $1,300 a year.

Rudolph Clausen, Osborn Deignan, and — Murphy, coxswains, to be chief boatswain's mates, an increase of $20 a month.

Francis Kelly, water tender, to be chief machinest, from $37 a month to $70 a month.

In addition to the promotions steps have already been taken towards the presentation of medals to Constructor Hobson and the members of his gallant crew. What new honors await Constructor Hobson who planned and executed the brilliant coup, have not yet been disclosed.

THE DIFFICULTY OF LANDING.

New York, June 15.—A special from Washington to The Times says—A full week has been used up at Tampa in getting the 15,000 men of the Santiago expidition afloat, and —presumably on the way to their destination. The War department people now talk with concern about the handling of this force when it shall reach its Cuban destination. A railroad brought the men baggage, guns, provisions, tents, and ammunition to the side of the ship, but with all these advantages it has taken them a whole week to get the expedition off. A very well informed army officer says that the southern coast of Cuba is rough and difficult of approach at most points, and a good deal of the time the water is to rough for comfortable landing from vessels moored in the open road. The men, horses, baggage, and provisions now on the transports must be lightered ashore unless the Government expects to take a harbor well supplied with terminal facilities, which is not expected. To get the men ashore will be a simple matter compaired with the difficulty of landing animals and heavy equipments.

"It will not be a summer afternoon matter," said the officer. "The troops will be landed under the cover of the guns of the fighting ships if a hostile reception is accorded them. Their first business will be to secure themselves against attack. Then the landing of their equipments will follow and it is bound to be a tedious matter, as it will be done by the aid of lighters. It is probable that it will take not less than three weeks to land the expidition that was loaded on shipboard in a week. After we have heard about the landing of this expidition we shall begin to understand why General Miles was opposed to sending out 60,000 men at once, before the war satisfied that they were properly drilled, seasoned, and disciplined. With 60,000 men to ship at Tampa, the confusion and delay would have been increased. It is inevitable that there shall be some confusion at the Cuban end of the trip, and that confusion would have been possibly four times greater with four times the number of troops."

STARVED OUT BY JUNE.

London, June 15.—The correspondent of The Times at Kingston, Jamaica, cables that according to advices brought there from Havana by the British cruiser Talbot, which left the Cuban capital June 8 with a number of refugees and newspaper correspondents on board, the bread supplies in Havana would probably give out by the middle of June, though meat, fruit and vegetables were plentiful.

PROMISED AGUINALDO REFORMS.

New York, June 15.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says—Senor Uria, a deputy who has taken the lead in the debates in the Cortes on the Philippines and several general officers and civilians recently returned from Manila, assert that Marshall Primo de Rivera on making peace with Aguinaldo and about twenty other insurgent chiefs, not only paid them several hundred thousand dollars—gold and bills—on Hong Kong bankers, but promised them these things:

Local self-government and administrative reforms. Reform in taxation on the positive understanding that vast estates until the income of the religious orders should no longer be exempted.

Complete reform in the privileges power and influence of the religious orders and Spanish priesthood.

Educational reforms on lay principles. Representation in the Cortes for the archipeligos. None of these reforms were ever begun, and when the Americans appeared on the scene after the Cavite disaster General Augusti asked and the Government granted him permission to hurridly promise the natives a part of these reforms, without touching the religious orders however, because they wield such powerful influence at court. Now the idea is to move the Vatican and the whole Catholic power to urge upon the Emperor of Germany that Spain may retain the Phillippines and preserve a part at least of the religious and military system of Spain in the archipelegos.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler". Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

There were present :H. S. Howland, T. R. Merritt (St. Catharines), William Ramsay, of Bowland, T. Sutherland, Stayner, Robt. Jaffray, Elias Rogers, Hugh Ryan L. Ogden, W. Gibson Cassels, Wm. Gordon, I. J. Gould (Uxbridge), Nehemiah Merritt, R. L. Benson, O. F. Rice, Anson Jones, Rev. E. B. Lawler, Thos. Walmsley, J. G. Ramsay, Dr. L. S. Oille, (St. Catharines), Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, A. E. Webb, E. B. Osler, Wm. Hendrie (Hamilton), Thos. E. McCracken, Robt. Thompson, R. W. Thompson, William B. Hamilton, H. C. Boomer, Prof. Andrew Smith, John H. Paterson, R. N. Gooch, Wm. Spry, John Stewart, W. H. Cawthra, Charles Forest, (Fergus), W. T. Jennings, David Kiff, (Hamilton), Henry Bintzel, G. B. Smith, D. R. Wilkie, etc., etc.

The chair was taken by the President, Mr. H. S. Howland, and the General Manager, Mr. D. R. Wilkie, was requested to act as Secretary.

The General Manager, at the request of the chairman, read the report of the Directors, and the statement of affairs.

THE REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in meeting the Shareholders at the twenty-third annual general meeting, and in laying before them the statement of affairs of the Bank at the close of the last financial year.

The unsubscribed portion of the Capital Stock of the Bank, amounting to 364 shares, has been disposed of, in accordance with the provisions of the Bank Act, and the premium realized therefrom, $32,760, has been passed to the credit of the Rest account.

The net profits of the year, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts, and for interest on unmatured bills under discount, have enabled your Directors to pay the usual dividends at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, to add sufficient to the Rest account to bring that account up to $1,200,000 to apply the sum of $16,257,23 in reduction of Bank Premises account, and to carry forward at the credit of Profit and Loss account $24,696,69 in excess of the amount brought forward from the previous year.

A Branch of the Bank has been opened in South Edmonton.

The widening area of the Bank's business and the recognized importance of Montreal as a financial centre induced your Directors to open a Branch in that city, which they have every reason to believe will tend to maintain and strengthen the Bank's standing and business facilities throughout the Dominion.

Your Directors take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the faithful and efficient manner in which its interests in Montreal and elswhere have been attended to by the Bank of Montreal for the last twenty-three years.

The building in occupation by the Branch at Winnipeg for some years past has been purchased by the Bank. Alterations are now in progress to adapt it to the growing requirements of the Bank.

A by-law will be submitted for your approval authorizing the formation of an Employes' Pension Fund, and providing for an annual contribution thereto from the funds of the Bank.

Arrangements have been made with the Alaska Commercial Compant and the Hudson's Bay Company, which afford the Bank excellent facilities for transacting business wherever those companies are represented throughout Alaska and the North-West Territories of Canada.

The officers of the Bank continue to perform their respective duties to the satisfaction of the Directors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

H. S. HOWLAND,
President.

A June Wedding

Wednesday evening at the parsonage of the Charlotte St. Methodist church Rev. D. O. Crossley performed the ceremony that united in marriage Mr. John LeBar, town, and Miss Lizzie Sanderson, daughter of Mr. Robert Sanderson, North Monaghan. The bride, who was gowned in brocaded blue trimmed with ribbon and chiffon, was assisted by her sister, Miss Cecilia, who was attired in brocaded grenadine, trimmed with blue satin and ribbon. Her bouquet was of pink roses, while the bride carried a bouquet of cream and pink roses. Mr. Robt. Baker, jr., Ashburnham, performed the duties of best man. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to Mr. Sanderson's residence, where they joined the guests in a sumptuous wedding breakfast. Among the many beautiful and useful gifts was a fine china dinner and tea set presented by the proprietors and employees of the IXL Laundry. After spending the evening at Mr. Sanderson's up till about midnight, the happy couple drove to their future residence, corner of George and Sherbrooke streets, followed by the best wishes of their many friends for a happy wedded life.

ORILLIA WON

In a Match Characterized More by Roughness than Good Play

A large crowd accompanied the senior lacrosse team to Orillia yesterday to witness the return match with the club of that place.

It was expected that a match of more than ordinary merit would have been presented, but such was not the case.

The Orillia team forgot what little lacrosse they did know and went in for an out-and-out-slugging match, and as our boys play simply decent lacrosse they were, so far as scoring was concerned, simply not in it.

The teams were comprised as follows:

Orillia—Hurley, goal; Quinn, point; Watson, cover point; O'Connor, 1st defence; Churchill, 2nd defence; Thompson, 3rd defence; Dunn, centre; Boyd, 3rd home; Grant, 2nd home; Wilkinson, 1st home; Armstrong, outside home; O'Connor, inside home; M. J. Yates, field captain.

Mr. H. O'Laughlin acted as referee and his decisions were far from being impartial.

The games were scored as follows:
1st, Orillia............11-2 minutes.
2nd, Orillia............25 minutes.
3rd, Orillia............4 minutes.
4th, Orillia............39 minutes.
5th, Peterborough............3 minutes.
6th, Orillia............4 minutes.

Time was called before another goal was scored—thus leaving Orillia victorious by 5 goals to 1.

NOTES.

The score does not by any means represent the relative merits of the teams, as Orillia was almost constantly on the defensive.

Lynch—Peterborough's clever point—was struck over the eye and badly injured.

Peterborough's defence was all that could be desired but the home field was a little off color, owing, possibly, to the rough tactics of the Orillia defence.

O'Laughlin's decisions were not well received.

The next match will be an exhibition game on July 1st, with Perth.

The next league game will be played at Midland on July 12th.

The match in Orillia yesterday is pronounced by those who witnessed it as a very rough exposition of the game.

THE PRICE OF BREAD

The Bakers Scored for the Alacrity Displayed in Raising Prices

To the Editor Morning Times:

Dear Sir,—No one was surprised at the alacrity of the bakers in raising the price of bread when wheat went up, but what have they to say for themselves now that wheat has gone down to its former price, if not lower while they still keep up the bread at its abnormally high price? Leiter, the notorious stock gambler of Chicago, was roundly abused when he got a corner in wheat and thus raised the price, but what can be said of the bakers, who profess to have consciences, for not reducing the price of bread now that wheat has gone down and thus unnecessarily perpetrating an injustice on the poor? Leiter's transactions had one redeeming feature, inasmuch as he benefitted a few farmers who happened to have some wheat left over, but who can suggest one good feature in the action of the bakers?

Yours, etc.,

INQUEST ORDERED.

Into the Death of Eugene Donovan who Died Suddenly in Toronto

Coroner Powell has issued a warrant, says the Toronto Globe, for an inquest into the death of Eugene Donovan, a man 50 years of age, who was found dead in bed in the house of Edmund Wilson, a barber, on Queen street, near John street. Donovan was a printer, and was employed on the Peterborough Review. He was in Toronto visiting Mr. Wilson, who is a relative. He was for 30 years a member of the Toronto Typographical Union. It is likely that the warrant will be withdrawn.

Water Rates

To the Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—I submit the following figures taken from the report of the Detroit Water Company, which speeks for itself:

1. By the introduction of meters the per capita daily supply has been reduced from 204 to 130 gallons.

2. In nine years $8,000,000 has been saved on capital account.

3. Last year $94,500,000 was saved on pumping expenses alone.

4. Rates have been reduced constantly ever since the meters were introduced.

5. These reductions have amounted to $500,000.00.

6. Besides this, $538,000 have been spent improving the service, and $400,000 paid on the bonded indebtedness, and all this after saving the people $500,000.

First 5,000 gallons............10c. per M.
Next 10,000 gallons............5c. per M.
All over 15,000 gallons......1 3-4c. per M.

This indicates that Peterborough should acquire the waterworks system and reduce the cost of water to consumers.

A SEALED VERDICT

of and afterwards pleaded guilty, thereby committing perjury. He had never committed perjury on any other occasion. He did not have any conversation with Turnkey Rae or Mr. Nesbitt this (Wednesday) morning. Might have had one this week. Neither of these had told him that McDonald would be sent to Kingston the day he was convicted. He (Fobes) had been locked in his cell since his arrest at Windsor, and had not had any more freedom of late than at any time since his second arrest. McDonald had told him his home was in Elyria, Ohio. Mr. Wood asked him where they were going to, but witness did not know. Mr. Wood asked him how far he had got when escaping, but Mr. O'Connell objected and the point was dropped.

J. Daly swore that the valise produced in court was the one McDonald carried on to the train that night. He saw prisoner put the valise on the seat in the car before being arrested. He described the arrest of the prisoner.

Thos. Midgely, section foreman on the C.P.R. at Norwood, saw two men, one of whom was the prisoner, near Norwood the day of the burglary. Saw prisoner and two others on Sunday, April 3rd, two miles this side of Norwood, travelling west. Nobody else passed that day except these. Mr. O'Connell cross-examined him closely as to his memory, but he persisted that he recognized this man.

A number of villagers described the scene in Mr. Pearce's store and in the post office the morning after the burglary.

There were no witnesses for the defence and Mr. Wood then summed up the case for the Crown, laying particular stress on the evidence given by Fobes, especially the statement of that witness that there were three men engaged in the job, a fact corroborated by many witnesses, and one which Fobes could not have known unless told by McDonald, and the explosives on his person was a damaging piece of evidence. There was no evidence before them to lead to the conclusion that the prisoner was not the man who committed the deed.

Mr. O'Connell, for the defence, stated that it was a case, which, unfortunately, public opinion had been formed and people became prejudiced that the man charged with the offence was guilty, even before they had heard the evidence. Therefore, they must free their minds of all pre-conceptions. He also emphasized the fact that the Crown officers, who were endeavoring to fasten the guilt on the prisoner, had unlimited means at their command, while the latter had none whatever. He also mentioned the point that if McDonald were convicted on this charge the jury would likely convict him on the others, and sentences, perhaps for life imprisonment, would result. He showed how the evidence was all circumstantial and in many details contradictory, besides being given by people who were naturally, perhaps, prejudiced. He completely discredited the evidence of Fobes, asking if it was likely that a man awaiting trial would tell a convicted criminal that he was guilty. They could not convict the prisoner on the evidence of a perjurer.

Judge Weller then briefly but clearly summed up the main points in the very strong chain of evidence. After hearing his address, which was rather against the prisoner, the jury retired at 6.10.

Not long afterwards they brought in a verdict of guilty. McDonald was sentenced to 14 years in Kingston penitentiary for burglary and 14 years for arson, the sentences to run concurrently.

Court resumed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The Grand Jury presented true bills against Harry Ross for stealing, John Walker for theft and perjury, and Mark Black on two separate charges of perjury. Black's case came up first. He pleaded not guilty on both indictments and stated that he was not ready to go on with the trial as his counsel was not present.

John Walker was then put on trial. He is charged with having stolen a bicycle from Robt. Wolstenholme and afterwards swearing that he did not, thereby committing perjury. He pleaded guilty to both indictments yesterday morning and was sentenced to eighteen months in the Central prison. Walker is about eighteen years old and comes from Erinsville, Ont.

The charge of theft against Harry Ross was then read. He pleaded not guilty.

The evidence was given by Mr. Beall, of the Light & Power Co., and by employees and ex-employees of the Times office. The judge summed up the arguments shortly before three o'clock, largely in the prisoner's favor. The jury retired and in a few moments returned a verdict of not guilty. The prisoner was then discharged.

The appeal of Louisa Howells, better known as Lou Craig, against a conviction by Magistrate Dumble of having kept a house of ill-fame was the next case on the docket. "Lou" pleaded not guilty and after the evidence of a number of witnesses had been given the jury retired, and after several hours' consideration returned a sealed verdict, owing to the Judge having left the bench.

Conviction Quashed

The report was current at a late hour last night that Lou Craig's conviction was squashed—so far as the jury was concerned, at all events.

SPANISH FLEET TO BOMBARD BOSTON

A Rumor is Current that Admiral Camaras is Heading for Boston to Bombard U. S. Coast Towns

LARGE SPANISH FLEET SAILS

Madrid, June 17.—There is a feeling of great optimism in official circles here and in the lobbies of the Cortes owing tot he departure of Admiral Camaras' fleet. It is said in Madrid that it consists of over twenty ships, including auxiliary cruisers and it is added that it has enormous quantities of war material on board, including a mysterious new explosive. It is also whispered that the squadron when at sea, was to be divided and to proceed to different destinations. Great secrecy is maintained here in regard to the destination of Admiral Camaras' fleet. The Spanish newspapers say that work is being actively continued on the fortifications in the Canary and Belearic Islands. The Liberal reiterates the declaration that "if Spain has nothing to hope from the powers, she is still able to defend herself. Before the departure of the Spanish warships a flag of honor embroidered by the ladies of Cadiz was presented to the officers of the cruiser Carlos IV. The flag was blessed by a priest on the deck of the vessel, and the Minister of Marine made a patriotic speech.

Captain Aunon subsequently held a council of war until the commanders of all ships of the squadron on board the battleship Pelayo. Captain Aunon, after the departure of Admiral Camara, wired the Premier the following message: "The reserve squadron and the troops of the Expeditionary Corps on leaving Spanish waters send greetings to the Government and the fatherland, and affirm their desire to fight for them." The Minister of Marine also telegraphed to the Queen Regent enthusiastic greetings from the squadron, and the announcement of the determination to "Fight to the last for the national honor." It is announced that Captain Aunon, after inspecting the arsenal at Carthagena, would return to this city and organize at hird squadron of warships. He sent a message to the Premier that he was very much satisfied with the condition of the squadron of Admiral Camara. The Premier Sagasta, it is said, hopes to prorogue the Chamber ot Deputies next week.

LEFT CADIZ YESTERDAY

Washington, June 17. — The State Department has received the following despatch from its agen tat Gibraltar: "Charles V. Pelayo, Rapiolo Patriota, Audaz, Osado, Prosperina, Girolda, Prelajo, Colon, with the Minister on board Alfonso Doce, Canondonga, Antonio Lapez, Isla Panos, Buenos Ayres and San Francisco left Cadiz yesterday. First eleven passed the rock, bound for Carthagena for orders. The last three had troops on board."

This is Admiral Camara's Cadiz squadron and appears to be in the Mediteranean bound for the African shores.

Madrid, June 17.—Another report sets forth that the Spanish reserve fleet is going to the Philippine Islands.

TO BOMBARD BOSTON

Madrid, June 17.— Among the rumors current here to-day is one to the effect that Admiral Camaras' fleet is heading for Boston to bombard coast towns.

Fresh contingents of troops are being constantly called to the colors, and there is great activity in the war and navy departments. Work on the fortifications at the different ports of Spain is being actively pushed and it is asserted that a third squadron of warships is to be formed immediately, to be composed of the Cardenal, Cisneros Lepanto, Alfonso XIII. and other cruisers. Cadiz is to be the rendezvous. It is the general opinion here that a protracted war is ahead and it is semi-officially announced that the Government does not count upon the support of any power and and that even Germany in spite of her great interests in the Phillippine Islands will do nothing to favor Spain.

THE TAMPA TRANSPORTS

Turn Back From Cuba—They Sighted Spanish Cruisers in the Gulf

An Exchange of Shots—The Expedition will be Re-inforced by 5,000 Troops and will then Proceed to Cuba

Washington, June 17.—A report was sent out from the White House this morning that the expedition from Tampa, Fla., under General Shafter, numbering over 15,000 troops, which reached Key West on Wednesday, and which left the island at daylight yesterday morning for Santiago de Cuba, returned last night under escort of the battleship Indiana. Mr. Alger Secretary of War, is very much concerned over the receipt of the news of the return of the expedition, and has admitted that the news from Key West is most serious, and that a Spanish squadron succeeded in heading off the fleet laden with soldiers and supplies. Two large Spanish cruisers were seen in the Gulf of Mexico by the officers of the Indiana, and the fleet was at once signaled to turn back to Key West. Shots were exchanged between the warships, but the Indiana escaped injury, and the whole fleet of transports succeeded in reaching Key West. Several warships started after the Spanish vessels, but according to reports here to-day they failed to overtake their fleet enemies. The Indiana at the time the enemy was sighted was two miles in front of the flet, and as she was acting strictly as a convoy her commander signaled the fleet to retire. The authorities here cannot understand why the Spanish squadron was not pursued at once and given battle, as to guard the transports there were sixteen United States warships, including a number of small gunboats.

CERVERA STILL ON DECK.

It is now believed there that Cervera himself is not in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, and that while some of his vessels are securely bottled up in the land-locked trap, the commander, with a good fleet, is still on the ocean and is determined to destroy the Tampa expedition. Should he succeed in doing this it would be a crushing blow to the United States, and would prolong the campaign for many months. I was informed by an officer this morning that the Tampa soldiers who were to reach the Cuban coast by to-morrow, will be held until five thousand troops have been despatched down to the east coast from Jacksonville under General Wade to the "Keys" when a junction will be formed and then the combined expedition will proceed to Jauraguasito, an anchorage about twenty miles east of Santiago, where a landing will be attempted. This report is on the streets, so that if the expidition makes for this landing point the Spaniards will no doubt have received information. Another report is to the effect that the expedition will be devided, and that while one division will go under escort to Jurnguasito, the other will make direct for Mariel, and getting inside of the trocha, destroy the line of forts by artillery, and then make a direct attack on Havana, eighteen miles distant.

TO ATTACK HAVANA.

At this point the island is about R43 miles wide and across the whole extent there is a line of forts facing the formidable trocha, but it is expected that with the large force to be landed and with the light artillery they will succeed in overcoming all obstacles. President McKinley is anxiously awaiting further information, and several conferences have occured between him and the Secretary of War. It is believed in official circles here that the information received by Secretary Alger from Key West is more serious than what I have been able to learn and that the Tampa expedition will meet with a warm reception on the Cuban coast, if it be not attacked in the gulf or on the ocean.

SHAFTERS EXPEDITION.

Washington, June 17.—A semi-official despatch received to-day states that General Shafter will land his army Guantanamo Bay or in the neighborhood of this anchorage.

It is evident from the above despatch that the Tampa expedition has returned to Key West and that the fears of President McKinley and Secretary of War Alger with reference to Spanish interception in the gulf have been verefied. The despatch must have come from Key West to the War Department direct, showing that the Tampa soldiers are being held there.

CAN'T TAMPER WITH DEWEY.

Manila, via Hong Cong, June 17.—A passage at arms has taken place between Admiral Dewey and Admiral Von Diedrichs commanding the Germain fleet in these waters. It was bruited about in Manila on Sunday last that Dewey was going to shell the city on the following morning in case Augusti did not haul down his flag. The statement was unfounded, and reached the ears of the Germain admiral, who thereupon sent a launch to the Olympia to ask if such was the intention of the Americans. Admiral Dewey was incensed at the message, and replied that he did not recognize the right of the Germain commander to ask such a question. The launch sheered off, and in an hour afterwards Von Diedrich's ships weighed anchor and stood in towards the town, occupying a position between Manila and the American fleet. Dewey immediately ordered his ships to move from Cavite, off which they were at anchor, called his men to quarters and steamed in line of battle to a point opposite Manila exactly alongside the Germain squadron, where he came to an anchor. Nothing further transpired, but in the morning the Germains were seen back in their old position, evidently regarding further tampering with the Americans as dangerious.

CABLES TO WASHINGTON.

Mole St. Nicholas Hayti, June 17.—The cable steamer Adria, which fished up the Haytean and the other day from the bottom of Guantanamo Bay, has been ordered to come to an anchor and constitute herself into a floating telegraph station. The cable has been brought in through a porthole into one of the forward deck houses, where an operator has been installed and is kept busy all day transmitting and receiving despatches from Washington, the French company owning the cable having signified their willingness to accept the same. The establishment of the station is a novel feature of the war and enables Sampson to obtain orders from headquarters in half an hour.

CREW OF CRUISERS DISCHARGED.

New York, June 17.—The Tribune announced this morning that the crews of the Harvard and Yale had been discharged and new men engaged. The reasons for the change were incompetence and, in many cases, according to a medical examination, the men were unfit for service.

TWO SPANISH ATTEMPTS

New York, June 17.—The Journal has the following from Hong Kong: The most severe and important battle since Admiral Dewey's annihilation of the Spanish fleet has occurred at Manila. One thousand insurgents attacked 2,000 Spanish, inflicting heavy losses and almost forcing the entrance to the city.

The insurgents under General Aguinaldo and the American sailors and marines of Admiral Dewey's fleet completely surround Manila. The foreign residents have fled to the ships. Admiral Montejo and Governor-General Augusti have placed the women, children and priests in the forts for safety.

WILLING TO SURRENDER

Governor-General Augusti is reported to be willing to surrender to the Americans in order to prevent the insurgents from capturing the capital, setting it on fire and killing the Spaniards. The archbishop, however, is opposed to the surrender and has overruled Augusti. A Spanish spy has attempted to poison General Aguinaldo, but the plot was abortive. Aguinaldo was made very sick, but hascompletely recovered.

A Spanish prisoner was caught trying to assassinate Aguinaldo. When his plot was discovered he attempted to escape, but was shot dead. The success of the insurgents is wonderful. The Spaniards taken prisoners in the two weeks' campaign aggregate 3,000, including 2,000 soldiers of the regular army. Prominent among them are Generals Garcia and Cordoba.

TWO GOVERNORS TAKEN.

The governors of the provinces of Cavite, Balucan, and Bataan were also made prisoners. Two million rounds of cartridges were seized in the fortified cathedral of old Cavite. The large garrison of old Cavite has surrendered, thus giving the insurgents command of the shore of the entire bay. All interior sources of supplies are now cut off from the Spanish forces in Manila.

The increase in the number of German warships in this port excites comment in view of the relations between Spain and Germany. Everything is in readiness for the arrival of the American troops on the transport ships which left San Francisco May 25, and which are hourly expected.

The Americans can take Manila within twenty-four hours after the arrival of the troops.

A great fire is raging north of Manila. The insurgents have captured the water works, on which the supply of the city depends. General Augusti has issued orders declaring that all males above the age of 18 shall join the army and do military duty.

MANILA IN DESPERATE STRAITS.

Manila, June 5, via Hong Kong, June 17.—It is officially admitted here that the troops have been without food for 36 hours. The gunboats sent into the lagoon with volunteers to search for food have returned without any. Every lagoon and town is hostile. During the week all the garrisons were simultaneously overpowered or surrendered as prisoners. Most of those who resisted were slaughtered. The insurgents are gaining everywhere and are now firing into Manila itself.

Int he northern sections the insurgents have united near Passig, on the Passig river, driving the Spanish gunboats to Doa. There were a few casualties. On all sides can be seen the Spainards retiring, removing effects and dismantling the barracks prematurely, evidently anticipating defeat as a matter of course. The soldiers are brave and desperate and hate to retreat. But they are hopelessly incompetent and shamefully underfed. Many oft hem have never been at target practice in their lives.

THE FATE OF GENERAL MONET.

London, June 17.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "The news from Manila is most unfavorable, and has made a corresponding impression. Serious misgivings are felt regarding the fate of General Monet, at the head of a strong column operating at some distance from the coast.

"It is said that many foreign residents, with their families and valuables, have taken refuge on British, French and German war vessels, while others have left for China and Japan.

"Most of the papers express a fear that the next news will be of the fall of Manila.

"The whole question, in the eyes of the Spaniards, is whether Admiral Dewey can prevent Aguinaldo from pushing on hostilities against Manila until the American reinforcements arrive, since otherwise it is supposed he will have to allow European war vessels to co-operate in the difficult task of maintaining order and saving Manila from the excesses of the insurgents.'

A NEW INSTRUMENT OF WAR.

Paris, June 17.—A despatch to The Figaro from Madrid says: "The visit of Captain Aunon, the Spanish Minister of Marine, to Cadiz was with the view of experimenting at sea with a new and powerful shell which liberates poisonous gases."

THREE BLOCKHOUSES DESTROYED

New York, June 17.—A despatch to The World from Key West says: "An auxiliary cruiser reports a bombardment near Cardenas this morning. The Americans were determined to destroy three or four blockhouses which were being erected. The American ships went close in, according to the auxiliary cruiser and peppered the blockhouses, which did not respond. The bombardment did not last long.

THE EXCHANGE ARRANGED UPON

New York, June 17.—A special to The World from Washington Says: Captain Nicoll Ludlow, commander of the monitor Terror, sailed from Key West this morning for Havana on a tug flying a flag of truce to arrange for the exchange of Lieut. Hobson and the crew of the Merrimac. As soon as the officials were informed that the Madrid Government had authorized General Blanco to make the exchange of the Americans for the Spanish prisoners, were sent to Captain Ludlow to proceed to Havana to make arrangements for the exchange.

INCESSANT FIGHTING AT MANILA.

Madrid, June 16.—Advices received here to-day by The Liberal from Manila, under date of June 6, says—"The fighting continues incessantly. There are skirmishes at intervals day and night, and lack of provisions has compelled the Spaniards to yield at certain points. Both ammunition and food are most scarce. Nevertheless the Spaniards are animated by the best spirit, and are fighting heroically. The wounded, who are crowding the churches and convents, have been placed under the protection of the red cross. The Jesuits are seeking places of refruge in the province of Batanzas, and the sisters are fleeing to the province of La Guna.

"It is not expected that Manila will capitulate until the American troops arrive."

PROGRESS OF ALBANIAN WAR

Fighting All Day Yesterday in Montenegro and Many Men Were Killed

Cracow, Austrian Galicia, June 17.—The situation in the district of Gorlice, in connection with the anti semitic character. Bands of men from other districts have reinforced the petroleum workers and peasants of Gorlice, and are attacking, plundering and burning public buildings. They have attacked the towns of Biecz and Gorlice, which had to be defended by troops.

The outbreak of the Albanians at Berane, near the frontier of Montenegro the gravity of which is comparable to the troubles preceding the Servia-Montenegro war against Turkey in 1876, is due to revenge taken by some christians upon the Albanian murderers of a Christian notable last autumn. The Albanians in remote districts are participating in the present outrages. In consequence of the renewed representations of Montenegro supported by Russia, the Sultan has despatched troops to the desturbed districts from Uskub.

There was fighting all day Thursday and many were killed or wounded on both sides. According to Cettinge advices many women and children who were fleeing towards Montenegro have been killed by the Albanians.

Post Office Thief

Berlin Ont., June 17.

There is intense excitement in town to-day over the arrest this morning of Ed. Lynes the caretaker of the post office. He had the position of caretaker of the post office only as a favor from the late Government, and did not do the work. He farmed it out to another man. He had the complete run of the buildings however.

The post office authorities have missed registered letters recently. A few days ago they resolved to watch Lynes. Last night they sent a decoy letter, containing four $1-bills marked, and this morning the letter was gone from the drawer in which it had been left. A warrant was sworn out for Lyens, and when he was searched the missing letter was found in his possession.

A Water Famine

New York, June 16.—The New York Board of Fire Underwriters has informed the Board of Public Improvements that the water supply in Brooklyn and Manhattan is inadequate and calls for immediate relief. It is stated that fifty thousand million gallons of water are running to waste annually from the Croton dam, or at the rate of 37,000,000 gallons daily, or almost one-half the daily consumption of Manhattan. A water famine is feared in the city and serious loss may result should a big fire take place.

We used all known Catarrh cures, and treated with most skilful physicians for over three years, and her case was pronounced chronic and incurable. Last winter we heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. PETERBOROUGH JUNE 18 1898

THE BANK OF TORONTO

The forty-second annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Toronto took place at the head office of that institution on the 15th inst.

The net profits for the year, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, and deducting expenses, interest accrued on deposits, and rebate on current discounts, amounted to $210,659.61. Adding the amount carried forward from previous year, $89,687.40, the total receipts amount to $300,347.01. From this was paid two half yearly dividends, amounting to $100,000 each, and the balance, $100,347.01, was carried forward to next year.

The result of the year's business cannot but be extremely gratifying to the shareholders and many friends and customers of the bank. The bank, as will be observed by the above figures, has earned its customary dividends of ten per cent. and added $10,000 in round figures to its profit and loss balance, after covering estimated losses on overdue accounts. The splendid position of the bank, with a capital of $2,000,000 and a rest of $1,800,000, supplies evidence of careful management and judicious use of the bank's funds in the way of investments. A marked feature of the statement in the large amount of money on deposit on which no interest is paid, the total being $1,793,160, or about a sixth of all the money on deposit.

Taken as a whole, the report is one of the best ever presented to the shareholders, and to Mr. Coulson, the General Manager, is mainly due the immensely strong position which the bank has attained. The report gives evidence of increasing confidence and increasing business throughout the country. This is no less important as affording proof that our banks get from depositors not nearly enough to carry on the commercial affairs of the country, but large sums that can only be profitably employed in the purchase of gilt-edged securities, such as Dominion debentures. All this means an area of cheap money. The interest on the best securities and on bank deposits will continue to declare with increased pressure of money on deposit. The result will be the diversion of the savings of the people into industrial ventures, where the interest earned will be higher, a result which will be hailed with pleasure by bank managers, because it means the strengthening and development of the country and the opening up of the new channels of profitable activity for the banks.

THE SPANISH POLICY

There is pathos in the persistancce with which the Spanish officials continue to deny that anything has happened and renew the assurance that "Spain is full of hope." It is probable enough that the nation still is expecting to hear of victory over the Yankees, but the officials certainly realize the hopelessness of the situation. Yet what are they to do? It requires more courage in a government that is not sure of its own tenure to acknowlege defeat than to keep on fighting.

It may be said that Spain cannot keep on fighting much longer, but at least she can keep up the form. It is possible to say that Santiago is only an outpost; that Porto Rico is not Cuba; that General Blanco still holds Havana and successfully defies the power of the United States to come and take it. As long as Blanco holds out, the enemy is baffled, and Spain is "full of hope." The government is hard up, to be sure, but as no money supplies are being sent to Blanco, he is not costing anything, and if no more ships are sent to sea, but little money need be spent. Things are about as bad as they can be, and by prolonging the struggle through the summer, there may be a chance of something better.

This apparently the Spanish attitude just now. It may be changed by the events likely to occur this week or next both in the West Indies and in the Philippines but it is still entirely conceivable that we may have to fight the war to a finish. This gives plausibility to the report that the Navy department contemplates sending a squadron over to Cadiz, to attack what remains of the Spanish navy there. That would probably compel an acknowledgment of defeat, since the result could not be concealed. Thus far it is doubtful if the Spanish people really know what losses they have sustained and it is the policy of their government to keep the knowledge from them as long as possible.

When the war is over Spain's principal assets will be a saffron-colored past.

The "friendly feeling" is now so strong that it almost makes one sorry that our neighbors have to fork out that $471,171. It wouldn't be graceful to offer to return the $171, would it?

If Dewey promised independence to the Philippines insurgents, he will speedily learn how rapidly a great exploit can be forgotten and how long the recollection of a great indiscretion remains.

The Kidneys

are the seat or the starting point of many maladies, all of them serious, all more or less painful, and all of them tending, unless cured, to a fatal end. No organs of the body are more delicate or more sensitive than the kidneys. When symptoms of disease appear in them not a moment is to be lost if health is to be restored. The best way to treat the kidneys is through the blood, cleansing it from the poisonous matter which is usually at the bottom of kidney complaints. For this purpose there is no remedy equal to

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from kidney trouble, and have tried a number of largely advertised kidney cures without benefit. At last a friend advised me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The use of eight bottles of this remedy entirely cured my malady."—MARY MILLER, 1235 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Tenders may, if preferred, be upon condition that the annuities be payable in sterling in London, England. In such case the conversion will be at the par of exchange, $1.86, 2-3 to the pound sterling. Tenders will be required to state the purchase money which will be paid for either the whole annuities offered or such portion as may be tendered for.

Notification of allotments will be given to tenderers on or before 20th July and payments from the persons whose tenders are accepted must be made within ten days thereafter at the office of the Provincial Treasurer in Toronto, but if, from any cause, the purchase money is not paid by the 1st day of August next, purchasers who have not then paid will be required to pay interest on their purchase money from that date to date of payment, at the rate of interest which the investment will yield, according to their respective tenders.

The annuity certificates will be delivered at the office of the Provincial Treasurer in Toronto, where, if desired, they may be specially registered.

The Provincial Treasurer reserves the right to determine what tender is most advantageous to the Province, but no tender will necessarily be accepted. Tenders should be on the accompanying form.

Further information may be obtained on application to the Provincial Treasurer.

NOTE Illustration of calculation on interest.—At the rate of 3 per cent. per annum (or in strictness 1½ per cent. half yearly) a present payment of $2,320.36 would represent an annuity of $100 for 40 years, $50 payable each half-year.

I was advised to give South American Rheumatic Cure a trial. I purchased two bottles. When I had used one and a half bottles I was perfectly cured. I consider it a wonderful remedy, and take pleasure in recommending it." F. Nugent, Niagara Falls, Ont,

INCESSANT FIGHTING AT MANILA.

Madrid, June 16.—Advices received here to-day by The Liberal from Manila, under date of June 6, says—"The fighting continues incessantly. There are skirmishes at intervals day and night, and lack of provisions has compelled the Spaniards to yield at certain points. Both ammunition and food are most scarce. Nevertheless the Spaniards are animated by the best spirit, and are fighting heroically. The wounded, who are crowding the churches and convents, have been placed under the protection of the red cross. The Jesuits are seeking places of refuge in the province of Batanzas, and the sisters are fleeing to the province of La Guna.

"It is not expected that Manila will capitulate until the American troops arrive."

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

We remain, yours very truly.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York — or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

Who has not been a Victim?—Who has not had Just the Experience of Mr. Curtis?—Who may not have the Relief South American Nervine Afforded Him?

"As a result of a severe attack of la grippe I suffered greatly from weakness and loss of appetite. I saw testimonials of the curative powers of South American Nervine and determined to give it a trial for my case. Purchased it, and almost immediately began to improve. My strength returned to me very rappidly. When I had taken three bottles I had developed a verocious appetite. I am as well to-day as ever I was, and am safe in saying that I can attribute it to South American Nervine, and no words of mine in recommenting it could be to strong." C. J. Curtis, Windsor, Ont. STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

"There must be some trouble behind so much reserve," said the old lawyer, shrewdly. "I would be willing to swear that the child herself is wholly innocent; but when there is a mysterious silence on the subject of antecedents, there is generally something to conceal."

As Walter's visits became more frequent, and he generally paid them at an hour when only the ladies were at home, Mr. Jamieson resolved to question him in regard to his intentions.

"A funny thing for me, who have never had a daughter," he said to himself, as he wrote a note requesting Mr. Walter to call on him at his office on the following day.

"He 's about the proudest fellow in the city," said the lawyer, "and he will not marry any girl who is not of the blue blood; and he shall not trifle with that little girl; for if she ever does love she will do it with all her heart."

Walter appeared at the hour appointed. He sat down, after greeting Mr. Jamieson, and waited for the old gentleman to begin the conversation.

"I asked you here, Walter, because, now that I have ladies in my house, I can't have so much privacy as I formerly did."

"No, sir; I presume not. I hope both the ladies are well?"

"Well—very well indeed. It is in regard to one of the young ladies under my roof that I wish to speak to you. You pay quite a number of visits to my house, and while I should make you welcome if you visited me, I am fully aware that is not the case."

"No, Mr. Jamieson; I can frankly say I visit your house to see Miss Sterling."

"Ah, I thought so—was certain of it, in fact. Now, what may be your intentions in regard to Miss Sterling, to whom, pro tem., I consider myself in the light of a father?"

"I love Miss Sterling, and my most earnest wish is that she may become my wife."

Mr. Jameson felt surprised. He had not given Walter Derwent credit for so much indipendent manliness as to marry a penless girl, who was out in the world toiling for bread.

"In that case, I am very glad, indeed," he said, warmly, "and I think you are a happy and fortunate fellow to win such a heart. Do you think Miss Sterling loves you?"

"I do. She is reserved and dignified, as every true woman should be; but I hope indeed I trust, she regards me with affection."

"I am glad to hear it. Miss Sterling is a comparative stranger to me; but I fancy I have had enough experience of the world to be a fair judge of character, and I never met a young ladie whom I admired more."

"Perhaps it is fortunate for me that you are a confirmed a bachelor," said Walter, with a smile, as he rose and held out his hand to say good-day.

"Don't be so vain, young man. I may yet enter the lists and cut you out."

"I have no doubt of your ability to to do so," Walter said, laughingly.

"Clear out, or I shall be tempted to damage my new paper-weight!"

The old man was in the highest spirits.

"He is a good fellow!" he said to himself ten times that day; "he never asked a single question about her. By George, I did not believe he had so much pluck. The old lady, his mother, may raise some objections, but Walt is her favorite, and all will go right."

No Trip to Watertown

Lieut. Matthews, who has been acting as secretary of the Watertown trip committee has received communications from the captain of the 39th Separate Co. stating that they are daily expecting to be ordered to the front to take part in the war. They have been notified to be in rediness. For this reason they will not be able to entertain the 57th and the trip has been accordingly declared off by the local committee.

Sun Superiority

There are so many "cheap and nasty" bicycles thrown upon the market just now that people should be wary in the matter of purchasing a machine whose frail members may possibly break their rider's bones in the first steep hill descent. Satisfied purchasers are the best advertising mediums for a good wheel. Doubtless the numerous riders of the "Sun" are the means of Sun bicycles gaining such a strong foothold this season throughout the Dominion. The sterling worth and popular price of this handsome and reliable wheel, together with Messrs. G. T. Pendrith & Co's manner of liberal and upright treatment seem to be well appreciated by the cycling fraternity.

TAKEN TO KINGSTON

McDonald Removed to the Penitentiary Yesterday, Shackled Hand and Foot

Yesterday morning Deputy Sheriff Fred Hall and Police Constable Stewart left with McDonald to take him to the Kingston Penitentiary, the prisoner being shackled hand and foot.

In our report of McDonald's trial and sentence in yesterday's issue, the following was unavoidably crowded out:

On being asked if he had anything to say prior to sentence being pronounced, the prisoner stated that he was too confused to attempt to speak, but he had written a short address, which he would ask his counsel, Mr. O'Connel, to read. The address was as follows:

"Everything has been said by my attorney that I would say if I had the same power. I was certainly handicapped, without money and without friends. I have no fault to find with the court, nor the court's rulings. I have been found guilty, and my future destiny lies in your Honor's hands. Some people would like to see me harshly punished; other considerate and Christian people would prefer to give me a chance. To some it means nothing, to me everything—probably death—anyhow, long years of separation from my own parents, father, mother, brothers and sisters, wife and child. I wish to kindly thank Mr. O'Connell for the warm inteeart he took in so ably defending me, without any remuneration. I hope your Honor will be as merciful to me as he has been kind. In conclusion I will say that I have discovered that the way of the transgressor is by no means a bed of roses, and will console myself the best I can by always thinking it's never too late to mend.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES M'DONALD."

IS IT RIGHT?

"Equity" Object to Mr Ackerman's Premises Being Exempted from Taxation

To the Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—I notice by the proceedings of the Council that Mr. Ackerman, the saddler, has demanded exemption from taxation, and the Council at once granted his request. Now, Mr. Editor, why should I and other ratepayers be forced to pay Mr. Ackerman's taxes? He is, I am told, making money very fast—so rapidly in fact that his present premises have become too small for his increasing business. There is no one more pleased than I to know that such is the case, but why in the name of common sense is it necessary to pay his taxes for him? It is said that Mr. Ackerman would not stay in Peterborough if he did not secure tax exemption. This, Mr. Editor, is all bosh, as I happen to know He had no intention of moving to another place. This is the old story that is made to do service in every occasion of a similar kind. I say that it is a shame that men like Mr. Ackerman should ask others to pay their taxes for them, for this is what exemption really is. He was not likely to move away from a town that had been so good to him and in which he worked up a first-class business. It would not pay him to do so.

Our Council surely made a mistake, and I suggest, if not too late, that the by-law be at once rescinded.

Has Mr. Ackerman any more right to have his taxes paid by the city than any other ratepayer? Has he any more right in this regard than you, Mr. Editor, for instance? I suppose if The Times asked for exemption the Council would decline to grant it, because it would be unfair to the other local printers—and very properly so. Then why in the name of goodness is it advisable to pay a man's taxes who is alone in his particular line of business, and consequently free from the competition? If any industries are to go free, let it be those who have keen competition, for the simple reason that they are the ones that need it most. But a concern like Mr. Ackerman's that has prospered and grown fat in our midst, to evade paying its just proportion of taxes to the municipality is neither patriotic or honorable.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain, etc.,
EQUITY.

Peterborough, June 17th.

THE FINISH

Mark Black not Guilty of Perjury—Two Convictions Quashed

The County Court has concluded its labors.

Int he case of the Howell appeal the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, thus squashing the conviction of the Police Magistrate.

Mr. E. B. Edwards conducted the prosecution, and Mr. D. O'Connell appeared for the defense.

Judgment was given in the appeal of Charles Legros against a conviction by Police Magistrate Dumble for selling cigarettes to minors. Judge Weller reversed the Magistrate's decision. Mr. W. A. Stratton appeared for the appellant.

In the case of Mark Black charged with committing perjury in the police court in reference to his testimony as to being struck with a shovel at the time of the Irvine assault and in swearing that he never appeared in the police court before, except as a witness or spectator. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown and Mr. D. O'Connell for the defence.

At the Y. M. C. A. Last Night

The lecture, "20 Years a Detective," by Detective Huckle last night in the Y. M. C. A. was well worth hearing. The lecture was greeted with a crowded house. The lecture was introduced by by a short musical programme.

A Fine Burglar's Kit

The burglar kit, captured on McDonald, described in the Times a few days ago, and exhibited at the trial on Tuesday, was taken to Ottawa to be deposited with suitable labelling, in the Dominion Museum of criminal curiosities, by Detective Parkinson, of the Dominion force. He says that he has seen many devices for safe blowing, but he has never seen one so complete and constructed with so much mechanical skill as that most unwillingly donated by McDonald to the museum. Detective Harrison, of Toronto, who was down to give evidence in the Mark Black perjury trial, also examined the kit with great interest. They have seen numerous kits for similar purposes in Toronto, but none so finely finished and so effectively constructed for the felonous work of opening safes.

WAS IT SUICIDE?

The Body of Charlie Phillips Found Floating in Little Lake Last Night

While boating in Little Lake last night a young son of Mr. Geo. Patterson, who resides on Crescent St., observed the body of a man floating in the vicinity of one of the booms.

The lad at once reported the occurence to his father, who in turn notified the police.

Chief Roszel notified Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker, and the two proceeded to the lake, where they secured the body, which was taken in charge by Mr. Belleghem.

Phillips came to this country about seven years ago from England and until a few months ago was engaged in the butchering business—running a shop on Simcoe street for some years and latterly buying meat in the country and selling it one the market.

For the last six months the unfortunate man has suffered from ill health, and spent nearly the whole winter in Nicholls' Hospital.

A short time ago he went to reside in Monaghan, and last Monday he came to town for the purpose of consulting a physician. Nothing further was heard of him until his body was discovered in Little Lake last night.

A cousin of deceased—Mr. Tiney, of Cavanville—came to town Wednesday to make inquiries as to the whereabouts of Phillips, but was unable to learn anything concerning his movements.

It is supposed that Phillips became despondent owing to ill-health and business reverses and committed suicide.

The body looked as though if had been in the water for several days.

THIS MORNING'S FIRE

Arnott's Cheese Box Factory Goes Up in Smoke at 3 o clock this Morning

At three o'clock this morning one of The Times staff was going home from work, discovered the reflection of a fire, He notified P. C. McGinety and then rang an alarm.

The firemen were quickly on the scene, but it was apparent that their efforts to save the burning building would be useless, so they turned their attentions to preserving the adjoining property, which was begining to smoke from the intense heat.

The outbuildings in the rear of Mr. Thomas Hooper's soon caught fire, and as quickly as possible a stream was brought into service and succeeded in confiniug the flames to a portion of the building.

At the time of going to press the losses and insurance, if any were not known.

Jan. 9.
"Our little boy, who has suffered for six years with lameness in his hip, continues to grow worse, although we have applied many kinds of liniments. The family doctor has decided that the boy has hip joint disease, and he urges us not to meddle with the case, saying it is best to allow it to take its own course. We feel very anxious about him. I wish we could find something which would effect a cure. I fear it will develop into a very serious affair." J. W. Moore.

March 22.
"A sore has broken out on the under side of my boy's hip, and it has discharged very freely and left an opening about an inch deep, the size of a silver dollar. He has to be given constant attention. Our physician tells us to keep the sore running. A second sore has appeared on his groin and broken. The boy is very low. I asked the doctor about giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has cured so many such cases, but he said he could give him medicine that is four times better and does not cost as much." J. W. Moore.

May 10.
"The doctor's medicine which I have been giving our boy has not proved of any avail. The child continued to grow worse and I have stopped giving it to him, and now he is taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I got a bottle from the druggist a few days ago and I believe I can see that the boy is improving under the treatment." J. W. Moore.

Oct. 8.
"How glad I am that I ever tried Hood's Sarsaparilla for my boy's hip disease. When he had finished taking the first bottle he looked fifty per cent better. I continued giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla and now he is quite well. He runs and plays with the other children and we can hardly believe he is the same child, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which we have proved to be indeed the One True Blood Purifier." J. W. Moore.

In the memories of many more the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is indelibly imprinted. The cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla are literally written in blood — in blood made pure, enriched and vitalized, cured of scrofulous taints, salt rheum, boils, pimples, spring humors — in blood which properly builds up the nerves, strengthens the stomach and gives that tonic to the system so imperatively needed in the Spring.

THREW SHELLS INTO GUANTANAMO

Mole St. Nicholas, June 18.—6.30 p. m.—News from Guantanamo up to this morning shows that naval operations there continue most active and with the advantage on the side of the Americans.

Yesterday morning at 9.30 o'clock the American vassels resumed the bombardment of Guantanamo town, and in the course of one and a half hours threw seventy-five shells—the great great majority of which appeared to have been effective. Six of these shells were 13-inch projectiles, eight 8-inch and the others were smaller. The men in the tree-tops could see many of the shells strike in the very midst of the town, while others fell among the shipping and commercial buildings near the water's edge.

Smoke arose in dense clouds from the places where the shells fell and it is believed that the damage both by the impact of the missles and consequent conflagration was very great. On Thursday evening the ships had thrown four 13-inch and nine 8-inch shells into the town. This bombardment began at 4 o'clock and ended at five. Much smoke and confusion in Guantanamo was discerned.

During the progress of the bombardment crowds of people and troops of soldiers were seen moving about and the vessels in port hurriedly changed their anchorage. On Wednesday night the Texas penetrated into the bay of Santiago, passed Morro Castle and poured a well-directed fire, both upon that stronghold and the Castle Seocapa. This battle began at one o'clock and ended about midnight. There was very little response from the Spaniards, and such as there was did hardly any damage. Nobody was killed on the American ships in any of these actions. Two Spanish officers who were captured on Wednesday in Guantanamo bay are reported to be on the Marblehead.

The news of the work on Wednesday night by the Vesuvius and New Orleans in Santiago Bay is confirmed. The Vesuvius put shells into the water to explode the mines, while the New Orleans engaged the fortifications along the shore.

The Marblehead has captured a Spanish sloop in Guantanamo harbor and made eight soldiers who were on board prisoners. Last night the Texas bombarded Santiago harbor and inflicted much damage upon that port. It is the general opinion among the naval officers that beyond the capture of Guantanamo and the possible reduction of Santiago there will be no more large operations during the summer.

SITUATION IN PORTO RICO

St. Thomas, June 19.—The latest advices from Porto Rico say that Spanish regulars are being concentrated in the vicinity of San Juan. The port of Mayaguez has been mined and the buoys have been changed. Nine-tenths of the population, according to these advices, prefer annexation to independence. The British cruiser Intrepid, having on board the Governor of the Leeward Islands has arrived at St. Thomas on a tour of inspection.

ANGLO SAXON TALK OF THE TARIFF

New York, June 19.—The promise of the final closing of the chapter of Canadian and United States despatches is a source of widespread English satisfaction, says the London correspondent of the Evening Post. While such a suggestion as comes to-day from the rebels at Manila that the Philippines will form a republic under Anglo-American tutilage fits in with many English ideals. Of the future relations of England and America there is, however, another side—this being an American idea to which Englishmen are heroically trying to shut their eyes. This other side is revealed by views of the Republican party going into the autumn campaign squarely committed to imperialism, on the ground that by including Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, the Corolines, San Domingo and Hayti within home tariff corners it will be necessary to abandon the pro-system. I asked two representative English men yesterday what would be the effect of the realization of this forecast—one was an intimate and prominent ally of the ministry; the other an ex-Cabinet Minister of the Liberal persuasion. Both emphatically declared that it would be quite impossilbe to run an Anglo-American understanding on high protectionist lines. America, of course, could do what it pleased with the tariff at home, but the only possible basis of co-operation with England outside must be on the basis of an open door and equal trading opportunities, at least to the whole English speaking world. That may safely said to be the idea of Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour. In the persistent talk without Anglo-American co-operation nothing is more certain than that English enthusiasm for Anglo-American co-operation would fizzle, and like a damp sqib if it were realized here that the end of it all would only be the creation of one commercial enemy for England among colonizing nations."

A DESPERATE BATTLE

General Shafter Effects a Landing in Cuba with 8,000 Men

And Established a Camp after a Fierce Engagement in which 24 were Killed and Nearly 100 Wounded

London, June 18.—Reports published here this morning say that a division of General Shafter's army of invasion numbering 8,000 men, appeared before Juraguasito, twenty miles east of Santiago last evening in fourteen transports under convoy of several vessels, and that at daylight this morning they effected a landing and established a camp after one of the most desperate engagements on record.

Juraguasito was chosen as the landing place because of its good anchorage, its connection with Santiago by means of a light railway, and its most entire lack of strong defensive batteries. Relying upon the precipitous nature of the coast, the Spaniards thought it unnecessary to erect fortifications, and this oversight cost them the position.

General Shafter's feat in placing his men ashore resembles closely that of General Wolfe at Quebec. Prior to sailing he had been informed by officers of the survey department that the coast around Juraguasito was exceedingly precipitous, with only one opening, which was almost impracticable as a landing place. He determined, however, to examine this opening for himself, and as soon as it was dusk went out to reconnoitre in the launch of the Olivette. He went ashore with two members of his staff and discovered a narrow gully running down steeply to a sandy beach, which offered a good point at which to land troops. This he at once determined should be the place of landing.

The only difficulty in the way was a Spanish heliograph-station on the top of the precipice, a few hundred yards to the left of the gully, but it was determined to run the risk in the hope that men might be put ashore before Santiago could be communicated with.

LANDING THE TROOPS.

Returning to the ships, he sent out orders for the boats to be held in readiness to embark troops at four o'clock next morning. Punctually at that hour every boat in the fleet was in the water, loaded to the gunwales with men. With muffled oars they proceeded silently to the sandy beach referred to, and a party of 100 picked men climbed the gully after great difficulty and established themselves at its head. Unfortunately they were stumbled upon by one of the patrols which Captain-General Blanco has established around the coast of Cuba, and the shots exchanged gave notice to the occupants of the heliograph station, who immediately lighted a huge beacon fire to warn the garrisons of Santiago and the neighboring towns.

It had been Shafter's intention, as soon as a party had been landed, to hold the head of the gully, to quietly surround the heliograph station and capture those in charge so as to prevent such a contingency. Seeing, however, that this plan had miscarried, he hurried his men rapidly up the declivity, which was over a mile in length, and in about an hour 700 of them had taken up a strong position on the level ground at the summit.

THE COUNTRY AROUSED.

Meanwhile, the country had been aroused, and 400 Spanish cavalry stationed at Juraguasito itself, which is situated five miles inland, together with a light field battery, came up at the gallop. It was now sufficiently light for the situation of affairs to be seen. The field guns took up a position close to the heliograph station and opened fire, working great havoc with the American infantry in a few minutes. The cavalry thereupon charged in splendid order and being unable to withstand the onslaught the landing party were pressed back in great disorder down the gully, many of sabred and pistoled.

So far the battle had been entirely with the defending force. The battleship Indiana and other vessels of the convoying fleet had stood in to within two miles of the shore, but owing to the proximity of the two contending parties had not dared to open fire for fear of decimating her own men. With the retreat of the latter towards the boats the Spaniards were exposed and the battleship planted several well directed shells in their midst, doing such damage that they retired rapidly towards brushwood in the rear, which could not be seen from the sea, their battery going with them.

THE REAL FIGHT.

Over two hours had now passed since the first landing, and Shafter had now about 2,000 of his troops ashore. With the disappearance of the cavalry he moved them as rapidly as he could to the top of the eminence, the Indiana still keeping up a fire to prevent interruption. By seven o'clock 2,000 men and a couple of guns, conveyed with the utmost labor, were stationed on the plateau at the cliffs. But the fight was not over. From the west came 1,500 troops of the Santiago garrison, under General Pablo, who had taken train for Juraguasito immediately upon the alarm being given, while from Peluca, eight miles to the left, an additional 1,000 under Colonel Aldamero, arrived on the scene, and effected a junction with them.

This small army marched forward and attacked the Americans with surprising bravery, bringing into action three Gatling guns brought with them, while the cavalry and the field gun issued from the thickets in front. A well-directed artillery fire, followed by a second cavalry charge, which the shells of the two American guns this time failed to stop, began to demoralize the American troops, who were now under General Shafter himself. It was their first picked engagement, and numbers of them went down under the fire of the Spanish cannon and rifles and the sabres of the cavalrymen. They were once more being forced down the gully, preventing the advance of their comrades still landing from the boats. The Spanish infantry were advancing at the double to complete the defeat which seemed inevitable.

CUBANS TO THE RESCUE.

At this moment, however, a welcome diversion was created by over a thousand Cuban insurgents, under Luetro Petrino, who came up through the chapparal in rear of the Spaniards. This completely turned the tables. Taken between two fires, their only shelter occupied by the rebels, the Spanish troops began to waver and the American landing party rallied and moved forward again. Bewildered by the new course of events, the Spanish artillery and rifle fire was ineffective, and the cavalry galloped off to the right with many empty saddles. The two American guns began to do deadly work in front, while the Remingtons of the Cubans did likewise in the rear. Presently the latter drew their machetes, and issuing from the thickets fell upon the rear of their traditional enemies, and the Americans following their example attacked them in front, reinforcements all the while pouring up the gully from the ships.

THE BATTLE WON.

The battle was lost to the Spaniards. The landing had been effected. Pablo and Aldamero drew off their men, or those of them they could get away from the Cubans, in disorder, leaving the field to their opponents, who did not deem it advisable to follow them for fear of entanglements inland.

By ten o'clock the whole of Shafter's division had been landed, and established in a position which rendered further attack impossible, unless with a larger force than that at the command of the Spanish.

Upon the plateau the bodies of 17 dead and 45 wounded Spaniards were found, while the American losses were 7 killed and 30 wounded.

AGUINALDO PROGRESSIVE

The Philippine Rebel Leader Promises to Set Up a Modern Republic

A Spanish Steamer Runs the Blockade and Lands Food and Cash for Santiago de Cuba Forces

London, June 18.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times gives the text of a Berlin letter dated June 4, and read in the Cortes on Thursday, purporting to be the text of an agreement signed April 24, at Singapore, between Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, and the United States Consul there, regarding the future government of the Philippines an agreement afterward orally ratified at Hong Kong by Admiral Dewey.

In this agreement Aguinaldo undertakes to organize a republican government under the protectorate of the United States, with the assistance of two or three United States delegates as counsellors.

The ports of the archipelego are to be opened to foreign trade and immigration with certain restrictions against the Chinese.

Then follow clauses promising judicial and other reforms the expulsion and abolition of "tyrannical religious orders." The freedom of the press, protection to Spanish residents, provision for the return of Spanish officials to Spain and the general developments of the country.

The Times correspondent says that the contents of the agreement "harmonize with information derived from other quarters." but that there is no proof of its authenticity.

RAN THE BLOCKADE.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 18.—A despatch from Manzanillo, province of Santiago de Cuba, received here to-day, announces the arrival there of the Spanish steamer Purrisima Conception which sailed from Kingston about 2 o'clock Thursday morning, with food supplies for the Spanish troops and carrying, it is understood $100,000 gold

A HINT TO THE KAISER.

London, June 18.—The Spectator, commenting on the significant assembling of German warships at Manila, says Emperor William of course means nothing but friendly observation. Would it not be expedient, however, to send a couple of cruisers to Manila to join in the friendly observation and reinforce Admiral Dewey if attacked?"

WEYLER'S VIEWS ON TACTICS.

London June 18.—A Madrid correspondent of the Telegraph says

Questioned regarding the war operations General Weyler said he thought it needless to send a fleet to Cuba. In his opinion it would have been better to have made a dash for the United States coast towns and to have sent a squadron to defend the Philippines,

STRIKING MILL HANDS

Mob Police who Come to Aid of W. C. Edwards, M. P.

A DISASTER AT DANVILLE

Mrs. Monck Thought She was Inspired to End Her Earthly Career

The Governor Generalship of Canada is too Expensive for Moderately Rich Men—The Commander of the U. S Army, Gen. Miles, Practically Relieved of Duties and Power—Three Men Killed by a Dynamite Explosion at Danville

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, June 18.—Over a thousand of W. C. Edwards' mill hands are on strike at Rockland and the police have been called out to control the mob. Mr. Edwards, attempting to address them, was stoned. It is alleged that the police have fired on the strikers.

A posse of twelve Dominion Police who tried to clear the way to the mills armed with revolvers, were attacked with stones and were forced to retreat.

As they retreated they fired a score or two of shots, most of them in the air. Several of them were injured by stones.

The 43rd Battalion may be called out.

The men want a 10-hour day and fortnightly instead of monthly pay.

Lt.-Col. Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, went down to Rockland this morning.

A request came about one o'clock for additional Dominion Police, but it is stated at the department that none will be sent but that troops will likely be called out instead.

DANVILLE'S DISASTER

Danville, June 18.—Three men named Morin Rivard and Rotti were killed by the explosion of dynamite at the compressor house of the Asbestos mills here yesterday. Had the explosion occured a few minutes later it is probable that many more would have been killed. The bulk of the employes were returning to the building when the explosion occured. The force of the shock was felt for miles, and the large factory and all the buildings within a quarter of a mile have not a single window left. This, together with the fire, which destroedy the machinery house with all machinery Thursday night will prove a heavy loss and seriously interfere with their contracts.

TOO FRAIL TO LIVE

Kingston, June 18.—Mrs. John Monck, Tamworth, took paris green at noon yesterday, leaving a note bidding her husband good-bye. At 6 p.m. she told what she had done. Dr. Clark was called to see her at once, but it was to late.

She said that she had received spiritual information at a Hornerite meeting the evening previous that she was to frail for this world, and this information caused her to take the poison.

MILES TO GO

New York, June 18.—The World has a Washington despatch indicating that Gen. Miles is to be relieved of the command of the army, as McClellan was in the civil war.

He is ignored by the President, who looks only to Gen. Corbin.

Gen. Miles is accused of waiting for ideal conditions before going into active warfare.

SAVED LAD'S LIFE

Chatham, June 18.—Hugh Cameron of Camden Township, was kicked in the face by a horse last evening and sustained probably fatal injury.

Willie Walters aged 10, fell into the Thames last night, and was nearly drowned. After having sunk beneath the water, the lad was brought to terra firma in an unconscious condition by Wm. Horn, who restored the lad to consciousness after considerable trouble.

COMES TOO HIGH

London, June 18.—There is not the slightest truth in the report that H. R. H. the Duke of Connaugh is to succeed the Earl of Aberdeen as Governor-General of Canada.

A Scotch member of Parliament is authority for the statement that the Governor-Generalship of Canada is a position much to expensive for a Scotch nobleman of small means to accept.

HARRIS DISMISSED

Montreal, June 18.—D. Pottinger, General Manager of the Government Railway System, arrived here last evening with Hon. Mr. Blair, who sailed for Europe on the Allan Liner Parisian this morning. Mr. Pottinger returned to Ottawa at 10.30 this morning. Although there has been no official announcement it is positively known that Mr. A. H. Harris who was appointed traffic manager of the Government Railway System eight months ago and who promised to do such remarkable things for the Government Railway in the way of making it a paying road, and whose administration of the traffic department caused such widespread dissatisfaction and trouble for the Government, has received his dismissal, and is preparing to vacate the office.

What is to be done with the position created for Mr. Harris or whether it is to be abolished, has not transpired, officials declining to speak on the matter.

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 6 1898

THE WAR

The war appears to have resolved itself largely into a question of how long it will take the Americans to bring up their overwhelming superior forces. The Spanish fight with splendid courage when they came within range of American guns, but except at Havana, they seem to lack the equipment to make anything like an effective resistance. The seige of Havana, when it comes, may be a prolonged struggle. The impression is that General Blanco is prepared to make a stout defence, having a fairly large army, forts mounted with modern guns, and manned with expert gunners and plenty of ammunition. It is not probable that Santiago is nearly so well prepared, as it could hardly have been the expectation of the Spanish that they would have to stand a pounding at the opposite end of the island before Havana would be invested. If Cervera had not dodged into Santiago harbor, and get bottled up there, it is not likely that the American warships would now be throwing dynamite and steel into the defences at that point. Havana's weak spot would seem to be the food supply, but one would expect that so fertile an island as Cuba could be made to support the Spanish garrison for a time; and that will sufice for purposes of defence.

The failure of the Pelayo squadron to sail from Cadiz has been explained in so many ways now that one of the theories cannot well help being true; but the important fact is that it does not sail. The story now is that an American squadron will go in search of it. Unless it is hopelessly out of order, this ought to be good news for the Spanish commanders. An American fleet in European waters would suffer from the difficulty of coaling just as Admiral Cervera did on this side of the Atlantic. It would be only necessary to manœuvre for delay in order to compel the Americans either to retreat or fight at a disadvantage. But it probable that nothing of this venturous kind will be done until at least Santiago and Porto Rico have surrendered. Meantime the American officers are daily winning victories over the deadly inertia of unreadiness, lack of military organozation and experience, and the other ills that a non-military people suffer from when they go to war. In these conflicts, we, as a non-military people, are deeply concerned.

WALRUS LEATHER.

Used For Making Wheels For Polishing. Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making buffer wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a cub walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1¼ inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1¼ to 1¾ inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the sea lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of sea lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, sir. You see, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 30 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but"—

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the piano after you left the house, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got red. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retorted:

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I'll never come here for help again, never!"—Pearson's Weekly.

TWO SPANISH ATTEMPTS

New York, June 17.—The Journal has the following from Hong Kong: The most severe and important battle since Admiral Dewey's annihilation of the Spanish fleet has occurred at Manila. One thousand insurgents attacked 2,000 Spanish, inflicting heavy losses and almost forcing the entrance to the city.

The insurgents under General Aguinaldo and the American sailors and marines of Admiral Dewey's fleet completely surround Manila. The foreign residents have fled to the ships. Admiral Montejo and Governor-General Augusti have placed the women, children and priests in the forts for safety.

WILLING TO SURRENDER

Governor-General Augusti is reported to be willing to surrender to the Americans in order to prevent the insurgents from capturing the capital, setting it on fire and killing the Spaniards. The archbishop, however, is opposed to the surrender and has overruled Augusti. A Spanish spy has attempted to poison General Aguinaldo, but the plot was abortive. Aguinaldo was made very sick, but has completely recovered.

A Spanish prisoner was caught trying to assassinate Aguinaldo. When his plot was discovered he attempted to escape, but was shot dead. The success of the insurgents is wonderful. The Spaniards taken prisoners in the two weeks' campaign aggregate 3,000, including 2,000 soldiers of the regular army. Prominent among them are Generals Garcia and Cordoba.

TWO GOVERNORS TAKEN.

The governors of the provinces of Cavite, Balucan, and Bataan were also made prisoners. Two million rounds of cartridges were seized in the fortified cathedral of old Cavite. The large garrison of old Cavite has surrendered, thus giving the insurgents command of the shore of the entire bay. All interior sources of supplies are now cut off from the Spanish forces in Manila.

The increase in the number of German warships in this port excites comment in view of the relations between Spain and Germany. Everything is in readiness for the arrival of the American troops on the transport ships which left San Francisco May 25, and which are hourly expected.

The Americans can take Manila within twenty-four hours after the arrival of the roops.

A great fire is raging north of Manila. The insurgents have captured the water works, on which the supply of the city depends. General Augusti has issued orders declaring that all males above the age of 18 shall join the army and do military duty.

MANILA IN DESPERATE STRAITS.

Manila, June 5, via Hong Kong, June 17.—It is officially admitted here that the troops have been without food for 36 hours. The gunboats sent into the lagoon with volunteers to search for food have returned without any. Every lagoon and town is hostile. During the week all the garrisons were simultaneously overpowered or surrendered as prisoners. Most of those who resisted were slaughtered. The insurgents are gaining everywhere and are now firing into Manila itself.

Int he northern sections the insurgents have united near Passig, on the Passig river, driving the Spanish gunboats to Doa. There were a few casualties. On all sides can be seen the Spainards retiring, removing effects and dismantling the barracks prematurely, evidently anticipating defeat as a matter of course. The soldiers are brave and desperate and hate to retreat. But they are hopelessly incompetent and shamefully underfed. Many oft hem have never been at target practice in their lives.

THE FATE OF GENERAL MONET.

London, June 17.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "The news from Manila is most unfavorable, and has made a corresponding impression. Serious misgivings are felt regarding the fate of General Monet, at the head of a strong column operating at some distance from the coast.

"It is said that many foreign residents, with their families and valuables, have taken refuge on British, French and German war vessels, while others have left for China and Japan.

"Most of the papers express a fear that the next news will be o teh fall of Manila.

"The whole question, in the eyes of the Spaniards, is whether Admiral Dewey can prevent Aguinaldo from pushing on hostilities against Manila until the American reinforcements arrive, since otherwise it is supposed he will have to allow European war vessels to co-operate in the difficult task of maintaining order and saving Manila from the excesses of the insurgents.'

A NEW INSTRUMENT OF WAR.

Paris, June 17.—A despatch to The Figaro from Madrid says: "The visit of Captain Aunon, the Spanish Minister of Marine, to Cadiz was with the view of experimenting at sea with a new and powerful shell which liberates poisonous gases."

THREE BLOCKHOUSES DESTROYED

New York, June 17.—A despatch to The World from Key West says: "An auxiliary cruiser reports a bombardment near Cardenas this morning. The Americans were determined to destroy three or four blockhouses which were being erected. The American ships went close in, according to the auxiliary cruiser and peppered the blockhouses, which did not respond. The bombardment did not last long.

CREW OF CRUISERS DISCHARGED.

New York, June 17.—The Tribune announced this morning that the crews of the Harvard and Yale had been discharged and new men engaged. The reasons for the change were incompetence, and, in many cases, according to a medical examination, the men were unfit for service.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

Walter meanwhile secured a very exquisite bunch of flowers and drove out to see Stella Sterling.

He found her in the library with Nina, who at once seized the opportunity to make her escape.

"It is too warm to write French dictation, Miss Sterling," she said. "Do let me off, and I'll work twice as hard to-morrow."

"Very well," said Stella indignantly, and Nina disappeared, and took up a novel, which occupied her for the rest of the day.

"I am afraid I am as glad to dispense with lessons as Nina," said Stella, with a smile, "for I feel the heat and my head aches."

"Let me arrange the shades to exclude some of the glare; and look at these exquisite orchids; they may refresh you, their perfume is so delicate."

Walter sat down, where he could study the queenly little head bent in admiration over the flowers.

Stella looked beautiful that day, though paler than usual, and seemingly oppressed by a feeling of languor. The ivory tint of her skin seemed finer than any marble, while the silky blackness of her eyelashes enhanced the waxen delicacy of her oval cheeks.

Walter was silent; he was thinking of the future. His intentions were clear; he would make Stella his wife.

"Miss Sterling," he said softly, his blue eyes misty from depth of feeling. "I was in Mr. Jameson's office to-day, and he spoke of you."

"Indeed?"

She raised her eyes and met his glance, then blushed and let hers fall again on the blossoms in her hand.

"Yes; he spoke of you in such terms as a man might speak of his best-loved daughter."

"He has known me a very short time!"

"True, he referred to that; he said he was a judge of character, and felt that he knew you as well as though you had lived here for years."

"I am very grateful."

"Do you know why we talked of you, Stella?"

"No."

Her hands were busy with the fragrant, glowing orchids, but they trembled as Walter stretched out his and took possession of them.

"Do you know why Mr. Jameson spoke of you, my dearest?"

"No."

She spoke faintly; she felt happy beyond all visions of happiness that ever had visited her in the brightest, most joy-fraught dreams; and still insidious drops of bitterness continued in every sweet cup of joy. A faint whisper stirred her heart: "This love is but a mockery; it will perish swiftly as it came."

"Then I shall tell you, Stella. How sweet a task is mine, love! I am going to ask you to be my wife, to render he the happiest, proudest man in all the world.'

He drew her to his breast, where her head rested, palely, purely beautiful as the orchids which now lay at their feet. Their lips met in the long, clinging kiss of the first, the only love of life—that love that comes but once to each poor mortal on this earth to give a forecast of the joys of heaven.

How happy Walter felt as he whispered to Stella of all his hopes and plans for the future which they should spend together.

"We shall never grow old, careless married people, darling," he said. "I mean to be a lover all my life. I never bestowed one thought upon a woman till I met you, my queen!"

Footsteps sounded in the hall; the the door-bell had been rung by an assured hand which sent a brave peal through the house.

The library door was thrown open by Chisholm, who announced:

"Judge George P. Hamilton."

Stella looked up. She had drawn herself away from Walter's arms, and he had risen to his feet.

Before her stood Alwin Croft, her step-father, the escaped felon!

THE TAMPA TRANSPORTS

An Exchange of Shots. The Expedition will be Re-inforced by 5,000 Troops and will then Proceed to Cuba

Washington, June 17.—A report was sent out from the White House this morning that the expedition from Tampa, Fla., under General Shafter, numbering over 15,000 troops, which reached Key West on Wednesday, and which left the island at daylight yesterday morning for Santiago de Cuba returned last night under escort of the battleship Indiana. Mr. Alger Secretary of War, is very much concerned over the receipt of the news of the return of the expedition, and has admitted that the news from Key West is most serious, and that a Spanish squadron succeeded in heading off the fleet laden with soldiers and supplies. Two large Spanish cruisers were seen in the Gulf of Mexico by the officers of the Indiana, and the fleet was at once signalled to turn back to Key West. Shots were exchanged between the warships, but the Indiana escaped injury, and the whole fleet of transports succeeded in reaching Key West. Several warships started after the Spanish vessels, but according to reports here to-day they failed to overtake their fleet enemies. The Indiana at the time the enemy was sighted was two miles in front of the flet, and as she was acting strictly as a convoy her commander signaled the fleet to retire. The authorities here cannot understand why the Spanish squadron was not pursued at once and given battle, as to guard the transports there were sixteen United States warships, including a number of small gunboats.

CERVERA STILL ON DECK.

It is now believed here that Cervera himself is not in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba and that while some of his vessels are securely bottled up in the land-locked trap the commander, with a good fleet is still on the ocean and is determined to destroy the Tampa expedition. Should he succeed in doing this it would be a crushing blow to the United States and would prolong the campaign for many months. I was informed by an officer this morning that the Tampa soldiers who were to reach the Cuban coast by to-morrow, will be held until five thousand troops have been despatched down to the east coast from Jacksonville under General Wade to the "Keys" when a junction will be formed and then the combined expedition will proceed to Jauraguasito, an anchorage about twenty miles east of Santiago, where a landing will be attempted. This report is on the streets, so that if the expedition makes for this landing point the Spaniards will no doubt have received information. Another report is to the effect that the expedition will be devided, and that while one division will go under escort to Juraguasito, the other will make direct for Mariel, and getting inside of the trocha, destroy the line of forts by artillery, and then make a direct attack on Havana, eighteen miles distant.

TO ATTACK HAVANA.

At this point the island is about 43 miles wide and across the whole extent there is a line of forts facing the formidable trocha, but it is expected that with the large force to be landed and with the light artillery they will succeed in overcoming all obstacles. President McKinley is anxiously awaiting further information, and several conferences have occured between him and the Secretary of War. It is believed in official circles here that the information received by Secretary Alger from Key West is more serious than what I have been able to learn and that the Tampa expedition will meet with a warm reception on the Cuban coast, if it be not attacked in the gulf or on the ocean.

LITTLE SISTER.

Little sister's prim and sly,
With a keen and knowing eye,
With a bright and roguish glance,
Sharper than a soldier's lance.
At that glance my faint heart goes
Down and hobnobs with my toes.
Can she know the boon I seek—
Why I call three times a week?
How she watches all my moves—
Ah, I hope she quite approves!
And she treats me to such airs,
While my darling is up stairs.

She's discovered why I call!
Little sister knows it all!
—Harry Romaine in Ladies' Home Journal.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today, 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man can talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and—Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—St.

The French Peasant.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving; yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gros betail and the other betail are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

thus saving the Yankees from the temptation to possess islands which they never coveted till they saw that they could be captured.

DEPRESSION IN SPAIN.

London, June 18.—Senor Sagasta, replying in the Cortes yesterday to a question as to whether Manila had fallen, replied in the negative; but he added that the situation there was one of the gravest character. The despatches from Madrid agree that this statement, together with the report that the rebels are attacking the walled city, has caused intense depression.

A SAMPLE SPANISH LIE.

Madrid, June 18.—9a.m.—A despatch from Havana says the Guerra Marina publishes a number of documents "including a letter from Maximo Gomez, to the Cuban Junta in New York, protesting against the intervention of the United States."

This paper, it appears, thereupon remarks "Intervention, in its present form, is repugnant to the majority of the rebel chiefs and is distasteful to the mass of the insurgents."

TROOPS OFF CUBA.

Mole St. Nicholas Hayti, June 18.—An American warship and two transports, the latter containing part of the army, with which it is intended to take Santiago, have been sighted off Cape Maysi, at the eastern end of Cuba, sailing at full speed in a southerly direction. They were undoubtedly part of the fleet which left Tampa Tuesday night, and the other ships are close by.

By this time the leaders of the fleet are off Guantanamo Bay, if they have not entered it. It is considered a certainty that by tonight the reinforcements needed so greatly by the marines at Camp McCalla will have been put ashore.

The whole fleet of warships and transports will have rounded to off Santiago, and the coast west and east of that port by to-morrow.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing thee musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Wedded at Lakefield

Counterfeit Bills

New two-dollar counterfeit Dominion bills are in circulation throughout the province generally. They are exceedingly good imitations and difficult to detect. The green color on the back is not dark enough, and the words "British American Note Company, Montreal," are in larger type than on the genuine note. A distinguishing mark for non-experts is that the "i's" are not dotted.

"Smiff" Makes a Remark

The Bobcaygeon Independent maliciously says: The announcement is very generally made by the Methodist Conferences that they have far more young men on hand for the ministry than can be found missions. The young gentlemen who are crowded out of the sky pilot business have always one grand opening. Ontario has millions ofacres ready to furnish homes of comfort and manly independence.

WHERE IS JAS. DUNN?

He Mysteriously Disappeared on Good Friday—It is Feared Some Mishap has Befallen Him

Mr. E. Morrison, boot and shoe dealer, has received several letters from Peterborough and Cobourg, says the Orillia News-Letter, asking for information concerning the whereabouts of James Dunn, journeyman shoemaker, who had been in his employ for some years. Dunn was an educated Irishman of fine physique, but with an inordinate weakness for drink. On Good Friday he mysteriously disappeared, and as he had been drinking heavily during the day it was feared that some mishap might have befallen him. It is said that through the death of a relative Dunn has been willed a considerable amount of money, and that this is the cause of the enquiries now being prosecuted after his whereabouts. Mr. Morrison, who was well acquainted with Dunn's many idioyncrasies, is of the opinion that he is all right, and probably staying with some friends in Watertown, N. Y., and discredits the idea of anything having happened him.

A CLOSE CALL

Michael Smith will Have Cause to Remember the Klondyke Flyer

A Dixon Co. teamster, named Michael Smith, had an experience with the Klondike Flyer on Saturday that he will remember as long as he lives.

He was driving a team attached to an empty wagon south down Mark-st, Ashburnham, and when just north of the C. P. R. track, quite close to the lake, he stopped to talk a few moments with a passerby. The C. P. R. 1.18 west bound Klondike express approached and seeing it coming, Smith hurried up his horses and endeavored to cross the track, but, before he was clear across, the train overtook him, struck the wagon with terrific force and caused a general wreck.

The wagon was smashed into kindling wood, even the heavy tires being bent and twisted, one of the horses turned a somersault, and the driver was thrown a distance of ten feet by the shock, alighting heavily on his head.

A number of men who were working not far off, some of them being eyewitnesses of the accident, hurried to the spot, where they found the man apparently dead. He was only unconscious, however, and was carried to the residence of Mr. Bennett close by. Doctors Boucher and Bell soon arrived and after applying restoratives found that no bones were broken. He was badly shaken up, however, and felt much pain all over his body. He was badly bruised about the ear and nose, and a slight concussion of the brain also resulted from his heavy fall.

When Smith recovered consciousness he knew nothing of what happened him After resting at Mr. Bennet's he was removed to his home, where he will be laid up for some days. He had a very narrow escape from being killed or maimed for life.

The horses were not injured.

The People's Faith

Besides these excellent alteratives, it also contains those great anti-bilious and liver remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion. It also contains those great kidney remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries, and Pipsissewa.

Nor are these all. Other very valuable curative agents are harmoniously combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is carefully prepared under the personal supervision of a regularly educated pharmacist.

Knowing these facts, is the abiding faith the people have in Hood's Sarsaparilla a matter of surprise? You can see why Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, when other medicines totally, absolutely fail.

A RANSOM FOR HOBSON PROPOSED

Mr. F. W. Ramsden, British Consul at Santiago, Who is Acting in the Interests of America, Makes the Proposition

AMERICAN VESSELS SIGHTED

Kingston, Jamaica, June 20. — The British steamer Ethelwold arrived at Port Antoniot his morning and reported passing yesterday evening near Cape May, the extreme eastern point of Cuba, an American gunboat, an auxiliary cruiser, two transports and a schooner in tow. Later she passed another steamer with troops on board.

The Ethelwold was stopped by a gunboat with a blank shot, and was questioned as to her identity.

24 AMERICAN VESSELS AT SEA

Kingston, Jamaica, June 20.—2.30 p. m.—The steamers Bowden, Jamaica and Brooklyn, arrived here to-day and report having passed in the windward passage last night, 24 American vessels headed southward..

NOT YET SETTLED

Madrid, June 20.—Premier Sagasta, when questioned on the subject to-day said nothing had been decided. "In spite of the American reports regarding the exchange of naval constructor Hobson and his companions who were captured by the Spaniards after they sank the collier Merrimac in the narrow channel leading into the barbor of Santiago de Cuba.

A WELL PLEASED SPANIARD

Madrid, June 20.—The Minister of Marine, Captain Aunon, in an interview to-day, declared he was exceedingly well pleased with the result of his journey from Cadiz to Cartagena witht he Spanish fleet.

A RANSOM FOR HOBSON

Kingston, Jamaica, June 20.—Mr. F. W. Ramsden, the British Consul at Santiago de Cuba, who is acting for the United States in the negotiations with the Spaniards for the exchange of Lieut. Hobson and his comrades, has suggested to the officials at Washinton that even a ransom might be paid to secure the prompt release of the American prisoners. That idea was undoubtedly expressed in the cable despatches which passed through the colonial authorities here. But in what form it was shaped is not clear.

WON'T EXCHANGE HOBSON

Fear Among Troops Sends Them From Tampa

Spaniard Steals Sampson's Charts—He Came Off in a Boat and Poses as an Escaped Cuban Prisoner.

Washington, June 20.—A despatch has been received from Commdore Watson by the Naval War Board, stating that he has been informed by Captain-General Blanco that the Spanish Government have refused to exchange Lieut. Hobson and his seven companions who formed the crew of the Merrimac, and are now imprisoned in Morro Castle, Santiago.

A CLEVER SPANISH SPY.

Cape Haytien, June 200.—It was reported here last night by the master of a Jamaica fishing schooner which had come from Santiago, that the crew of the New York, Admiral Sampson's flagship, were considerably exercised over a mysterious affair which occurred on Friday night.

About nine o'clock a small skiff in a leaky condition came off to the fleet, pulled by a Cuban, who appeared so eak that it was with difficulty he could move his boat through the water. He went alongside the flagship and was taken aboard, giving his name Jucaro Agrsoti. He said that he had been imprisoned in Santiago for nine months for participating in the revolution, and that a stray shell from the American fleet had so damaed his prison that he had been able to loosen the masonry, escape at night, seize a skiff in the harbor, and put out to the fleet.

He was taken before Admiral Sampson, who believed his story, and gave him in charge of the Cuban guides on the vessel, by whom he was given food, which he eat ravenously, stating that owing to the lack of provisions in Santiago he and fellow prisoners had been on exceedingly short rations for about a month.

At midnight on Saturday, when the officer of the watch was going his usual rounds, he found that the lock of the chart room, where all plans are kept and much clerical work is done, had beent ampered with. He entered the room and found things in a state of great disorder. An alarm was at once raised, and suspicion at once rested upon the Cuban. He was nowhere to be found, however, having disappeared completely. The strange part of the affair was that the boat in which he had come aboard was still alongside, so that he must have either swum ashore or been taken off by another boat.

Examination of the chart room revealed the fact that important maps of the Cuban coast and Admiral Sampson's general orders from the Naval War Board had been stolen, seriously inconvenciencing the Admiral in further operations against Santiago and other points in the neighborhood. It is now known beyond doubt that the supposed Cuban was none other than a very clever Spaniard, sent off especially for the purpose.

LACK OF DRINKING WATER.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—A correspondent writes: "This city, I am informed, is to immediately become the base of operations for the volunteers now encamped at Tampa, and other points south, and a movement back will begin at once. Secretary of War Alger has notified the commanding officer here, General Fitzhugh Lee, that all the troops must be removed from Tampa, owing to the fact that a sufficient quantity of good water cannot be obtained there. In Jacksonville at present there are about ten thousand soldiers, and they are encamped about a mile north of the city. In order to provide a sufficient quantity of water pipe lines have been laid from the artesian wells at the waterworks to the camp, a distance of two miles, and as St. John river flows by only a few miles away the the horses and mules will have an ample supply always on hand. I understand that with the exception of those taking part in General Shafter's expedition, all the soldiers except those thoroughly acclimatized and the regular guard will be removed from of Tampa, the other at Fernandia, on Key West back to Jacksonville, and that within the next week there will be two other encampments established, one at Dade City, 60 miles north the east coast. It is believed here that troops will be sent on transports from the latter place to Porto Rico, and the transports Gate City and City of Macon are now lying at the docks there. The soldiers here do not expect to take part in any fighting unless the campaign should continue in the fall after the wet season, and they think the war will be practically over by that time.

A despatch was received here yesterday stating that typhoid and malarial fevers had broken out among the troops in Tampa, and that it would probably become epidemic. There is no question that the water in Tampa is very bad, and this is the principal reason for the removal of the soldiers to Jacksonville and Dade City, and to Fernandina on the coast. So far as I have heard, but one death has resulted from typhoid, but many troopers are down with it, and scores are rendered helpless from malaria. The rainy season has fully set in and on the plains of Tampa, which is almost as level as a board, the tents are now standing in the middle of a shallow sea of mud and water. For days after the first rain a vapour arose from the sun-baked sand, and to this is attributed the first outbreak of typhoid, the soldiers breathing an atmosphere of poison. In many of the tents there are several inches of water, that overflows the wooden flooring that has been laid down. Reports of yellow fever are current, but I have been assured that no case has been discovered in Tampa, although it is said to exist in Mobile. I know that an isolation hospital has been established on Tampa Heights, on the site of an orange grove, and a visiting doctor tells me that there is an average of seventy patients every day, treated, of course, for many different diseases. All soldiers who enter this establishment are held a day after convalescence and are thoroughly disinfected before being allowed to go back to camp. The doctors consider the situation serious, and have strongly advised the removal of the troops to points further north.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION

Will be Under General Butler and Will Sail To-morrow

Manila Falls Again—This Time the Old, Old Report Comes from a Spanish Source—American Government will seize all Vessels.

Washington, June 20.—The 1st division, under Gen. M. C. Butler, now at Camp Alger, has been selected for the second expidition to Santiago.

The troops left to-day for fortress Monroe and will embark on the Yale and Harvard and will probably sail to-morrow. Gen. Garretson's brigade, which is in this division and is composed of the 8th Ohio, 6th Massachusets and 6th Illinois, will be the first to start. They will proceed at once to reinforce General Shafter.

The navy office has been requested to offer the use of the Harvard and Yale to carry men and supplies from Tampa to Shafter. These two ships would carry 2,000 men and several hundred tons of supplies. If these ships are granted the St. Paul and St. Louis will also be asked for. They would not be asked to carry supplies, but to carry 3,000 men.

MANILA FALLS AGAIN.

Madrid, June 20.—Despat hes received here this morning state that Manila has fallen, that the insurgents have taken possession of the city, and have fired many buildings, and that the foreign warships, including Germany, France, England, and Japan, have interfered to prevent the insurgents from sacking the city. Rear-Admiral Dewey has sent an official notification to General Aguinaldo that if further acts of violence are committed in the city he will join with the other warships to suppress the insurgents. The news has created a tremendous sensation here, and Premere Sagasta has already communicated with the Queen Regent. He has publicly expressed his disbelief as to the fall of Manila, and relies upon the Germain warships to protect the Spaniards in the city under any event.

WILL SEIZE ALL VESSELS.

San Francisco, June 20.—The Government has taken a firm stand with regard to securing transports to carry the troops to Manila, and from this time forward impressment will be the rule until enough vessels have been secured to carry the army to the Philippines.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Newport has been impressed. This makes the sixth vessel owned by the Pacific Mail Company which is in the service of the Government.

The Alameda is due from Australia and Honolulu on June 29, and the Government agents will swoop down on her. This will leave the Oanic Steamship Company alone with only the Mariposa on the Australian route, and no steamer on the Honolulu route.

The Pacific Steam Whaling Company's steamer Valencia has been chartered. It is said she will not carry more than 600 men. The City of Paris is being prepared for the troops. When the accommodations are completed, it is said the steamer will accommodate 1,000 men. The Nero is taking coal as rapidly as possible. The Monadnock is expected here from Mare Island to-day. It is thought that she and her consort, the Nero, will be ready for sea by Wednesday.

GERMANY WONT ACT.

Madrid, June 20.—In the course of a conversation to-day a prominent politician said he did not believe that Germany would do anything in the Philippines on behalf of Spain. Nor had he any faith in help from the European powers. "If Admiral Camara is successful in the Philippines," he said, "it will be of assistance to Spain in adjusting peace; but no power or combination of powers is likely to oppose America's policy. Should the liberals retire, the next Government will take the first opportunity to negotiate for peace."

General Blanco has cabled to Lieut.-General Correa, Minister of War, an indignant denial of the charges that the Spaniards at Guantanamo mutilated the American dead.

ANGLO SAXON TALK OF THE TARIFF

New York, June 19.—The promise of the final closing of the chapter of Canadian and United States despatches is a source of widespread English satisfaction, says the London correspondent of the Evening Post. While such a suggestion as comes to-day from the rebels at Manila that the Philippines will form a republic under Anglo-American tutilage fits in with many English ideals. Of the future relations of England and America there is, however, another side—this being an American idea to which Englishmen are heroically trying to shut their eyes. This other side is revealed by views of the Republican party going into the autumn campaign squarely committed to imperialism, on the ground that by including Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, the Corolines, San Domingo and Hayti within home tariff corners it will be necessary to abandon the pro-system. I asked two representative English men yesterday what would be the effect of the realization of this forecast—one was an intimate and prominent ally of the ministry; the other an ex-Cabinet Minister of the Liberal persuasion. Both emphatically declared that it would be quite impossilbe to run an Anglo-American understanding on high protectionist lines. America, of course, could do what it pleased with the tariff at home, but the only possible basis of co-operation with England outside must be on the basis of an open door and equal trading opportunities, at least to the whole English speaking world. That may safely said to be the idea of Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour. In the persistent talk without Anglo-American co-operation nothing is more certain than that English enthusiasm for Anglo-American co-operation would fizzle, and like a damp sqib if it were realized here that the end of it all would only be the creation of one commercial enemy for England among colonizing nations."

OUIGET HEID THE ROAD

FIVE OFFICERS INJURED.

Employer Says the Strike is the Work of a Few Firebrands

Arrest of a Providence Organist who Ran Away with His Soprano—The Couple had a Hard Time in Toronto—Pawned Their Jewellery to Pay Their Board Bill—Chinese Rioters Tear Down the British Flag

Ottawa, June 20.—The strike of the Rockland mill hands promises to be one of considerable duration if the demands of the men are not acceded to. No further violence has been offered since Saturday. The strikers are indignant that the Dominion police were called to Rockland. They claim they were not disposed to offer any violence whatever until the police arrived. The police ordered them off the mill property. They retired willingly, but when they had reached the public highway they exercised their rights of citizenship and refused to move.

THE GIANT'S STAND.

"Big" Ouiget, the giant of the village stood out in the middle of the road and defied the police to make him retreat, seeing that he had the law behind him. Two policemen caught him and held him fast. Another policeman released his club and threatened to strike him. Then the stone throwing began. The police discharged their revolvers and then retreated behind the mill fence. They eventually retired and left the strikers in possession of the mill property.

THE GRIEVANCE.

The men claim they went to work on May 1st and had no wages paid them until June 15th and then they were only paid up to June 1st of June, always being kept 15 days behind.

The posse of Dominion police have returned to the city. The following officers are more or less injured: Gibson, face cut up, McCuaig, injured on the face; Geroux, leg severly bruised. The other policemen escaped with slight bruises.

THE EMPLOYERS VERSION.

W. C. Edwards M. P., gives this version of the strike and its cause: "I believe this strike has been caused by a few firebrands—dissatisfied men among the workers. These influenced the others and stopped the mill on Friday. The men, after striking, blocked the mill gate. I asked them to disperse. To me they were most civil, and I would not have taken the extreme measure of sending for the Dominion police had not two of my clerks been assaulted. Three years ago I reduced their day's labor to ten hours and since then have been paying the men on a ten-hour day basis. The men now work a day and a tenth, or eleven hours. But they are paid for the extra hour. I believe only a few of the men are in sympathy with the strike, but they have been intimidated by the others.

UNGRATEFUL MEN.

"I think the men have been ungrateful. During the winter months I have made it a special point to provide work for the men, and have provided work all the year round, as far as possible. I took great interest in the men, and am a strong believer in the rights of labor; but I feel discouraged about this matter, and can never take the same interest in them again. I am showing no antipathy towards the men, but their acts are illegal and cannot be allowed to continue."

SEQUEL TO AN ELOPEMENT,

Toronto, June 20.—Nathan B. Sprague, a well-known organist of Providence, R. I., is under arrest at Detroit charged with stealing two bicycles from liverymen. At the station Sprague said that he had been organist of Grace church, Providence, until last march, when he eloped with Miss Gertrude M. Blake, a soprano singer in his choir, leaving behind a wife and a ten year old boy. They came to Toronto, where he ineffectually attempted to secure a position as organist. Meanwhile their board bill ran along and they were compelled to pawn a quantity of jewellery to meet an account of $65. They left Toronto and drifted to Detroit, where the alleged theft of the wheels occured.

In examining Sprague's effects, the officers came across a letter from Inspector Stark, of the Toronto Detective department, recommending the bearer as an applicant for a position in one of the leading local churches. Sprague also travelled under the names of Norman Scott and Norman Stewart.

TORE DOWN THE BRITISH FLAG.

Hong Kong, June 20.—Serious rioting is reported from Shashi, in China. The customs station was burned, and the Commissioner of Customs had been made away with. The British Consulate was attacked and the flagstaff torn down and the flag torn to pieces. The building was burned to the ground.

There are reports of serious difficulty between the Chinese and French Governments arising from the fact that French experts employed to take charge of the Foo-Chow arsenal assumed too much authority, and their contract was annulled and pay withheld. The hitch was reported to the French Minister at Pekin and resulted in sending two warships to Foo Chow, taking a position where the arsenal would be at the mercy of the French guns. The Chinese directors were prevented from fleeing for safety by a hint that flight would be a signal to seize the arsenal. The French demands practically amount to giving the French possession of the arsenal.

GERMANY WILL BE QUIET

Germany of all the earth's great nations ought to be least feared by Great Britain.

France would not be a dangerous enemy; but for sentemental reasons Britain would be unwilling to go to war with a nation which is the motherland of so many of her own Canadian subjects. Britain's regard for the susceptibilities of the French-Canadians would not actually prevent war with France, but would be an influence for peace, and while Britain does not fear Russia, or any other power, the possibility that Russia might make trouble on the Indian frontier is also an influence for peace.

[illegible] Great Britain Germany is powerless. War with Germany would empty hundreds of situations which are now filled by Germains in England. In less than a week British squadrons could bottle up every Germain harbour, and while Germany could not be starved or conquored, her growing commerce would be destroyed and Britain would serve all her customers while the war continued.

War with Germany would be a money making business for Great Britain, and Emperor William is not likely to interfere in the Philippines, thus giving Great Britain a chance to earn the undying gratitude of the United States by teaching him his place.

THE HOCHELAGA BANK

Elsewhere will be found a report of the twenty-fourth annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Hochelaga Bank, which took place at the head office of that institution, Montreal, on the 15th, inst.

The net profits for the year, after deducting costs of management, interest accrued on deposits, and making provisions for bad and doubtful debts, was $115,067.95. To this is added $2,890, premium on new stock, and $5,496.33, balance carried forward, making a total of $123,454.28. From this was paid two half yearly dividends of $35,000 each, being at the rate of seven per cent. per annum; carried to the Reserve Fund, $50,000, the balance, amounting to $3,454.28 being carried forward to profit and loss.

The shareholders are to be congratulated upon the splendid record of the year's operations as set forth in the report, which shows that the affairs of the bank have been wisely managed.

The extension of the business of the bank and the large increase in deposits and realizable assets is very pleasing and must be regarded as eminently satisfactory by the many friends of the bank throughout Eastern Ontario.

The remarks of the General Manager, which is appended to the report, will be read with interest by the public generally. It is from such authority as Mr. Prendergast that we are enabled to know what the future is likely to do for the country, and the advice and counsel which is given should not go unheeded. The future is hopeful, and all that remains for us to ensure a period of prosperity is avoid speculations that are not grounded on honorable business principles and methods.

Camara has sailed, and he has apparently started on the same game as Cervera—that of keeping the enemy guessing.

Yes Great Britain will build a few more warships. It's preferable to waiting until war comes and then going to sea with yachts, punts, scows and barges.

There are various rumors regarding the destination of Admiral Camara's fleet but the truth probably is that his destination is the nearest port where he can find refuge from Sampson.

If the British Secretary of the Foreign Office, Mr. Curzon, ever gets into an animated dispute with Herr Schwerin, of the Germain Foreign Office, it will probably be a case of Curzon and Schwerin.

• • •

It is to bad Cervera's fleet was bottled up in that way. It spoiled that summer exodus from the United States cities which was to populate our Toronto island, and over-run Muskoka. But perhaps Camara's fleet from Cadiz may set things right yet.

RAILWAY NOTES

Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Paragraphs of Interest

—The shipment of grain from Midland has again ceased owing to the blockade at Montreal being unrelieved.

—Lindsay Post: Messrs. Craig & Austin, of Kinmount, have shipped from their saw-mill this season 15 carloads of shingles, 25 cars of lumber, 50 of mill slabs, and 70 of R.R. ties. Twenty-three thousand of them are shipped and they have 8,000 ties to send yet to fill this contract.

—A Hudson and A. D. Low, representing the Dominion legislative board of railway employees, waited on the Hon. A. G. Blair Saturday to protest against the new book of rules on the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Blair asked them to leave the matter until he returned from England, and meantime he would write General Manager Hayes, of the G.T.R., not to put the rules into effect until he came back and had time to look into the matter. The fact that the Pontiac & Pacific Junction railway and Gatineau Valley railway employees were some nine months behind in their pay was also brought to the attention of the minister. Mr. Blair said he would get Mr. Schrieber to look into this and see what could be done.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

CHAPTER X I.

Walter Derwent looked at the stranger carelessly at the moment of his entrance, but glancing at Stella he saw such an extraordinary expression of terror and dismay upon her face, he felt certain that Judge George P. Hamilton was no ordinary acquaintance of his bethrothed wife.

"How are you, Stella?" asked Croft calmly.

He bowed courteously to Derwent, and seemed entirely at his ease, taking a seat with all the assurance of a thoroughly welcome guest.

"How do you do?"

Stella hardly realized her own voice, so strangely did it sound.

Walter saw that the visit of the judge was an unexpected one, that there was something unusual about it; though he felt curious to know why, he knew that it was only polite under the circumstances to bid Stella good-by.

"I shall call this evening," he said, "and to-morrow my mother will call upon you."

"Thank you," said Stella, gratefully.

She was terrified by the appearance of Croft. She realized that trouble was before her, perhaps disgrace and shame; just at the happiest moment of her life this evil genius of her fate had reappeared.

"Now, Stella," Croft began, as soon as the door closed on Walter Derwent, "I want to know what your intentions are for the future. Are we to be friends or enemies?"

Stella stood gazing in astonishment at the coolness of the man. Suddenly she thought of her precious letters and pictures.

"I went to Joliet to see you," she said.

"You did? That was more than I expected."

Croft seemed glad to hear that she had taken so much interest, but Stella did not wish him to misunderstand her, so she added:

"You have taken away the little box with the letters which my mother told me to keep so carefully. What have you done with them? You have no right to them; they are mine!"

"What do you mean?" asked Croft, starting to his feet.

He seemed alarmed and anxious.

"I mean the box is gone—stolen from the cedar-chest!"

"When?"

"I cannot tell; I did not see it when I left Brandon; I did not search for it till lately, and it is gone. You must have it."

"Stella, you were mad to lose that box. I have not got it. If I thought you would have been so careless I should have taken charge of it. YoYu forgot your promise to your dying mother; she told you to guard it faithfully."

"You often told me my mother did not know what she was saying."

"Because you were too young to understand the importance of the case. You might yet be a rich woman if you had the box; without it, oou will never be able to prove your claim to anything."

"But who has taken it?"

"How can I tell? Was the cedar-chest open? Where did you keep it?"

AGUINALDO PROGRESSIVE

The Philippine Rebel Leader Promises to Set Up a Modern Republic

A Spanish Steamer Runs the Blockade and Lands Food and Cash for Santiago de Cuba Forces

London, June 18.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times gives the text of a Berlin letter dated June 4, and read in the Cortes on Thursday, purporting to be the text of an agreement signed April 24, at Singapore, between Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, and the United States Consul there, regarding the future government of the Philippines an agreement afterward orally ratified at Hong Kong by Admiral Dewey.

In this agreement Aguinaldo undertakes to organize a republican government, under the protectorate of the United States, with the assistance of two or three United States delegates as counsellors.

The ports of the archipelego are to be opened to foreign trade and immigration, with certain restrictions against the Chinese.

Then follow clauses promising judicial and other reforms, the expulsion and abolition of "tyrannical religious orders." The freedom of the press, protection to Spanish residents, provision for the return of Spanish officials to Spain, and the general developments of the country.

The Times correspondent says that the contents of the agreement "harmonize with information derived from other quarters," but that there is no proof of its authenticity.

RAN THE BLOCKADE.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 18.—A despatch from Manzanillo, province of Santiago de Cuba, received here today, announces the arrival there of the Spanish steamer Puerisima Conception which sailed from Kingston about 2 o'clock Thursday morning, with food supplies for the Spanish troops and carrying, it is understood $100,000 gold

A HINT TO THE KAISER.

London, June 18.—The Spectator, commenting on the significent assembling of Germain warships at Manila, says Emperor William of course means nothing but friendly observation. Would it not be expedient, however, to send a couple of cruisers to Manila to join in the friendly observation "and reinforce Admiral Dewey if attacked?"

WEYLER'S VIEWS ON TACTICS.

London, June 18.—A Madrid correspondent of the Telegraph says

Questioned regarding the war operations General Weyler said he thought it needless to send a fleet to Cuba. In his opinion it would have been better to have made a dash for the United States coast towns and to have sent a squadron to defend the Philippines.

CUBANS TO THE RESCUE.

At this moment, however, a welcome diversion was created by over a thousand Cuban insurgents, under Luetro Petrino, who came up through the chapparal in rear of the Spaniards. This completely turned the tables. Taken between two fires, their only shelter occupied by the rebels, the Spanish troops began to waver and the American landing party rallied and moved forward again. Bewildered by the new course of events, the Spanish artillery andrifle fire was ineffective, and the cavalry galloped off to the rightw ith many empty saddles. The two American guns began to do deadly work in front, while the Remingtons of the Cubans did likewise in the rear. Presently the latter drew their machetes, and issuing from the thickets fell upon the rear of their traditional enemies, and the Americans following their example attacked them in front, reinforcements all the while pouring up the gully from the ships.

THE BATTLE WON.

The battle was lost to the Spaniards. The landing had been effected. Pablo and Aldamero drew off their men, or those of them they could get away from the Cubans, in disorder, leaving the field to their opponents, who did not deem it advisable to follow them for fear of entanglements inland.

By ten o'clock the whole of Shafter's division had been landed, and established in a position which rendered further attack impossible, unless with a larger forcethan that at the command of the Spanish.

Upon the plateau the bodies of 17 dead and 45 wounded Spaniards were found, while the American losses were 7 killed and 30 wounded.

A DESPERATE BATTLE

General Shafter Effects a Landing in Cuba with 8,000 Men

London, June 18.—Reports published here this morning say that a division of General Shafter's army of invasion numbering 8,000 men, appeared before Juraguasito, twenty miles east of Santiago last evening in fourteen transports under convoy of several vessels, and that at daylight this morning they effected a landing and established a camp after one of the most desperate engagements on record.

Juraguasito was chosen as the landing place because of its good anchorage, its connection with Santiago by means of a light railway, and its most entire lack of strong defensive batteries. Relying upon the precipitous nature of the coast, the Spaniards thought it unnecessary to erect fortifications, and this oversight cost them the position.

General Shafter's feat in placing his men ashore resembles closely that of General Wolfe at Quebec. Prior to sailing he had been informed by officers of the survey department that the coast around Juraguasito was exceedingly precipitous, with only one opening, which was almost impracticable as a landing place. He determined, however, to examine this opening for himself, and as soon as it was dusk went out to reconnoitre in the launch of the Olivette. He went ashore with two members of his staff and discovered a narrow gully running down steeply to a sandy beach, which offered a good point at which to land troops. This he at once determined should be the place of landing.

The only difficulty in the way was a Spanish heliograph-station on the top of the precipice, a few hundred yards to the left of the gully, but it was determined to run the risk in the hope that men might be put ashore before Santiago could be communicated with.

LANDING THE TROOPS.

Returning to the ships, he sent out orders for the boats to be held in readiness to embark troops at four o'clock next morning. Punctually at that hour every boat in the fleet was in the water, loaded to the gunwales with men. With muffled oars they proceeded silently to the sandy beach referred to, and a party of 100 picked men climbed the gully after great difficulty and established themselves at its head. Unfortunately they were stumbled upon by one of the patrols which Captain-General Blanco has established around the coast of Cuba, and the shots exchanged gave notice to the occupants of the heliograph station, who immediately lighted a huge beacon fire to warn the garrisons of Santiago and the neighboring towns.

It had been Shafter's intention, as soon as a party had been landed, to hold the head of the gully, to quietly surround the heliograph station and capture those in charge so as to prevent such a contingency. Seeing, however, that this plan had miscarried, he hurried his men rapidly up the declivity, which was over a mile in length, and in about an hour 700 of them had taken up a strong position on the level ground at the summit.

THE COUNTRY AROUSED.

Meanwhile, the country had been aroused, and 400 Spanish cavalry stationed at Juraguasito itself, which is situated five miles inland, together with a light field battery, came up at the gallop. It was now sufficiently light for the situation of affairs to be seen. The field guns took up a position close to the heliograph station and opened fire, working great havoc with the American infantry in a few minutes. The cavalry thereupon charged in splendid order and being unable to withstand the onslaught the landing party were pressed back in great disorder down the gully, many of sabred and pistoled.

So far the battle had been entirely with the defending force. The battleship Indiana and other vessels of the convoying fleet had stood in to within two miles of the shore, but owing to the proximity of the two contending parties had not dared to open fire for fear of decimating her own men. With the retreat of the latter towards the boats the Spaniards were exposed and the battleship planted several well directed shells in their midst, doing such damage that they retired rapidly towards brushwood in the rear, which could not be seen from the sea, their battery going with them.

THE REAL FIGHT.

Over two hours had now passed since the first landing, and Shafter had now about 2,000 of his troops ashore. With the disappearance of the cavalry he moved them as rapidly as he could to the top of the eminence, the Indiana still keeping up a fire to prevent interruption. By seven o'clock 2,000 men and a couple of guns, conveyed with the utmost labor, were stationed on the plateau at the cliffs. But the fight was not over. From the west came 1,500 troops of the Santiago garrison, under General Pablo, who had taken train for Juraguasito immediately upon the alarm being given, while from Peluca, eight miles to the left, an additional 1,000 under Colonel Aldamero, arrived on the scene, and effected a junction with them.

This small army marched forward and attacked the Americans with surprising bravery, bringing into action three Gatling guns brought with them, while the cavalry and the field gun issued from the thickets in front. A well-directed artillery fire, followed by a second cavalry charge, which the shells of the two American guns this time failed to stop, began to demoralize the American troops, who were now under General Shafter himself. It was their first picked engagement, and numbers of them went down under the fire of the Spanish cannon and rifles and the sabres of the cavalrymen. They were once more being forced down the gully, preventing the advance of their comrades still landing from the boats. The Spanish infantry were advancing at the double to complete the defeat which seemed inevitable.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity; very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a [illegible] and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?" He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said: "The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $3 a call. Ten Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview [illegible] objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the remedy to one afflicted as I was. If the talking about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. [illegible]

THE HOCHELAGA BANK

Mr. F. X. St. Charles occupied the chair and Mr. J. A. Prendergast acted as secretary, at the 24th annual meeting of the Hochelaga Bank, Wednesday, 15th inst. Messrs. J. E. Beaudry and Ferreol Dubreuil were appointed scrutineers upon a motion of Mr. J. A. Vaillancourt, seconded by Mr. James Price.

THE REPORT.

The twetny-fourth annual report was as follows:

"To the Shareholders of the Hochelaga Bank—

"Gentlemen,—In giving you an account of their administration during the financial year 1897-98, your directors beg you will notice the progress of your bank, by comparing the actual state of affairs with that of the 31st May, 1897.

"If your circulation and your deposits have increased ($663,127), your cash, Dominion bank notes, debentures, and other values readily realizable, have increased ($593,304), in a greater proportion, for they represent about about 46 1-2 per cent. of your circulation and deposits together, against 40 3-4 last year.

"Your capital, now at $1,000,000, has realized net profits of $115,067.95, that is, a little more than 11 1-2 per cent., which state of affairs has permitted us to increase by $50,000 the reserve fund, after the ordinary dividends on the increased capital had been paid.

"In December last, to comply with the solicitations of a number of business men of the city of Sherbrooke, we opened a branch in that place. The importance of Sherbrooke, as far as industry and trade are concerned, is growing greater and greater every day, and marks the development of the Eastern Townships. We hope to derive from that source our share of prosperity, and so far our expectations have been realized.

"Having had for many years past, a certain amount of business in the way of collections, etc., with the capital of our province, we thought that the time had come to open a branch which would allow us to extend those relations, so much so, that thanks to the energy of its citizens, Quebec, after having gone through the obstacles which shackled its advancement, has just inaugurated an era of progress and activity which promises a brilliant future.

"The Quebec branch was opened on the 1st June, and we can say that the result so far has been most satisfactory.

"The assets in the treasury have been duly verified by your directors, and regular inspections have been made during the year at the head office, as well as at branch offices.

"The account of profit and loss, and the general statement of affairs of the bank will give you the details of what we have just pointed out.

M. J. A. Prendergast,
General Manager

The General Manager said:

Mr. President and Gentlemen,—"You have had the opportunity of reading the very interesting and complete reports of those who direct our great financial institutions, and to-day I would not venture to give my own opinions, had I not been invited by the president. I will content myself with endeavoring to draw a practical lesson from our too frequent experience on one point.

"Last year, I had the honor to say to you a few words upon the stiuation and we noticed together certain signs of a return of prosperity. Moreover, the following harvest was generally abundant, and the prices of grain and other products of the soil have also been remunerative. However, some uneasiness still exists, and public confidence has not yet been regained.

"Could we not, in a certain measure, find the cause of this uneasiness in the fact that during the last few years, a new source of trouble in business has arisen. In the United States, especially the rage for speculation possesses every one. The great speculators more than ever keep secret their plans and operations. This is enough to attract the people who follow them, insnared as they are by the bait of uncertainty. This accounts for speculation upon all that exists, or can possibly come into existence, upon war, its chances, and even upon the least probable possibilities.

"I would like to tell you that in our country we are not exposed to those dangers which deeply trouble the stability of business; but too often we come into contact with people, sometimes brilliantly gifted, who, aften having succeeded in their legitimate trade, are blinded by the phantom of a speculation which has led them to their ruin.

"Let us hope that the hard lesson they have received will be of more profit to them, and also to those who have been less imprudent.

"Certainly, and I wish to be well understood, senseless speculation must not be confounded with that wise foresight, which, upon the faith of reasonable data, tries to judiciously and profitably put out money, were it even for al imited time. But I wish to condemn here those imprudent transactions in which one risks all he owns in the hands of parties unknown to him, and upon alleged values still more unknown.

"As we were saying in the beginning, the harvest and the products of the farm during these last few years, have seemingly improved the situation. Let us endeavor to consolidate it, by our work, economy and prudence, which alone can form the basis of a durable prosperity in commerce and industry, and let us not forget that the most prosperous peoples are not those amongst whom our relations are most in honor."

It was also proposed by Mr. Charles Chaput, seconded by Hon. Mr. L. J. Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reprouducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Cheap Fruit

There is every indication of a great supply of small fruit at cheap prices. Strawberries are a regular glut on the Montreal market just now, and there will be no let up in the supply for some time to come. The wholesale price is 3c to 4 1-2c a box. There is every indication of a large crop of cherries, and peaches and plums also promise well. It is going to be a big season for fruit growers.

The Lindsay Band Coming

The secretary of the Citizens' band has received a communication, says the Lindsay Post, from Lieut. Dan Godfrey, conductor of the "famous British Grenadier's band, saying that arrangements to come to "Lindsay could not be made. He requested the town band to run an "excursion "to Peterboro' no Monday, June 27th, when they will give a concert in that town. The band has decided to do so, and arrangements to run a cheap trip "to Peterboro' are now being made.

CASE OF ABDUCTION

George Moncrieff Arrested Last Night on a Charge of Abduction

About six months ago Sarah Rose, a woman of the town, left a child at Nicholl's Hospital under advice from the Children's Aid Society. "Sarah" didn't like the arrangement, but was compelled to submit.

Since that time she has, in various ways, endeavored to secure possession of the waif, but never succeeded in accomplishing her purpose.

A month ago an unknown man claimed the child and owing to the plausible story he told succeeded in obtaining possession of the unfortunate waif.

The Hospital authorities afterwards ascertained that they had been duped, and notified the police.

Last night George Moncrieff, a scavenger, who resides outside the corporation limits and fills the unenviable position of itineerant scavenger, was arrested on a charge of abducting the missing child from the hospital.

It is supposed that Moncrieff was an ally of "Sarah's," and that he was induced by her to secure the child.

Earlier in the evening another man was arrested on the same charge, but was almost immediately dismissed, there being not the slightest evidence implicating him in the crime.

PERMANENT WALKS

Street and Bridge Committee Decide Last Night to Ask for Tenders at Once

The Street and Bridge Committee met last night for the transaction of business.

There were present, Chairman Dawson, Mayor Davis, and Councillors W. H. White, Best and Hamilton.

Town Engineer Belcher submitted plans and specifications for the construction of a concrete walk on George street, from the C.P.R. station to Brock street, and on Water street from Murray to McDonell.

After mature consideration it was decided to have the specifications printed and advertisements for tenders inserted in the local papers, the Mail and Empire, the Globe and the Contract Record.

This work is to be done at once.

The specifications were slightly amended by the committee.

A petition from the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., and others, asking for a sewer on Charlotte street, from Stewart to Park St.; on Park St., from Charlotte St. to Hunter St., and on Hunter St. from Belmont avenue to Reid St.

After considerable discussion it was decided to instruct the town engineer to submit plans and specifications, etc, of work; the same to be considered at a special meeting on Wednesday evening.

The committee then adjourned.

COMMODORE CALCUTT

Arrangements were completed last night for a grand 4th of July celebration at Jubilee Point, under the auspices of the American colony in Peterborough and surrounding towns.

The proceeds of this outing are to be devoted to the relief of the American wounded in the Spanish-American war, and the object certainly reflects the greatest credit on Commodore Calcutt, who alone originated the idea. When we consider that the Commodore is an Englishman, out and out, our American cousins will appreciate more thoroughly his liberality.

The company's steamers will leave Peterborough, calling at other river ports, between 7 and 8 o'clock, and will have in consort a palace barge with good brass and string bands.

A splendid programme of athletic sports—including baseball and football matches, and canoe races will be put on at Jubilee.

Addresses will be delivered at the Point by Governor Black, of New York state; Mr. Sewell U. S. Consul at Toronto; and the U.S. Consuls att Port Hope and Cobourg, and the Mayors of Peterborough, Cobourg and Port Hope.

The entire fleet of the lower waters will be utilized in conveying passengers to Jubilee.

This is the only boating trip out of town on that day and it should be largely attended.

HAD A SENSE OF HUMOR

A Horse Breaks the Monotony of His Daily Rounds by a Playful Diversion

Yesterday afternoon a horse attached to a delivery wagon became tired of the monotony of standing outside a west-end corner grocery store and became a little playful. Standing immediately in front of the delivery waggon horse that assists in distributing parcels was a well-loaded vehicle—the property of a Lakefield man, by the way—containing among other things several baskets of ale. The parcel delivery horse approached the rig containing the beer picked up a rattan basket containing a dozen full bottles, and dropped it on the walk. There was a crash, a big spill in beer, and when the Lakefield man came out he wondered how it all happened.

THE FRUITOR OP

The Ontario Government Telegraphs Important Information for Fruit Growers

The Ontario Government issues the following circular: The press of Ontario will confer a benefit upon the fruit growers of this Province by giving prominence at once to the following notice. (Signed.) C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Toronto, June 18th:

For five weeks agents of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, have been giving instruction in the spraying of fruit trees at thirty orchards in different parts of the province. Reports sent to Mr. Orr, superintendent in charge of the work, have just been received at the department to the effect that fungus is now appearing upon apple and pear trees and threatens to do extensive damage to the crops unless checked at once by spraying. Insect enemies also are more numerous than usual this year. Apples, with the exception of the spy, have set well, and where properly cared for there is promise of a good crop. In spraying apple trees to check or prevent the spot, use the Bordeaux mixture, made as follows: Bordeaux mixture, copper sulphate, 4 pounds, fresh lime, 4 pounds; water, 40 gallons. Suspend the copper sulphate in five gallons of water. This may be done by putting in a bag of coarse material and hanging it so as to be covered by the water. Slake the lime in about the same quantity of water. Then mix the two and add the remainder of the forty gallons of water. Warm water will dissolve the copper sulphate more readily than cold water. If the lime is at all dirty strain the

HOVERING OFF THE COAST OF CUBA

General Shafter's Army of Invasion is in Sight of Cuba and will Effect a Landing Shortly

VOYAGE OF THE TRANSPORTS

With the United States transport ships, off Santiago de Cuba, Monday, June 20, noon, via Mole St. Nicholas, Tuesday, June 21.—The fleet of the United States transports, having on board 16,000 men, under the command of General Shafter, arrived off Santiago de Cuba at noon to-day, being exactly six days out from Port Tampa. The army of invasion left Egmont Key at noon on Tuesday, June 14. The progress was necessarily slow as two big water barges and the schooner' Stevens had to be towed. When the transport fleet left Port Tampa it was the intention of those in authority to take a western course around Cape Antonio, but later it was decided to go via the Florida Straits, that being a shorter route. After the fleet got into the rough waters of the Straits the transports were formed into three lines about 1,000 yards apart, while six hundred yards separated the ships. The lazily advancing transports presented a very impressive appearance, stretching for miles over the blue waters, the grim looking men-of-war hovering like war dogs on the outskirts of the human freighted ships. At night every precaution was taken to guard against any possible attack. Nol ights were allowed on the transports, and the gunboats in the direction of the shore were doubled in number, while at frequent intervals search-lights swept the waters of Cuban shores in search of hostile vessels. Throughout the voyage not one Spanish gunboat or sign of the enemy were seen. Friday the convoying fleet of warships was reinforced by the Montgomery and Porter off Puerto Principe. The spectacle of transferring the sick at sea was presented on Saturday. For four hours the fleet lay-to while the ships' boats carried 14 patients to the hospital ship Olivette. In the rough waters of the Bahama channel this work for the little boats was quite dangerous, and the hoisting of the limp forms to the rolling deck of the Olivette seemed dangerous, but it was accomplished in safety. The weather throughout the voyage was excellent, and there was little sea-sickness. But 14 cases of typhoid and some measles developed. The former being especially on the boats carrying animals. Surgeons, however, say the health of the men is unexpectedly good. The first sight of land was obtained in the vicinity of Santiago de Cuba, and when the torpedoes of the blockading ships were seen they sent a thrill of enthusiasm through the soldiers, and they are now eagerly awaiting the landing in Cuba. The heat and long confinement in the holds of the transports have told very severely on the horses and mules, and many of them died during the last days of the voyage. So soon as the fleet of transports had arrived at a point about 20 miles off Santiago de Cuba the steamer Seguranea, having on board General Shafter and his staff, left the other vessels lying-to and steamed to the flagship of the American fleet in order to visit Rear Admiral Sampson. The General went on board the flagship and the Seguranca then went to Aserradero, a little over 17 miles west of Santiago de Cuba, near which General Garcia is encamped with 3,000 Cuban soldiers. General Shafter and his staff and Rear Admiral Sampson went ashore and proceeded to General Garcia's headquarters about a mile inland, where they spent several hours in consultation with the Cuban General. At the conclusion of the conference, General Shafter and the other officers had little or nothing to say regarding the plans for landing the American troops or for the co-operation of the Cubans. The best information obtainable is that there will be no attempt to make a general landing for two or three days, but small bodies of troops will be put ashore. Probably to-morrow, at several points, both east and west Santiago de Cuba, including Caseradero. This will give General Shafter an opportunity to become more familiarr with the work before him, and to ascertain the best place for a general landing. The transports and the warships which convoyed them here came close in shore this afternoon in full view of the lookouts of Morro Castle, and they will lay to-night 15 miles out from Admiral Sampson's fleet, guarding the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. The result of Rear Admiral Sampson's investigation of the various proposed landing places was also laid before the army officers, but General Shafter is not prepared to announce a definite selection without investigating the matter further himself.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

May Open in a few Days—French Minister Trying to End War

Admiral Dewey had no idea of the Difficulties He Would Raise by His Bombardment—Political Combination Impossible

London, June 21.—The correspondent at Paris of The Pall Mall Gazette telegraphed this afternoon that he learns from an authoritative source, in spite of denials, that the question of negotiating peace between the United States and Spain has been for some days the subject of a lively correspondence between the chancellories. He adds that some of the Ambassadors in Paris were instructed yesterday to remain on the alert and in readiness. The correspondent further says it is expected that an event of importance in opening negotiations with the United States and Spain will occur within a few days. M. Hanotaux, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Meline Cabinet, backed by the Czar, has, it seems, been the principal promoter of the peace negotiations, hence President Faure's desire to retain M. Hanotaux in the Foreign Office."

THE DIFFICULTY OF GOVERNING

London, June 21.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "Spain's refusal to exchange Lieut. Hobson and his companions of the Merrimac is easily explainable and justified. Without any intention of acting as spies they must have seen many things in or around Santiago about which the American naval and military authorities would gladly have information.

"The idea that Germany will interfere to prevent the storming of Manila is now abandoned, but speculation is active as to her political designs. El Epoca suggests that Germany may negotiate with the Philippine republic and lease a portion of the Province of Cagayan, including the port of Aparri, in the Island of Luzon. It forgets, however, that this would require the sanction of the United tSates as the suzerain. In the opinion of tolerably well-informed people the idea of creating a semi-independent Philippine republic is an absurdity.

"The archipelago consists of scores of islands: The inhabitants differ widely in race, language, religion, customs and every other respect. There are no fewer than 31 languages, representing as many nationalities. The only bond of union is foreigndomination, and if this were destroyed any artificial political conglomeration would immediately resolve itself into its constituent elements. Admiral Dewey had probably not the faintest notion of the terribly complicated problems, political and administrative, which he was raising by the bombardment of the Spanish fleet.

"With the approaching close of the Cortes there is much speculation as to political changes. A reconstructed and semi-military Cabinet is talked of. This must not be taken as indicating an increase in the warlike spirit. On the contrary, it is explained that this would mean a determination to conclude peace as soon as it can be obtained consistently with national honor. A semi-military Cabinet in touch with the army, and with the courage of its opinions, would be best qualified for carrying out the resolute peace policy which the interests of the country require.

"In support of the view that the time has come for entering upon such a course it is pointed out in various quarters that voices are heard demanding peace at almost any price. One or two lteters in this sense have appeared in the press, and the manifesto of the Union Catalanista is to the same effect. These manifestations are interesting and may prove symptomatic, but it would be, in my opinion, a mistake to attribute to them at present much importance. They do not represent the great mass of the political, industrial and commercial elements of the population. The impression I have received from recent conversation with official personages is that the members of the Cabinet do not consider the present or the immediate future as an opportune moment for opening peace negotiations."

WILL HAVE TO FIGHT FOR IT.

London, June 21.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "United States Consul Wildman has received no intimation from his Government with regard to the future of the Philippines. General Aguinaldo desires that the Islands become an American colony. He declares that if he cannot be connected with the United States he will insist upon a republic being formed. If any other country than the United States wishes to secure control of the fight for it. The insurgents under Aguinaldo now have 100,500 rifles and 8 field pieces."

ESTABLISHED COMMUNICATION.

Washington, June 21. — General Greely of the Signal Service Bureau received word to-day from Lieut.-Col. Allen of the signal corps that direct cable communication had been established via the French cable.

GENERAL SHAFTER'S ARRIVAL.

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, Mole St. Nicholas, Tuesday morning, June 21.—The United States army for the invasion of Cuba, commanded by General Shafter, arrived off Santiago de Cuba yesterday at noon. The troops, numbering about sixteen thousand men, were on board thirty-seven transports. The time and place for the landing of the soldiers had not then been decided upon. There were fourteen mild cases of typhoid fever and some cases of measles on board the transports, but the troops generally speaking, were in good condition and in excellent spirits.

WILL KEEP OUT THE REBELS.

London, June 21.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "All the papers say the Government is satisfied with the prospect of Captain-General Augusti being able to concert with the commanders of the European war vessels for a joint occupation of Manila. As the city cannot hold out until the arrival of the American troops, this would forestall the entrance into the town of the Tagal rebels, which Spain supposes the European powers would not be disposed to permit."

NEGOTIATIONS FOR PEACE.

Washington, June 21.—Advices received here from Madrid say that when the Spanish fleet arrived back at Cadiz from Cartagena, the battleship Vitoria was towed into the harbor by the Pelayo, and was in an utterly helpless condition owing to an explosion in one of her boilers while rounding Cape de Gato, and that it was with the utmost difficulty she was prevented from going ashore in the heavy wind blowing inshore which prevailed at the time of the accident.

On Sunday night, about eight o'clock, as the fleet was steaming westwards at the rate of about ten kntos, the land just being in sight, the crews of the vessels were starteled by a loud report. Looking around, the men on deck perceived a cloud of smoke surrounding the Vitoria, which began to drift helplessly, her crew running about the decks in great confusion. It turned out that one of the boilers on the port side had [illegible] with tremendous force, blowing a large hole in the warship's side, and upheaving a portion of the deck above itin such a manner as to cause a huge cavity kill five stokers, and scald frightfully with escaping steam eight more, some of whom are not expected to recover. The havoc wrought by the explosion was indescribable. The whole of the boilers on the prto side of the vessel were rendered usless, and the machinery so deranged that the bulk of it will require replacing. A big piece of iron was blown from the upper deck, notwithstanding it is heavily protected, and whized close to the head of the navigating officer on the bridge, alighting perilously near a group of marines forward.

The principal force of the explosion was expended sideways and downwards, the whole of the vessels interior in the neighborhood being in a state of wreck. Some damage was undoubtedly inflicted on the bottom of the vessel, as three feet of water was reported within half an hour of the disaster. The watertight compartments were all closed, and the crew beat to quarters, while signals were flown calling for assistance to the other ships, who all sent boats aboard to ascertain the nature and extent of the damage. It was found that the Vitoria would keep afloat until she reached Cadiz, and the Pelayo at once took her in tow, the pumps being kept going during the whole distance.

The Vitoria is one of Spain's best battleships, is 316 feet in length, has a displacement of 7,000 tons, a speed of 13 knots, a complement of 561 men and 30 guns.

TO POISON THE WELLS.

Jacksonville, June 21.—Mr. Alger, Secretary of War, has telegraphed to General Fitzhugh Lee, commander-in-chief of the Florida division of the United States volunteers, to prepare for the reception of four thousand troops from Tampa at once, and detachments, with engineers, are now engaged in boring for other artesian wells on the north side of of the city in order that a plentiful supply of water may be assured. The water works is being strengthened and a special guard is on duty, a report having been circulated to the effect that already an attempt had been made to poison the wells, and that a second and more vigorous attempt would be made. Yesterday three men were arrested by the guard, which found them prowling about the water works. One of them had a photographer's outfit, and he succeeded in showing that he was in no way connected with the others, one of whom was recently employed as a cigar maker in Ybor City, a suburb of Tampa. The two men are still pending an investigation.

COUNTY EGISLLATORS

June Session of the County Council Opened Yesterday

The Warden's Address—Numerous Topics Touched Upon—Referred to the Committee of the Whole Council

The June session of the County Council opened at the Council Chamber in the Court House yesterday afternoon.

There were present, the Warden presiding, and Messrs. Hawthorne, Casement, Middleton, Fitzgerald Brown Shaw, Eastland, Anderson and Peck.

The minutes were read and adopted.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

Gentlemen,—In accordance with an established precedent I will ask your indulgence for a few minutes. I first feel there are, happily, ample reasons whereby I can offer you and the residents of our county my most hearty congratulations that the era of long deffered better times is now apparently becoming fully consummated. It would be impossible for you not to have noticed with pleasure the remarkable advance in the value of most farm products beyond the anticipation of many of our farmers who constitute by far the greater proportion of the population of our country. This result must have been eminently satisfactory. It has been estimated by experts that at least $8,000,000 extra have been realized on the grain delivered at the advanced values in the Dominion of Canada. This great boon has not come any too soon. The long depression of farm products would have proved more disastrous to many who have incurred liabilities in purchasing or improving their farms were it not for the practice of the most frugal economy and industry, and I trust they may now be enabled to reduce their liabilities and purchase more freely and pay for their varied requirements promptly, thus stimulating and extending in many directions the trade of the country. With the most promising and encouraging prospects of an abundant harvest that has greeted us for many years, and with remunerative prices for most farm products the present outlook is most encouraging, with the exception of cheese, which unfortunately, appeares depressed on account of the surplus at present on the English market. This product has been of incalculable benefit to a great number of farmers in our county during the depression in prices of other farm products. I trust there may be hopes for improvement in prices as the season advances.

In the manufacturing and other industries there is also a marked improvement and business generally reported over the country more satisfactory.

I am fully convinced we have within the boundaries of our own county vast and varied mineral resources including gold, silver, lead, copper, mica, corundum and iron. And I hope the day is not far distant when more attention will be given to this important source of mineral wealth at our very doors. It may not be generally known we have now on lot 20, in the 1st concession of Belmont, the Cordover Gold Mining Company, of English capitalists, successfully operating their gold reductive mill. The machinery, together with all the plant, was built in our own county town by that old and reliable firm the William Hamilton Company, Limited, who have distinguished themselves by their enterprise in producing the most modern and up-to-date mining machinery in the market. Such manufacturers as this, also. The Peter Hamilton Company, Limited, so long and favorably known for the variety and excellance of their products of agricultural impliments gives prominence to our town and county the length and breadth of the Dominion. A country relying soley on its exporting agricultural products can never become self-reliant and prosperous, manufacturing mining and the kindred industries which give employment to skilled and unskilled labor build up towns and villages and create a market for the product of the farm with more renurative prices than can be obtained if sent abroad. The nearer the producer to the consumer the better.

The decleration of war upon Spain by the United States for the avowed purpose of terminating the insurrection in Cuba caused by the iniquitous oppression of Spain and demanding that Cuba may become a free republic, has caused a rude awakening among our neighbors in realizing the great horror of war which may cost the lives fo many of their citizens and the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars. I truly trust our friends and neighbors to the south of us may in their pronounced recognition of kin and sudden growth of a kindlier feeling toward us and more particularly our Mother Country, be sincere and lasting. still one cannot but smile in contrasting those sentiments with their newspaper thunderings of war with England over the Venezuela question, but recently, and ask oneself can it be a case of a great and powerful nation making a virtue of necessity in recognizing the indisputable fact that our Mother Country, to whom we are so loyally and lovingly attached, is mistress of the seas. But in recognition of that kindlier feeling towards us and our Mother Country we may express our sincere desire for the speedy restoration of the blessing of peace to our friends and neighbros of the United States and pray that the evidence of good will and peace may long continued as evinced towards us and our beloved England.

In now refering to the important business that will require your consideration at this, the most important meeting of the year, there is the equalization of the assessment rolls, receiving and passing the auditors report which shows our finances in a satisfactory condition. I have pleasure in reporting the completion of Steel's bridge in Asphodel, which has been accepted by county engineer, and on his certificate I have given an order for payment to the Dominion Bridge Co. It is a substantial structure. The pier and boom at Hale's bridge have been completed satisfactorily to the joint committee of Northumberland and Durham. The plans were submitted and as located and approved by Mr. R. B. Rogers superintendent of the Trent Valley canal, this improvement of the navigation will be of advantage to steamboats passing through the swing bridge.

The bridge known as Comstock's bridge in Asphodel is about worn out and it is a question I would like you to decide whether it would not be economy to erect a new bridge and straighten the course of the stream, thereby shortening the bridge, by filling the approaches rather than making temporary repairs as you have authorised me to do. The Burn bridge in Douro has been reported to me to be in a dangerous condition. The County Engineer has recently had temporary strengthening placed under it and made measurements which he will submit to you as he believes you will have to consider the matter of a new bridge this session. The floating bridge at Chemong lake escaped without injury the breaking up of the ice this spring. And, therefore, there has not been any expenditure by either the County or Town, who in recognition of your claim that they should bear a portion of the cost of rebuilding and maintaining the same, appropriated the sum of $250 toward keeping the bridge open for traffic until such time as the matter under discussion with your committee with reference to a new bridge is finally settled between the County and Town, as you have decided, and I believe justly, unless assistance is given towards the necessary large expenditure involved in rebuilding and maintaining this bridge it must be closed. Mr. Costello, Reeve of Ennismore, has furnished me with an accurate account of the number of vehicles crossing this bridge for seven consecutive days last month which shows the necessity of keeping the bridge open for traffic to the town of Peterborough and its markets. As no final decision was arrived at between your Joint committee and the town as to the erection of a new bridge for which at their request your engineer, Mr. Belcher, made measurements plans and specifications, recommended a partial filling in of the lake the expenditure of which would be considerable, it was suggested that application to the Dominion and Provincial Governments be made for grants towards the cost of rebuilding a portion of the bridge and for filling the remainder of the lake. Mayor Davis arranged for an interview with the Hon. Mr. Blair Minister of Railways and Canals for the 11th of May last, when

THE UNION BANK

We publish elsewhere the thirty-third annual report of the shareholders of the Union Bank of Canada, which took place in the head office of that institution, Quebec, the other day.

The shareholders and friends of this well-managed financial concern are to be congratulated upon the splendid record of the year's operations, as set forth in the report submitted by the President. It shows that the net profits of the past year, after making all deductions for expenses of management, interest and exchange, bad and doubtful debts, etc., amounted to $134,541.58. Out of this were paid two half yearly dividends of three per cent. each, while the sum of $25,000 was added to rest, $4,858 written off "bank premises," and $26,055.93, (as against $5,680.09 the previous year), carried to profit and loss account. The Union Bank of Canada has now at rest the substantial sum of $350,000.

The directors have not only been looking after the shareholder, but are to be credited with carrying out a general policy which has aided materially in the development of Canada's resources. The management of the Union Bank has been conspicuous for its faith in the capabilities of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, in most of the centres in which it has established branches, with the result that to-day the bank is doing the largest business of any of the great financial corporations operating in the west. The importance of those facilities to the grain growers of Manitoba and the Territories cannot be overestimated; and the encouragement thus lent to the staple industry of the Dominion will surely earn for the management the best wishes of every Canadian who is concerned for the development of his country.

Meantime the interests of the bank in the east have been widened and its operations increased, with what degree of success the annual statement, published in another column, will show.

A PROSPEROUS INSTITUTION

A few days ago we published some comments on the financial statement submitted to the shareholders of the Bank of Toronto at the annual meeting of that institution, which took place on the 15th inst. Several inaccuracies crept into the article, which had the effect of destroying the meaning, and we therefore republish the comments in a corrected form.

The net profits for the year, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, and deducting expenses, interest accrued on deposits, and rebate on current discounts, amounted to $210,659.61. Adding the amount carried forward from previous year, $89,687.40, the total receipts amount to $300,347 01. From this was paid two half yearly dividends, amounting to $100,000 each, and the balance, $100,347.01, was carried forward to next year.

The result of the year's business cannot but be extremely gratifying to the shareholders and many friends and customers of the bank. The bank, as will be observed by the above figures, has earned its customary dividends of ten per cent., and added $10,000 in round figures to its profit and loss balance, after covering estimated losses on overdue accounts. The splendid position of the bank, with a capital of $2,000,000 and a rest of $1,800,000, supplies evidence of careful management and judicious use of the bank's funds in the way of investments. A marked feature of the statement is the large amount of money on deposit on which no interest is paid, the total being $1,793,160, or about a sixth of all the money on deposit.

Taken as a whole, the report is one of the best ever presented to the shareholders, and to Mr. Coulson, the General Manager, is mainly due the immensely strong position which the bank has attained. The report gives evidence of increasing confidence and increasing business throughout the country. This is no less important as affording proof that our banks get from depositors not only enough to carry on the commercial affairs of the country, but large sums that can only be profitably employed in the purchase of gilt-edged securities, such as Dominion debentures. All this means an area of cheap money. The interest on the best securities and on bank deposits will continue to decline with increased pressure of money on deposit. The result will be the diversion of the savings of the people into industrial ventures, where the interest earned will be higher, a result which will be hailed with pleasure by bank managers, because it means the strengthening and development of the country and the opening up of the new channels of profitable activity for the banks.

THE CHURCH'S COURT

The prohibition question has been debated by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, and in a somewhat acrimonious way. The opposition was read by Rev. Dr. Grant, who as a result of the debate in Kingston with Rev. Dr. Lucas, could not be expected to take any other position.

In essence Dr. Grant's argument was that it would be futile, and worse, to force prohibitive legislative upon the people, that all the option laws in this direction in Canada, had been failures. Drunkness has decreased under the license law, and the conviction was forced upon him, therefore, that it was an improvement upon the Scott act. As the Scott act had failed so would a general prohibition law if an attempt were made to put it into practice. It would result, he said, "in a more frightful carnival of intemperance and of political and public immortality than that which had followed the Scott act."

Dr. Grant had noticed that one church had gone to the government with the assurance that it stood behind it upon this puestion. This church may find its mistake, said the principle, and it may, since the clergy, with the best intentions, undertake to reflect the mind of the laity and yet fail to do so. There is a division in all the churches on the subject, though it is difficult to see that they could do otherwise than express, through their courts and councils an opinion such as they have put on record.

Dr. Grant appeals for the freedom of the individual on the question. It is a political issue, and the church is well out of it. If evils have to be attacked there are others more flagrant than the drink traffic. Intemperance is a sin. What about political crime, the offences, the corruptions, on account of what seventy elections in Ontario have been protested? It would be hard to conduct a provincial election without some violation of the law, but the number of protests in Ontario is not to be accepted as evidence of venality. A great many of these protests are founded upon speculation, and when they come to trial they will fall through. The parties being closely matched advantage is sought in every avenue of strengthening or weakening them and so determining the fate of the government. The church does condemn electoral impurity, but it does so guerdedly, knowing that a man's politics is sometimes stronger than his religeon, and that he is not inclined to accept his political gospel from his preacher.

It is doubtful if much good is done by these heated debates in the church assemblies. The traffic in liquor may be condemed and prohibition may be condemed, and the people urged to line up behind the church in support of the plebiscite. Yet it is a personal matter, to be settled by the individual as he may deem best, by his vote, influenced by his light, his judgement, his conviction.

"Three from two you can't," says the schoolboy. Right! Three from two you can't, either in dollars or dividends or sarsaparilla. It takes the best sarsaparilla root to make the best sarsaparilla extract. The best sarsaparilla comes from Honduras, C. A., and the Dr. Ayer Co. practically controls the entire product. Yet others claim to be making "best" sarsaparilla. They must be making it out of the remainder left after subtracting three from two. But, "three from two you can't." You can't make the best sarsaparilla without best root. You only get the best when you

Spaniard Steals Sampson's Charts—He Came Off in a Boat and Poses as an Escaped Cuban Prisoner.

Washington, June 20.—A despatch has been received from Commdore Watson by the Naval War Board, stating that he has been informed by Captain-General Blanco that the Spanish Government have refused to exchange Lieut. Hobson and his seven companions who formed the crew of the Merrimac, and are now imprisoned in Morro Castle, Santiago.

A CLEVER SPANISH SPY.

Cape Haytien, June 200.—It was reported here last night by the master of a Jamaica fishing schooner which had come from Santiago, that the crew of the New York, Admiral Sampson's flagship, were considerably exercised over a mysterious affair which occurred on Friday night.

About nine o'clock a small skiff in a leaky condition came off to the fleet, pulled by a Cuban, who appeared so eak that it was with difficulty he could move his boat through the water. He went alongside the flagship and was taken aboard, giving his name Jucaro Agrsoti. He said that he had been imprisoned in Santiago for nine months for participating in the revolution, and that a stray shell from the American fleet had so damaed his prison that he had been able to loosen the masonry, escape at night, seize a skiff in the harbor, and put out to the fleet.

He was taken before Admiral Sampson, who believed his story, and gave him in charge of the Cuban guides on the vessel, by whom he was given food, which he eat ravenously, stating that owing to the lack of provisions in Santiago he and fellow prisoners had been on exceedingly short rations for about a month.

At midnight on Saturday, when the officer of the watch was going his usual rounds, he found that the lock of the chart room, where all plans are kept and much clerical work is done, had beent ampered with. He entered the room and found things in a state of great disorder. An alarm was at once raised, and suspicion at once rested upon the Cuban. He was nowhere to be found, however, having disappeared completely. The strange part of the affair was that the boat in which he had come aboard was still alongside, so that he must have either swum ashore or been taken off by another boat.

Examination of the chart room revealed the fact that important maps of the Cuban coast and Admiral Sampson's general orders from the Naval War Board had been stolen, seriously inconvenciencing the Admiral in further operations against Santiago and other points in the neighborhood. It is now known beyond doubt that the supposed Cuban was none other than a very clever Spaniard, sent off especially for the purpose.

LACK OF DRINKING WATER.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—A correspondent writes: "This city, I am informed, is to immediately become the base of operations for the volunteers now encamped at Tampa, and other points south, and a movement back will begin at once. Secretary of War Alger has notified the commanding officer here, General Fitzhugh Lee, that all the troops must be removed from Tampa, owing to the fact that a sufficient quantity of good water cannot be obtained there. In Jacksonville at present there are about ten thousand soldiers, and they are encamped about a mile north of the city. In order to provide a sufficient quantity of water pipe lines have been laid from the artesian wells at the waterworks to the camp, a distance of two miles, and as St. John river flows by only a few miles away the the horses and mules will have an ample supply always on hand. I understand that with the exception of those taking part in General Shafter's expedition, all the soldiers except those thoroughly acclimatized and the regular guard will be removed from of Tampa, the other at Fernandia, on Key West back to Jacksonville, and that within the next week there will be two other encampments established, one at Dade City, 60 miles north the east coast. It is believed here that troops will be sent on transports from the latter place to Porto Rico, and the transports Gate City and City of Macon are now lying at the docks there. The soldiers here do not expect to take part in any fighting unless the campaign should continue in the fall after the wet season, and they think the war will be practically over by that time.

A despatch was received here yesterday stating that typhoid and malarial fevers had broken out among the troops in Tampa, and that it would probably become epidemic. There is no question that the water in Tampa is very bad, and this is the principal reason for the removal of the soldiers to Jacksonville and Dade City, and to Fernandina on the coast. So far as I have heard, but one death has resulted from typhoid, but many troopers are down with it, and scores are rendered helpless from malaria. The rainy season has fully set in and on the plains of Tampa, which is almost as level as a board, the tents are now standing in the middle of a shallow sea of mud and water. For days after the first rain a vapour arose from the sun-baked sand, and to this is attributed the first outbreak of typhoid, the soldiers breathing an atmosphere of poison. In many of the tents there are several inches of water, that overflows the wooden flooring that has been laid down. Reports of yellow fever are current, but I have been assured that no case has been discovered in Tampa, although it is said to exist in Mobile. I know that an isolation hospital has been established on Tampa Heights, on the site of an orange grove, and a visiting doctor tells me that there is an average of seventy patients every day, treated, of course, for many different diseases. All soldiers who enter this establishment are held a day after convalescence and are thoroughly disinfected before being allowed to go back to camp. The doctors consider the situation serious, and have strongly advised the removal of the troops to points further north.

TELEPHONE 164 PETERBORO'

A Prominent Physician.

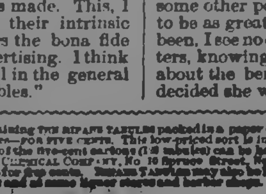
A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."



An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

"In the storeroom in the attic. It was always locked, and I never parted with the key."

Croft sat silently considering. Suddenly he remembered the papers he had seen Jeffrey examining in the restaurant.

"Has Jeffrey Pettus visited you here?" he asked.

"Jeffrey Pettus? Who is he?"

"The young man you saw with me the day you called at the jail at Brandon."

"I do not remember him. No one has called except friends of Mr. Jameson."

"There is no servant in your house who would be bribed to steal them?"

"No; they are all respectable people, who have been in the house for years."

"Well, say nothing, but keep your eyes open. I am sorry you did not examine the cedar-chest before you left Brandon."

"It must have been stolen in Brandon."

"Have you mentioned it to any one since you came here?"

Stella hesitated. She had no confidence in anything Croft said, but believed he was innocent of the theft of the box. His look of surprise and disappointment was too genuine to be assumed. Should she tell him of her conversation with Judge Orlin?

She reflected over the matter a few moments. After all, he knew more about her mother and father than she did. He might give her some information that would prove useful, and it seemed unlikely that he could have any object in telling untruths about the case.

She told him just what the judge had said. He expressed no surprise.

"Your father's name was not Sterling,' he said, when the recital was over.

"No? Why did he assume a name that was not his?"

"Because he had an enemy who was always trying to injure him. His name was something else, which I have forgotten. He told your mother to let you keep the name of Sterling till you were twenty-one, and then, when you demanded your own fortune, to assume your proper name. He said it would then be too late for his enemy to injure you."

"And now I shall never be able to prove who I am!"

"Do not despair. I shall see if I cannot find out who has robbed you, and restore the papers to you. I do not see why you should regard me as an enemy. I have always been kind to you.'

"It is true."

"Let us be friends.'

He held out his hand; but Stella did not place hers within its grasp.

"Mr. Croft,' she said, "you were both kind and indulgent to me as a girl, and I loved and respected you; but you have forfeited all right to my esteem, and I cannot dissemble."

Croft's face flushed, his eyes glinted, and he bit his thin lips nervously.

"So be it,' he said; "I shall never appeal to you again. I loved your mother, and she loved me. She never had cause to repent her marriage. You are hard and unforgiving. I hop you may never have cause to ask forgiveness on your own account."

Stella felt a cold chill pass over her. The last sentance sounded like a malediction.

"I am sorry—" she began.

But Croft silenced her with a wave of his hand.

"Let it pass," he said, not without a certain dignity. "I shall try and restore your papers to you; but let us understand that I do so for my own reasons, and from no friendly feeling toward you."

"I shall reward you when it lies in my power to do so."

"Thank you,' said Croft, with a grim smile.

"When shall I hear from you in regard to the papers?"

A marked emphasis on the word "hear" gave him to understand that a visit from him would be unwelcome.

"As soon as I have anything to communicate."

"Very good. I trust you may be successful, though I am not hopeful. If the letters were stolen in Brandon, some one of the servants may have taken them through curiosity, and thrown them away after reading them.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today, 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man can talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and—Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—

UNION BANK OF CANADA

The thirty-third annual general meeting of shareholders of this institution was held at the Banking House, in Quebec, on Wednesday, June 15th, 1898.

There were present: A. Thomson, Esq., Hon. E. J. Price, D.C. Thomson, Esq., Edmond Giroux, Esq., James King, Esq., E. J. Hale, Esq., W. H. Carter, Esq., John Shaw, Esq., Wm. Brodie, Esq., E.F. Wurtele, Esq., G. H. Thomson, Esq., C. P. Champion, Esq., Hon. John Sharples, Heber Budden, Esq., J.H. Simmons, Esq., T. C. Aylwin, Esq., David Smith, Esq., Francis Gunn, Esq., Robt. Brodie, Esq., Lt.-Colonel J.F. Turnbull, P.C. Casgrain, Esq., Gaspard Lemoine, Esq., John Laird, Jun., Esq., A.E. Scott, Esq., Charles McKenzie, Esq.

The President, A. Thomson, Esq., took the chair, and requested Mr. Fred W. Smith to act as secretary, and Messrs. David Smith and John Shaw as scrutineers, which was agreed to.

The chairman read the report of the directors, which was as follows:

The directors beg to submit a statement of the liabilities and assets of the bank at the close of the financial year, ending 31st of May last. Also the following statement of the result of the business for the past year:

Profit and Loss Account, May 31st, 1898.

Balance at credit of profit and loss account on May 31st, 1897...	$ 5,680 09
The net profits for the year, after deducting expenses of management, reserving for interest and exchange, and making appropriations for bad and doubtful debts, have amounted to...	134,541 58
	$140,221 67
Which has been appropriated as follows:
Written off Bank premises...	$ 4,858 00
Dividend No. 62, 3 per cent...	39,421 50
Dividend No. 63, 3 per cent...	44,886 24
Transferred to rest account...	25,000 00
Balance carried forward...	26,055 93
	$140,221 67

The additional capital of three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000), authorized at the last annual meeting of the shareholders, was all subscribed and paid up in full during the year, making the capital of the bank $1,500,000.

The increased capital has proved advantageous to the business of the bank, and although the benefit was necessarily limited to a portion only of the year the result shows that a net profit of fully 9 1-2 per cent. on the capital has been obtained.

An Act of Parliament has been obtained authorizing the conversion of the denomination of shares from $60 to $100, and so soon as the requirements of the Act have been duly complied with shares of the bank will for the future be of the denomination of $100 each. In accordance with the terms of the Statute the fractional shares will be offered for sale to the public by tender.

It has been found desirable and necessary to open additional branches of the bank in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

The new business so obtained has proved to be satisfactory, but it is evident to your directors that the extended business would be greatly benefited by a further addition to the capital, and they recommend that the board be authorized to offer for subscription to the shareholders new stock not exceeding $500,000.

The additional capital can be safely and profitably employed and with material advantage to the general working of the bank's business.

The capital of the bank would then be $2,000,000, and at that amount your directors believe it may remain without further increases in the near future. A resolution for this purpose will be submitted for your consideration and adoption.

The usual inspection of the head office and branches of the bank has been made during the year.

A. THOMSON,
President.

Quebec, June 15th, 1898.

It was then moved by A. Thomson, Esq., seconded by Hon. E.J. Price,—"That the report submitted to this meeting be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders." Carried.

Moved by Hon. John Sharples, seconded by James King, Esq.,—"That the capital stock of the Union Bank of Canada shall be increased from the sum of one million five hundred thousand dollars to the sum of two million dollars by the issue of five thousand new shares of one hundred dollars each, and the new shares shall be issued at such time and at such price and in such manner as the directors may determine and as provided in 'The Bank Act.' That application be made by the directors of the bank to the Treasury Board of the Government of Canada for a certificate approving of this by-law pursuant to the provisions of "The Bank Act.'"

Moved by Lt.-Col. J. F. Turnbull, seconded by Wm. Brodie, Esq.,—"That the thanks of this meeting are due and are hereby tendered to the general manager, managers and other officers of the bank for their careful attention to its affairs."—Carried.

Moved by Robt. Brodie, Esq., seconded by T. C. Aylwin, Esq.,—"That the meeting now proceed to the election of directors for the ensuing year, and that the ballot box for the receipt of votes be kept open until one o'clock, or until five minutes have elapsed without a vote being offered, during which time proceedings be suspended."—Carried.

The scrutineers appointed at the meeting reported that the following gentlemen were elected directors of the bank for the ensuing year: Messrs. James King, Hon. E.J. Price, Hon. John Sharples, A. Thomson, D. C. Thomson, E. Giroux and E.J. Hale.

Votes of thanks to the chairman for presiding and to the scrutineers terminated the proceedings.

FRED W. SMITH,
Secretary.

At a subsequent meeting of the new board of directors, A. Thomson, Esq., was re-elected president, and Hon. E. J. Price, vice-president.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Mr. Fred Pluard, brother of the groom, acted as best man, while Miss Twomey, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both bride and bridesmaid were handsomely attired for the occasion. After the ceremony the party ajourned to the residence of Mr. Steve Murphy, the bride's brother, where a tastey wedding repast was served. AN IMPORTANT CASE

The Valuation of Certain Lands Taken for the T. V. C. in Dispute

The case of Queen vs. Chief Justice Armour, the hearing of which opened at the Court House at ten o'clock yesterday morning before Burbidge, of Ottawa, Judge of the Exchequer Court of Canada, is an important one in many respects. It arises out of the building of the Trent Valley Canal, the line of which passes through the farm of Chief Justice Armour, which is situated just east of Ashburnham. The point in dispute is the valuation of the land taken for the canal and the amount of damage due for the severance of the farm into two parts.

The Crown is the plaintiff in the case. It having been found impossible to make an agreement, the Crown is taking expropriation proceedings against Justice Armour, the owner, and Henry Cox, the tenant on the premises.

Mr. E. B. Edwards is acting for the Crown. He was to have been assisted by the Deputy Minister of Justice. For the defendant, Chief Justice Armour, and for the mortgagees of the property Messrs Osler, Q.C., and Aylesworth, Q.C., of Toronto, are acting. Mr. Cox, the tenant, is represented by Messrs. Dennistoun and Stone. The defendants have an exceptionally strong array of talent and, doubtless, the case will not be won or lost without a great struggle.

There was a large gathering of interested parties, including almost all the lawyers of town, many of the property owners on the line of the canal and many interested outsiders, among them Judge Clark, of Cobourg, and Mr. J. C. Rykert, ex-M. P., of St. Catharines. The case arouses great interest, as the decision will effect many others of a similar nature, which are in contemplation.

At the opening of the case the time was occupied chiefly with viewing the plans of the property and time was given to the Crown counsel to have these made more detailed and explicit. The Judge held that the onus of proof rested with the defendants but that defendants' counsel would have the right to cross-examine the Crown witnesses.

The building of the overhead bridge on the Norwood road is a factor in the case, the Crown maintaining that this largely offsets the damage caused by the severnace of the property.

The first witness examined on the case was Chief Justice Armour. Mr. A. Peck and another witness were heard before dinner and the Court then adjourned for lunch. The hearing of the case was resumed at 2.15 and several witnesses were heard, all property owners along the canal who had transacted business with the Government in this matter. The evidence related chiefly to the value of land along the route and the buildings on the different properties appropriated by the Government. All the witnesses were examined and cross-examined by the opposing counsel. For the sake of brevity Mr. Osler offered to put in as evidence the documents in which the valuators made their returns to the Government, but these were not accepted by the Judge. Mr. McEachern, one of the valuators, was then put on the stand and examined as to his method of estimating values.

We are obliged to hold over, owing to lack of space, the remainder of the evidence submitted yesterday until to-morrow.

COUNTY LEGISLATORS

the Joint committee of the town and county, accompanied by Mr. Belcher and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P. who with other members of the committee ably pressed our case before the Minister, who appeared to be favorably impressed with the arguments adduced and promised the deputation that upon receiving a report from his engineers he would give the matter his consideration and advise us of his decision. As yet we have no reply.

Messrs. Anderson, Casement and myself have had two meetings with Mayor Davis and Messrs. McWilliams and Langford, of the Town Council, with reference to that long deferred question of a house of industry and refuge for the aged and otherwise destitute residents of the county and town. We assured the committee of the county's willingness to comply with the terms of the resolution passed by the County Council on the 15th June, 1894, wherein it was expressely stated the county's willingness to erect and maintain such an institution if the town of Peterborough will join with the county in such erection and maintainance. The proportion of the town's expense if not mutually agreed upon to be decided by arbitration. Though much discussion has taken place I am sorry your committee are still unable to report any material progress towards consumating this desirable object. Until such time as the town can decide it is expedient and desirable to join with the county for this purpose I do not see that anything further can be done. It was only last week His Honor Judge Weller in his address to the grand jurors again referred to the necessity for such an institution and the jurors in their presentment fully concurred. Reference was also made to that important question of good roads. Their recommendation will doubtless be laid before you and I bespeak your thankful consideration of the recommendations in furtherance of so desirable a purpose. Evidence is not wanting that the system of statute labor has outlived its usefulness, particularly in the older townships. I hope to see some tangible results, though it may have been deferred on the recommendations of the committee who (at my request) inspected the system of county roads in the County of Hastings in 1895, who favorably reported the adoption of similar road making in our county. I believe fruit is now being borne as a result. It was only last week one of The Massey-Harris Co of Hamilton shipped one of their road grading machines into the township of Asphodel and it has been thoroughly tested upon several of the road divisions of the township in order to demonstrate its ability and labor saving, therefore economy, before the Council were required to purchase it. All who saw the working of the machine speak most highly of it as being a perfect road maker and a success, and recommend its purchase by the municipality.

I will now conclude this address, which is much longer than I intended inflicting upon you by thanking you for your corteous attention,

J. B. PEARCE.

On motion of Mr. Casement seconded by Mr. Eastland, the Warden's address was referred to the committee of the whole council.

STELLARTON, N.S.—James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

TROOPS LANDED NEAR DAIGUIRI

While Vessels Bombarded Cabanas to Divert Attention—The U. S. Warship Texas had One Man Killed

MAUSER RIFLE BALLS THE CAUSE

Washington, June 22.—Surgeon-General Van Reypen, of the Navy, has received a full report from the Surgeon with Admiral Sampson's fleet, who cared for the dead and wounded participants of the Guantanamo fight. Their important feature is a definite statement that the corpses were not mutilated, but the severe wounds attributed to mutilation were the result of a Mauser rifle ball.

CABLE CONNECTION SECURED

Washington, June 22.—The War Department at 4 o'clock this afternoon received a despatch from Delaya Del Este, 20 miles from Santiago and mid-way between Guantamo and Santiago. It was from Captain Allen in charge of the signal service in Cuba and merely announced that nothing official had been received from Sampson or Shafter. Its importance lies in establishing the fact that cable connections have been secured close to Santiago.

U. S. TROOPS ACTUALLY LAND

Washington, June 22.—Major-General Miles has received a message from Captain Allen, chief signal officer in Cuba, saying that the landing of troops has actually begun and in progress whne the despatch was sent. The message also said the attack of the American army was being so arranged that the Spaniards would be assaulted from both the rear and the side.

Washington, June 22.—Secretary Alger to-night received a cablegram from General Shafter at Playa Del Este saying troops had been successfully landed at Daiguiri, while vessels bombarded Cabanas to divert attention. The Texas had one man killed.

TO PREVENT INTERFERANCE.

London, June 22.—The declaration of a Philippine republic under the protection of the United States is regarded here as a political move by the United States to prevent any interference on the part of European powers. It is said that if the United States had taken possession of the Philippines in her own name it might have been alleged by the powers interested that such government was not in accordance with the wishes of the natives, and that Spanish tyrany had simply been replaced by American tyranny. Besides if the United States, entirely on her own initiative, had seized the Philippines, fears would have been entertained lest the teritory should be administered entirely for the benefit of American commerce, causing the immence interests of the powers to decline. If, however, the natives of the Philippines establish their own Government, no nation with any respect for liberty would dare to interfere, and the United States being the protecting nation, would have every right to intervene to prevent intimidation of the new republic established through her aid. It is believed that the step was taken in anticipation that the powers would shortly discuss the question.

Spain on the other hand, is also manoeuvring to make it difficult for the United States or those friendly to her to have an uninterrupted occupation of the Philippines. Her plan is to set up on the island of Luzon a native republic with a provisional Government in opposition to that formed by General Aguinaldo under American patronage. This being done, the Spanish naval and military forces will promote resistance on the island, of which Manila is capital, probably extending that resistance, together with the scope of the republic, to other islands of the group, offering the natives every possible inducements to resist Aguinaldo and his friends. For that purpose Spanish consuls and other agents in China, Japan, and Singapore will be furnished with money to buy vessels, provisions, and war stores sufficient to make headway against the enemies of Spain until a relief expidition arrives from Spain. It is considered imperatively necessary in Spain to maintain a show of Spanish rule in the Philippines in order to have European support and sympathy when the time for settlement comes.

AN ATTACK ON HAVANA.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 22.—A correspondent writes: General Fitzhugh Lee informed me last evening that he had received no instructions with reference to the immediate sending of an expedition to Porto Rico or Santiago, and that he did not expect to go with his division to either places, although he would not say at what point his army would land in Cuba.

The fact is that if the division received orders to board the transports to-morrow they could not do it owing to the shameful condition of the commissariant department, and that at least three weeks must elapse before the troops even if they were acclimatized, could move. It is understood that Col. Wm. J. Bryan's regiment, now in Nebraska, has been ordered here with his command, so that it is apparent that no immediate move by way of transport is contemplated. The impression among the soldiers here is that they will remain in camp for the next two months and the officers are preparing for this condition of affairs. It is generally conceded that General Fitzhugh Lee will await the result of General Shafter's expedition to Santiago de Cuba, and that when the latter place falls into the hands of the Americans he will make a move on Havana, landing either at Matanzas or Cardenas or between Mariel, inside of the trocha, and Havana a concerted movement of the two divisions, accompanied by the Cubans, following, and being supported off the Cuban coast by the United States warships. Morro Castle is doomed, but the city of Havana will never be bombarded if the city can be taken by land forces. There is to much American capital invested in Havana to allow of such action. Two of three Spaniards arrested here on Monday while prowling about the waterworks grounds have been released, but the third has been sent to Tampa to await investigation. It is believed that he intended to poison the artesian water that is being piped to the soldiers' encampment two miles distant.

TAKING $500,000 TO SPAIN.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 22.—The French liner Lafayette has arrived from Vera Cruz, containing many Spanish officials from Havana who escaped from the doomed city with their wealth. The most important of these passengers was Major Anadito Jover, of the commissariant department of the Spanish army, who is a friend of General Weyler's, and had with him $500,000 in gold which he is carrying home to Spain. This gentleman is a splendid specimen of the leeches who has been fatening upon Cuba and sucking out her lifeblood so that they may live at ease in Spain.

AN EXPEDITION IS MISSING.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 22.—Much anxiety is felt here as to the fate of an expedition which left Point Morant for Cuba more than three weeks ago on the schooner Eureka. The schooner should have returned before this time. She was commanded by Gervasio Sabio, an experienced and surressful piolet in the Junta's service. He has crossed to the Cuban coast with expeditions and despatches more than forty times, always evading the Spanish gunboats. He took over Rowan Garcia and on the return trip brought Capote to Jamaica. The expedition now unreported carried back Ornecin Nodarse, Comptroller-General of the Cuban army, who came here with Capote. Nodarse waited here till return advices came from Capote in New York, and he took these to the provisional government.

With Nodarse went Prival, formerly clerk of the American consulate at Santiago. He went with Pilot Nunes to the fleet at Santiago and was sent back to Kingston by Commander Schley. Prival knows all the land approaches to Santiago thoroughly, and will probably be employed in guiding American troops.

I was informed this morning that 10,000 troops would immediately mobilize at Fernandina, a coast city eighteen miles north of this place, and that as quickly as possible they will be transported to Porto Rico for offensive purposes. There were but two transport ships there yesterday, but three more are expected from Savannah, where two have already, I understand, been impressed. It is believed here that the campaign against Spain has only just commenced, and that in addition to the soldiers already under canvas there will be another 100,060 in the South by October.

The Police Court rawhide was brought into requisition for the first time yesterday morning, being used to chastize a habitual truant. This is a remedy which should cure the evil. Sanderson, David Smith, Dr. Ryerson and others.

On motion, the President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, was requested to take the chair, and Mr. J. H. Plummer, the Assistant General Manager, was appointed to act as Secretary.

It was moved by Dr. Hoskin, seconded by Mr. W. B. Hamilton, that Messrs. Philip Browne, J. Lorne Campbell and R. H. Temple act as scrutineers.—Carried.

The President called upon the Secretary to read the annual report of the Directors as follows:

REPORT.

The Directors beg to present to the Shareholders the thirty-first annual report, covering the year ending 31st May, 1896, together with the usual statement of assets and liabilities:—

The balance at credit of profit and loss account brought forward from last year, is	$ 20,479 27
The net profits for the year ending 31st May after providing for all bad and doubtful debts, amounted to	477,456 30
	$497,935 57
Which has been appropriated as follows:
Dividends Nos. 61 and 62 at 7 per cent per annum	$420,000 00
Transferred to pension fund	10,000 00
Written off bank premises and furniture	25,000 00
Balance carried forward	42,935 57
	$497,935 57

The usual careful revaluation of the entire assets of the bank has been made, and all bad and doubtful debts have been amply provided for.

In presenting the statement at the close of the last fiscal year the Directors drew attnetion to the large resources of the bank which they were obliged to invest in loans and securities yileding a low rate of interest. This condition continued throughout the year which has just closed until the marked revival in all channels of business two or three months ago.

The bank has been appointed the sole agent of the Dominion Government for the collection of the royalty to be imposed on gold mined in the Yukon District. It has also been appointed the banker for all the roldinary business of the Government in that district. In consequence of this and of influential business connections in the Alaskan and Yukon countries, a branch of the bank has been established at Dawson City. A branch has also been opened at Dresden, Ont., and the sub-branch at Chaboillez Square, Montreal, has been closed.

The Directors have again pleasure in recording their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which their respective duties have been performed by the officers of the bank.

GEO. A. COX, President.

B. E. WALKER, General Manager.

The President—The report is now before you, gentlemen. We shall be glad to answer any inquiries that you may make.

Mr. B. M. Britton, Q.C. (Kingston)—Is the large balance shown in the statement as due by agents in the United States a normal state of things, or exceptional for this year?

The General Manager—Not very abnormal. We have large business interests in New York, Chicago and New Orleans. The bank makes large loans in the United States at all times.

Mr. Britton—The amount then represents investments there?

The General Manager—It represents money invested by our own agents, chiefly in call and short time loans. I might say in this connection as I think it will be of interest to our shareholders, that in 1893 we were able, in consequence of the large resources which we had in the United States, to bring in some $3,000,000 to use in our Canadian business. I think I am right in saying that the Bank of Montreal and ourselves together brought back to Canada, from May to September of that year, about eight million dollars. This was the result of having money invested in the United States that could be readily available in time of trouble, and is of course one of the chief raesons for our keeping moneys invested outside of Canada.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

A year ago I had occasion to remark upon two very prominent features in the statement of the bank then laid before you. These were the rapid increase of our resources, and the difficulty we were experiencing in employing them profitably. Although the outlook is now changing for the better, at the close of our year our position was even more pronounced than in the previous year. Our deposits have now reached $23,000,000, an increase over last year of almost $4,000,000, and there is no special feature to note regarding this large increase. It is almost entirely due to the ordinary deposits of the many thousands who deal with the bank. It will be seen that as against the growth in deposits we have increased our investments in bonds over $3,000,000, our total holding of Government and municipal securities and other bonds being now nearly $7,500,000. It will also be noticed that out of total assets of $34,000,000 about $17,000,000, or one-half are either immediately or nearly immediately available. These are much larger figures than we have been accustomed to, and exhibit in a most forcible manner the strength of the bank and the high estimation in which it is held. But while this is a matter for congratulation, the difficulty of caring for this large amount of money and of earning a profit over and above the interest paid on deposits and the cost of administration is very great indeed. We, however, fully expect that the revival which has set in will make the demand for ordinary commercial loans much larger than it has been for the last few years.

During the year an issue of Dominion Government bonds was placed upon the market at a price yielding to the investor only about 2 3-4 per cent. per annum, and over one half of the issue was taken by Canadian banks. These bonds will no doubt move steadily towards par, or a yield to the investor of only 2 1-2 per cent. per annum. In view of the fact that the administration of the Postoffice and other Government savings banks costs about one-quarter of 1 per cent. per annum, there was clearly no excuse for continuing to pay for such deposits 3 per cent. per annum, and we have to compliment the Finance Minister giving notice notice that after the 1s October the rate will be reduced to 2 1-2 per cent. Politicians have tried to show that this a step specially favored by the banks as opposed to the rest of the people. But this has been a very fruitless effort, not calculated to deceive any who have given the matter serious consideration. In a new country the majority are borrowers, and the real interest is in lower rates and not higher. If the Governmnet rate is kept the least friction above the true value of the depositor's money the business community must suffer by the artificial rate thus maintained.

We are very glad to learn that there is some prospect of a settlement of the various questions at issue between the United States and Canada. The commericial importance of good relations between the two countries, of a reasonable tariff, and as little friction as possible in the routine connected with the international exchange of commodities, is not only very great to Canada but also to the United States. It is evident from the space devoted to the subject in prominent journals, that during the past year or two the people of the United States have become more intelligent than heretofore as to the value of trade with Canada. We should not and need not make any material concessions to the United States which are not fairly an exchange for concessions made to us. To know that we can prosper whether they are friendly or not is the best basis for a satisfactory adjustment. Nevertheless, we can afford to frankly admit that the present measure of our prosperity would be enhanced by greater freedom in our trade relations with them.

It is evident that we have entered upon an era of railroad building and of great increase in our ocean carrying trade. After the building of the Intercolonial and Canadian Pacific Railways it was but natural that a young country like Canada should pause, a little exhausted by its effort; and there were those who, therefore, thought that we had ended our day of railroad building no a large scale, whereas we have but commenced. Many things have happened lately which should cause us to take stock of our country afresh, and estimate from a wider point of view its future possibilities and its immediate wants. In Manitoba the branch roads and local systems feeding the main lines are prospering, and new communities of settlers are being created, the people are awakening to the great value of new districts which were not discussed a few years ago, and the feeling that the railroad must be the pioneer—must go in advance of settlement—is greatly strengthened by the success of some recent efforts in railroad building of that kind. Gradually we are making it possible for pioneers in farming to get into that more northerly country in the Northwest which so attracted the early travelers that they called it the "fertile belt" at a time when the prairie country west of the Red River Valley was accounted worthless. Further west along the foothills it is clear that railroads must be built northward, and when built we shall wonder at the possibilities of cattle ranching thus opened to the world. In British Columbia the need of railroads is even more evident to the most careless observer. In the southern part we c

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

Attention is directed to the report of the annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Bnak of Commerce, which appears in to-day's issue. Our readers will see that the exhibit presented is of a highly gratifying character. The net profits for the year amount to nearly half a million dollars, and after paying dividends, providing for pension fund, and writing off an ample amount for depreciation in value of furniture, etc., there is a balance carried forward of nearly $43,000. The Bank of Commerce has been appointed to handle the Government business in the Yukon district, has opened branches in other places in Canada during the past year, and in addition has important connections in the United States, from which, the general manager announced, some $3,000,000 had been brought in last year for use in the Canadian business of the bank. The report shows most gratifying solidity and enterprise, and those interested particularly in banking business will find the speeches of the President and General Manager a matter for careful and profitable perusal.

The Bank of Commerce is one of the popular financial institutions of the country and, especially in Eastern Ontario, where the Times is extensively read, it has large business connections. Its President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, is personally known to thousands of our readers, as is also Mr. J. W. Flavelle, one of the directors. It is therefore not to be wondered at that the bank has many staunch friends in this part of Ontario.

HIS BUSY DAY.

It Is Easier to Forget Some Things Than to Remember Them.

The business man was very much occupied when one of his acquaintances came in.

"I want to ask you"— began the caller, but the other, without looking up, waved one hand back of him and reduced the friend to silence. After waiting half a minute the visitor tried again.

"I won't take much of your time," he said. "This is something too important to be neglected or I'd go away and come again."

"I suppose there's no use of my trying to got through with this before dark anyhow," was the rejoinder, with a sigh.

"I'm sorry it's necessary to interrupt you."

"Oh, it's all right. When I come to think of it, I wouldn't know whether I had the right answer when I got through."

"You could easily have the bookkeeper verify it, couldn't you?"

"No. I tried the bookkeeper on it. He didn't know any more about it than I did."

"Isn't it anything connected with business?"

"No. If it were, I'd be comparatively serene. Business isn't the only thing in life."

"It's a great deal of it, though."

The calculator rang for the office boy, and when be appeared said, "Thomas, you take this $2 bill and buy me as many works on arithmetic as you can for it." Then turning to his friend with the air of a cross questioner he said:

"Why do men engage in business?"

"To make money."

"And what do we want with money? We want independence and respect. We want to feel that we can hold up our heads in the world and not be obliged to face humiliation. The purposes of this calculation, distant from business though they may be, are the same. I have a boy who has done well in his studies and who does me the honor to ask my advice every once in awhile. Most boys don't do that. They think it's impossible for their fathers to know very much ow'ng to the misfortune they labored under in not having the same schoolteachers. This boy of mine remarked yesterday that he was going to take up cube root today. Have you tried to extract any cube roots since you left school?"

The caller answered in the negative.

"Then you don't know how much you have forgotten. It's a heap easier to learn to extract a cube root in the first place than it is to remember it again after you have got out of practice. But I'm going to keep at it. Tonight he'll come home with some examples to do and Napoleon when he started for St. Helena didn't feel a bit worse than I will if I have to lay down my lead pencil and paper and own up that I can't do them."—Detroit Free Press.

BILIOUSNESS

bosses many a body and burdens many a mind. You can't enjoy the food you like because you are bilious. You take all sorts of precautions, and yet the bilious attack leaps on you like a tiger from ambush. You know the feeling! The blood seeming on fire with a dull heat; the boring pains in the eyes; the head seeming to open and shut; the horrible nausea. You know the irritability which precedes and the languor that follows the attack. It's miserable, isn't it? Why not cure the trouble? There's a pill that will cure biliousness. Dr. J. C. AYER'S PILLS are an acknowledged specific for this derangement.

A. Swanger, Texarkana, Tex., writes: "For fifteen years I have used Ayer's Pills, and find them very effective in bilious complaints. I have yet to see the case where they have failed to cure."

[illegible]ELEPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

DAY OF THE CLIPPER PAST.

So the Stunsail Has Disappeared For Good From Most American Ships

"Stunsails out of fashion?" said the [illegible] per as he puffed vigorously at his [illegible] pipe, which has been around the Horn [illegible] most as many times as its owner. [illegible] they may be, but it is because [illegible] economy has abolished them on American ships. However, an old shipmate of mine who is a bit of a crank and left this port the other day, still carries a topmast [illegible] sail. It may be for sentimental reasons just as a Confederate veteran might display the flag under which he went to battle, but stunsails are just as practical to day as ever.

"'Studding sail,' you say? Oh, yes. Studding sail may be literally correct, but Jack says 'stunsail.' He objects to mouthing participles and words with long endings. He wants brevity all the time—in everything perhaps except rum. The corruption of language by sailors is proverbial. Stunsail may be a corruption of studding sail. But studding sail itself is a corruption of steadying sail or steering sail, which in my opinion was the original term. The stunsail, although used only in moderate weather, was a driving sail. Our yachts carry stunsails today in the form of the immense side sail that is called the spinnaker.

"It costs to fit a ship with a suit of stunsails. Their use means extra labor for the crew, or a larger crew, and their storage takes valuable cargo room. This means expense for the ship, which her earnings in these days of railroads and ocean tramps do not warrant. The cargoes that sailing vessels carry today do not demand quick transportation, with its high freight rates. The modern sailing ship is little better than a floating warehouse. It is not driven. Spars and canvas are not pressed as they were before the advent of the steamship. Sailing a ship to make a short passage is one of the lost arts. There is no demand for auxiliary canvas such as stunsails. The Yankee clipper is out of it—defunct.

"Away back in the middle of the century the stars and stripes floated over ships that were really clippers below and aloft. In competition with one another and with foreign craft our clippers carried valuable cargoes—tea from China, coffee from Rio and fancy merchandise to San Francisco. The steamships do the tea and coffee carrying now. It was not in those days a go as you please run. The clippers were under orders to get there to catch the top of a market. Hours saved on their voyages, long though they were, meant many dollars for all concerned. Ships were driven then with canvas that fairly smothered them in fair weather and foul, and Yankee seamanship, with its characteristic judgment and nerve, was recognized and rewarded.

"But all this is merely a memory now. I can fancy the clipper of the fifties coming head on, rising against the clear sky of the lower latitudes, her sails mounting above the blue horizon, tier upon tier—skyscrapers, moonrakers, cloud cleaners—a snow white pyramid, an angel's footstool, as Jack says. Did they carry stunsails? Aye, up to the royal yards."

A Mountain of Basalt.

There is a mountain of dark brown basalt on the Columbia river nearly 2,000 feet in height and stretching along the stream for six or eight miles. When the white settlers first came into the country, the Indians told them this mountain was traveling; that some day it would move across the Columbia and form a lake which would reach from the cascades to The Dalles. What the Indians said has been found true in some respects. The mountain is in motion. Its movement is forward and downward. The railroad builders who constructed their line along the base found the tracks continually forced out of place. In some places the movement has amounted to eight and ten feet in a few years. Geologists attribute the phenomenon to the fact that the mountain rests on a substratum of conglomerate or of soft sandstone, which is steadily being washed away by the current of the big river.—New York Tribune.

Black and White.

The Boston Budget says that a merchant who lives near Boston numbers among his acquaintances and friends an old colored preacher, by whom he was recently invited to make a Sunday morning call at the church over which the latter presides. The merchant, although wishing most heartily to accept the invitation and to bring his wife also, was somewhat in doubt as to the propriety of so doing. "I am afraid," he said in explanation, "that our presence would not be wholly pleasant to your congregation." The shepherd reassured him. "Why, sah," he exclaimed, "dere's so many white folks in dat church some Sundays, mah congregashun looks like a han'ful of blueberries in a bowl of milk!"

No Inconsistency.

Hicks—Come, now, you profess to be a great lover of art, and yet you refuse to give anything toward the erection of this public statue.

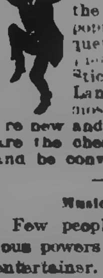
Positive Arguments



Those who are open to reason can easily be convinced that the Times Bookstore is the popular place to purchase Croquet Sets, Lawn Tennis Racquets, Baseball Goods, Lacrosse Sticks, Chinese and Japanese Lanterns, etc. Our stock is most complete, and our goods are new and well selected. Besides, we are the cheapest store in town. Call and be convinced.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

An Incident In Brescia During the Italian Revolution of 1848.

The Count de Hubner tells in his "Memoirs" a thrilling story of an adventure in the Italian city of Brescia during the days of the revolution of 1848. When the trouble began in the streets, he contrived to get into a house, taking with him two or three other persons, including the wife of a minor official who had intrusted the lady for awhile to the count's care, but who was to have certain news of her as soon as possible.

The firing grew heavier, and the rebels soon had possession of almost every house in the street.

On the 19th of March, Count de Hubner decided that he must do something toward bettering his position in case of an assault, and he forced his only remaining servant to make a dash across the street to the palace where the Austrian general, Rath, was quartered, two blocks away and on the other side. The man was merely to let the general know that De Hubner himself was coming, and to ask that the gates be held ready for him.

"Myself, prudence and my honor had a long and heated argument," says Count de Hubner. "Finally I pulled myself together. I had to let Prince Metternich know about myself, to make a last report, and to keep my word about poor Mme. M. I undid the door, drew a long breath, and plunged down the street.

"The bullets flew all around me, spattering leaden showers from the stone pavement. As I arrived at the gates of the palace, they swung [illegible]d, and in a second I was inside, [illegible]hed. But only half my journey was done; I had still to go back again.

"A letter—my last report—was soon completed for Metternich and my message to the husband of Mme. M. was given. I had to return.

"Again the gates were opened and I bounded forth. A veritable fusillade followed. From every window and house top came the spurts of white smoke, and I tried to dodge 40 bullets at once. In a minute I had reached my own door, and as I did so I turned to look back.

"Another man left the palace gates at full speed, but before he had half crossed the street a puff of smoke shot out of a window, and he fell flat and was instantly lying like a log across the gutter. The fire stopped at once—what use would even an Italian see in shooting a dead man?

"But on the second that all became quiet to my great astonishment I saw this 'dead man' rise to his legs like a cat and dash across the street into the half open door waiting for him. The sharpshooters were taken by surprise and he escaped."

The Good Old Times.

"An increase of salary!" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant."

He toyed with his heavy watch chain and looked severely at the young man, who returned his stare coldly. It was the set phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or—go somewhere else.

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully, "I haven't any chance to be extravagant on what I earn."

"Young man," continued the pompous gentleman, "I have risen from the monkey board. How? By being careful. When I was young, I made money by saving bus fares."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection you would find you couldn't save sixpence without being collared, however careful you were."

The manager nearly fainted, and the young man had to seek other employment.—Pearson's Weekly.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

May Open in a few Days—French Minister Trying to End War

Admiral Dewey had no Idea of the Difficulties He Would Raise by His Bombardment—Political Combination Impossible

London, June 21.—The correspondent at Paris of The Pall Mall Gazette telegraphed this afternoon that he learns from an authoritative source, in spite of denials, that the question of negotiating peace between the United States and Spain has been for some days the subject of a lively correspondence between the chancellories. He adds that some of the Ambassadors in Paris were instructed yesterday to remain on the alert and in readiness. The correspondent further says it is expected that an event of importance in opening negotiations with the United States and Spain will occur within a few days. M. Hanotaux, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Meline Cabinet, backed by the Czar, has, it seems, been the principal promoter of the peace negotiations, hence President Faure's desire to retain M. Hanotaux in the Foreign Office."

THE DIFFICULTY OF GOVERNING

London, June 21.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times says: "Spain's refusal to exchange Lieut. Hobson and his companions of the Merrimac is easily explainable and justified. Without any intention of acting as spies they must have seen many things in or around Santiago about which the American naval and military authorities would gladly have information.

"The idea that Germany will interfere to prevent the storming of Manila is now abandoned, but speculation is active as to her political designs. El Epoca suggests that Germany may negotiate with the Philippine republic and lease a portion of the Province of Cagayan, including the port of Aparri, in the Island of Luzon. It forgets, however, that this would require the sanction of the United tSates as the suzerain. In the opinion of tolerably well-informed people the idea of creating a semi-independent Philippine republic is an absurdity.

"The archipelago consists of scores of islands. The inhabitants differ widely in race, language, religion, customs and every other respect. There are no fewer than 31 languages representing as many nationalities. The only bond of union is foreign domination, and if this were destroyed any artificial political conglomeration would immediately resolve itself into its constituent elements. Admiral Dewey had probably not the faintest notion of the terribly complicated problems, political and administrative, which he was raising by the bombardment of the Spanish fleet.

"With the approaching close of the Cortes there is much speculation as to political changes. A reconstructed and semi-military Cabinet is talked of. This must not be taken as indicating an increase in the warlike spirit. On the contrary, it is explained that this would mean a determination to conclude peace as soon as it can be obtained consistently with national honor. A semi-military Cabinet in touch with the army, and with the courage of its opinions, would be best qualified for carrying out the resolute peace policy which the interests of the country require.

"In support of the view that the time has come for entering upon such a course it is pointed out in various quarters that voices are heard demanding peace at almost any price. One or two letters in this sense have appeared in the press, and the manifesto of the Union Catalanista is to the same effect. These manifestations are interesting and may prove symptomatic, but it would be, in my opinion, a mistake to attribute to them at present much importance. They do not represent the great mass of the political, industrial and commercial elements of the population. The impression I have received from recent conversation with official personages is that the members of the Cabinet do not consider the present or the immediate future as an opportune moment for opening peace negotiations."

WILL HAVE TO FIGHT FOR IT.

London, June 21.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "United States Consul Wildman has received no intimation from his Government with regard to the future of the Philippines. General Aguinaldo desires that the Islands become an American colony. He declares that if he cannot be connected with the United States he will insist upon a republic being formed. If any other country than the United States wishes to secure control of the fight for it. The insurgents under Aguinaldo now have 100,500 rifles and 8 field pieces."

WILL KEEP OUT THE REBELS.

London, June 21.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "All the papers say the Government is satisfied with the prospect of Captain-General Augusti being able to concert with the commanders of the European war vessels for a joint occupation of Manila. As the city cannot hold out until the arrival of the American troops, this would forestall the entrance into the town of the Tagal rebels, which Spain supposes the European powers would not be disposed to permit."

TO POISON THE WELLS.

Jacksonville, June 21.—Mr. Alger, Secretary of War, has telegraphed to General Fitzhugh Lee, commander-in-chiet of the Florida division of the United States volunteers, to prepare for the reception of four thousand troops from Tampa at once, and detachments, with engineers, are now engaged in boring for other artesian wells on the north side of of the city in order that a plentiful supply of water may be assured. The water works is being strengthened and a special guard is on duty, a report having been circulated to the effect that already an attempt had been made to poison the wells, and that a second and more vigorous attempt would be made. Yesterday three men were arrested by the guard, which found them prowling about the water works. One of them had a photographer's outfit, and he succeeded in showing that he was in no way connected with the others, one of whom was recently employed as a cigar maker in Ybor City, a suburb of Tampa. The two men are still pending an investigation.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York — or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

mining is being developed much has been done and much remains to do. itl ooking northward everything is to do. On the Pacific a ean traffic is being created, le much of it is merely coastand carried on mainly by Unittates vessels, when the first rush the mining excitement is over we el sure that of the steady trade that mains we shall have a considerable share. In the traffic with Asia there is a great increase, of which we get a fair share. On the Atlantic our traffic is rapidly increasing, and whether the proposed fast line service is carried out by the present projectrors or not, the need of it is more evident than ever before.

During the year the bank has made a somewhat important venture in opening a branch at Dawson City in the Yukon District. We had been urged to establish an agency in that country before Dawson City existed, but we were naturally deterred from doing so by the absence of sufficient police protection, and the fact that there was no mail service and no immediate prospect of railway or telegraph service. Since then, the conditions have hanged considerably, and the bank ng been appointed agent for the ominion Government for the collecon of the royalty imposed on gold ined, n the Yukon Territory and or the ordinary business of rnment we decided to send ition into that country to nch of the bank. addressing you a year ago the was expressed with some confice that we were nearing the end long period of depression. Such s hac been entertained before, to be deferred, but this time the n the tid eof business was so ed that even the most pessimistic have felt its influence. We have to walk about the streets of this to notice the improvement. The nt houses are fast filling, and proy do not exceed the natural numin a city of over 200,000 people; l houses of moderate rent are beenquired for, and are evidently ming scarce; and the building opns of the city which have been rely restricted for some years creased for the first half of ar to the largest figures since eing twice those of 1897. Clearare in the way of surmounting ry had effects of the collapse l estate speculation. We are hat houses taken over from defaulting borrowers in Toronto are now being sold in quite satisfactory numbers. Rnets are, of course, low and taxes high, and we see no sign of the losses of the past being retrieved by sharp advances in real estate values, but a healthy condition as to occupancy and ownership is the first requirement. The great danger to be avoided seems to be the return of speculative building on borrowed money, of which there is some sign already. The owners of rented residential properties who are also lenders, and those lenders who have large sums of money depending on the value of residential property, have only themselves to blame if they help others to increase the supply, and thus tend to permanently keep down both values and returns. We are told that the number of farms held under foreclosure or default is lower both in Ontario and Manitoba than for many years past, many loan companies having practically no properties of this class on their hands.

Agriculture.

As we all know, the sub-stratum of our commercial well-being is agriculture, and this has been truly the farmer's year. Indeed, I believe that many of the farmers of Canada are willing to admit that they have had a good year, and such an unusual admission is significant of a great deal. Wheat has not been sown freely in Ontario for many years, but with a steadily advancing market ending with phenomenal prices, it is not surprising that in sweeping up the floors of the granaries such an extraordinary quantity turned out to be in the farmers' hands. Many have held their wheat two and three, and even four seasons under the charm of "dollar wheat," actually realized in some cases this time. In Manitoba the yield per acre was disappointing, being about fourteen bushels, but the quality was so good that 92 1-2 per cent. of the crop graded equal to No. 1 and 2 hard, while the price was so high that that Province has added another year to its recent history of uniform progress. The railways claim to have moved 19,000,000 bushles, which would mean in money to the farmers of the Northwest over $14,000,000. It is no longer a Province to which the east finds it necessary to extend its sympathy as well as its financial indulgence. It has, instead, become the object of our admiration and sometimes of our envy. Immigrnats are now rapidly settling in Manitoba, while at the same time farming operations are being extended in Ontario. Indeed the high price for all kinds of farm produce has done much to arrest the withdrawal of men from agriculture to mining and other more precarious pursuits. A greatly increased acreage of wheat has naturally resulted, but with empty granaries in America and low-stocked mills throughout the world, it would seem that we may hope with some confidence for a reasonable price for wheat during the ensuing season. Until the world's stock of wheat again reaches the normal quantity we seem entitled to a price larger than the average of recent years. As far as mere prospect of growth is concerned, the season thus far has been most favorable tog rain, hay and fruit, and everything promises well for a most bountiful harvest.

The farmers during the past winter were in an unusually good position to fatten cattle, the supply of coarse grains and other food being very large, but as we intimated a year ago, the demand which sprang up so suddenly, both in the United States and Canada, for young cattle to feed put up the price to a figure which in some cases left little or no profit to the feeder. For the same reason the number of cattle being fed or grazed is in some parts not as large as it should be. But as a whole the condition of the cattle business is much improved from the recent years of low prices. Thet rade in special types of horses for shipmnet to Europe continues to grow and to be profitable to those who undertake it intelligently. There has been a large and satisfactory business done in Canada in all kinds of hog products with a healthy increase in volume over last year. The farmer has received a price for this product which must pay him quite as well as if not better than the other products of his farm. There are strong complaints in some quarters as to the use of corn in feeding, although other packers think the warning uttered a year ago by those interested has had its effect. Still, it can do no harm to say again that the high reputation of our bacon, however, much due to superior methods of curing, is mainly based upon the methods of feeding which have prevailed in the past, and this reputation may be ruined in a very short time by the use of corn. We may as well understand that we cannot both force the feeding and the early marketing of the hog on the one hand and continue to obtain the high price on the other.

The season closing March 31 last has been another banner year for cheese. It was felt that the excellent pasturage of 1897 would result in a larger yield, but we aere hardly prepared for an output of nearly 200,000,000 pounds. The precise figures are 198,250,006 pounds, against 162,844,000 for the previous year. The price, too, has been very satisfactory, nearly one cent per pound higher on the average than the previous year. The result in money was $17,900,000, against $14,316,000, a gain of about 25 per cent. Cheese is being produced in new districts in Canada every year, and the promise for pasturage in 1896 could hardly be better. It is, however, questionable if another great increase for the coming season will be an unmixed blessing. The Canadian farmers did well last year, but we are told that the English dealers lost money, and we may not find a market this year quite so willing to consume all that we may make. We are improving our exports of butter, although we are far from taking the important position in this trade which seems within our power. We, apparently, send Great Britain more than 60 per cent. of the cheese she imports, but only about $2,000,000 worth of butter, out of imports amounting to $85,000,000, or thereabouts, a trifling proportion of less than 2 1-2 per cent.

On the whole, it is impossible to resist the conclusion that the farmers throughout Canada have had one of the best years for a long time, and have a prospect ahead of them for the next year which has perhaps never been better. They have been paying remarkably well for all debts such as store accounts, implement notes and interest on mortgages. They have in numerous cases either paid mortgages off entirely or made large reductions, in many of the latter cases demanding a reduction in the rate of interest in consequence. Those who were not in debt have largely increased their savings, much of which is reflected in their increased deposits in banks. They have certainly become good buyers again from the implement companies, but whether from the shopkeepers is not so clear. With another prosperous season, however, we cannot doubt that the farmers generally will be able to spend money more freely than for some years.

Lumber.

This has been another year in which while in certain aspects the lumber trade has been quite satisfactory, in others it has continued unsatisfactory. The British buyers, as in several recent years, purchased last autumn the cut of deals for the ensuing summer from the leading manufacturers in Ottawa and adjacent points. In consequence of these ready sales the range in quality of deals now embraces grades low enough to make further movement in that direction of doubtful wisdom for the present. The British market has lately had perhaps a less strong tone than is desirable, but as the cut this year will be considerably smaller than was expected, this may insure the maintenance of good prices. The prominent manufacturers, who have enjoyed for some years a good market in deals and thin lumber, are gradually widening the proportion of their entire cut intended for Great Britain, and seem determined to make a market for some of their product in a less raw state than sawn lumber. From every point of view this is desirable, and particularly so long as we have to look to the United States for a market for such a large percentage of the cut of each mill. But whether our lumbermen men look to the United States for the disposal of only a portion or of practically all of their manufacture, their disappointment may be understood when the Dingley tariff bill announced that logs were to enter the United States free, but that lumber must pay $2 per thousand feet board measure. Subject to this duty there would doubtless have been a large business done in Canadian lumber both in the Eastern and Western States, together with the considerable imment which we have had in the home market, owing to the general revival in business. But the war has sadly marred the outlook by seriously diminishing the volume of trade in the Eastern States, and doubtless somewhat in the West, although the business there is still much better than in recent years. It is to be hoped that the action of the Ontario Government in enforcing the manufacture in Canada into lumber of logs cut from Crown lands will cause our friends in the United States to see that there is an effective policy of fre logs and high-tariff lumbeer. With the better feeling between the two countries and the improved state of the lumber industry of the United States, may we not hope for the removal of all restrictions in this particular trade, in which there is no room for real difference, if the true interest of each country, taken as a whole, is to govern, instead of the interests of a few individuals?

State of Trade.

The past year was evidently the last of the series of lean years through which we have been called upon to pass. At the beginning of it there were features sufficiently bright to enable one to forsee an improvement, but there were also many unsatisfactory elements, especially in the United States. The passage of the Dingley tariff bill, with certain sections not only most illiberal but unfrinedly to this country, was keenly felt, and although with the rising tide of general prosperity we have for the moment almost lost sight of these points, they still remain a serious menace to out lumber and pulp industries. It has also been a very unsatisfactory year to those who are interested, and whether we realize it or not, in the fininoial condition of the United States. The President in a message tried once more to arouse the people to the fact that currency reform was the most grave and pressing question before the nation. The Monetary Conterence, established at Indianapolis, brought in a set of recommendations which have at least the merit of being the best that have thus far been made. The Secretary of the Treasury has laid plans of currency reform before the public, and the Committee on Banking and Currency have also, through Mr. McCleary, given birth to a plan. Nothing has, however, been actually accomplished. Except in the face of a panic, or in a campaign against a political party whose platform in national ruin, the people do not rise to such a question of national morals, but are more interested in the woes of other countries. It is an old axiom that in time of peace, nations should repair their fortifications and replenish their war chests. In other words, repair the breaches made by war in both the system of defence and the financial system. For a third of a century the United States has been at peace and even the possibility of war with Spain distinctly before them did not spur them into action. The war is now a miserable reality, certain to cost many hundreds of millions of dollars, and even if the half-dead, free-silver party is not stirred into dangerous activity, reform will surely not be as easy as it would have been a year or two ago. Russia has achieved the gold basis. The feeble South American republics, one after the other, are getting upon a gold basis. No great nation is now upon a silver basis. Why has not the United States the moral strength to say that it will no longer pander either to silver miners or to idolaters of the sacred greenback, but that it will declare for gold alone, and abandoning forever the business of banking, make it possible for the banks of that great country to adequately serve the long-suffering manufacturers, merchants and dealers in raw products?

Canadian bankers having large interests in the United States, as well as the bankers in that country, naturally feared somewhat the effect of a war with Spain, but thus far values of all kinds have not been adversely affected in any considerable degree. The very great prosperity, owing to high prices for all farm products, the enormous increase in exports and consequnet large balances coming to the United States have obscured and to some extent prevented the natural results of war on commerce. There is no doubt, hwoever, that in the east east many fine opportunities for business which were just opening out were closed by the war, and the scope of other operations seriously lessened. The timidity of capital in the first few weeks of the war was very marked indeed. The effect of the war in this respect touches Canada more in the matter of lumber than in anything else, but this has been referred to already. In Canada almost all manufacturers are increasing the output and are doing well, Among those who enjoy a good export trade as to suggest possibility in volume beyond anything which has thus far seemed within the reach of this country. The increase in the quantity and value of our exports is, however, mainly caused, of course, by our raw products, with the added factor of good prices. It is a comfortable state of affairs for this this young country to have exports in excess of imports and at present the excess runs into very handsome figures. Our exports for the ten months of the year which ends 30th June amount in value to $119,000,000, against $114,000,000 for the same period last year, and $87,000,000 for 1896. The excess over imports for the ten

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

THE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY'S POSITION

As Regards the Franchise, Particularly Stated by the Town Solicitor

The Company Said to Have Forfeited Its Franchise in Various Parts of the Town —The Business Transacted

The town council met last night in committee of the whole.

There were present: Mayor Davis in the chair, and Councillors Dawson, J. M. White, W. H. White, Allen, Denne, Best, Robertson and Cobb.

Moved by Councillor W. H. White, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that Mr. Blodgett be required to water all the streets included in his contract without extra pay.—Carried.

A communication from the Times Printing Co., asking the council to purchase 2,000 copies of "Picturesque Peterborough," which it is proposed to issue in connection with the provincial C.W.A. meet, was laid over, on account of there not being time to complete the work before July 1st.

Moved by Councillor Robertson, seconded by Councillor W. H. White, that the Street and Bridge Inspector be instructed to measure the distance from the Royal Oil Co's warehouse to buildings in the vicinity, and submit these measurements to the town solicitor for the purpose of ascertaining whether the company's buildings were sufficiently far removed from other buildings.

Mr. Green's application for a rebate on the price paid for the market tolls was not granted, on motion motion of Councillors Best and Dawson, as the granting of it would have a tendency to cause reckless bidding and would be unsound in principle.

The Light and Power Co. applied to have the rental of their poles remitted.

On motion of Councillor Robertson, seconded by Councillor W. H. White, the application was not granted.

Moved by Councillor J. M. White, seconded by Councillor Robertson, that the salaries of drivers Montgomrey and Lawrence of the Fire Department, be increased to $375 per annum.—Carried.

The chairman of the Fire, Light and Water Committee was instructed to have rules, etc., governing the work of the engineer and the drivers, prepared, printed and posted in the fire hall; also to strictly enforce these rules.

The question whether the Peterborough and Ashburnham Street Railway Co. had forfeited its charter or not was not considered.

Briefly, Mr. Edwards, for the town, tendered the following advise and reasons why the company had forfeited its franchise:

1.—That there has been no absolute and complete forfeiture of the franchise of the company.

2.—That the company has forfeited the franchise of that part of Park street from Charlotte to McDonel streets, and of that part of McDonel street from Park to George streets.

3.—That the company has forfeited the franchise of that part of George street, Lake street and Locke street, south of Charltote, on which there has been a failure to regularly use the railway for over three months, and that the rails thereon have become the property of the corporation. This would include the part from Charlotte street to King street, which has not been regularly used for a fifteen minute passneger service, although it may have been used for the passage of cars to and from the company's barns.

4.—That with regard to the part of the line which has been operated and with regard to the streets on which the company has not yet been notified to build a railway, the franchise is still in force.

On motion of Councillor Allen, seconded by Councillor Robertson, no action was taken on the matter for the present.

Moved by Councillor W. H. White, seconded by Councillor Robertson, that the matter of special constables for July 1st and 2nd, be left in the hands of the Mayor and Chief of Police.—Carried.

The old and oft-presented difficulty re the C.P.R. freight sheds, Wolfe Street, was aired—but no action was taken. The evil day was deferred.

The meeting then adjourned.

A HOT BLAZE

McDonald's Mill Burns to the Ground this Morning

About one o'clock this morning fire broke out in McDonald's mill, Point St. Charles, and before anything could be done the building was a mass of flames. As soon as the fire was noticed the alarm was quickly given and the firemen were soon on the scene, but it was useless for them to try and save the mill, and they consequently directed their attnetion to protecting the surrounding buildings.

The mill was totally consumed, as well as a number of piles of wood on the east side. At the time of going to press Mr. McDonald's loss was not known, nor could it be ascertained whether he carried any insurance or not.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE

months is $17,760,000, as against $6,647,000 for the same period last period last year, and a small excess of imports in 1896. In only one previous year since Confederation has there been an excess of exports over imports.

We are frequently told that if Great Britain were at odds with the rest of the world she would be at their mercy in the matter of food supply. We need not waste time over such remote possibilities, but when we consider how England is fed, what our share is in the feeding, and what our share might be, there is indeed much reason for thinking by practical people. From a reliable journal we learn that the total imports of food into Great Britain in 1895 were £115,539,862, and of this Canada supplied £8,020,262, or about 7 per cent. Indeed of cereals we only supplied 3 per cent., our large proportion of cheese (60 per cent), helping to increase the general avarege. During the recent years of agricultural depression, when men were not turning to farming, we could not do much to increase this percentage. Many countries were supplying the best of food to Great Britain at very low prices, and all were finding it not very profitable. But we have evidently passed one of the great adjusting periods. The laboring men of the world are per man steadily increasing the quantity of meat and of wheat flour they consume. In Belgeum the eating of meat by working men has increased three fold in thirty years and the annual consumption of bread has increased about 117 pounds per head in that time. One writer estimates—have no what basis of facts—that there was a deficiency of land devoted to the cultivation of wheat and rye, as compared with the wants of man, of fifty million acres. Who has this wheat land and, for that matter, who has land in abundance suitable for rye and not for wheat. Canada certainly has both. We need not grow rye, however, while we can supply wheat as good as any in the world at as low a price as any other country. To enable us to continue to do this we want two things above all else. We want land in the best qualities so cheap that every agriculturist in the world who thinks of emigrating will think of our Northwest. And we want transportation facilities not excelled in any similarly situated country. We are building the railroads, we are increasing our settlers, but do we offer inducements enough in cheap lands?

There has been during the pasty ear a renewal of discussion regarding an insolvency act, and in this connection we are sorry to notice the statement repeated in varying forms that the banks are opposed to the passage of insolvency legislation. It is also sometimes stated that should any legislation be passed the banks desire special advantages and this has been reduced to the more specific statements that banks desire the privileges of "double ranking" in some cases, and are unwilling in some cases to "value their securities." Both of these statements are quite misleading. I do not believe that the banks as a whole are averse to an insolvency law, if we can obtain one which is even reasonably near what it should be. Many bankers as well as other business men do not want an insolvency law if it will tend to make settlements by fraudulent debtors easy to obtain, and thus help to debauch the business morals of the community, as has been the case with some insolvency laws. But the best proof of the attitude of the bankers was given when during the life of the late Government an insolvency measure was introduced in the Senate. An agreement was arrived at between those representing the Board of Trade and those representing the banks regarding the entire bill, with the exception of one section, which section had been introduced by the Government, based on the existing legislation in England, and conforming with the ordinary contract rights of parties. This the representatives of the Boards of Trade succeeded in changing in the committee of the Senate, to which the bill was referred, in such a manner as to materially alter the security on which rests the larger part of the bills discounted by a bank. The measure in this shape was not introduced in the House of Commons, and the reasonable insolvency law which the country might at that time have had was not passed, but its non-passage was not caused by the banks.

The motion for the adoption of the report was then put and carried.

Mr. A. T. Wood, M. P.:—I have been delighted to be present and to hear the very able address of the President and General Manager. I am quite sure that all present will feel that gentleman who have such a grasp of the business of this country and can present it in such a clear manner are the right men in the right place in the management of this large institution. With that in view, sir, I wish to move a resolution which I am quite sure will meet with the approval of all present. The resolution is:—

"That the thanks of the meeting are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and other directors for their careful attention to the interests of the bank during the past year."

The statement in our hands is an evidence that the directors have given earnest and careful attention to the interests of the bank during the year that has passed. I know a little of the anxieties of a bank director and know that with the large amount of capital to be managed there must be entailed a great deal of anxiety and care on the part of the directors of this bank, and the statement that we have to-day shows that they have discharged their duties with great benefit to the shareholders.

Rev. Dr. Dewart—I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution. I believe it is well deserved as an expression of the confidence of the shareholders in the fidelity and intelligence with which the directors have conducted teh affairs of the bank.

The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

The President—On my own behalf, as well as on behalf of my co-directors, I desire to acknowledge with gratitude the resolution that you have kindly passed.

Mr. C. D. Massey—I have listened with great pleasure to the able address of the General Manager, and I think I voice the sentiment of all present in moving the adoption of the following resolution:—

"That the thanks of the meeting be tendered to the General Manager, Assistant General Manager and other officers of the bank for the satisfactory discharge of their respective duties during the past year."

Mr. W. S. Lee—I have pleasure in seconding the resolution, and endorsing what Mr. Massey has said in relation to it.

The President—I have always pleasure in submitting this resolution. I know it is the desire of all the officers of this bank to do everything possible for the promotion of the interests of the shareholders.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The General Manager—I have to thank you very much for this resolution. Of course it is submitted every year, but at the same time it is well that we should remember that it goes out to a very large staff, nearly 400 now, who perhaps not as much appreciation, individually at all events, as the way in which they discharge their particular duties might warrant. As far as the general management is concerned we have had a good year in some respects and not a very satisfactory one perhaps in others. It is a source of anxiety and labor to take care of the deposits which have come to us so largely in late years. But we must find some employment for them, and in years when business is restricted it is not possible to find this employment altogether in merchantile business—not any rate without doing harm. If the money is to be well lent it must be lent naturally and not forced out.

Mr. Plummer also thanked the meeting for the vote.

Moved by Mr. Flavelle, seconded by Mr. Kilgour, and carried, that the meeting do now proceed to elect directors for the comingy ear, and that for this purpose the ballot box be opened and remain open until 3 o'clock this day, the poll to be closed, however, when ever five minutes shall have elapsesc without a vote being tendered; the result of the election to be reported by the scrutineers to the General Manager.

The meeting then adjourned.

The scrutineers subsequently reported the following gentlemen elected directors for the following year—Hon. George A. Cox, Messrs. James Crathern, William B. Hamilton, John Hoskin, Q. C. LL.D., Robert Kilgour, Matthew Leggat and Joseph W. Flavelle.

At a meeting of the newely elected Board of Directors held subsequently Hon. George A. Cox was re-elected President and Robert Kilgour, Esq., Vice-President.

HARD FOUGHT AND BLOODY BATTLE

The Americans First Attack on Puenta Borraco Said to Have Been Repulsed After a Hard Fight

AMERICANS REPULSED

Madrid, June 23., 4 p. m.—Minister for War, General Correa, it is announced has received an official despatch from Santiago de Cuba announcing that the Americans first attack on Puenta Borraco has been repulsed after a hard fought and bloody engagement.

A VICTORIOUS REPULSE

Madrid, June 23, 4.30 p. m.—Cable despatches received here from Admiral Cervera say the crews of the Spanish warships at Santiago de Cuba have joined the land forces in order to take part in the defence of the city. He adds that the situation is critical, but a later despatch affirmed that the Spaniards have victoriously repulsed the enemy.

A despatch from the Governor of Santiago de Cuba says: "The attack Sibeney (Sabana) and Baiquiri continued until night-fall. The enemy was repulsed, except on the left at Baiquiri, where the Spaniards were obliged to retire in consequence of a flanking movement upon the part of the enemy who landed several kilometers east of Baiquiri. The Spanish forces retired in good order into the mountains. Sibeny and Borraco were destroyed by the American shells.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA

London, June 23.—The Manila Railroad Company having offices in this city has received a cable message saying that though the Philippine insurgents have captured all but the inner city of Manila they are respecting property and are refraining from looting a London agent of the insurgents claims to have information that General Aguinaldo has made a compact with Admiral Dewey not to attack the walled city until the American troops arrive when the American and insurgent forces will co-operate."

KING ALFONSO CONFIRMED

Madrid, June 23.—King Alfonso was confirmed yesterday with great ceremony in the presence of the Royal family, the court dignitaries, the Cabinet Ministers and the grandees.

BLOCKADE SIMPLY ON PAPER

Off Santiago de Cuba, June 22, 5 o'clock, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 23.—With the complete investment of Santiago de Cuba by land and by sea but a few days off the Admiral has decided to strengthen the blockade of the large ports on the southern coast westward of Santiago de Cuba. For three weeks the south coast west of Santiago to Cape San Antonio has been practically unprotected. The blockade has been simply on paper in name only, with the result that it is known that quite a number of ships have run the blockade and that an immense quantity of provisions has been smuggled into Havana. Most of the blockade runners have landed their cargoes under the lee of the Isle of Pines and thence the provisions, etc., have been taken in small boats to Batabano, whence the railroad runs to Havana. This is the narrowest part of Cuba, being but 35 miles across, and thus the Spaniards have secured ample supplies. The Admiral now decided that blockade running must cease and yesterdya he despatched four fast ships to patrol the coast from Cape Cruz to the Isle of Pines.

BLOCKED BY EARTHWORKS

American Cavalry Make a Reconnaissance and Fight Two Skirmishes

A Whole Company of a Wisconsin Regiment Poisoned—An Investigation is Being Conducted as Whether Unwholesome Food Supplied by Army Contractors or Spanish Agents are Responsible

Biquiri, June 23.—The landing of the American army will not be completed for two or three days as the work of disembarking 16,000 men, together with the heavy siege train, horses, mules and supplies is one of great difficulty and likely to occupy some time. The van-guard of 6,000 men were put ashore yesterday and immediately proceeded to entrench themselves on the high plateau which runs along the coast to Santiago 17 miles away, with a good coral road, backed by rocky and hilly country, going in the same direction on their right flank. This road forms the key of the position, as it leads direct to Santiago and is passable for troops and artillery. The Spaniards are massing their forces and erecting fortifications with the view of preventing the advance, which will not be made for about five days, as General Shafter intends to give his men a couple of days' rest after their trying voyage and the arduous work of landing.

Half way between Baiquiri and Santiago, situated in a break in the plateau, is the town of Aguadores, which will in all likelihood be the scene of a desperate stand on the part of the Spaniards. Already the numerous hills and defiles commanding the road have been occupied, defended by guns, and barriers with batteries behind them have been made to intersect the highway at many points. General Pando, with the whole of his force in Santiago province, is going by forced marches towards the town, and an engagement will doubtless be fought there before the army arrives outside Santiago.

With the object of thoroughly estimating the difficulties to be surmounted, General Shafter early this morning despatched two troops of cavalry, under the guidance of two Cuban scouts, to proceed along this road as far as was deemed advisable and report as to the preparations made for its defence. The party had only progressed about two miles from Baiquiri when Spanish guerillas established in a wood upon a sloping hillside opened fire upon them, wounding three men severely. The cavalry dismounted and, adopting the open tatics of the guerillas, attacked the latter, who only proved to be some thirty in number, and quickly retreated with the loss of about four of their number.

About three miles further on the scouting party engaged in work of a much more exciting character. At this point they came in sight of a formidable earthwork thrown up across the road, upon which Gatling guns were being mounted so as to sweep the approach. There appeared to be fully 500 Spaniards behind this barritr. As the party neared it a squadron of Spanish cavalry cantered out from a neighboring defile and charged down upon them. Again dismounting, the Americans acted as mounted infantry, and with a well directed volley which emptied three saddles and wounded several of the enemy, caused the latter to turn tail. Some of their pistol shots however, reached the scouting contingent, two men being wounded and a horse killed.

The lieutenant in command not considering it expedient to further continue the reconnaissance with so small a party then returned to the camp. Before doing so he ascended a high hill from which he obtained a good view of the road to Aguadores and the town itself, and reported to General Shafter that no less than five earthworks strongly occupied separated the army from that position, and that he saw signs of a large body of Spanish troops in the neighborhood. It is not probable that a general advance will be made before Sunday or Monday next.

SOLDIERS POISONED.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 23.—A correspondent writes the following:—A big sensation was created here yesterday, when it became known that a whole company of the First Wisconsin regiment had been poisoned. It was that the poisoning occured through the drinking of water supplied from the new artesian wells, two miles distant, where three suspected Spaniards had been arrested while prowling about the grounds. The authorities, however, deny that the water had been tampered with, and the fact that the waterworks has been guarded night and day for two weeks leads to the belief that no poison could have been introduced into the pipe without the cognizance of those in charge. General Fitzhugh Lee has ordered a rigid investigation and a corps of engineers is now engaged in unearthing the newly-laid pipes in order to see if there has been a break where foreign matter might have found ingress. A report that the pipe had been cut and poison introduced, the general says is manifestly absurd, as the pressure within the pipe would prevent such an introduction. The doctors are of the opinion that the men were poisoned by eating unwholesome food supplied by the army contractors. None of the men have died, but all were violently ill, and they have been removed to the temporary hospital. An analysis of the food is being made, General Lee being determined to fix the responsibility for the poisoning on the proper shoulders.

LAND AT MANILA

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, Baiquiri Harbor, Cuba, June 22, via Kingston, Ja., June 23.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon 6,000 trained American soldiers are encamped in the hills in and around Baiquiri, and 10,000 more rest on their arms on board transports off shore, ready to join those who have disembarked as soon as the available launches and small ones can carry them ashore. Time and sea and weather were propitious for the army of invasion. The navy and the army co-operated splendidly, and as the big warships closed in on the shores to pave the way for the approach of the transports and then went back again, three cheers for the navy went up from 10,000 throats on the troopships and three cheers for the army rose from ship after ship as the troopships moved in to take their share in the hazardous game. It was war, and it was magnificent.

The Cuban insurgents, too, bore their share in the enterprise honorably and well. Five thousand of them, in mountain fastness and dark thickets of ravines, lay all last night on their guns watching every road and mountain path leading from Santiago de Cuba to Guantanamo. A thousand of them were in sight of Baiquiri making the approach of the Spaniards under cover of darkness an impossibility.

THE TOWN IN FLAMES.

As the despatch boat of the Associated Press ran close in near where the New Orleans was lying with her great Armstrong guns trained on Baiquiri, tongues of lurid flames and black smoke were seen rising from the town, the inevitable consequence of war and a sure sign that the Spaniards had gone, leaving a ruin behind them. From the staff at the summit of Baiquiri the Spanish flag was defiantly floating at sunset last night but this morning it was gone and with it the small Spanish guard which had maintained the signal station. Between nightfall and dawn the Spaniards had taken the alarm and had fled from the place, firing the town as they left. The flames were watched with interest from the ships. Two sharp explosions were heard. At first they were thought to be the report of guns from Spanish masked batteries, but they proved to be the explosion of ammunition in the burning building. Three hours' waiting made the men on the transports impatient to get ashore and in action, and every move of the warships was closely watched by the soldiers.

BOMBARDED JARAGUA.

A little before 9 o'clock the bombardment of the batteries of Jaragua was begun by the ships of Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet. This was evidently a feint to cover the real point of attack, Jaragua being about half way between Baiquiri and Santiago de Cuba. The bombardment lasted about twenty minutes.

The scene then quickly shifted back again to the great semi-circle of the transport fleet before Baiquiri.

At 9.40 o'clock the New Orleans opened fire with a gun that sent shells rumbling and crashing against the hillside. The Detroit, Wasp, Machias and Sawanee followed suit, and soon the hillsides and the valleys seemed to be ablaze, as shot followed shot in swift succession amid the wild and excited cheering of the soldiers of the transports.

THE EXCHEQUER COURT

The Dominion Government Case Against Judge Armour Still before the Court

WEDNESDAY

Considerable evidence was taken Wednesday, all relating to the value of land, chiefly in this vicinity, and the method of estimating the value. Each witness was subjected to a close examination. Mr. A. F. Wood, ex-M.P.P., was one of those who gave testimony.

Judge Clark, of Montreal, solicitor of the C.P.R. was examined. He expressed the opinion that between taking of land and damage therefrom, the remuneration of Chief Justice Armour should be at least $16,000. He explained in detail his method of reaching this estimation. His evidence was highly favorable to Justice Armour's side of the case.

Mr. B. Matthews, the next witness, testified that he believed the Armour land was depreciated in value from 40 to 50 per cent. owing to the canal rendering it unfit for certain building purposes. Mr. Matthews owns property close by and is similarly affected.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was then put on the stand and examined chiefly as to the value of land in the suburbs of Peterborough, where he has been practicing for thirty-six years. He gave examples of many transactions in which land in about the mile radius from the corner of George and Hunter streets, and suitable for building, had sold at from $600 to $1000 per acre.

THURSDAY

The hearing of evidence in the expropriation proceedings taken by the Dominion Government in regard to the Trent canal, was continued all day yesterday and the day previous. Most of the testimony was given by local lawyers and others having dealings in real estate.

Mr. Geo. Edmison fixed the value of the land taken by the Government from the Chief Justice and the damage resulting from the presence of the canal at about $15,000. This figure was reached by considering the west half of the farm as suitable for buildings lots.

Mr. W. H. Moore, who has lived in town for thirty years and has had considerable dealing in lands, estimated the value of the land taken and the damage to the residue at $14,850. He valued the east 110 acres at $100 an acre and the west half as being valuable for building purposes.

Mr. Geo. Dunsford, who formerly owned adjacent land, fixed the damage to the Chief Justice at $16,000. The land could be made very valuable by extending Elizabeth street through it to meet the Norwood road.

The Judge yesterday morning found Henry Cox, the tenant, entitled to damages and declared it a matter to be dealt with by the other defendant, Chief Justice Armour, to settle. Mr. Cox was then awarded $1,300 damages for crops, inconvenience, etc., and all his costs.

MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA.

Proceedings at the Annuul Meeting of Shareholders

ADDRESS BY MR. HAGUE

Position of the Bank Explained—Discussion by Shareholders

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Merchants Bank was held yesterday afternoon in the Board Room. Mr. Andrew Allan (President) was in the chair and was supported by Mr. Hector Mackenzie (Vice-President,) Montagu Allan, John Cassils, J. P. Dawes, Jonathan Hodgson, Robert Mackay, and Thomas Long, (Toronto), members of the Board of Directors; G. Hague, general manager, and Thos. Fyshe, joint general manager. There was a large attendance of shareholders, including Senator O'Brien, Messrs. John Crawford, John Morrison, E. D. Hood, Alexander McDougall, A. M. Crombie, A. F. Riddell, W. R. Miller, M. S. Foley, James Moore, J. P. Cleghorn, Edward Rawlings, G. Strathy, G. G. R. Marler, T. B. Brown, Campbell Nelles, James Crathern, G. W. Robinson, Richard White, W. M. Dobell, Michael Burke, Jas. Williamson, Henry Barbeau, G. M. Kinghorn, A.T. Higginson, A.C. Cumming, Charles Alexander, and Captain Benyon.

THE DIRECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of the directors was read as follows:

The directors beg to report to the stockholders the result of the year's operations, and also of the special examination of doubtful assets, securities and properties made by the joint general manager.

The ordinary profits of the Bank have been diminished by pressure of competition, but the losses arising from failures of customers during the year have been small, with, however, one exception, arising from a very heavy shrinkage in value of the security held for an important account, necessitating a large appropriation of the profits of the year to meet it.

The working of the business of the year has, therefore, been as follows:

Net Profits after payment of interest and charges and providing for bad and doubtful debts accruing during the year, including the above named, were		$440,437 96
Balance from last year		141,717 22
		$582,155 18
Out of which the usual dividends were paid of eight per cent		180,000 00
Leaving balance of		$102,155 18
The special examination resulted in appropriations and adjustments at head office and branches (after deducting contingent account) of	$408,941 20
And bank premises and furniture were reduced	44,372 00
	$453,313 30
This was met by a transfer from Rest Account of		400,000 00
Leaving a balance to be carried forward to next year of	48 481 88
	$502,155 18	$502,155 18

The Directors trust that there may be considerable recoveries from these appropriations, but it has been deemed most desirable to make large allowances for contingencies.

The volume of business of the Bank has been well maintained, so far as Deposits and Circulation are concerned, but the diminished demand for Mercantile Loans and Discounts is reflected in the balance sheet. A corresponding increase will be found in the investments of the Bank in Bonds, Debentures, and Call Loans.

The large developments of business in the Noth-West have led to the consideration of favorable opportunities for buisness there, and branches have been opened at Portage la Prairie, Neepawa and Souris, in Manitoba, at Medicine Hat in Assiniboia, and Edmonton in Alberta.

The expenses connected with the opening of these branches have been considerable, and have added to the charges for the year. The Directors trust that hereafter they may prove a steady source of profit to the Bank.

The Bank already possesses the nucleus of a Pension Fund, but there has hitherto been difficulty in organizing it on a proper basis. It is, however, the intention of the Board to give attention to the matter during the coming year, and it is hoped that a carefully considered scheme may be presented for adoption at a future meeting.

Meantime the annual cost of the pensions allowed to various former officers forms a part of the annual charges of the Bank.

The various officers of the Bank have discharged their duties to the satisfaction of the Board.

All respectfully submitted.

ANDREW ALLAN,
President.

Montreal, June 9, 1898.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS.

The President then called upon Mr. Hague, General Manager, who spoke as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

The statement presented to you today is one of a kind that has not been put before you for the last twenty-one years. The circumstances of that time are, I dare say, fresh in the memory of some here present, and I only recall them to remind you that since the re-organization of 1877 a fairly uninterrupted course of prosperity has attended the Bank. During that time the Rest increased from $400,000 to the figure at which it stood last year, viz: $3,000,000. Another element of calculation has now been introduced into the Bank, in the shape of a coadjutor to the General Manager, whose conclusions are somewhat different from those that prevailed up to last year, and have resulted in the appropriations such as,

THE MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA

The report of the proceedings of the shareholders of the Merchants Bank of Canada will be found in this issue The net profits after payment of interest and charges and providing for bad and doubtful debts accruing during the year, amounted to $410,437.96, adding the balance carried forward from previous year, there is a total of $582,155.18, Out of this the usual dividends at the rate of eight per cent, were paid, amounting to $480,000 leaving a balance of $102,155.18 to be carried forward to next year.

The special examination of doubtful assets, securities and properties—made by the Joint Manager, Mr. Fyshe, resulted in appropriations and adjustments at head office and branches (after deducting contingent account) of $408,941.30, and written off bank premises and furniture $44,372, making a total under this head of $453,313.30. This was met by a transfer from the Rest account of $400,000 leaving a balance to be carried forward of $48,181.88.

While this may appear at first glance to be far from satisfactory, it is, nevertheless a source of gratification to the shareholders and friends of the bank to know that the pruning knife has been used in a manner that leaves no doubt as to how the bank's assets stand. While there has been large recoveries from these appropriations it was thought best by the prudent management to make large allowances for all possible contingencies.

The bank is in a very strong position financially, having immediately available assets, equal to nearly 50 per cent of its whole liabilities—and as the General Manager put it—is in a position to largely increase its commercial business wherever sound and reliable accounts are offered. The policy of the bank has always been to support its customers in time of difficulty if they need support and are worthy of it.

The General Manager referred to the statement made by the Vice-President of the Bank of Montreal, to the effect that the country was only just emerging from a long period of depression. This he said, is most true. A change for the better had already set in.

The Times takes pleasure in placing before its readers a full report of the speeches delivered, together with the financial statement, and would say that they will repay a careful reading.

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproducing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

An Incident in Brescia During the Italian Revolution of 1848.

The Count de Hubner tells in his "Memoirs" a thrilling story of an adventure in the Italian city of Brescia during the days of the revolution of 1848. When the trouble began in the streets, he contrived to get into a house, taking with him two or three other persons, including the wife of a minor official who had intrusted the lady for awhile to the count's care, but who was to have certain news of her as soon as possible.

The firing grew heavier, and the rebels soon had possession of almost every house in the street.

On the 19th of March, Count de Hubner decided that he must do something toward bettering his position in case of an assault, and he forced his only remaining servant to make a dash across the street to the palace where the Austrian general, Rath, was quartered, two blocks away and on the other side. The man was merely to let the general know that De Hubner himself was coming, and to ask that the gates be held ready for him.

"Myself, prudence and my honor had a long and heated argument," says Count de Hubner. "Finally I pulled myself together. I had to let Prince Metternich know about myself, to make a last report, and to keep my word about poor Mme. M. I undid the door, drew a long breath, and plunged down the street.

"The bullets flew all around me, spattering leaden showers from the stone pavement. As I arrived at the gates of the palace, they swung i 'd, and in a second I was inside, u hed. But only half my journey was done; I had still to go back again.

"A letter—my last report—was soon completed for Metternich and my message to the husband of Mme. M. was given. I had to return.

"Again the gates were opened and I bounded forth. A veritable fusillade followed. From every window and house top came the spurts of white smoke, and I tried to dodge 40 bullets at once. In a minute I had reached my own door, and as I did so I turned to look back.

"Another man left the palace gates at full speed, but before he had half crossed the street a puff of smoke shot out of a window, and he fell flat and was instantly lying like a log across the gutter. The fire stopped at once—what use would even an Italian see in shooting a dead man?

"But on the second that all became quiet to my great astonishment I saw this 'dead man' rise to his legs like a cat and dash across the street into the half open door waiting for him. The sharpshooters were taken by surprise and he escaped."

The Good Old Times.

"An increase of salary!" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant."

He toyed with his heavy watch chain and looked severely at the young man, who returned his stare boldly. It was the set phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or—go somewhere else.

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully, "I haven't any chance to be extravagant on what I earn."

"Young man," continued the pompous gentleman, "I have risen from the monkey board. How? By being careful. When I was young, I made money by saving bus fares."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection you would find you couldn't save sixpence without being collared, however careful you were."

The manager nearly fainted, and the young man had to seek other employment —Pearson's Weekly.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MAUSER RIFLE BALLS THE CAUSE

Washington, June 22.—Surgeon-General Van Reypen, of the Navy, has received a full report from the Surgeon with Admiral Sampson's fleet, who cared for the dead and wounded participants of the Guantanamo fight. Their important feature is a definite statement that the corpses were not mutilated, but the severe wounds attributed to mutilation were the result of a Mauser rifle ball.

CABLE CONNECTION SECURED

Washington, June 22.—The War Department at 4 o'clock this afternoon received a despatch from Delaya Del Este, 20 miles from Santiago and mid-way between Guantamo and Santiago. It was from Captain Allen in charge of the signal service in Cuba and merely announced that nothing official had been received from Sampson or Shafter. Its importance lies in establishing the fact that cable connections have been secured close to Santiago.

U. S. TROOPS ACTUALLY LAND

Washington, June 22.—Major-General Miles has received a message from Captain Allen, chief signal officer in Cuba, saying that the landing of troops has actually begun and in progress when the despatch was sent. The message also said the attack of the American army was being so arranged that the Spaniards would be assaulted from both the rear and the side.

Washington, June 22.—Secretary Alger to-night received a cablegram from General Shafter at Playa Del Este saying troops had been successfully landed at Daiguiri, while vessels bombarded Cabanas to divert attention. The Texas had one man killed.

TO PREVENT INTERFERANCE.

London, June 22.—The declaration of a Philippine republic under the protection of the United States is regarded here as a political move by the United States to prevent any interference on the part of European powers. It is said that if the United States had taken possession of the Philippines in her own name it might have been alleged by the powers interested that such government was not in accordance with the wishes of the natives, and that Spanish tyrany had simply been replaced by American tyranny. Besides if the United States, entirely on her own initiative, had seized the Philippines, fears would have been entertained lest the teritory should be administered entirely for the benefit of American commerce, causing the immence interests of the powers to decline. If, however, the natives of the Philippines establish their own Government, no nation with any respect for liberty would dare to interfere, and the United States being the protecting nation, would have every right to intervene to prevent intimidation of the new republic established through her aid. It is believed that the step was taken in anticipation that the powers would shortly discuss the question.

Spain, on the other hand, is also manoeuvring to make it difficult for the United States or those friendly to her to have an uninterrupted occupation of the Philippines. Her plan is to set up on the island of Luzon a native republic with a provisional Government in opposition to that formed by General Aguinaldo under American patronage. This being done, the Spanish naval and military forces will promote resistance on the island, of which Manila is capital, probably extending that resistance, together with the scope of the republic, to other islands of the group, offering the natives every possible inducements to resist Aguinaldo and his friends. For that purpose Spanish consuls and other agents in China, Japan, and Singapore will be furnished with money to buy vessels, provisions, and war stores sufficient to make headway against the enemies of Spain until a relief expidition arrives from Spain. It is considered imperatively necessary in Spain to maintain a show of Spanish rule in the Philippines in order to have European support and sympathy when the time for settlement comes.

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

My hair was falling out for six or eight months until the top of my head was quite bald, when a friend advised me to try Kenny's Hair restorer. I did so, and am happy to say that after using two large bottles my hair is restored to its natural condition with a more healthy appearance. The falling out of the hair stopped and all dandruff removed. I was only using the Hair restorer about two months, February and March, until the new growth was fully developed. I can therefore, from my own experience recommend Kenny's Hair Restorer as a most reliable hair remedy and I believe it has no equal for the prevention of baldness.

TELEPHONE 164 PETERBORO'

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS. RIPANS ONE GIVES RELIEF

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Distorted Portraitures of French Wives and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuileries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Wives and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boutet de Monvel. Miss Bicknell says:

Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life presented by popular writers. But it is not sc in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroines of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of "The Lady Flabella" in "Nicholas Nickleby." The pictures presented in Octave Feuillet's writings are perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the society which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the upstarts who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Feuillet, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Champallon in "M. de Camors" or the dreadful Julia de Trecœur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "La Clef d'Or," with the home of Sibylle and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally sweet and pure among the heroines of Feuillet's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfully copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemia of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict burgeois homes. They know only the borderland, peopled in general by the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which budded and expanded during the second empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

A Realistic Scene.

"Realism is the thing," insisted the garrulous actor while they were taking their night lunch after the show. "Nothing takes like the real sawmill, the cotton mill, train of cars, fire engine, burning block, genuine horse and all that sort of thing.

"I discovered that when I was a kid getting up amateur performances. That's where I learned human nature before we youngsters knew anything about the ways of the world and had a comb with a piece of paper over it and a jew's harp and a mouth organ for the orchestra. I'll never forget when we gave 'Red Handed Antonius' in the barn—3 cents for adults, 1 cent for children over 5 and free seats for the balance. Everything was real. I had a corn knife for a sword, and there wasn't a soldier in the squad that didn't have a musket longer than himself. When we fought, the anger of battle flamed from our eyes, and when one fell he went down so hard that it took weeks to remove the bruises. The audience would get on their feet to cheer, and it took half a dozen husky marshals to keep them from going after the villain with pitchforks.

"When it came time to behead Antonius, the excitement was intense. The music of the orchestra was slow and dismal. The children had to be carried out, and they whooped as they went. The people held their breath as I ground the corn knife on a real grindstone and hissed my vow of vengeance. When I removed my coat and rolled up my sleeves, the breathing stopped. Just here my father entered by way of a granary door and carried me kicking off the stage. If he had not, I would have decapitated the youngster who was playing Antonius as sure as I am alive. If the whole thing hadn't been so realistic, we couldn't have held our audience for ten minutes. It's the same way the world over."—Detroit Free Press.

Laughed Himself to Death.

Among the historical incidents connected with the rathhaus is one relating to an old judge who laughed himself to death. One sultry day, reads the record, during a recess of the council the members were leaning from the windows of the rathhaus in the hope to catch any stray wind. It was the period of hoops and voluminous skirts, and maid shared with mistress the mania for distended attire. On this pulseless summer day a pretty servant girl in a wide hooped skirt and a gay bodice made her way through the loitering groups up to the fountain. She filled her tub and lifted it to her head, but in this movement, lo, the wonderful skirt was wrested from its fastenings and it dropped to the ground. The judge had seen the maid approach the fountain like a ship under full sail, and when he now beheld her, collapsed and abashed, he was filled with such humor that upon the spot he laughed himself to death.—"Stuttgart," by Elsie J. Allen, in Harper's Magazine.

Clerk Worm Turns on Shopper.

She wanted to look at baskets, and for that purpose the clerk took from the shelves a large assortment until all but two were scattered over the counter. The woman did not want to buy, so she turned away, making the excuse, "I only came in to look for one of my friends." The clerk felt rather exasperated and replied, "Madam, if you have the slightest idea that your friends are in either of these two baskets on the shelves, I shall be pleased to take them down for you to examine."—Springfield Republican.

The Rabbit Industry.

It doesn't take much to start the rabbit industry—a few rabbits and a turnip patch or some other pasture—but it takes a mighty hustling to check it after it gets a good start. We kill about 14,000,000 of them in North Carolina every winter, but there are more here now than there were when Mr. Raleigh brought his immigrants over.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

AN ATTACK ON HAVANA.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 22.—A correspondant writes: General Fitzhugh Lee informed me last evening that he had received no instructions with reference to the immediate sending of an expedition to Porto Rico or Santiago, and that he did not expect to go with his division to either places, although he would not say at what point the army would land in Cuba.

The fact is that if the division received orders to board the transports to-morrow they could not do it owing to the shameful condition of the commissariant department, and that at least three weeks must elapse before the troops even if they were acclimatized could move. It is understood that Col. Wm. J. Bryan's regiment, now in Newbraska, has been ordered here with his command so that it is apparent that no immediate move by way of transport is contemplated. The impression among the soldiers here is that they will remain in camp for the next two months and the officers are preparing for this condition of affairs. It is generally conceded that General Fitzhugh Lee will await the result of General Shafter's expedition to Santiago de Cuba and that when the latter place falls into the hands of the Americans he will make a move on Havana, landing either at Matanzas or Cardenas or between Mariel inside of the trocha and Havana a concerted movement of the two divisions accompanied by the Cubans. Following and being supported off the Cuban coast by the United States warships. Morro Castle is doomed, but the city of Havana will never be bombarded if the city can be taken by land forces. There is too much American capital invested in Havana to allow of such action. Two of three Spaniards arrested here on Monday while prowling about the waterworks grounds have been released, but the third has been sent to Tampa to await investigation. It is believed that he intended to poison the artesian water that is being piped to the soldiers' encampment two miles distant.

have been laid befor eyou, necessitating, I regret to say, acutting down of the Rest to $2,600,000.

This reduction and the appropriations have arisen from a review of the Bank's business, extending back for a number of years. Now, when adverse conditions are operating year after year, as has been the case for four or five years past, over such an immense area as that in which the business of the Bank is carried on, it can easily be seen that a difference of a few hundred thousand dollars may arise in the judgment formed by one person, or by another, in reviewing it. This is precisely what has taken place. I am not sure, personally, if the contingencies of the future have not been too liberally discounted. At any rate, I should not be willing that my record as a banker, or that of our managers (for they are equally concerned in it) should be finally judged by these appropriations. But whatever my private opinion may have been, I have acquiesced in the general desire felt by the Board, to rather err—if they did err at all—in th edirection of making large allowances and taking the benefit of doubts.

The Directors have expressed a hope that there may be recoveries. Time only will show whether this is a well founded hope or not.

One thing is clearly evident from the balance sheet, viz: that the Bank is financially in a very strong position, having immediately available assets equal to nearly 50 per cent. of its whole liabilities—and being in a position to largely increase its commercial business whneever sound and reliable accounts are offered to us. Its strength, also, will enable it to support its customers in a time of difficulty, if they need support and are worthy of it. This has always been the policy of the Bank, and doubtless always will be.

Having said this much with regard to our own position. I will add only a word or two as to the business of the country generally. It is not my intention to add anything to what has been so well said in another place as to the general appearance of prosperity in the country at present. Everything that was then said we all heartily concur in.

But I specially call your attention to what was emphasized so wisely by the Vice-President of the Bank of Montreal, viz: that we are only just emerging from a long continued period of depression. This is most true, and it is in the light of this that I would ask a candid judgment of some of the appropriations made. But a change for the better has undoubtedly set in.

The Province of Manitoba and the adjacent territories have been exceptionally favored this year, having a most abundant crop, which has been been realized at prices much beyond anything known during the last few years. In not a few cases farmers have realized nearly the whole value of their property by this single crop, a condition of things which has enabled many debts to be discharged, both current and overdue, and giving the province and adjacent Territories such an uplifting as has not been known for some time. A most satisfactory feature of the position is, that settlers are coming in from the adjacent north-western States.

I have long hled that it is to this overflow of population into our cuntry that we must look for a larger filling up of the vacant lands than has before been known. We have just as free institutions as our neighbors, every advantage of civilization, a better soild and climate, all educational and religious privilgees—in fact, everything to attract a well conducted and industrious population.

It is satisfactory to note that the area placed under crop this year is 20 per cent. larger than before.

But banks occasionally learn by bitter experience that their mercantile customers may fail—and fail badly—even when the country is gnerally prosperous.

The decrease in insolvencies has not been nearly so marked as might have been expected. There is doubtless a large amount of unsound business still being done in the country, and the credit system is, in some departments of trade, a very bad one still.

In this connection I must say that it is not an unmixed evil that no Insolvency bill has been passed during this session. With such a discharge clause as it was proposed to introduce, it would, I am convinced, have resulted in a vast increase in insolvency in every part of the Dominion.

It is satisfactory to note that Nova Scotia is getting rid of one of the greatest blots in our legislative system, and that after 1st July no more of those iniquitous preferences will be allowed, that have been such a detriment to the merchants of other provinces.

I have little more to say except this—that the time when money is plentiful, and business is generally prosperous, is always a time when the seeds of future trouble are sown. It is timely to recall past experiences, both for our own guidance and that of others. I will, therefore, repeat what has been said before, but is so constantly forgotten—that insolvencies are not matters of chance, but result from well known causes; the principal of which are trading beond means, sypeculating in commodities not ordinarily dealt in, and want of care in taking and giving credit.

G. HAGUE, General Manager
THOS. FYSHE, Joint General Manager

A time of high prices for grain, or any other article, though beneficial to the producer and the country at large is a time of great danger to those who are dealing in it.

A safe condition of trade would be to come as near as possible to the rule of buying and selling almost simultaneously. Grain must, of course, be held by somebody, but the more widely the risk is diffused the safer for the individual trader.

The reduction of interest by the Government on its savings bank deposits is a measure in the interest of the country generally.

It is not reasonable that the Government should pay as high a rate of interest on money which may be drawn at short notice, as for moneys of which repayment cannot be demanded for twenty or thirty years. The former calls for the holding of reserves; the latter does not.

As to the bank generally, you will bear in mind that we have a large, and valuable connection amongst the mercantile community, the fruit of many years of watchful endeavor on the part of the Directors, the General Manager, and the Managers of the Branches.

I think you may rely on the best being made of it. It is with a view of extending our mercantile connections that the new branches have been opened of which you have heard.

One word more. Though I have never been a prophet of evil, I have more than once strongly advised caution, and I do this again now emphatically, for experience shows that it is in times of expansion that those who give, or deal in credit, requires to be most careful.

THE DISCUSSION.

It was moved by the President, and seconded by the Vice-President, that the report of the Directors, as submitted be, and the same is hereby adopted and ordered to be printed for distribution among the stockholders.

Mr. John Morrison offered some criticism of the financial statement, and objected to the establishment of a pension fund.

Mr. John Crawford expressed his regret that so large an amount had been written off on appropriations. He looked upon the bank as one of the staunchest in the Dominion of Canada, and thought it had been watched by a careful Board of Directors, and by a General Manager reputed to be one of the ablest bankers in the Dominion, a Veteran certainly in everything connected with banking and financial interests. He had always looked upon Mr. Hague as exceptionally able and most conservative. He had been told that the appropriation of $400,000 from the rest was with the view of giving increased prestige to the incoming General Manager, that this apparent loss would be recouped in a short time, and that the Board of Directors hoped that a very large sum would be realized in the future out of the appropriations now made. This was the usual case when new general managers appointed. But he submitted that in the present instance there was no need to employ this expedient. Mr. Fyshe had quite sufficient prestige in the reputation with which he came to the bank. He had heard Mr. Fyshe's praise sounded, not only by ordinary people, but by experts in the banking business. Nothing out of the ordinary course was needed to increase his prestige or his hold on the community. (Applause.) With reference to the valuation of bank premises, he would like to know whether these assets were worth $532,945, as stated, or were worth more.

The General Manager: I have no objection to answer that with the permission of the President. Those of you who met here a long time ago are aware that we wrote off $67,000 from the valuation of our buildings in 1877. Since then we have written off a very large amount of money at various times to bring the premises down to a practical and business like value, and this building stands in our books, at a great deal less than it has been recently valued at. None of the premises are put at fancy values; they are put at what they are worth for business purposes. They are all in good repair, and would be worth that to any bank carrying on business.

Mr. Crawford—How many bank buildings do we own?

The General Manager: I will read the names out. We own about half of our buildings and rent the other half From the rents we have to pay, we are able to judge pretty well as to the value of the buildings we own. We have bank premises of our own at Montreal, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Kingston, Chatham, Belleville, Brandon, Ingersoll, Kincardine, Owen Sound, Perth, Stratford, St. Jerome, St. John's St. Thomas, Walkerton, Portage La Prairie, and Newmarket. Some of them are very handsome buildings.

Mr. Crawford: Are they all paid for?

The General Manager: Oh., yes, we don't acquire buildings on credit.

Mr. Crawford: I think the conclusion of my colleagues as of myself, will be that they are worth more than they are set down for in the assets.

The General Manager: Some of them are as handsome a building as this though they are not so large. They are just as good for the places they are in.

The motion for the adoption of the directors' report was then carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford moved "that the thanks of the shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for the manner in which they have conducted the institution during the past year." Personally he would like to have included the General Manager, but he understood that it was Mr. Hague's wish that his name should not appear. He wished to say that he was not in favor of a dual general managership. In his opinion this was a bad system and he hoped the time was not far distant when a remedy would be applied.

The General Manager—It must be evident to Mr. Crawford and everybody else that this is only a temporary arrangement. How long it will last is a matter of detail but it is evident on the surface that the arrangement is merely a temporary one.

Mr. Morrison—The largest banks in England have all two joint general managers, so that a great deal might be said on the other side.

Mr. James Crathern in seconding the vote of thanks to the President and Directors congratulated them on the position they occupied in connection with the statement presented to the meeting. There was no doubt in his mind that the fish knife used in carving the rest had a very sharp edge on it to commence with, but it evidently got somewhat blunted, or $500,000 would have been appropriated, instead of $400,000. Nobody could doubt that the losses had been thoroughly provided for, including anticipated losses, which, under the careful management of two gentlemen responsible, might never occur. He felt sure that the assets had been submitted to the closest possible scrutiny, and he congratulated the Directors on the result.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Hon. James O'Brien moved, and Mr. Charles Alexander seconded, the following resolution: That Messrs. Michael Burke and James Williamson be appointed scrutineers for the election of Directors about to take place, and that they proceed to take the votes immediately; that the ballot shall close at 3 o'clock p.m.; but if an interval of ten minutes elapse without a vote being tendered the ballot shall be closed immediately. Carried.

Mr. Williamson moved, and Mr. Burke seconded, a vote of thanks to the Chairman for his efficient conduct of the business of the meeting, which was carried by acclamation.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot for the election of Directors resulted in the re-election of the old Board, with the exception of Messrs. Andrew Allan, Hector Mackenzie, Jonathan Hodgson, John Cassils, H. Montagu Allan, Jas. P. Dawes, T. H. Dunn, Robert Mackay and Thomas Long. The new board met the same day, when Mr. Andrew Allan was re-elected President and Mr. Hector Mackenzie, Vice-President

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Allowed to Go

At the police court yesterday morning a young man who was charged with stealing a bicycle from McPherson & Young was given his liberty on the payment of all costs incurred.

Caught a Fine Fish

Mr. Dan Foley, of the Jubilee Point hotel, captured a fine lunge, weighing 24 lbs 8 oz., in Rice Lake, not far from the hotel Wednesday evening. He sent his prize up to Mr. P. Clunan's house, where it was much admired yesterday.

Mistaken Identity

At yesterday morning's session of the police court, George Moncrieff, charged with abduction, was honorably acquitted. He was charged with the abduction of Myrtle Rose, daughter of Sarah Rose, from the Nicholls hospital, where it had been placed by the Children's Aid Society for its foster mother, Mrs. Arscott, who resides near Bobcaygeon. At the court Mrs. Arscott stated that the child was now in her possession, and the man who took it from the hospital was her brother, he having been sent down with proper authority. After hearing this explanation the charge was withdrawn. It seems to have been a case of mistaken identity, Moncrieff having been confounded with Mrs. Arscott's brother.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Meet Yesterday Afternoon and Transact Considerable Business of Importance

A meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon in the council chamber.

There were present: B. Shortly, Esq., chairman; Mayor Davis; Drs. McGrath and Burnham; Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer; Chief of Police Roszel, Sanitary Inspector; and Messrs. Innes, Denne and Hall.

A large and influential deputation gave evidence as to the nuisance existing in the lanes back of the stores at the north-east corner of Hunter and George streets.

Dr. Clarke stated he had inspected the place frequently and found it in a very unsanitary condition. If allowed to continue typhoid fever might break out.

A motion was passed requesting the property owners to drain the place immediately.

Mr. Joseph Armstrong, of the Bodega, made a complaint as to the unsanitary condition of the shed at the back of his saloon, on account of leakage from Leary's stables. A motion was passed ordering better drainage.

The matter of the G.T.R. cattle sheds on Perry street was taken up—a number of complaints having been made. It was decided to notify the company to gravel the yard to prevent water accumulating.

The question of a drain on Park street was next discussed. The Board thought it was necessary on sanitary grounds, and a motion was passed accordingly, recommending the Council to construct a drain.

A motion was also passed, urging the Council to have a plumbing by-law framed and an inspector appointed as soon as possible.

Dr. Clarke reported the town almost free from infectious diseases of all kinds.

The meeting then adjourned to call of the chair.

COUNTY COUNCIL

The Business Transacted at the Session Held Yesterday and the Day Previous

WEDNESDAY

The County Council went into session at ten o'clock with Warden Pearce in the chair and all members present.

The minutes of the opening session raed and adopted.

On motion of Messrs. Casement and Hawthorne the committee on the Warden's address reported.

ON THE WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The report read as follows:

The special committee appointed to consider the Warden's address beg leave to report as follows:

1. Your committee feel assured that there are most hopeful prospects of an abundant harvest throughout this county and also throughout the Dominion. There is no doubt but that the increase which has already taken place in prices of agricultural products coupled with the present firm tone of the market has given a stability to real estate values and to farm products, which is most gratifying, and your committee have reason to congratulate this county on the bright outlook for the farmers, merchants and working men of our Dominion.

2. Your committee feel that in the past the mineral wealth of this county has never been properly investigated nor justly realized, but that it is becoming day by day more apparent that there is a wide field for the successful investment of capital in our immediate neighborhood, and measures should be taken to make more widespread advertisement of the undeveloped mineral resources of this county.

3. Your committee join with the Warden in expressing the hope that the present Cuban war may soon be at an end and that an honorable peace accomplishing the reforms for which the war was started may soon be effected. Your committee also join with the Warden in expressing his gratification at the friendly feeling which is now being exhibited amidst the various members of the great Anglo-Saxon race.

4. Your committee are pleased to note that Steele's bridge in Asphodel has been built and that the improvements at Hale's Bridge have been fully completed.

5. Your committee recommend that the matter of repairing or rebuilding Burn's Bridge in Douro and Comstock's bridge in Asphodel be referred to the committee on roads and bridges.

6. Your committee approve of the action of this county and the Council of the town of Peterborough in sending a deputation to Ottawa for aid towards rebuilding the Mud Lake bridge and at the favorable response granted to their application by the Dominion Government. Your committee are pleased to note the special appropriation by the town of Peterborough towards the temporary repair of the Mud Lake bridge and your committee recommend that the whole matter in relation to the bridge be left in the hands of the Road and Bridge committee.

7. Your committee join with the Warden in expressing the hope that statute labor will sonn be abolished in the older townships and that more attention will be paid to movements in favor of better roads and more modern methods and applinaces for building them and your committee are pleased to note that the township of Asphodel is among the pioneers in this good movement.

8. With respect to the House of Refuge your committee beg to refer this matter to the Finance committee for further consideration.

All of which is respectfully submitted
W. H. CASEMENT,
Chairman.

RECOGNITION FOR THE CHIEF.

Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, addressed the Council, urging that some recognition of Chief of Police Roszel's clever work in the recapture of McDonald be made.

The matter was referred to the Finance committee.

MT. JULIAN WHARF.

Mr. Eastland moved, seconded by Mr. Shaw, that this council send a memorial to the Dominion Government asking for a grant of $100 to build up the approach to Mt. Julian wharf on Stony Lake, which has just been built principally by aid from the Government, but without the approach, and is consequnetly not easy of access.—Carried.

ADDRESS ON GOOD ROADS.

In the evening at 7 o'clock the Council assembled to hear an address on Good Roads by Mr. A. F. Wood, ex-M.P.P., Madoc. The address was a splendid effort and will, we hope, be the means of inaugurating some system whereby our roads may be permanently improved from year to year. We regret that lack of space prevents us reproducing the address in full.

THURSDAY

On motion of Councillor Anderson, seconded by Councillor Brown, Mr. James Moore addressed the Council on the matter of bridges. He stated that in his opinion the time has passed for building wooden bridges. Yet the Council has decided to put a wooden structure at Steele's creek, Asphodel. Considerable expense has been incurred in grading, etc., at this place and and he thought it would be wise to build an iron bridge there which could stand when the water was high. The township would be very well pleased if the county should agree to build a bridge only partly of iron. If the county would pay half the cost of the abutments the township would do all the grading necessary. He thought it but fair that the county should give a liberal grant if they were not willing to bear the whole expense.

Mr. F. Birdsall, as another ratepayer of the township of Asphodel, preferred the same request. The county had made considerable gain, at least $2,000, by a transaction in bridges with the township of Asphodel, and he thought the county might well put a good bridge at this point.

Councillor Casement stated that this matter had been considered three times in the Council, and the Council had stated three times that they would not build another bridge within 300 yards of the present iron bridge. To put the matter at rest he moved, seconded by Councillor Anderson, that no action be taken.—Carried.

On motion of Councillor Hawthorne, seconded by Councillor Eastland, deputations from the East and West Riding Agricultural Societies were heard. The West Riding deputation was composed of Messrs. D. Kennedy, T. E. Bradburn, H. C. Winch and T. M. burn addressed the Councillors, stating that the directors who carry on the society from year to year have no personal object in the matter; it is carried on for the benefit of agriculture. Messrs. T. M. Hunter and H. C. Winch followed in the same strain.

Mr. F. Birdsall, President of the East Riding Society, spoke on behalf of that Association. They have in the East Riding no town like Peterborough to give them a grant. A grant is particularly needed this year to erect buildings, there being at present no buildings on the grounds except that for inside exhibits, so that many exhibitors refuse to bring valuable animals to their show.

Mr. Moore supported Mr. Birdsall's speech and stated that the Council would not be spending any money foolishly in helping the society.

Warden Pearce stated that he would be pleased if the Council should treat the East Riding Society with the same liberality as in the past, and he supposed the West Riding would be treated on the same basis.

It was moved by Councillor Anderson, seconded by Councillor Peck, that the requests be referred to the Finance committee.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned for committee work.

PROGRESSIVE ASHBURNHAM

The Ratepayers to Vote on a $15,000 BY-law for a Waterworks System

The minutes of Wednesday evening's special session of the Ashburnham Council was unavoidably crowded out of yesterday's issue.

The members present were Reeve Adams, in the chair, and Councillors Craig, Morgan and Rutherford.

The reading of the minutes of the last meeting were dispensed with.

The agreement between the Peterborough Water Company and the village for the supply of water was submitted, read, and on motion was approved of, and the Reeve and clerk were instructed to sign it and affix the corporate seal thereto.

A by-law providing for the issuing of $15,000 debentures of the village was given its first and second readings and will be submitted to the electors entitled to vote thereon on the 20th July next.

Moved by Councillor Rutherford, seconded by Councillor Morgan, that the polling places for taking the vote on the waterworks by-law on July 20th next be the council chamber for the south division and the town hall buildings for the north division, and that Mr. J. T. Wright and Mr. Thos. Z. Quartermain be deputy returning officers respectively.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Morgan, seconded by Councillor Rutherford, that the clerk be and is hereby instructed to have the waterworks by-law advertised as required by law and the necessary notices published, the first assertion to be on Monday, the 27th June, second Monday, 4th July, and third on Monday, 11th July.—Carried.

The question of fixing the sidewalk approaches to the C.P.R. tracks on Stewart-st. was discussed and as R. B. Rogers, Trent canal engineer, had stated that if the work was done by the corporation the Government would pay for it the Council decided to have it done as soon as possible.

The meeting then adjourned.

ACTIVE OPERATIONS

Madrid, June 24, 4 p.m.—The Cabinet met to-day under the presidency of the Queen Regent. Premier Sagasta briefly explained the situation at home and abroad. No further news was received from the Philippine Islands or from the Island or from the Island of Cuba. The Queen Regent signed a decree suspending the cortes to be read at the session this evening. Gen. Corea, the Minister for War, said that active operations would be commenced against the American troops who were entrenched at Santiago de Cuba.

STARS AND STRIPES HOISTED

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Baiquiri, Thursday afternoon, June 23, via Kingston, Jamaica, Friday, June 24.—Late yesterday afternoon the American flag waved over the town from the top of Altares mountains, back of Baiquiri, amid wild enthusiasm. The men cheered and waved their hats, the warships and transports let loose their sirens and the band played "The Star-Spangled banner." Major Lamont, with two men of the volunteer cavalry, climbed the heights and raised the flag. The Cubans under General Demetrius Castillo, who entered Baiquiri after the Spaniards had deserted the town, wore little more clothing than rags, many of them being two-thirds naked. Some had not trousers and only tattered shirts, while the majority of them were barefooted. They were mostly negroes, some being boys of only 15 years of age. The guns they carried were of many models, ranging from flint-locks to Mausers and Remingtons. All, however, were armed with machetes. The officers rode donkeys and scrub horses.

The sun was blazing hot and a number of the soldiers prostrated by the intense heat were taken on board the hospital. The troops are in fine spirits and overjoyed at the aggressive attitude assumed by General Shafter, who believes he can force his way into Santiago de Cuba, and strike the Spanish guns a heavy a heavy blow.

IN SIGHT OF SANTIAGO

Spaniards Abandon Jaragua, and are in Full Retreat

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Juragua, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Thursday night, June 23, via Port Antonio, Friday, June 24.—The advance of the American army has reached the edge of the tableland in which the harbor of Santiago de Cuba lies. Here, seven miles from Morro Castle as the crow flies, the main body of troops have united and the Spaniards are in full retreat towards Santiago de Cuba. They may attempt a surprise, but a decisive engagement is not expected for several days.

General Lawton's brigade, which rested last night at Demajayabo, four mile west of Baiquiri, resumed its march at daylight. Before noon his brigade, consisting of the 22nd Infantry, the 1st Infantry, the 2nd Massachusetts volunteers, with companies of the 8th Cavalry, half of the 4th Cavalry and several companies of the 25th Colored Cavalry, occupied Juragua, five miles beyond, and the American flag was hoisted there.

The Spaniards retired before the advance, which was covered by the Cuban skirmishers, burning the blockhouses as they went.

Colonel Wagner with a small reconnaissance party of about forty men, brushed against the flank of a retreating Spanish column 200 strong, at Firmeins. A dozen shots were fired by the Spaniards as Colonel Wagner fell back. Before General Lawton could bring up the 22nd, the van regiment, the Spaniards had decamped westward.

Juaragua was abandoned by General Linares, and 1,00 Spanish troops, with such haste that they had no time to burn the town, though an ineffectual effort was made to destroy the locomotives of the railroad and the rolling stock. General Lenares retreated to Savilla, six miles west of Juaragua by road and nine miles from Santiago de Cuba. A detachment of 470 Cubans under Colonel Aguirra, collided with the Spanish rear guard. The Cubans lost two killed and had seven wounded.

The Spanish loss is not known. One Spaniard was machetted. General Chaffeo, with the 9th Cavalry, the remainder of the 8th, nad 4th and 7th, 12th and 17th Infantry reached Juaragua at dark. General Bates, with the reserve of the 20th Infantry, and Col. Woods' rough riders, dismounted, with a dynamite gun hurried forward from Baiquiri at three o'clock, proceeding by forced marches. When the couriers brought the news that Juaragua had been occupied the troopships which had not disembarked their troops steamed to Juaragua with the view of landing them there but the heavy surf beating on the beach made it impossible to get the boats through the surf.

ABIQUIRI FIRED BY SHELL.

Off Santiago de Cuba, Wednesday, June 22, via Playa del Este, Guantanamo Bay, June 23.—General Shafter's forces as this despatch is written are being landed without opposition to speak of at Baiquiri, 12 miles east of El Morro. The landing thus far has been successful in every respect. It has been covered by a naval bombardment. Four thousand troops are ashore at this hour and probably 12,000 will be ashore by nightfall. One man killed on the Texas is the only casualty so far.

At 2 o'clock this morning the work of lowering the boats from the New York, Texas, Massachusetts, Iowa, Oregon and Brooklyn began. Forty-eight men went from the flagship in the steam launch of the cutters. The Vesuvius a few hours before stole up under the eastern hills of Santiago harbor and landed three guncotton shells in the neighborhood of the eastern battery. Three loud reports three sharp flashes and clouds of earth and smoke marked their fall. It is believed that one shell did damage to the emplacements. The western battery fired two futile shots after the Vesuvius. Those who watched the operation from near the flagship had scarcely ceased commenting upon the work of the Vesuvius before the winches creaked and groaned and the boats were lowered. Ensign Palmer, who was in charge and Naval Cadet Kautz, son of the late General Kautz of the United States Army, took the flagships flotilla over to the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis and reported to Captain Goodrich who has the general charge of the landing. The New York still lay at her regular blockading station watching for Admiral Cervera should he make a dash out. When the dawn broke the long line of transportos was seen streached out over the eastern horizon and facing toward Baiquiri.

The Indiana was slowly coming into blockading position at Baiquiri, and the New Orleans Detroit, Castine and Wasp could be seen faintly.

Shortly after six o'clock the New Orleans opened fire. An explosion occured ashore, and soon columns of smoke were seen ascending from Baiquiri, standing out white against the green background of the ruggid mountains that rise from the water's edge. The shell had evidently set the buildings on fire, but the thick haze of smoke and mist made it hard to see exactly what was occuring at Biquiri.

Before eight o'clock the Texas keeping close in shore, proceeded to Cabanas 21 1-2 miles west of El Morro, to make a feint at landing troops there. The transports which were to have accompanied the Texas were still far out of position. Suddenly a puff of smoke shot out from the western battery, showing that the enemy were devoting attention to the Texas. The battleship replied promptly, firing at the western batteries with her twelve and six-inch guns, and with her smaller guns at a blockhouse in a small inlet at Cabanas. For an hour the duel between the Texas and the forts continued.

The marksmanship of the Texas was marvellous. Though over two miles away and in an awkward position she dropped shell after shell on the ridge of the hill were the enemie's guns lay. Clouds of yellow earth [illegible] high in the air.

The crew on the flagship greeted each of these with loud cheers. Puffs of white smoke shot through the yellow canyon. These were shots from the enemy. They stuck to their guns well, but their aim was wild, the shots falling some a mile ahead and some a mile astern of the Texas. Finally the enemy's became few and far between. They had probably been driven from their guns. All the other battleships in the United States navy lay in a semi circle watching the wonderful work of the Texas and not wishing to distract the enemy's attention from the successful feint.

On and still further to the westward General Rabi with 500 Cubans was making a military demonstration to assist in making the Spaniards concentrate their troops to the west of Santiago. Meanwhile a lively naval attack was in progress east of the harbor at Aguadores, a village two or three miles east of El Morro. The Eagle and Gloucester commenced to fire at the blockhouse shortly after eight o'clock. The bluff was peppered with the smoke clouds of their exploding shells.

A few miles further to the east the Hornet, Helena and Bancroft were in the picturesque harbor of Tuesnedn de Los Altares, banging away at two blockhouses on the side of a hill which rose above the deserted village. Every swell caused the craft to roll considerably, and the surf broke viciously against the rocks. The sun shone bright a light breeze blew, and the gun boats half enveloped in white smoke, nestled in these fine harbors, forming a picturesque sight. They were feinting more than fighting.

From Cabanas to Biquiri, 14 miles of coast, the ridge was dotted with the smoke of American shells. The battery west of El Morro was the only point where the enemy appeared to make any serious attempt to reply. The sharp reports of the batteries of the smaller boats filled the air, the echoes dying away in the great hills behind. A faint odor of saltpeter drifted out to sea. The officers and crews of the ships not engaged watched the shore eagerly. At 10.30 the New York ran down from El Morro to Biquiri, the real seat of operations. Just as she arrived the first boat load of troops were landing at the Iron Company's wharf. The transports had been slow in coming up. When Admiral Sampson arrived, the Suawnee, Detroit, and Wasp were banging away at a bluff to the west of Baiquiri, where the Spanish troops were believed to be in ambuscade. Around the wharf launches and boats were thickly clustered, some black with troops others half empty and their former occupents climbing up like ants. The firing of the gunboats was soon discontinued.

Flames broke out where the shells had been directed, and a long, low white house was soon burned up. No shots were seen to come from any points on shore.

The waters around Baiquiri were black with small craft of all sorts, plying quickly between the transports and the shore. Smoke curled up from various spots around the village, marking the fires caused by the shells. The landing continued quietly until by noon 3,000 troops were ashore. The admiral and his staff watched the debarkation closely.

Many of the soldiers were seasick while making the passage from the transports to the shore.

General Van Horne, in command of the first division, while clambering from the Seneca into a small boat, fell into the thwarts of the latter and was somewhat injured. He could not land with his division. The landing boats had a hard time in the surf.

The report for 1897 noted the beginning of the Bank's operations in the Province of Manitoba. The experience of the past year's business has encouraged the Directors to sanction a policy of gradual expansion and widening of the Bank's influence and connections in that country.

Manitoba and the whole Northwest appear to be entering on an era of great development, and your Directors consider the future prospects so inviting as to fully warrant the participation of this Bank in the beneficial results that appear to be so promising.

One of the best and most prominent positions in Winnipeg for a Banking office was secured, and the building is now being prepared for occupation. Three offices in the interior of Manitoba have been opened.

In Ontario agencies have been opened at Niagara Falls, Delhi and Southampton, whilst that at Alliston has been closed.

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 24 1898

THE BANK OF HAMILTON.

In another column appears the annual statement of the Bank of Hamilton. Our readers will see that the exhibit presented is of a highly gratifying character, and one which reflects the utmost credit on the management.

The net profits amount to $16[illegible]8[illegible]4.37 after all necessary deduction for expenses interest, bad debts, &c. A dividend of 8 per cent per annum is declared, $50,000 carried with Reserve Fund, $5,000 written off bank premises, and $26,833 30 added to the credit of the profit and loss. The bank is extending its business to the North-West, and under its present able management cannot fail to profit its by course.

THE MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA

The report of the proceedings of the shareholders of the Merchants Bank of Canada will be found in this issue The net profits after payment of interest and charges and providing for bad and doubtful debts accruing during the year, amounted to $410,137.96, adding the balance carried forward from previous year, there is a total of $582,155.18. Out of this the usual dividends at the rate of eight per cent, were paid, amounting to $480,000 leaving a balance of $102,155.18 to be carried forward to next year.

The special examination of doubtful assets, securities and properties—made by the Joint Manager, Mr. Fyshe, resulted in appropriations and adjustments at head office and branches (after deducting contingent account) of $408,941.30, and written off bank premises and furniture $44,372, making a total under this head of $453,313.30. This was met by a transfer from the Rest account of $400,000 leaving a balance to be carried forward of $48,481.88.

While this may appear at first glance to be far from satisfactory, it is, nevertheless a source of gratification to the shareholders and friends of the bank to know that the pruning knife has been used in a manner that leaves no doubt as to how the bank's assets stand. While there has been large recoveries from these appropriations it was thought best by the prudent management to make large allowances for all possible contingencies.

The bank is in a very strong position financially, having immediately available assets, equal to nearly 50 per cent of its whole liabilities—and as the General Manager put it—is in a position to largely increase its commercial business wherever sound and reliable accounts are offered. The policy of the bank has always been to support its customers in time of difficulty if they need support and are worthy of it.

The General Manager referred to the statement made by the Vice-President of the Bank of Montreal, to the effect that the country was only just emerging from a long period of depression. This he said, is most true. A change for the better had already set in.

The Times takes pleasure in placing before its readers a full report of the speeches delivered, together with the financial statement, and would say that they will repay a careful reading.

Blanco wasn't shot, but probably the correspondent was when he invented the story, or at least half shot.

Cervera has found a plan to get out of Santiago by a bold dash some dark night, and has considerately told the correspondents of his intention. No doubt he has also given Sampson a friendly tip.

When a Christian Scientist loses a patient the people raise a big howl, but nobody pays any attention when a regular doctor loses a patient. It is regarded as a dispensation of Providence.

A Barnardo boy has made his usual mark in Manitoba He smashed his employer's furniture, murdered a child and then suicided. If he had suicided first he might have been excused.

Now, if the brigands would only abduct Abdul, the rest of the world would be tempted to let them keep his sister.

With almost half of the cabinet ministers in Europe it can't be denied that there are divisions in the Dominion government.

Scorching grows warmer

Spain is buying coal in Chili at $18 a ton. It seems to be quite a chilly time for Spain.

Rev. Richard Hobbs of London, has ex-cathedra stated that no lady will ride a bicycle on Sunday. We shall understand these things better by and by. Some years ago the dictum of the Hobbsites was "No lady will ride a bicycle. After a while even Rev. Richard Hobbs may amend his dictum to "No lady will ride a bicycle on Sunday, or any other day, if the mud was deep." But, seriously, does the reverend gentleman think it is more wicked to ride a bicycle than to ride in a carriage?

An insect pest, intirely new to Canada, has been discovered by Mr. F. Hille, mining engineer at Port Arthur. It effects the Balm of Gilead, or balsam poplar tree, and has been identified as the streaked cotton wood leaf beetle (lina scripta) which increases rapidly. It resembles the potatoe bug in appearance, and can only be combated successfully by spraying with Paris green or London purple. A report of the insect has been made to the Forestry Department.

"Three from two you can't," says the schoolboy. Right! Three from two you can't, either in dollars or dividends or sarsaparilla. It takes the best sarsaparilla root to make the best sarsaparilla extract. The best sarsaparilla comes from Honduras, C. A., and the Dr. Ayer Co. practically controls the entire product. Yet others claim to be making "best" sarsaparilla. They must be making it out of the remainder left after subtracting three from two. But, "three from two you can't." You can't make the best sarsaparilla without best root. You only get the best when you

Music on the Graphophone

Few people appreciate the marvellous powers of the Graphophone as an entertainer. It is an instrument which though it costs much less than the least expensive musical instrument, will enable its owner to have at pleasure music of any kind—from that of a bagpipe to that of a grand military band. It reproduces vocal selections and gives one command of every pleasure that appeals to the sense of hearing. No investment pays such large returns in pleasure. Besides reproucing these musical and other records made for entertainment purposes, the Graphophone will record immediately and reproduce at once and as often as is desired, your own words or song, or any sound. By writing to Columbia Phonograph Co., Dept. 30, 313 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., you can obtain a catalogue that will give full information as to prices of Graphophone outfits.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Distorted Portraitures of French Wives and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuileries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Wives and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boutet de Monvel. Miss Bicknell says:

Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life presented by popular writers. But it is not so in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroines of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of "The Lady Flabella" in "Nicholas Nickleby." The pictures presented in Octave Feuillet's writings are perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the society which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the upstarts who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Feuillet, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Champallon in "M. de Camors" or the dreadful Julia de Trecœur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "La Clef d'Or," with the home of Sibylle and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally sweet and pure among the heroines of Feuillet's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfullly copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemia of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict burgeois homes. They know only the borderland, peopled in general by the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which budded and expanded during the second empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA.

Proceedings at the Annuul Meeting of Shareholders

ADDRESS BY MR. HAGUE

Position of the Bank Explained—Discussion by Shareholders

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Merchants Bank was held yesterday afternoon in the Board Room. Mr. Andrew Allan (President) was in the chair and was supported by Mr. Hector Mackenzie (Vice-President,) Montagu Allan, John Cassils, J. P. Dawes, Jonathan Hodgson, Robert Mackay, and Thomas Long, (Toronto), members of the Board of Directors; G. Hague, general manager, and Thos. Fyshe, joint general manager. There was a large attendance of shareholders, including Senator O'Brien, Messrs. John Crawford, John Morrison, E. D. Hood, Alexander McDougall, A. M. Crombie, A. F. Riddell, W. R. Miller, M. S. Foley, James Moore, J. P. Cleghorn, Edward Rawlings, G. Strathy, G. G. R. Marler, T. B. Brown, Campbell Nelles, James Crathern, G. W. Robinson, Richard White, W. M. Dobell, Michael Burke, Jas. Williamson, Henry Barbeau, G. M. Kinghorn, A.T. Higginson, A. C. Cumming, Charles Alexander, and Captain Benyon.

THE DIRECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of the directors was read as follows:

The directors beg to report to the stockholders the result of the year's operations, and also of the special examination of doubtful assets, securities and properties made by the joint general manager.

The ordinary profits of the Bank have been diminished by pressure of competition, but the losses arising from failures of customers during the year have been small, with, however, one exception, arising from a very heavy shrinkage in value of the security held for an important account, necessitating a large appropriation of the profits of the year to meet it.

The working of the business of the year has, therefore, been as follows:

Net Profits after payment of interest and charges and providing for bad and doubtful debts accruing during the year, including the above named, were		$440,437 96
Balance from last year		141,717 22
		$582,155 18
Out of which the usual dividends were paid of eight per cent		480,000 00
Leaving balance of		$102,155 18
The special examination resulted in appropriations and adjustments at head office and branches (after deducting contingent account) of	$408,941 20
And bank premises and furniture were reduced	44,372 00
	$453,313 30
This was met by a transfer from Rest Account of		400,000 00
Leaving a balance to be carried forward to next year of	48 481 88
	$502,155 18	$502,155 18

The Directors trust that there may be considerable recoveries from these appropriations, but it has been deemed most desirable to make large allowances for contingencies.

The volume of business of the Bank has been well maintained, so far as Deposits and Circulation are concerned, but the diminished demand for Mercantile Loans and Discounts is reflected in the balance sheet. A corresponding increase will be found in the investments of the Bank in Bonds, Debentures, and Call Loans.

The large developments of business in the Noth-West have led to the consideration of favorable opportunities for buisness there, and branches have been opened at Portage la Prairie, Neepawa and Souris, in Manitoba, at Medicine Hat in Assiniboia, and Edmonton in Alberta.

The expenses connected with the opening of these branches have been considerable, and have added to the charges for the year. The Directors trust that hereafter they may prove a steady source of profit to the Bank.

The Bank already possesses the nucleus of a Pension Fund, but there has hitherto been difficulty in organizing it on a proper basis. It is, however, the intention of the Board to give attention to the matter during the coming year, and it is hoped that a carefully considered sheme may be presented for adoption at a future meeting.

Meantime the annual cost of the pensions allowed to various former officers forms a part of the annual charges of the Bank.

The variuos officers of the Bank have discharged their duties to the satisfaction of the Board.

All respectfully submitted.

ANDREW ALLAN,
President.

Montreal, June 9, 1898.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS.

The President then called upon Mr. Hague, General Manager, who spoke as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen.

The statement presented to you today is one of a kind that has not been put before you for the last twenty-one years. The circumstances of that time are, I dare say, fresh in the memory of some here praseent, and I only recall them to remind you that since the re-organization of 1877 a fairly uninterrupted course of prosperity has attended the Bank. During that time the Rest increased, from $400,000 to the figure at which it stood last year, viz: $3,000,000. Another element of calculation has now been introduced into the Bank, in the shap eof a coadjutor to the General Manager, whose conclusions are somewhat different from those that prevailed up to last year, and have resulted in the appropriations such as

TESTIMONIALS:

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

My hair was falling out for six or eight months until the top of my head was quite bald, when a friend advised me to try Kenny's Hair restorer. I did so, and am happy to say that after using two large bottles my hair is restored to its natural condition with a more healthy appearance. The falling out of the hair stopped and all dandruff removed. I was only using the Hair restorer about two months, February and March, until the new growth was fully developed. I can therefore, from my own experience recommend Kenny's Hair Restorer as a most reliable hair remedy and I believe it has no equal for the prevention of baldness.

TELEPHONE 164 PETERBORO'

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?" He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said: "The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them especially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case will be the means of inducing some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA

have been laid befor eyou, necessitating, I regret to say, acutting down of the Rest to $2,600,000.

This reduction and the appropriations have arisen from a review of the Bank's business, extending back for a number of years. Now, when adverse conditions are operating year after year, as has been the case for four or five years past, over such an immense area as that in which the business of the Bank is carried on, it can easily be seen that a difference of a few hundred thousand dollars may arise in the judgment formed by one person, or by another, in reviewing it. This is precisely what has taken place. I am not sure, personally, if the contingencies of the future have not been too liberally discounted. At any rate, I should not be willing that my record as a banker, or that of our managers (for they are equally concerned in it) should be finally judged by these appropriations. But whatever my private opinion may have been, I have acquiesced in the general desire felt by the Board, to rather err—if they did err at all—in th edirection of making large allowances and taking the benefit of doubts.

The Directors have expressed a hope that there may be recoveries. Time only will show whether this is a well founded hope or not.

One thing is clearly evident from the balance sheet, viz: that the Bank is financially in a very strong position, having immediately available assets equal to nearly 50 per cent. of its whole liabilities—and being in a position to largely increase its commercial business whneever sound and reliable accounts are offered to us. Its strength, also, will enable it to support its customers in a time of difficulty, if they need support and are worthy of it. This has always been the policy of the Bank, and doubtless always will be.

Having said this much with regard to our own position. I will add only a word or two as to the business of the country generally. It is not my intention to add anything to what has been so well said in another place as to the general appearance of prosperity in the country at present. Everything that was then said we all heartily concur in.

But I specially call your attention to what was emphasized so wisely by the Vice-President of the Bank of Montreal, viz: that we are only just emerging from a long continued period of depression. This is most true, and it is in the light of this that I would ask a candid judgment of some of the appropriations made. But a change for the better has undoubtedly set in.

The Province of Manitoba and the adjacent territories have been exceptionally favored this year, having a most abundant crop, which has been been realized at prices much beyond anything known during the last few years. In not a few cases farmers have realized nearly the whole value of their property by this single crop, a condition of things which has enabled many debts to be discharged, both current and overdue, and giving the province and adjacent Territories such an uplifting as has not been known for some time. A most satisfactory feature of the position is, that settlers are coming in from the adjacent north-western States.

I have long hled that it is to this overflow of population into our cuntry that we must look for a larger filling up of the vacant lands than has before been known. We have just as free institutions as our neighbors, every advantage of civilization, a better soild and climate, all educational and religious privilgees—in fact, everything to attract a well conducted and industrious population.

It is satisfactory to note that the area placed under crop this year is 20 per cent. larger than before.

But banks occasionally learn by bitter experience that their mercantile customers may fail—and fail badly—even when the country is gneerally prosperous.

The decrease in insolvencies has not been nearly so marked as might have been expected. There is doubtless a large amount of unsound business still being done in the country, and the credit system is, in some departments of trade, a very bad one still.

In this connection I must say that it is not an unmixed evil that no Insolvency bill has been passed during this session. With such a discharge clause as it was proposed to introduce, it would, I am convinced, have resulted in a vast increase in insolvency in every part of the Dominion.

It is satisfactory to note that Nova Scotia is getting rid of one of the greatest blots in our legislative system, and that after 1st July no more of those iniquitous preferences will be allowed, that have been such a detriment to the merchants of other provinces.

I have little more to say except this—that the time when money is plentiful, and business is generally prosperous, is always a time when the seeds of future trouble are sown. It is timely to recall past experiences, both for our own guidance and that of others. I will, therefore, repeat what has been said before, but is so constantly forgotten—that insolvencies are not matters of chance, but result from well known causes; the principal of which are trading beond means, sypeculating in commodities not ordinarily dealt in, and want of care in taking and giving credit.

A time of high prices for grain, or any other article, though beneficial to the producer and the country at large is a time of great danger to those who are dealing in it.

A safe condition of trade would be to come as near as possible to the rule of buying and selling almost simultaneously. Grain must, of course, be held by somebody, but the more widely the risk is diffused the safer for the individual trader.

The reduction of interest by the Government on its savings bank deposits is a measure in the interest of the country generally.

It is not reasonable that the Government should pay as high a rate of interest on money which may be drawn at short notice, as for moneys of which repayment cannot be demanded for twenty or thirty years. The hormer calls for the holding of reserves; the latter does not.

As to the bank generally, you will bear in mind that we have a large and valuable connection amongst the mercantile community, the fruit of many years of watchful endeavor on the part of the Directors, the General Manager, and the Managers of the Branches.

I think you may rely on the best being made of it. It is with a view of extending our mercantile connections that the new branches have been opened of which you have heard.

One word more. Though I have never been a prophet of evil, I have more than once strongly advised caution, and I do this again now emphatically, for experience shows that it is in times of expansion that those who give, or deal in credit, requires to be most careful.

THE DISCUSSION.

It was moved by the President, and seconded by the Vice-President, that the report of the Directors as submitted be, and the same is hereby adopted and ordered to be printed for distribution among the stockholders.

Mr. John Morrison offered some criticism of the financial statement, and objected to the establishment of a pension fund.

Mr. John Crawford expressed his regret that so large an amount had been written off on appropriations. He looked upon the bank as one of the staunchest in the Dominion of Canada, and thought it had been watched by a careful Board of Directors, and by a General Manager reputed to be one of the ablest bankers in the Dominion, a Veteran certainly in everything connected with banking and financial interests. He had always looked upon Mr. Hague as exceptionally able and most conservative. He had been told that the appropriation of $400,000 from the rest was with the view of giving increased prestige to the incoming General Manager, that this apparent loss would be recouped in a short time, and that the Board of Directors hoped that a very large sum would be realized in the future out of the appropriations now made. This was the usual case when new general managers appointed. But he submitted that in the present instance there was no need to employ this expedient. Mr. Fyshe had quite sufficient prestige in the reputation with which he came to the bank. He had heard Mr. Fyshe's praise sounded, not only by ordinary people, but by experts in the banking business. Nothing out of the ordinary course was needed to increase his prestige or his hold on the community. (Applause.) With reference to the valuation of bank premises, he would like to know whether these assets were worth $532,945, as stated, or were worth more.

The Genrral Manager: I have no objection to answer that with the permission of the President. Those of you who met here a long time ago are aware that we wrote off $67,000 from the valuation of our buildings in 1877. Since then we have written off a very large amount of money at various times to bring the premises down to a practical and business like value, and this building stands in our books, at a great deal less than it has been recently valued at. None of the premises are put at fancy values, they are put at what they are worth for business purposes. They are all in good repair, and would be worth that to any bank carrying on business.

Mr. Crawford—How many bank buildings do we own?

The General Manager: I will read the names out. We own about half of our buildings and rent the other half. From the rents we have to pay, we are able to judge pretty well as to the value of the buildings we own. We have bank premises of our own at Montreal, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Kingston, Chatham, Belleville, Brandon, Ingersoll, Kincardine, Owen Sound, Perth, Stratford, St. Jerome, St. John's, St. Thomas, Walkerton, Portage La Prairie, and Neepawa. Some of them are very handsome buildings.

Mr. Crawford: Are they all paid for?

The General Manager: Oh,, yes, we con't acquire buildings on credit.

Mr. Crawford: I think the conclusion of my collegues, as of myself, will be that they are worth more than they are set down for in the assets.

The General Manager: Some of them are as handsome a building as this, though they are not so large. They are just as good for the places they are in.

The motion for the adoption of the directors' report was then carried unanimously.

Mr. Crawford moved "that the thanks of the shareholders are due and are hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for the manner in which they have conducted the institution during the past year." Personally he would like to have included the General Manager, but he understood that it was Mr. Hague's wish that his name should not appear. He wished to say that he was not in favor of a dual general managership. In his opinion this was a bad system and he hoped the time was not far distant when a remedy would be applied.

The General Manager—It must be evident to Mr. Crawford and everybody else that this is only a temporary arrangement. How long it will last is a matter of detail but it is evident on the surface that the arrangement is merely a temporary one.

Mr. Morrison—The largest banks in England have all two joint general managers so that a great deal might be said on the other side.

Mr. James Crathern in seconding the vote of thanks to the President and Directors congratulated them on the position they occupied in connection with the statement presented to the meeting. There was no doubt in his mind that the fish knife used in carving the rest had a very sharp edge onit to commence with, but it evidently got somewhat blunted, or $500,000 would have been appropriated, instead of $400,000. Nobody could doubt that the losses had been thoroughly provided for, including anticipated losses, which, under the careful management of two gentlemen responsible, might never occur. He felt sure that the assets had been submitted to the closest possible scrutiny, and he congratulated the Directors on the result.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Hon. James O'Brien moved, and Mr. Charles Alexander seconded, the following resolution: That Messrs. Michael Burke and James Williamson be appointed scrutineers for the election of Directors about to take place, and that they proceed to take the votes immediately; that the ballot shall close at 3 o'clock p.m.; but if an intervel of ten minutes elapse without a vote being tendered the ballot shall be closed immediately. Carried.

Mr. Williamson moved, and Mr. Burke seconded, a vote of thanks to the Chairman for his efficient conduct of the business of the meeting, which was carried by acclamation.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot for the election of Directors resulted in the reelection of the old Board without exception, Messrs. Andrew Allan, Hector Mackenzie, Jonathan Hodgson, John Cassils, H. Montagu Allan, Jas. P. Dawes, T. H. Dunn, Robert Mackay and Thomas Long. The new board met the same day, when Mr. Andrew Allan was reelected President and Mr. Hector Mackenzie, Vice-President.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1.50 to the $2 00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity, very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Canadians are With Us

From the Rochester Herald: Charles W. Woshall has received a copy of the Peterborough Times, containing an announcement that Mr. H. Calcutt, president of the Peterborough Navigation company, will give a steamboat excursion on July 4th, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Americans wounded in the war with Spain. Mr. Calcutt, who thus thinks well of Americans, is a Canadian, who has no love for Spaniards.

$10,000 Worth of Cheese

What the cheese industry means to Peterborough and the district acn be judged by the fact that Mr. Wm. Cluxton has himself purchased over $2,000 worth of cheese this season. This was done at the two Boards already held, one on the 8th and the other on the 22nd of June, within fourteen days. Peterborough cannot be said to be without enterprise when deals of this magnitude in the one line are being made by one citizen.

HASTINGS WIN

A Fast Match Between Peterboro Juniors and Hastings Seniors

The Peterborough Junior Lacrosse Club went down to Hastings yesterday and were defeated by the apparently large score of 7—0. The score would indicate that it was a one-sided game, but such was not the case by any means. Although the Hastings team had expected to meet the Peterborough seniors and had strengthened their team for that purpose, still they were given a hard game during the two hours of play. Hastings scored the first five games in 35 minutes by good combination, having the ball continually on the Peterborough goal. At this stage it was decided to make a change. Harry King went in goal and Robinson was placed at point while Dolan and Mein exchanged places. After this the game became more interesting, Peterborough having a shade the better of it, but luck was against them in shooting. After 36 minutes of the hardest kind of playing Hastings scored again. The next game was a repition of the previous one, the ball travelling from one goal to the other, but both defences were playing a strong game and the home players had hard work getting in shots on the goal. However, it could not last and Hastings again scored, the ball glancing off Robinson and rolling through the flags. The Peterborough team was badly handicapped by the grounds, which were very rough. Some of them received bad cuts through tripping and falling. The boys are confident that when Hastings plays the return match here they will turn the tables and come out victorious. The teams and positions were as follows:

Umpires—F. Clancy and Frank Lynch.

Referee—Fred Lunch.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

McClelland and Hogarth worked hard and started many a combination.

If the players were placed in the same positions they occupied at the close of the game at the beginning the score would no doubt have been different.

The boys were all well pleased with their trip and speak highly of the way they were used.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

In the Case of the Dominion Government re Judge Armour

The final evidence in the expropriation proceedings taken by the Dominion Government against Chief Justice Armour was heard at the Court House Wednesday evening, a special session of the court being held, as it was desired to have the case finished by noon yesterday.

After the conclusion of the evidence Mr. Osler, Q.C., addressed the court on behalf of the defendant, Chief Justice Armour. The case was continued yesterday morning, when Mr. Aylesworth presented his argument also for the defence. Mr. Aylesworth nominally represented the Ontario General Trusts in the case.

Mr. E. B. Edwards summed up for the Government. He mad ea good argument, speaking for about two hours and a quarter. Mr. Aylesworth then replied. The addresses of the counsel for the defence were not lengthy.

Judge Burbidge reserved his judgment. It will probably be delivered from the Exchequer Court, Ottawa, in September next.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mr. M. Bolton, Park St., Injured by a Hard Fall

Mr. Michael Bolton, of Park street, who has the contract for street watering in the South Ward, met with a painful accident about eleven o'clock yesterday morning. He had just filled his cart at the stand-pipe at the corner of Stewart and Dalhousie streets, and had driven out a few yards, when the right hind wheel of the cart fell to pieces and the cart came heavily down on that corner.

Mr. Bolton was thrown from his seat by the concussion, and alighted on the ground, falling on his head and shoulder. He was knocked unconscious by the fall and bled profusely from the forehead. He was picked up and driven home, where it was some time before he recovered his senses fully.

Mr. Bolton will feel the effects of his severe shaking up for some time. It is lamentable that the bad condition of the cart should have caused him such a dangerous accident.

KILLED ON THE TRACK

Horrible Death of Wm. Johnston at Havelock

(Special to the Times.)

On Friday morning No. 6, which was at Havelock at one o'clock, was three hours late. Engineer McGuire was trying to make up as much of this time as possible and was running at top-notch speed. Just after he entered the Havelock yards he noticed a man lying on the track. He was almost on top of him, but he whistled warningly and reversed the engine but it was too late. There was a crunching of bones, a horrified engineer and a mangled corpse.

The poor fellow who met his death in such a sudden shocking manner was William Johnston, son of Robert Johnston, of the 3rd concession of Belmont. The Johnstons are one of the oldest, best connected and most highly respected families in Belmont. "Bill," as the boys call him, was about to take part Friday in a "raising" at his cousins, of which he was to be captain of one side. He came in to see his brother-in-law, James Campney, who is a night switchman in the Havelock yards. Jim asked him to wait for a while until he got through making up the midnight freight. "Bill" sat down and evidently went to sleep, and never, never woke. While the manner of his death was horrible, it is some comfort to his family to know it was instantaneous.

A CANADIAN COURTESY

Independence Day Excursion by the Peterboro Navigation Company

The Rochester Democrat says. The friendship and sympathy of Canadians fro the Americans in the present little difficulty with Spain has been manifested upon sveeral occasions. The banquet held recently at New York city, at which toasts were offered to the success of the United States, it seems, was only the beginning of innumerable courtesies shown to Uncle Sam's friends across the border. One of the latest pleasantries in announced in the Peterborough, Ontario, Times of June 15th, referring to an Independence Day excursion to be given by Commordore Calcutt, of the Peterborough Navigation Company. The Times says:

"Mr. H. Calcutt, president of the Peterborough Navigation Company, announces the intention of the company to run an excursion on the4th of July to Jubilee Point, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the aid of the American wounded in the Spanish-American war. The commodore, although born and bred a Canadian, has a tender spot in his heart for his American cousins. It is to be hoped that the excursion will be liberally patronized."

Navigation Notes

—The choir of the Charlotte street Methodist church, which is under the leadership of Miss Stevens, excurted to Jubilee Point yesterday per City of Peterborough. The steamer landed the party at the Point and continued her trip to Hastings. There was about 250 on board. After the steamer got away from the wharf several ladies got off a street car, and were much disappointed to find that they were too late. Commodore Calcutt, who happened to have his carriage at the wharf, came gallantly to the rescue, and kindly took the party to the locks, where they boarded the steamer. Through the courtesy of Commodore Calcutt the steamer will stay an hour longer at the Point than usual, and did not arrive home until ten.

—Owing to an accident to the machinery of the steamer Beaver, which was carrying an excursion from Beawdly to Jubilee Point, she was unable to leave her dock. A despatch was sent to Capt. C. W. Calcutt at Harwood, who was embarking a load of hogs for Peterborough on the Eclipse. He immediately steamed over to Bewdley and took the excursion.

—The City of Peterborough is doing a fine business this year. She leaves daily for Rice Point and river ports. Under Capt. Lane the steamer is sure to build up a splendid trade.

—The free gift excursion last Saturday afternoon was a great success. The City of Peterborough will repeat the excursion on Saturday next, when a large number of presents will be given away, amounting to about $50. All ticket holders are entitled to receive a present.

Not Exactly Right

A Minister's Wife Aptly Describes a Well Known Condition and Tells How It Was Overcome.

There are thousands of people in all walks of life, particularly at this season, who are "not exactly right" and yet are not sick, for whom a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla would do a world of good, as it has done for others. Business and professional men as well as the busy housewife are especially susceptible to this debilitated feeling. It is the peculiar combination of the best tonic, anti-bilious, diuretic and alterative agents of the vegetable kingdom, carefully and scientifically combined, which enables Hood's Sarsaparilla to reach simple as well as serious ailments when all other medicines fail. Read Mrs. Hunt's letter:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs:—I trust that the publication of my testimonial may serve to introduce Hood's Sarsaparilla to many who need physical improvement, and lead them to give it a trial. My husband, is a corpulent man weighing 230 pounds. He has taken Hood's Sarsaparilla every spring for the last eight years with good results. With the approach of spring he has had an indescribable feeling of ill health. 'Not sick enough for the bed or well enough for the table.' In a few words,

Rev. Granville Hunt

He Became Run Down

each year from constant mental and physical action. Hood's Sarsaparilla has relieved and invigorated him in every instance. Last month we purchased four bottles of the medicine. I took two of the bottles, being weak, Without Appetite and Vigor.

After I had used half a bottle of Hood's I realized quite an improvement and soon felt quite comfortable. I gained so much that I recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to my nearest neighbor, who has had malarial symptoms. She has also taken the medicine and its effect upon her for good was almost magic. She has now prevailed upon her husband to take it to build him up. I have also given Hood's Sarsaparilla to my two little girls, one nearly 3 years old, who is not strong, consequently languid, and the other, 15 years old, for pimples which indicate bad blood and disfigure her complexion. Both have been helped by Hood's Sarsaparilla which I am glad heartily to recommend." MRS. G. HUNT, 101 West 31st Street, N. Y. City.

ATTEMPT TO DESTROY A RAILROAD

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Juragua, June 24, 4 p. m., via Port Antonio, June 25, 8 a. m.—While the land forces were fighting four miles northwest of Juragua to-day Admiral Sampson learned that the Spaniards were endeavoring to destroy the railroad leading from Juragua to Santiago de Cuba. This road runs west along the shore under cover of the guns of the American fleet until within three miles of El Morro and then cuts through the mountains along the rivers into Santiago. When the attempt of the Spaniards was discovered the New York scorpion and Wasp closed in and ccleared the hill and brush of Spaniards. CRUISERS PURCHASED

London, June 26.—The Madrid correspondent asserts that Spain has purchased three fine armored cruisers of 9,000, 7,500 and 4,235 tons, with a speed of 25 knots, which will form the nucleus of a third squadron that will be ready within three weeks, and with which the Government thinks it can protect the Canaries and the Spanish coast in every emergency.

CAN SAVE THE ISLAND

Madrid, June 25.—A declaration by General Lacchambre, Deputy Governor of the Philippines under General Polaviega, is published here, in which he declares against an immediate peace on the grounds that Spain at present would have to accept all or most of America's conditions. Later, he says, Spain even if defeated would be in a better position to negotiate because her military honor would be vindicated. General Lachambre does not believe that the Americans will succeed in capturing Santiago de Cuba. Regarding the Philippines he considers that despite the military situation there it will still be possible to save the islands, provided diplomacy is conducted skilfully and energetically.

TO ADVANCE ON HAVANA

Plans Shown that Their are Five Good Roads Available

Queen Regent of Spain in Tears—She is Interrupted to Discuss State Affairs by the Premier on the Occasion of Her Son First Communion

Washington June 25.—In preparation for the advance upon Havana which will follow the fall of Santiago de Cuba, the Board of Strategy have obtained plans which show that there are five roads leading to the Spanish capital. The first runs from Cabanas to Mariel, thence to Gunajay, Hoyo Colorado and Havana, the second from Matanza to Guines and thence to Havana; the third from Cabanas to Hoyo Colorado, Manigua and Havana; the fourth branches off at Hoyo Colorado and leads into Havana through Bejucal and Jesus del Monte; the fifth, known as the Carretera Central, from Gunajay Artemisa and San Cristobal to Havana. All these roads are about fifteen yards wide, are in excellent condition and run through a level, open country, where, in case of attack, troops on the march could easily spread themselves out and resist the enemy.

Information has also been obtained respecting the condition of the principle ports on the north coast of Cuba in the vicinity of Havana. The chief ports in the Pinar del Rio Province are Mariel, Cabanas and Bahia Honda. Mariel harbor has a depth of seven fathoms of water, and is protected by two old-fashioned forts, mounting between them six six-pound guns. Cabanas has two forts, with the same armament as those at Mariel.

In the harbor are lying the Spanish gunboats or converted tugboats, Flocha and Ardilla, unmanned and practically abandoned. It would be useless for them to attempt to leave Cabanas, as they would surely be captured by some of the American vessels on [illegible] co ordered their crews to Havana by land. Bahia Honda is the best protected of the three forts. San Fernando, which guards the entrance, is an old stone fort of solid build, mounting nine guns—two 16-pounders and seven 6-pounders.

West of Cabanas are several small ports on which landings could be effected, and which could be entered by vessels of deep draught if skilfully piloted. They are La Mulata, Rio Blanco La Esperanza, Rio del Medio, Bajas, San Pedro de Murias Los Arroyos and La Fe on the northern coast, and Cortes Bailen, Boca de Galfre, Punta de Carta, Coloma, Colon Viejo and Batabano on the south coast.

None of these forts are fortified, as charts in possession of the Government show.

THE QUEEN REGENT IN TEARS.

New York, June 25.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says:—Senor Castelar, the great Republican statesman states that "a chapter of surprises and of deceptive events in Spain" will open with the close of the Cortes and the fall of Santiago and Manila. The news from Santiago, especially the distressful telegram from Admiral Cervera reporting the situation critical has caused consternation.

The Queen burst into tears when the Ministers of Marine and of War informed her to-day of the condition of affairs there. It was the day of all others when she wanted respite from state cares in order to attend her son's first communion and confirmation. She bore up bravely during the stately ceremonies however, though she was pale and betrayed fatigue and anxiety. The leading generals consider the outlook here very grave. They have offered to protect the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

The Government is extremely nervous. It could not close the Cortes until Friday afternoon, and it is feared that embarrassing debates, coupled with calamitous news from Santiago incite popular disturbances in Madrid and Barcelona.

The police and military precautions against uprisings have been noticeably increased. The Premier has been in a hurry for the adjournment of the Cortes in order that he may be master of the situation with the army at his command. As a supplement to martial law, a royal decree is to be issued next Sunday suspending constitutional guarantees. There is great alarm in financial quarters. Stocks of all kinds are tumbling and the premium on gold has gone to 95.

Madrid presents a scene of extraordinary excitement. Special editions of the newspapers are bought eagerly and read and commented upon even in the streets. The naval authorities still have a lingering hope that Admiral Cervera may dash out at night with his four armored cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers, even at the sacrifice of some of the vessels. General Linares at Santiago cables to General Correa the War Minister that he will do the best he can, but frankly says he lacks flour, meat and wine, though he has enough other food supplies to enable him to hold out many weeks.

TROOPS ENTER JURAGUA

A Disabled Spanish Locomotive Repaired and Run from Demaiayaho

Spaniards Desert Their Breakfast—They Endeavor to Destroy the Food Supply but Without Success

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Juragua, June 23, via Kingston, Ja., June 25.—Easy as the advice sounds at home it is almost impossible to follow it here. Now that the American land forces are threatening the city of Santiago de Cuba the topographic conditions prevailing in that vicinity becomes interesting. Baiquiri, where the first landing was made, and Juragua, where General Lawton's headquarters were last night, are both small coast towns in the throat of narrow cuts through a range of low hills fringing all the southern coast. Baiquiri is [illegible] miles east of Santiago, and Juaragua is eight miles of that city by the coast line road, which runs behind the hills twice as far. The pioneers report that the trail is practicable for artillery and pack trains, but it is unspeakably bad even for walking, though reasonably level.

The American troops have now passed all the small hills intervening between here and Santiago. The remaining twelve miles by road is over a practically level country, with more chance for open order. So far, however, the road has been wooded and in most places is overarched with impregnable jungle growth thorns and creepers, smelling like the interior of a fragrant overheated conservatory, and picturesque with splashes of tropic color in oleanders and other flowers, but terrible for troops. For half a mile near Demajayabo, a small stream runs broad, and the men have been compelled to walk in water. Incidentally, the medical advice about wet feet, night winds or perspiration-soaked bodies and the necessity of boiling drinking water has already been thrown to the winds.

Some of the American officers who are familiar with Arizona say they have never seen soldiers on the plains present, such pictures of distress from the heat, and they add that the only wonder is that there are so few prostrations at present. The American stature and apparent stamina are remarkable in ccomparison with the Cubans and Spaniards. The colored soldiers of the 25th and 10th regiments are uniformly large, and they seem like black giants in the jungle beside the tiny negro Cuban guides.

Daylight saw the first move of the Americans from Demajayabo, the 22nd Infantry passing the 8th infantry on the extreme outpost, while the latter breakfasted, the Cubans scouting ahead, beating up the Spaniards like partridges and driving them headlong.

The best medicine you can take is that which builds a solid foundation for health in pure, rich blood—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE SESSION FINISHED

County Council Concludes the Business of the June Session on Saturday

The Finance Committee Make a Grant of $100 to the Children's Aid Society and $200 to the Trent Valley Canal Association

A deputation from the Children's Aid Society, composed of Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun, Peter Campbell, S.J. Shorey, J. J. Meston and F.W. Miller and Mrs. Beck and Miss Clark, appeared before the Council to request that a grant be made towards the maintenance of the society.

Mr. Dennistoun, introducing the deputation, explained the objects of the Children's Aid Society and gave a record of the work done by it not alone in the town but throughout the country. He enforced the idea that the Council had always been in favor of establishing a House of Refuge and the Society was entitled to their support in that it had to some extent supplied that want.

Miss Clarke, the secretary of the Children's Aid Society, addressed the Council, giving some account of the cases in which the society had aided families in the country this year in the way of providing food and clothing. She stated that the society was entirely undenominational in character.

The other members of the deputation also briefly addressed the Council in the same strain.

It was moved by Councillor Brown, seconded by Councillor Middleton, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.—Carried.

The Council then heard the reports presented by the different committees. The first was that of the

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. HAWTHORNE,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

COMMITTEE ON PETITIONS.

Councillor Brown read the report of the Committee on Petitions as follows:

The Committee on Petitions beg leave to report as follows:

1. Your committee recommend that the matter of the petition of Mr. Geo. Stewart and others asking this Council to take the necessary steps to prosecute steamboat proprietors who run Sunday pleasure excursions on the Otonabee river be referred to the local municipalities interested. Your committee concur in the petition in so far as it recommends the desirability of putting an end to such excursions.

2. Your committee recommend that no action be taken upon the application of the secretary of the Dominion Alliance to petition the Local Legislature to empower local municipalities to further restrict the hours during which liquor may be sold.

3. Your committee recommend that this Council memorialize the Dominion Government to amend the criminal code so as to commit persons under the Vagrancy Act during the pleasure of the judge and Warden, to be released or discharged in proper cases on application by themselves or friends.

4. Your committee recommend that no action be taken upon the application of the county of Halton for the co-operation of this county in seeking from the Dominion Government increased pay for the militia during annual drill.

5. Your committee recommend that no action be taken upon the application of the county of Wellington asking this county to memorialize the Ontario Legislature for such amendments to the High School Act as would afford a more equitable mode of ascertaining the liability of each county for the maintenance of county pupils in high schools.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN BROWN,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

COMMITTEE ON PRINTING.

Councillor Fitzgerald read the report of the Committee on Printing as follows:

The Committee on Printing beg leave to report as follows:

1. That paragraph 2 of the report of this committee adopted on the 26th day of January, 1898, be and the same is hereby amended by striking out the words "and is to give the printing of the assessment and collectors' roll and tax sales either to the Review or Examiner," and your committee further recommend that a sample of the paper for such rolls be submitted to the County Treasurer for approval and also that a sample bound book be submitted for approval and that the balance of the order be filled according to sample.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEO. FITZGERALD,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

Councillor Shaw read the report of the Committee on Appointments as follows:

The Committee on Appointments beg leave to report as follows:

1. That the County School Inspector, John Davidson, Principal of Norwood High School, William Evans, Principal of the Lakefield Public school, and D. Walker, Town School Inspector, be the county Board of Examiners to examine teachers and give certificates in accordance with the statutes in that behalf.

2. That the following persons be appointed nominating officers under the County Council's Act:

(a) J. H. Drummond, of the Township of Otonabee, farmer, to be nominating officer for the first (Otonabee) County Council division.

(b) George E. Elliott, of the Township of Smith, farmer, to be nominating officer for the second (Bridgenorth) County Council division.

(c) J. S. Cairnduff, of the Township of Harvey, farmer, to be nominating officer for the third (Lakehurst) County Council division.

(d) W. E. Roxburgh, of the village of Norwood, grain merchant, to be nominating officer for the fourth (Norwood) County Council division.

(e) Samuel Edwards, of the township of Dummer, farmer, to be nominating officer for the fifth (Lakefield) County Council division.

3. That the county clerk be instructed to notify each nominating officer to advertise their proclamation by printed posters and not by newspaper advertisement.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ROBERT SHAW,
Chairman.

It was moved by Councillor Shaw, seconded by Councillor Brown, that the report be adopted.

It was moved in amendment by Councillor Clement, seconded by Councillor Fitzgerald, that the report be referred back to the committee to amend it by striking out the name of Mr. Samuel Edwards as nominating officer in No. 5 division, and substituting that of Dr. Bell, of Lakefield. Mr. Clement explained that he did not move the resolution because he thought Mr. Edwards in any way unfit for the duties, but because it had been agreed that the office should be distributed among Douro, Dummer and Lakefield, a resident of each municipality holding it for only one year.

On being put to a vote the amendment was defeated and the original motion carried.

EQUALIZATION AND ASSESS-

Councillor Peck read the report of the Committee on Equalization and Assessment as follows:

The Committee on Equalization and Assessment beg to report as follows:

1. That all the municipalities comprising the county of Peterborough be assessed at the valuation set forth in the schedule hereunto annexed and that such valuations be the equalized valuation for county purposes for the year 1898.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. A. PECK,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE FOLEY REQUEST.

It was moved by Councillor Brown, seconded by Councillor Hawthorne,—That the application of the municipality of Belmont asking that Isaac [illegible] be sent to the Home for Incurables, Toronto, in accordance with the provisions of the will of the late Mrs. A. G. Foley, which bequeaths the annual sum of $200 on condition of their providing, if need be, in the institution for one such incurable from the county of Peterborough be granted.—Carried.

The Council then went into committee.

SATURDAY MORNING.

The County Council went into session Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock after having spent some time in committee.

Mr. Anderson presented the report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

The reports of the Property and Finance committees were also adopted. These are held over to-day, but the Finance report included a grant of $100 to the Children's Aid Society and $200 to the Trent Valley Canal Association.

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 27 1898

THE TRADER'S BANK

The annual report of the directors of the Traders Bank of Canada, which we publish elsewhere, is, as usual, highly creditable to the management of that institution. The net profits for the year, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, and reserving accrued interest, amounted to $54,891.32. Adding the balance at profit and loss last year of $7,695.00, the total is $62,586.32. From this was paid two half-yearly dividends of 3 per cent. each, making a total of $42,000, $10,000 transferred to Rest Account, and $10,586.32 carried forward to next year.

The deposits have increased $700,000 and a corresponding increase in loans.

The report will be satisfactory reading, not only to the shareholders, but to all those who are interested in the general prosperity of the country.

Mr. H. S. Strathy, the General Manager, and his assistants have reason to feel gratified at the result of the year's operations of the bank.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The friendly feeling existing between our cousin's across the lines nad the people of this country will find expression on July 4th, America's natal day.

It is fitting that Canadians should show their good will and friendly feeling on the approaching anniversary of the Declaration of Independence by the display of American flags and by participating in any festivities that may take place. In this connection we are pleased to notice that a prgroamme of merit has been arranged to take place on the Fourth fo July,, at Jubilee Point Rice Lake, under the auspices of the American citizens residing in Peterborough. Commodore Calcutt, president of the Peterborough Navigation Company, has generously placed the entire fleet on the lower waters at the desposal of the committee for the occasion—The steamers City of Peterborough, North Star, Beaver and Eclipse will carry passengers from all points to and from the grounds at cheap rates. The proceeds are to be devoted to the purchase of a flag for the American colony in Peterborough fro use on similar occasions in future.

This great family newspaper intends to don a white plug hat and whoop her up with the boys on that occasion. We dont often indulge in recreation of this kind, (or in fact any kind for the matter of that) but on an occasion of this kind, when we are expected to show our Yankee relations how high they stand in our regard, this g. f. j. will blow itself for once. We ask every man who can beg, borrow or steal an American flag, to hang it out next Monday, it will help to cement the friendship that happily now exists between the two great Anglo-Saxon peoples.

COUNTRY FIRST

A number of newspapers have for some time been striving hard to connect the management of the Canadian Pacific Railway with the Crow's Nest Pass troubles. As previously pointed out in these columns, the Company cannot, in the remotest degree, be held accountable for the troubles between the contractors and their workmen. The Company is run as a business enterprise, and when a contract is given they have no further interest in the matter. How could it be otherwise? The Telegram, whose editor seems to babble over with antipathy to the railway, says that the management should be held accountable for the way the unfortunate men were used. If the Company had made it a condition that all employes were to be fed, clothed, housed and cared for, after a certain form, there would have been no contractor. The thing is absurd. Either the contractor is answerable to the law or he is not. The men were not obliged to go, and those who did have recourse under their contract against their employer if the terms of the contract were violated.

The C.P.R. has the reputation of treating their employees in a manner most liberal. In fact those who have worked for the Company the longest like it the best. This applies not only to train hands but to the laborer at the ballast pit. The Company has always enjoyed the confidence of its employes from the humblest up, and their loyalty and steadfast service given has helped to make the C.P.R. what it is to-day.

The Canadian Pacific has successfully fought the battles of Canada against the combined roads of the United States. It is doing a noble work for this country and the men who are endeavoring to drag it into the dirt are no friends of Canada. In this connection we might mention, as an evidence of the truth of what we say, that the Company has decided not to compete with the United States lines in granting cheap harvest excursions to Minnesota. The reason is that it would not help the definite and constant policy of the C.P.R. to build up the Canadian Northwest.

There is a drop in the wheat market. There is no perceptible drop in the price of bread.

There is no telling what the American army is in Cuba for, but the opinion may be hazarded that it is not there for its health.

A western man claims to have discovered a way to send telegrams without a wire. But what the country really needs most is some way to send a telegram without a quarter.

The United States began the war to save the reconcentrados fo Cuba from starving, and now the statesmen at Washington talk as if they would refuse to end the war unless their country gets an indemnity which Spain cannot pay without starving half her men women and children.

Either the Canadian detective is very far from being a Sherlock Holmes, or else there are some notably clever criminals in our midst. The stolen bills from the Dominion Bank at Napanee have turned up in Winnipeg and Ottawa, and now the bulk of the booty is being "pushed" in Montreal where the whole detective force is on the lookout. Many of the banks and big stores have received some of the bills, but only one description of the person passing them is given. The day before yesterday a young man about 27 years of age, having a light mustache, entered the store of V. R. Benjamin & Company, 203 Center street, purchased a small amount of dry goods, less than a dollar, and tendered in payment a $10 bill of the Dominion Bank. The bill was one of those stolen in Napanee, and the young man is being hunted.

IN SIGHT OF SANTIAGO

Spaniards Abandon Jaragua, and are in Full Retreat

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, off Juragua, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Thursday night, June 23, via Port Antonio, Friday, June 24.—The advance of the American army has reached the edge of the tableland in which the harbor of Santiago de Cuba lies. Here, seven miles from Morro Castle as the crow flies, the main body of troops have united and the Spaniards are in full retreat towards Santiago de Cuba. They may attempt a surprise, but a decisive engagement is not expected for several days.

General Lawton's brigade, which rested last night at Demajayabo, four mile west of Baiquiri, resumed its march at daylight. Before noon his brigade, consisting of the 22nd Infantry, the 1st Infantry, the 2nd Massachusetts volunteers with companies of the 8th Cavalry, half of the 4th Cavalry and several companies of the 25th Colored Cavalry, occupied Juragua, five miles beyond, and the American flag was hoisted there.

The Spaniards retired before the advance, which was covered by the Cuban skirmishers, burning the blockhouses as they went.

Colonel Wagner with a small reconnaissance party of about forty men, brushed against the flank of a retreating Spanish column 200 strong, at Firmezas. A dozen shots were fired by the Spaniards as Colonel Wagner fell back. Before General Lawton could bring up the 22nd, the van regiment, the Spaniards had decamped westward.

Juaragua was abandoned by General Linares, and 1,00 Spanish troops, with such haste that they had no time to burn the town, though an ineffectual effort was made to destroy the locomotives of the railroad and the rolling stock. General Lenares retreated to Sevilla, six miles west of Juaragua by road and nine miles from Santiago de Cuba. A detachment of 400 Cubans under Colonel Aguirra, collided with the Spanish rear guard. The Cubans lost two killed and had seven wounded.

The Spanish loss is not known. One Spaniard was machetted. General Chaffee, with the 9th Cavalry, the remainder of the 8th, and 4th and 7th, 12th and 17th Infantry reached Juaragua at dark. General Bates, with the reserve of the 20th Infantry, and Col. Wood's rough riders, dismounted, with a dynamite gun, hurried forward from Baiquiri at three o'clock, proceeding by forced marches. When the cotters brought the news that Juaragua had been occupied the troopships which had not disembarked their troops steamed to Juaragua with the view of landing them there, but the heavy surf beating on the beach made it impossible to get the boats through the surf.

BAIQUIRI FIRED BY SHELL.

Off Santiago de Cuba, Wednesday, June 22, via Playa del Este, Guantanamo Bay, June 23.—General Shafter's forces as this despatch is written are being landed without opposition to speak of at Baiquiri, 15 miles east of El Morro. The landing thus far has been successful in every respect. It has been covered by a naval bombardment. Four thousand troops are ashore at this hour and probably 12,000 will be ashore by nightfall. One man killed on the Texas is the only casualty so far.

At 6 o'clock this morning the work of lowering the boats from the New York, Texas, Massachusetts, Iowa, Oregon and Brooklyn began. Forty-eight men went from the flagship in the steam launch of the cutters. The Vesuvius a few hours before stole up under the eastern hills of Santiago harbor and landed three guncotton shells in the neighborhood of the eastern battery. Three loud reports, three sharp flashes and clouds of earth and smoke marked their fall. It is believed that one shell did damage to the emplacements. The western battery fired two futile shots after the Vesuvius. Those who watched the operation from near the flagship had scarcely ceased commenting upon the work of the Vesuvius before the winches creaked and groaned and the boats were lowered. Ensign Palmer, who was in charge and Naval Cadet Kautz, son of the late General Kautz of the United States Army, took the flagship's flotilla over to the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis and reported to Captain Godrich, who has the general charge of the landing. The New York still lay at her regular blockading station watching for Admiral Cervera should he make a dash out. When the dawn broke the long line of transports was seen stretched out over the eastern horizon and fading toward Baiquiri.

The Indiana was slowly coming into blockading position at Baiquiri, and the New Orleans, Detroit, Castine and Wasp could be seen faintly.

Shortly after six o'clock the New Orleans opened fire. An explosion occured ashore, and soon columns of smoke were seen ascending from Baiquiri, standing out white against the green background of the ruggid mountains that rise from the water's edge. The shell had evidently set the buildings on fire, but the thick haze of smoke and mist made it hard to see exactly what was occuring at Biquiri.

TELEPHONE 164 PETERBORO'

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

EDMUND BURKE.

An Able and Versatile Statesman Who Never Attained High Office.

Though Burke never attained high office his abilities were so versatile as to qualify him for any post which a cabinet minister could fill. His practical wisdom was as conspicuous as his power of generalization. No one had a clearer comprehension or a firmer grasp of great principles of universal application; at the same time his policy in every department of English politics rested on a wide and solid basis of information and experience. He was steeped in the history of the past, yet penetrated through and through with the reality of the present and ever and always mindful of that future in which the speculations and measures of the day were to be tested and finally approved or condemned. His prodigious activity in public affairs sprang not from an intellectual source alone, nor from his imperial patriotism. It was constantly fed from an inexhaustible store of moral energy. He was animated by a detestation of all forms of oppression, whether by kings or governors, parliaments or peoples, which was in him a consuming passion, from which his noble nature could only obtain relief by denunciation of the oppressor and the destruction of his power.

I cannot help thinking that Burke must have been stimulated, too, and sustained by delight in his studies and his work. It is impossible, without counting this as an additional incentive, to understand the amazing industry which he devoted to the elucidation of all the great questions dealt with in his speeches and writings. How his method reproves the habit, too common in our day, as in other days, of debating subjects affecting the fate of millions of our fellow creatures as if they could be disposed of by echoing the chatter of ignorance, or prejudice, or vanity, or self interest! When we read Burke's speech on Fox's East India bill, we say, "What a great proconsul he would have made!" When we read his speech on conciliation with America, we feel that the greatest of colonial ministers was lost in him, and when we read his speech on economical reform we exclaim, "Here is an ideal chancellor of the exchequer!"—J. O'Connor Power in North American Review

Traders' Bank of Canada

Proceedings of the Thirteenth Annual General Meeting of Shareholders Held at Its Banking House in Toronto, on Tuesday, the 21st June, 1898

The Chair was taken by the President, Mr. C. D. Warren, and Mr. H. S. Strathy was requested to act as Secretary, when the following statement was read:

Net profits for the year, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts and reserving accrued interest; amounted to	$54,891 32
Balance at credit of profit and loss last year	7,695 00
	$62,586 32
Appropriated as follows, viz.:—
Dividend No. 24, 3 per cent., payable 1st Dec., 1897	$21,000 00
Dividend No. 25, 3 per cent., payable 1st June, 1898	21,000 00
Transferred to Rest account	10,000 00
Balance at credit of profit and loss carried forward	10,586 32
	$62,586 32

In comparing the Statement with that of a year ago, the chief changes are: An increase of about $700,000 in deposits and a corresponding increase in loans upon bonds, stocks, etc. The demand for money was light during the first half of the year, rates ruling firmer for the latter portion of it.

The action of the Dominion Government in determining to reduce the rate of interest paid by them on deposits to 2 1-2 per cent. will prove beneficial to the country, and will tend to build up and stimulate the trade of the Dominion.

The cash reserve of the bank and immediately available securities have been maintained at a high standard.

The different branches of the bank, including the head office, have received their usual careful inspections.

The officers of the bank continue to perform their respective duties to the satisfaction of the board.

C. D. WARREN,
President.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity; very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Soliciting your orders, whether buying or selling.

We remain, yours very truly.

AT DEATH'S DOOR

Mr. Thos. Armstrong, the Veteran Grain Dealer, not Expected to Live

Our readers will learn with feelings of deep regret that Mr. Thomas Armstrong, one of Peterborough's most highly respected citizens and a veteran grain dealer on the local market, lies at the point of death at the family residence, Rubidge street, as the result of an illness contracted a short time ago.

His medical attendants hold out no hopes for his recovery.

Mr. Armstrong has bought grain on the market here for a great many years and is known from one end of the county to the other.

He is extremely popular with the entire farming community, who will learn of his serious condition with sorrow.

GODFREY'S RECEPTION

The Famous Band of the British Guardsmen will Parade the Streets

This afternoon Lieut. Dan Godfrey and his famous band of British Guardsmen will come to town on the 5.25 Grand Trunk train. They will be met at the station by Mayor Davis, Lt.-Col. Bell, Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers, officers of the 57th Battalion and the 57th Battalion band.

After the reception Lieut. Godfrey and his band will be escorted to the Oriental Hotel, the 57th Battalion band leading the procession.

In the evening the concert will be given in the Charlotte-st. rink, which has been seated and arranged to accommodate a large crowd and to provide the best conditions for hearing the music.

This has entailed much expense, but the people of Peterborough will undoubtedly support the efforts by turning out in large numbers to hear this, the finest band in the world. It is an opportunity not to be missed.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS

Make a Sunday Evening Raid on Philip's Fruit Store

As driver John Montgomery, of the Fire Department, was going on duty yesterday evening between 7 and 8 o'clock, he noticed three young lads issuing from the lane which leads from Simcoe street, in rear of the stores facing west on George street.

They were acting in a very suspicious manner and this, together with the facet that they had an unusually large supply of bananas was the cause of Mr. Montgomery walking up the lane on a tour of investigation.

On reaching the rear entrance to Mr. Philip's fruit store he discovered the door slightly ajar, and a closer investigation revealed the fact that the bar had been removed, apparently by some one gaining an entrance through a broken pane of glass in a window situated close to the door.

Mr. Montgomery at once proceeded to notify the police and on the return trip down the lane discovered two partially filled bags of fish.

Constable Stewart was on duty at the station and he and driver Lawerence, of the Fire Department, at once went in pursuit of the boys who had started across the market square and were in the new arcade when the chase began.

The lads ran as soon as they saw that they were pursued and climbed into the Customs' House yard, where they played hide and seek with their pursuers for some time, two of them finally escaping through the George street entrance.

Driver Lawrence had his eye on the other one, however, and after an exciting obstacle race, over wood-piles, etc., ccornered his man on Water street, south of the National Hotel.

The captured boy was locked in the cells, where after much persuasion he gave his name and that of his companions—one, whom by the way, was a younger brother.

The father of the captured lad was notified and he at once repaired to the station, bringing the missing brother with him.

The two were released on bail until Wednesday morning, when they will appear before the P. M.

The third boy had not yet been secured.

Owing to the respectability of their parents we refrain from giving the boy's names.

STRICTLY JUNIORS

Hastings Advances a Claim that is Utterly Without Foundation

A local lacrosse enthusiast informs the Times that he was not a little surprised on arriving in town Saturday to learn that it was the Juniors who played lacrosse at Hastings on Friday last.

While in Hastings on Saturday he was informed that six of Peterborough's senior team played with the Juniors in the recent match and that the "aggregation were done-up to the Queen's taste."

As an admirer of our sturdy national game and a well-wisher of all teams, our informant very properly thinks it only a lowering of the dignity of honest merit when men will try to load themselves down with false glory.

When our Juniors are beaten by any other team we are ready to say, "Well done" to the victors; but when our Hastings friends glory in the defeat of men who were conspicuous by their absence, it ceases to be sportsman-like. It was the unadulterated Juniors the Hastings team beat—nothing less and nothing more.

POINT ST. CHARLES' FIRE

A Strange Explanation of Its Origin Given by a Cattle Buyer

The Times gives the following version of the origin of the Point St. Charles fire without prejudice to the opinions of others. It may be worth a great deal or very little—the reader can decide for himself.

A cattle buyer informed a Times representative last night that as he was driving into Peterborough on the night of the fire at Point St. Charles, and was still several miles from town, his attention was attracted by the flight through the sky earthwards of a particularly luminous meteor. He had in the course of a life-time made up partially of long night drives in pursuing his calling seen many meteors, but never before had he seen one apparently so close and bright as this one. Suddenly it vanished from sight and the lonely cattle buyer mentally ejaculated that a fire would surely follow.

To proceed: A short time elapsed when, lo and behold, the lurid glare of a burning building illuminated the heavens.

From the direction of the blaze our midnight traveller judged the fire to be in the south ward. On reaching town and learning the location of the fire our cattle-drover congratulated himself on his perception and judgment.

As we said before this cattle-drover's story may weigh very little or very much—as you like it.

This much is certain—that Mr. McDonald went through the mills, about midnight and failed to discover the slightest sign of fire and that an hour afterwards the whole establishment was in a blaze.

ENTIRE OTONABE FLEET

Will be Called Into Requisition for the 4th of July Excursion

The final arrangements for the 4th of July celebration at Jubilee have been completed and nothing now is wanted to make it a success but good weather.

The proceeds of this outing are to be devoted to the relief of the American wounded in the Spanish-American war, and the object certainly reflects the greatest credit on Commodore Calcutt, who is sparing no pains to make the event a success.

The company's steamers will leave Peterborough, calling at other river ports, between 7 and 8 o'clock, and will have in consort a palace barge with good brass and string bands.

A splendid programme of athletic sports—including baseball and football matches, and canoe races will be put on at Jubilee.

Addresses will be delivered at the Point by Governor Black, of New York State; Mr. Sewell, U. S. Consul at Toronto; and the U. S. Consuls at Port Hope and Cobourg, and the Mayors of Peterborough, Cobourg and Port Hope.

The entire fleet of the lower waters will be utilized in conveying passengers to Jubilee.

This is the only boating trip out of town on that day and it should be largely attended.

DANCING A HORNPIPE

On the Street and Furnishing His Own Music Gets a Young Man Into Trouble

Saturday evening a young man named Rogers was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct on the streets.

When arrested he had his coat off and was dancing a hornpipe, furnishing his own music with a harmonica. The audience had grown to large proportions when the police put in an appearance on the scene and stopped the fun by walking the young man off to the station.

The young fellow is subject to apopleptic fits and is said to be anything but sane. It is also said that he causes his widowed mother a heap of trouble through his eccentricities.

Saturday night he appeared before the magistrate and was remanded to gaol until Wednesday, when he will receive a hearing.

It is thought by many that the proper course to pursue in this connection would be to have the unfortunate young man committed to the asylum for the insane.

ARTILLERYMAN INJURED

Driver Ed Armstrong of the Durham Field Battery Trampled by a Horse

The right section of the Durham Field Battery returned to town Saturday evening after twelve days in camp at Port Hope.

The boys are sightly bronzed. They report having enjoyed the outing very much.

A bad accident occurred when the battery was drilling at the fort.

Driver Ed. Armstrong was thrown from his saddle by his horse stumbling. His foot caught in the stirrup, and before a halt could be called the rear horse had struck him on the head with its hoof, inflicting a fearful wound. Hopes of his recovery are entertained.

The Durham Field Battery is a crack organization, and to the right wing—Peterborough's representation in the battery—is in a great measure due the proud position the battery occupies.

Weak and Low Spirited — Nervous Prostration — Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments." G. Members of the Lindsay Bicycle Club have received intelligence that the Orillia and Beaverton Bicycle Clubs will arrive at Lindsay on the evening of Thursday, the 30th, on their way to the Peterborough Meet, and continuing on to Peterborough on the morning of Friday, the 1st of July.

At a recent meeting of the officers of the Lindsay Bicycle Club, Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, Wm. Steers and L. Campbell were appointed a committee to deal with those bicyclists who annoy pedestrians by riding on the sidewalks at times when it is unnecessary, or at an unreasonable rate of speed, and to institute proceedings on behalf of the Club, if that becomes desirable. It was further resolved to request pedestrians suffering with this annoyance to communicate with these gentlemen, who will take up the matter and deal with it on behalf of the Club.

SANTIAGO WILL BE HARD NUT TO CRACK

A Big Task Ahead of American Troops—More Artillery Will be Needed Before an Attack Can be Made

A HARD NUT TO CRACK

On the Rio Guama, June 26, noon, via Kingston, Jamaica, Monday, June 27.—9 a. m.—The advance force of the American army rests on this stream with the city of Santiago de Cuba 4 1-2 miles westward in plain sight. Last night the outposts consisting of two companies of seventh infantry under Major Coolidge occupied positions at right angles to the road, guarding the crossing a mile and a half beyond Sabanilla, where three regiments of General Lawton's division are camped, the first, fourth and seventeenth. The eigth, twenty-second and second Massachusetts with the rough riders, tenth cavalry and portions of several regiments strung behind them towards Juragua. About 800 Cubans, under General Gonzoles were camped around General Lawton's headquarters, but less than fifty of them did scout duty last night. General Wheeler to-day with the first, second and tenth cavalry and the rough riders with dynamiteg uns, moved up to where General Lawton's outposts were last night, and four batteries of the third artillery and four Gatling guns, with a special detail under Lieut. Parker were brought up and planted on the brow of a hill overlooking the basin in which Santiago de Cuba lies. Not a shot was fired from the American side last night though the front of the American Line was not 2800 yards from the entrenchments, where the Spaniards proposed to combat the advance on Santiago de Cuba. Three cannon shots were heard during the night. They seemed to ccome from the distant Spanish batteries or perhaps seaward. The top of every hill and mountains north and east of Santiago is occupied by block-houses, from which the Spaniards can view the movements of the American army as it advances beyond Sabanila, while to the city gushing every knoll and but of high grounds are Spanish entrenchments.

The correspondent of the Associated Press from an elevation to the right of the American line to-day counted 34 of these entrenchments, completely fencing every approach to the city.

The trenches have been dug as the ground admitted. The ends of trenches overlap where breaks in the line occurr, thus securing comparative safe retreat from rifle fire in case part of the trenches are captured. Upon one of these works modern guns have been They can be plainly seen with the naked eye. Spies report that inside the entrenchments are four parallel lines of rifle pits shoulder deep, and in front of them are marked ranges and several rods of barbed wire fence. No officer who has surveyed the field over which the advance must be made underestimates the task ahead of the Americans. The general opinion is that more artillery will be needed before it will be safe to attempt an assault upon the Spanish works, as the fire of the rifle pits must necessarily be deadly and sufficient to demoralize any force, no matter how brilliant is its courage when stopped by wire obstructions.

THE ATTACK ON SANTIAGO.

Washington, June 27.—The War Department this noon received a despatch from General Shafter announcing that ag eneral attack by land and sea would be made on Santiago this afternoon, or early to-morrow, and that Sampson and Schley would bombard the harbor while the United States troops, assisted by the insurgents, would make a simultaneous attack from the hills surrounding the city. A later despatch announces that fighting had commenced.

THE CADIZ SQUADRON.

London, June 27.—Lloyds' agent at Port Said ccables that Admiral Camara's squadron, consisting of the Pelayo, Emperor Carlos V., Osado, Audaz, Prosperina, and transports Patriota, Buenos Ayres, Island de Panay, Colon, Coradonga, Rapido and San Francisco, arrived at that place this morning.

MAY COAL AT OBOCK.

Madrid, June 27.—If Admiral Camara's squadron coals at Port Said it must not enter the Suez Canal, but if it does not coal it may pass through. If it does pass it will try to coal at Obock, a French port on the Gulf of Aden. The charges which the the squadron will have to pay for using the canal will amount to 1,300,000 pesetas.

THE QUEEN REGENT IN TEARS.

New York, June 25.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says—Senor Castelar, the great Republican statesman, states that "a chapter of surprises and of decesive events in Spain" will open with the close of the Cortes, and the fall of Santiago and Manila. The news from Santiago, especially the distressful telegram from Admiral Cervera reporting the situation critical has caused consternation.

The Queen burst into tears when the Ministers of Marine and of War informed her to-day of the condition of affairs there. It was the day of all others when she wanted respite from state cares in order to attend her son's first communion and confirmation. She bore up bravely during the stately ceremonies however, though she was pale and betrayed fatigue and anxiety. The leading generals consider the outlook here very grave. They have offered to protect the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps. The Government is extremely nervous. It could not close the Cortes until Friday afternoon, and it is feared that embarrassing debates, coupled with calamitous news from Santiago incite popular disturbances in Madrid and Barcelona.

The police and military precautions against uprisings have been noticeably increased. The Premier has been in a hurry for the adjournment of the Cortes in order that he may be master of the situation with the army at his command. As a supplement to martial law, a royal decree is to be issued next Sunday suspending constitutional guarantees. There is great alarm in financial quarters. Stocks of all kinds are tumbling, and the premium on gold has gone to 95.

Madrid presents a scene of extraordinary excitement. Special editions of the newspapers are bought eagerly and read and commented upon; even in the streets. The naval authorities still have a lingering hope that Admiral Cervera may dash out at night with his four armored cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers, even at the sacrifice of some of the vessels. General Linares, at Santiago, cables to General Correa, the War Minister, that he will do the best he can, but frankly says he lacks flour, meat, and wine, though he has enough other food supplies to enable him to hold out many weeks.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today. 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man can talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and—Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—

Another Petty Robbery

The butcher shop of Mr. Sabin on George street, below Charlotte, was entered from the rear some time on Sunday and the till robbed of a quantity of small change. A cleaver was also taken. The burglars left no clue, but local parties are suspected.

JACQUES CARTIER BANK.

Proceedings at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders

At the meeting of the shareholders of the Jacques Cartier Bank, there were present ... Hon. Alph. Desjardins, Messrs. A. S. Hamelin, Dumont Laviolette, G. N. Ducharme, L. J. O. Beauchemin, Alderman Laporte, D. O. Bourbeau, Achille Gagnon, Odilon David, J. P. Lebel, P. Garon, Hubert Desjardins, A. Larose, J. Ducclos, S. A. Larose, O. Martineau, Urgel Pauze, Dr. A. A. Bernard, and others.

Hon. Alph. Desjardins acted as chairman of the meeting, and Mr. Tancrede Bienvenu, as secretary. Messrs. D. O. Bourbeau and Odilon David were appointed scrutineers.

THE REPORT.

The Directors' Report presented to the Shareholders at the annual meeting on the 15th of June, 1898, was as follows ...

"The Board of Directors have the honor to present their report upon the operations of the bank during the past year, up to the 31st of May, 1898.

Balance at the credit of the account "Profit and loss," at the 31st of May, 1897	$11,292 79
Net profits during the past year, up to the 31st of May, 1898, managing expenses, interest on deposits and losses being deducted...	45 397 45
	$56,690 24

"That amount has been distributed as follows ...

Dividend 2 1-2 per cent. paid on the 1st of December, 1897...	$12,500 00
Dividend 2 1-2 per cent. paid on the 1st of June, 1898...	12,500 00
Added to the Reserve Fund	15,000 00
	$56,690 24

"The above figures as well as those contained in your General Manager's report show a most satisfactory state of affairs as a result of the financial year just ended. Anxious to close the liquidation which the present manager had undertaken, we have thought it our duty to ask your co-operation in reducing for this year the dividend will only be temporary and we can already foresee that it will not be imposed upon you in the future.

"The success of our work during the past year has been such that after attending to our overdue debts, not guaranteed, which in the last statement of affairs amounted to $65,131.80, and paying a 5 per cent. dividend, we have been able to increase the reserve fund by $15,000, which sum raises that fund to 50 per cent. of the capital and make our contingent $16,000.00.

"The increase of nearly a million dollars in the amount of deposits during the past year shows that the public has given us in a large measure a share of the business which has been transacted during the past year. The circulation of our notes, limited by the amount of our capital, has been the highest, though we have been obliged to keep in our safes a considerable amount of assets in order to be able to meet any emergency.

"Your directors wish to express their satisfaction with the work which has been done, and it is but fair to say that your general manager, aided by the acting officers of the different branches, has realized every advantage possible, under the state of affairs.

"Answering to reiterated solicitations, we have opened a branch in Ottawa, situated near the French-Canadian commercial centre of the capital, and destined to render important services to our French-speaking countrymen. The first operations of the branch show that the public appreciates its usefulness, and we have reason to hope for the best results, for for the bank as well as for the public.

"The head office and the different branches have been regularly inspected and we can congratulate ourselves on the zeal and intelligencce with which your manager and other officers of the bank have fulfilled their respective duties.

"Respectfully submitted,
"(Sgd.) ALPHONSE DESJARDINS,
"President.

After reading the report, the President made a few remarks upon the prosperous situation of the bank, and invited Mr. Bienvenu, the Manager, to read his report, which follows—

(Signed) TANCREDE BIENVENU,
General Manager.

Mr. Bienvenu made in substance the following remarks to the shareholders

Gentlemen,—The progress realized during the past year rises above that of the preceding year. On the 31st of May, 1897, the assets of your bank were summed up in the following figures, $3,902,000, and on the 31st of May, this year, they were $4,929,000, i. e., an increase of over a million.

Circumstances, however, have been more favorable this year, especially during the last six months. Excessive competition has not ceased to reduce the profits of daily transactions, for all the banks are every day making new concessions to their patrons.

We have successfully passed through those difficulties, and our profits have been $12,000 more than those of last year. We must add that our reserve fund of profits is more than $291,000, i. e., nearly 60 per cent. of the paid capital. This is certainly a fact of a nature to give you confidence in the future.

The situation of the Bank is actually such that we are able to derive benefit from any improvement in the general state of affairs.

We have perfected the branch service and, like more important institutions, we propose to suit our operations in the different offices, according to the situation in the localities, extending advances to the trade in places favored by a special activity, and all the branch offices becoming exclusively "saving banks." Our agents must be led by those principles, and after a time, we will obtain satisfactory results.

During the past financial year, we have competed with important commercial institutions in the tendering for Federal Government 2 1-2 per cent. bonds and have had for our share £25,000 worth of these bonds on remunerative conditions. That kind of operation has become necessary, as our business is increasing, and on account of the considerable reserve fund we always keep in hand.

Repairs in the bank building have become necessary, and will cost from $10,000 to $15,000. An elevator will be installed in the building, and the top floor, which has never been used, will be put into good condition. Our tenants desire those improvements, and they are willing to pay a higher rent.

Such has been, gentlemen, our situation, during the past year, and we have had the advantage of zealous and persevering officcers.

It was proposed by Hon. Mr. Desjardins, seconded by Mr. A. S. Hamelin, that the preceeding report be adopted and published for the information of the shareholders.—Carried.

Proposed by Mr. H. Laporte, seconded by Mr. H. Larose, that thanks be voted to the president, vice-president, and directors for the services they have rendered to the bank during the past year.—Carried.

Thanks were also voted to the general manager to the inspector, and other officers of the bank, for the zeal which they have shown in the fulfilment of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were elected directors of the bank for the ensuing year. Hon. Alph. Desjardins, Messrs. A. S. Hamelin, Dumont, Laviolette, G. N. Ducharme and L.J.O. Beauchemin.

Thanks were voted to the scrutineers and the meeting was adjourned.

THE ALCHYMISTS

Failed in Their Work of Changing Metal Into Gold

Diamond Dyes Never Fail to Make Old and Faded Things Look as Good as New

Alchymists like Geber, Alfarabi, Avicenna, Albertus, Magnus, Artephius and others who pretended to be able to change all the base metals into gold, were, in their times, first class imposters and deceivers.

The art of making old, faded and dingy dresses, capes, shawls, jackets, coats, pants, vests and other articles of wearing apparel look as good as new has been brought to perfection by the introduction and use of the Diamond Dyes, those triumphs of modern chemistry.

Millions on this continent are saving money each year by using the Diamond Dyes in the home. They are true and faithful family benefactors, and so easy to use that a child can dye successfully with them.

Diamond Dyes have such an extended popularity, fame and immense sale in every locality that imitators have put on the market worthless and adulterated dyes in packages bearing a close resemblance to the "Diamond." It is therefore necessary for every woman, when buying dyes, to see that the name "Diamond" is on each packet. Package dyes without the name "Diamond" can never give satisfaction. Muddy, dull and streaky colors will be some of the disappointments met with. Diamond Dye colors are guaranteed brilliant, rich and fast, and will last as long as the goods hold together.

JACQUES CARTER BANK

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Jacques Cartier Bank took place the other day at the head office of that institution, Montreal. The net profits during the past year, after paying all expenses and providing for probable losses, amounted to $45,397.45. adding $11,292.79, balance from previous year, there is a total of $56,690.24. from this was paid the yearly dividends of $12,500 each, being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, $15,000 added to the reserve Fund, and a balance of $16,690.24 carried forward to Profits and Loss.

The above figures show a very satisfactory state of affairs, and indicate that the bank's affairs have been carefully managed. Another feature in the year's operations that is worthy of special note is the fact that deposits have increased nearly a million dollars showing the high place the bank holds in the regard and confidence of the people.

TROOPS ENTER JURAAGU

A Disabled Spanish Locomotive Repaired and Run from Demaiayaho

Spaniards Desert Their Breakfast—They Endeavor to Destroy the Food Supply but Without Success

On board the Associated Press dispatch boat Dauntless, off Jauragua, June 23, via Kingston, Ja., June 25.—Easy as the advice sounds at home, it is almost impossible to follow it here. Now that the American land forces are threatening the city of Santiago de Cuba, the topographic conditions prevailing in that vicinity becomes interesting. Baiquiri, where the first landing was made, and Jaragua, where General Lawton's headquarters were last night, are both small coast towns in the throat of narrow cuts through a range of low hills fringing all the southern coast. Baiquiri is twelve miles east of Santiago, and Juaragua is eight miles of that city by the coast line road, which runs behind the hills twice as far. The pioneers report that the trail is practicable for artillery and pack trains, but it is unspeakably bad even for walking, though reasonably level.

The American troops have now passed all the small hills intervening between here and Santiago. The remaining twelve miles by road is over a practically level country, with more chance for open order. So far, however, the road has been walled and in most places is overarched with impregnable jungle growth, thorns and creepers, smelling like the interior of a fragrant overheated conservatory, and picturesque with splashes of tropic color in oleanders and other flowers, but terrible for troops. For half a mile near Demajayaho, a small stream runs broad, and the men have been compelled to walk in water. Sufficiently, the medical advice about wet feet, night winds or perspiration-soaked bodies and the necessity of boiling drinking water has already been thrown to the winds.

Some of the American officers who are familiar with Arizona say they have never seen soldiers on the plains present, such pictures of distress from the heat, and they add that the only wonder is that there are so few prostrations at present. The American stature and apparent stamina are remarkable in comparison with the Cubans and Spaniards. The colored soldiers of the 25th and 10th regiments are uniformly large, and they seem like black giants in the jungle beside the tiny negro Cuban guides.

Daylight saw the first move of the Americans from Demajayaho, the 22nd Infantry passing the 8th Infantry on the extreme outpost, while the latter breakfasted, the Cubans scouting ahead, beating up the Spaniards like partridges and driving them headlong.

THE QUEEN REGENT IN TEARS.

New York, June 25.—A cable to The World from Madrid says—Senor Castelar, the great Republican statesman states that "a chapter of surprises and of decisive events in Spain will open with the close of the Cortes and the fall of Santiago and Manila. The news from Santiago, especially the distressful telegram from Admiral Cervera reporting the situation critical, has caused consternation.

The Queen burst into tears when the Ministers of Marine and of War informed her to-day of the condition of affairs there. It was the day of all others when she wanted respite from state cares in order to attend her son's first communion and confirmation. She bore up bravely during the stately ceremonies however, though she was pale and betrayed fatigue and anxiety. The leading generals consider the outlook here very grave. They have offered to protect the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

The Government is extremely nervous. It could not close the Cortes until Friday afternoon, and it is feared that embarrassing debates, coupled with calamitous news from Santiago incite popular disturbances in Madrid and Barcelona.

The police and military precautions against uprisings have been noticeably increased. The Premier has been in a hurry for the adjournment of the Cortes in order that he may be master of the situation with the army at his command. As a supplement to martial law, a royal decree is to be issued next Sunday suspending constitutional guarantees. There is great alarm in financial quarters. Stocks of all kinds are tumbling, and the premium on gold has gone to 95.

Madrid presents a scene of extraordinary excitement. Special editions of the newspapers are bought eagerly and read and commented upon even in the streets. The naval authorities still have a lingering hope that Admiral Cervera may dash out at night with his four armored cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers, even at the sacrifice of some of the vessels. General Linares at Santiago cables to General Correa the War Minister, that he will do the best he can, but frankly says he lacks flour, meat, and wine, though he has enough other food supplies to enable him to hold out many weeks.

TELEPHONE 164 PETERBORO'

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

BLACKBIRD'S GRAVE.

LAST RESTING PLACE OF THE FAMOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

On a Bluff That Is Now Inside the City of Omaha—On Its Summit the Chief Watched For His White Friends—Romance of the Omaha-Poncas Feud.

Omaha has within her city limits an unknown and uncared for historic spot which in a few decades will be looked upon with far more interest than it has in the past or is now, for the value of historical places grows with the distance in time from the events which made them historical. This spot, which is in Omaha, and yet has been forgotten and neglected by the city, is the grave of the famous Omaha chief and warrior whom even Washington Irving thought worthy of a place in his writings. This chief lived in the latter part of the last century, dying in 1799. In those days, according to Irving, the Omahas looked upon themselves as the most powerful and perfect of human beings, and considered all created things as made for their peculiar use and benefit. The leader of this tribe, Blackbird, or Wash-ing-guh-sah-ba, was a warrior of the highest class. Early in life he had been taken a prisoner by the Sioux, where he had his metal tested. Under his leadership the Omahas attained a reputation among the other tribes that they never had possessed before. The Pawnees having inflicted an insult upon an Omaha bravo, Blackbird led his men against their town and slaughtered many of the inhabitants and burned it to the ground. He also waged a fierce war against the Otoes until peace was effected by the interference of the whites.

Yet, notwithstanding his fiery disposition, he fell a victim to Cupid's dart. The Poncas had raided the Omaha tribe and carried off many of their women and horses. Blackbird took the field with the sworn determination of eating up his enemy. So fiercely did the battle rage that the Poncas began to sue for mercy. A herald was sent out with the pipe of peace, but he was shot down by Blackbird. A second herald shared the same fate. As a last hope the Ponca chief then sent out his daughter, arrayed in all her finery and bearing the calumet of peace. Her charms conquered. A treaty was made, and Blackbird married the herald. She became his favorite wife, yet nevertheless in one of his ungovernable fits of rage he killed her with a single blow of his knife.

No sooner did he see her lying dead at his feet than his anger left him, and for three days he sat by her corpse—silent, motionless and tasting no food. On the third day his people began to fear that he intended to starve himself to death and entreated him to be comforted. He paid no attention to their entreaties, and at last a warrior brought a little child into his presence and placed it beneath the chief's foot. This appeal brought him to himself, and, arising, he made a speech to his followers and seemingly threw off his grief as easily as he had taken it on. In 1799 the smallpox swept over Nebraska, and Blackbird was one of its victims. The following description of his death and burial is quoted from Washington Irving's "Astoria:"

"When the general horror and dismay were at their height, Blackbird himself was struck down with the malady. The poor savages gathered around his bed and forgot their own miseries. His dominant spirit and love for the white men were manifested in his latest breath, with which he designated his place of sepulture. It was to be on a hill or promontory upward of 400 feet high, overlooking a great extent of the Missouri river, from whence he had been accustomed to watch for the barks of the white men. The Missouri washes the base of the promontory, and after winding and doubling in many links and mazes in the plain below returns to within 900 yards of its starting point, so that for 30 miles navigating with sail and oar the voyager finds himself continually near to this singular promontory as if spellbound.

"It was the dying command of Blackbird that his tomb should be on the summit of this hill, in which he should be interred, seated on his favorite horse, that he might overlook his ancient domain and behold the barks of the white men as they came up the river to trade with his people.

"His dying orders were faithfully obeyed. His corpse was placed astride of his war steed and a mound raised over them on the summit of the hill. On the top of the mound was erected a staff from which floated the banner of the chieftain and the scalps that he had taken in battle. When the expedition under Mr. Hunt visited that part of the country (1802), the staff still remained, with the fragments of the banner, and the superstitious rite of placing food from time to time upon the mound for the use of the deceased was still observed by the Omahas."

"That promontory is now within the city limits of Omaha," says Dr. Mercer, "and I located the grave 20 years ago. When I came to Omaha 36 years ago, the river wound around in the shape of an 'S,' and this promontory upon which I found the grave exactly answers to the description given by Irving. It is in the south part of the city, and Williams street would run through it if extended to the river. Just east of it and under the bluff is a brickyard, the roofs of which reach nearly up to the top of the hill.

"The Omaha camp was located in the bottom beneath the bluff and a little to the north. This point was Blackbird's favorite place for sitting to watch for the coming of the traders with whom he was very friendly. No doubt you have heard the story. When the traders came up, he greeted them most friendly, made them open up their goods and selected what he wanted himself. Then he called in his tribe and compelled them to trade. The whites made up for their gifts to him by the extra charge they put upon the goods sold, and not an Indian dared kick. The chief had got his bribe and his people had to pay for it.

"There is another story about the old fellow. He was great on superstition, and when pursuing the enemy would fire into their tracks, claiming that would kill them. He posed as a kind of god, but after awhile some of his people grew skeptical of his superhuman power and refused to obey him. In this difficulty he consulted his friends, the white traders, and they told him to prophesy the death of all who disobeyed him. He did so, announcing according to instructions that all who were disobedient would die a mysterious death upon a certain day. When that day came, he invited the whole tribe in to dine with him, and put a dose of arsenic in the bowl of each man whom he wished to serve as an example of his godlike power. Of course they died. From that time on his power was never questioned, and the traders who put him up to the trick and furnished the arsenic stood higher than ever with him."—Omaha World-Herald.

TO ADVANCE ON HAVANA

Qeen Regent of Spain in Tears. She is Interrupted to Discuss State Affairs by the Premier on the Occasion of Her Son's First Communion

Washington, June 25.—In preparation for the advance upon Havana which will follow the fall of Santiago de Cuba, the Board of Strategy have obtained plans which show that there are five roads leading to the Spanish capital. The first runs from Cabanas to Mariel, thence to Gunajay, Hoyo Colorado and Havana; the second from Matanza to Guines and thence to Havana; the third from Cabanas to Hoyo Colorado, Managua and Havana; the fourth branches off at Hoyo Colorado and leads into Havana through Bejucal and Jesus del Monte; the fifth, known as the Carretera Central, from Gunajay Artemisa and San Cristobal to Havana. All these roads are about fifteen yards wide, are in excellent condition and run through a level, open country, where, in case of attack troops on the march could easily spread themselves out and resist the enemy.

Information has also been obtained respecting the condition of the principle ports on the north coast of Cuba in the vicinity of Havana. The chief ports in the Pinar del Rio Province are Mariel Cabanas and Bahia Honda. Mariel harbor has a depth of seven fathoms of water and is protected by two old-fashioned forts, mounting between them six six-pound guns. Cabanas has two forts with the same armament as those at Mariel.

In the harbor are lying the Spanish gunboats or converted tugboats, Flecha and Ardilla, unmanned and practically abandoned. It would be useless for them to attempt to leave Cabanas as they would surely be captured by some of the American vessels on [illegible] ordered their crews to Havana by land. Bahia Honda is the best protected of the three forts. San Fernando which guards the entrance is an old stone fort of solid build mounting nine guns—two 16-pounders and seven 6-pounders.

West of Cabanas are several small ports on which landings could be effected, and which could be entered by vessels of deep draught if skilfully piloted. They are La Mulata Rio Blanco La Esperanza, Rio del Medio, Bajas, San Pedro de Murias, Los Arroyos and La Fe on the northern coast and Cortes Baijen Boca de Galfre, Punta de Carta Coloma, Colon Viejo and Batabano on the south coast.

None of these forts are fortified, as charts in possession of the Government show.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

An Incident In Brescia During the Italian Revolution of 1848.

The Count de Hubner tells in his "Memoirs" a thrilling story of an adventure in the Italian city of Brescia during the days of the revolution of 1848. When the trouble began in the streets, he contrived to get into a house, taking with him two or three other persons, including the wife of a minor official who had intrusted the lady for awhile to the count's care, but who was to have certain news of her as soon as possible.

The firing grew heavier, and the rebels soon had possession of almost every house in the street.

On the 19th of March, Count de Hubner decided that he must do something toward bettering his position in case of an assault, and he forced his only remaining servant to make a dash across the street to the palace where the Austrian general, Nath, was quartered, two blocks away and on the other side. The man was merely to let the general know that De Hubner himself was coming, and to ask that the gates be held ready for him.

"Myself, prudence and my honor had a long and heated argument," says Count de Hubner. "Finally I pulled myself together. I had to let Prince Metternich know about myself, to make a last report, and to keep my word about poor Mme. M. I undid the door, drew a long breath, and plunged down the street.

"The bullets flew all around me, spattering leaden showers from the stone pavement. As I arrived at the gates of the palace, they swung i d, and in a second I was inside, u hed. But only half my journey was done; I had still to go back again.

"A letter—my last report—was soon completed for Metternich and my message to the husband of Mme. M. was given. I had to return.

"Again the gates were opened and I bounded forth. A veritable fusillade followed. From every window and house top came the spurts of white smoke, and I tried to dodge 40 bullets at once. In a minute I had reached my own door, and as I did so I turned to look back.

"Another man left the palace gates at full speed, but before he had half crossed the street a puff of smoke shot out of a window, and he fell flat and was instantly lying like a log across the gutter. The fire stopped at once—what use would even an Italian see in shooting a dead man?

"But on the second that all became quiet to my great astonishment I saw this 'dead man' rise to his legs like a cat and dash across the street into the half open door waiting for him. The sharpshooters were taken by surprise and he escaped."

The Good Old Times.

"An increase of salary!" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant."

He toyed with his heavy watch chain and looked severely at the young man, who returned his stare boldly. It was the set phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or—go somewhere else.

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully, "I haven't any chance to be extravagant on what I earn."

"Young man," continued the pompous gentleman, "I have risen from the monkey board. How? By being careful. When I was young, I made money by saving bus fares."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection you would find you couldn't save sixpence without being collared, however careful you were."

The manager nearly fainted, and the young man had to seek other employment. —Pearson's Weekly.

Power of the Marseillaise Hymn.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals receives that wonderful air (the "Marseillaise"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workingmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis! Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives; then it would have been truly remarkable.—Chicago News.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

Dear Sirs,—I think it a duty to write you for the benefit of all who have delicate children, and to make known what Paine's Celery Compound has done for my child. She has been delicate all her life. I have tried many medicines, and have had her under allopathic and homoepathic treatment with but little benefit. Almost in despair, and as a last resort, I tried Paine's Celery Compound, and after using three bottles she is now perfectly well and strong. I have also used your medicine myself for complications arising from overwork and loss of rest, and am greatly benefitted thereby. I would strongly urge all who are in any way afflicted to do as I have done, "try Paine's Celery Compound," and be convinced of its wonderful curing power.

The features of the week have been:

"War Eagle": Declaration of 1½c per share dividend, and rapid advance from about the $1 50 to the $2.00 mark, around which price it is understood some 20,000 shares changed hands.

"Iron Mask": Decided firmness and scarcity; very little to be had under 50c., and a decided tendency to advance.

"Monte Christo": The annoucement that this Company has commenced to ship 50 tons daily and hope soon to ship 100 tons, has caused a sharp advance in price.

"White Bear": Good prospects for the immediate resumption of work and early shipments.

"Smuggler": Excellent reports from the property, and considerable buying.

The above stocks, together with "Deer Park," "Big Three," "Virginia," and "Old Ironsides," have all been heavy sellers. There has also been considerable trading in "Tin Horne," "Winchester," "Van Anda," and "Golden Cache,"—the latter we look for a sharp advance in price, as also "Noble Five," which we strongly recommend to buy now.

We also recommend the purchase now "Frontenac Lead Smelting Co." stock at present figures, as no more will be offered at less than par.

We remind our customers to buy "White Bear" before the 15th inst.

Broke Through the Deck

On Friday evening as the steamer Eclipse was towing a scow load of cattle to town from Harwood for Mr. H. P. Kennedy, the cattle suddenly surged to the front of the barge when near Beasfort Bridge, and broke through the planking into the hold. As it was very dark the crew of the Eclipse could not ascertain what had happened, and it was feared some of the animals had gone overboard, but all were on board when the scow reached the wharf.

Destroy the Cacoons

A letter appears in another column which our readers will do well to carefully peruse. The caterpillar pest has evidently come to stay, and the only way to overcome it is to fight the pest tooth and nail from the start. By destroying the cacoons that are now being formed, the pest may be practically stamped out. The work, however, must be done quickly. The insect that emerges from the cacoon will start the ringlets if not destroyed. This matter is well worth the attention of the Council.

EVENING ENTERTAINMENT, JULY 1st

DAN GODFREY'S BAND

A Splendid Program Presented at the Skating Rink Last Night

The band arrived in town about 6 o'clock p. m., and were met at the station by Mayor Davis, a number of officers of the 57th Batt., and the 57th band, and escorted to the Oriental Hotel.

It was after 8 o'clock before the great bandsman and his men arrived at the rink, but they lost no time in getting to work, and they were soon playing the first number on the program.

There were no long waits between acts, the numbers following each other in rapid succession.

The soloists of the band, Messrs. Kettlewell and Phasey, sustained their reputations, and won laurels from the auditors.

The program was very varied, embracing a wide range from the most familiar to those most classical, and, of course, was rendered in a faultless manner.

It was comprised of the following numbers—

Overture—William Tell.

Saxophone Solo—Fantasie—E. Mills.

Selection of Scottish National Music.

Quick March—Under the Banner of Victory.

Cornet Solo—The Children's Home—Mr. F. Kettlewell.

Selection—The Geisha.

Flute Solo—There's N— Luck—Mr. Redfern.

Waltz—Jolly Companions.

The British Army Quadrille.

From a financial standpoint, the concert was fairly successful, and Messrs. McKay and W. H. Bradburn are to be commended for their enterprise in providing Peterborough with such an excellent attraction.

WRESTLING.

Mr. J. W. Smith, as stakeholder, yesterday received the first deposit of $250 from Nick Collins on his side bet in the Doyle-Collins match, which will be fought a week from to-day, July 4th. The match is for $500 a side. Signed articles were also received today from Collins. The men will wrestle at 152 lbs., but whether here or in Toronto has not yet been decided. This should be the best wrestling contest that has taken place in Canada in years.

Good wrestler that he is, Union Station Constable "Bob" Harrison was but a child in the hands of Yousouf, "the Terrible Turk," at the Island on Saturday night, and the latter won the match by two straight falls, both Greco-Roman style, in 5 minutes and 15 seconds and 16 minutes and 20 seconds respectively. The Turk gave Harrison all the chances in the world, but whenever he was so disposed broke his opponent's hold with ridiculous ease. Yousouf gained the first fall by throwing his whole weight on Harrison, and forcing him to the ground. In the second bout the Turk allowed Harrison a lot of latitude, but when nearly 15 minutes had been consumed he went at the Torontonian in real earnest. Harrison fell on his right side, and the Turk made a lever of his opponent's body, and forced him over upon his shoulders. Anticipating the move Harrison got the "neck brace," keeping his shoulders fairly off the ground, and before the Turk realized what had happened Harrison had wriggled out of danger, and the 1,200 spectators cheered wildly. This made Yousouf real mad. He ran at his opponent, and in a twinkling and by pure strength put him down for a clear fall. Ald. Hanlan refereed the contest, which took place on the grass.

PETERBORO' MAN APPOINTED

Sergt. Rogers Gets a Commission in the Imperial Service

As a result of the concluded examinations at the Royal Military College, Kingston, yesterday, Sergt. Rogers, a popular and well-known Peterborough boy, receives a commission in the British regular army.

The Times extends its heartiest congratulations.

Company Sergeant Major Denison, Toronto, gets the Royal Engineer's commission in the Imperial service, given the Royal Military College. Others are—Infantry, Corporal Pazant, Halifax; Indian Staff Captain, B S. M. Hunter, Durham; Royal Artillery, Cadet Hamersley

Cadet Sergeant Major G. W. Denison, youngest son of Colonel Geo. T. Denison, Toronto, has performed the unique and brilliant feat of taking first place in fourteen different subjects.

This includes the Governor-General's gold medal for general proficiency. His total number of marks was 43,040. Next to him came Batt. Sergt.-Major F.F. Hunter, of Durham, with 39,921.

NOT MUCH WONDER!

Says Night-watchman Gordon That Burglaries Occur So Frequently in Town

The numerous petty burglaries which have occurred of late should not occasion much surprise, says Night-watchman Gordon, so long as merchants and others persist in leaving their doors and windows open for any thief who cares to enter and help himself.

Last night Mr. Gordon discovered a ground-floor window of a leading dry goods' house on George street wide open at a late hour.

There wasn't anything to prevent a child from gaining an entrance.

Still business men will express wonder at their places being burglarized.

An hour later the night-watchman discovered another store back-door unlocked, and before loccking the same took a promenade through the premises.

The whole establishment was as free to the public as any of the parks.

No pleasanter way to open an evening than by attending the open air entertainment in the Driving Park evening of July first. Splendid programme. All seats in grand stand free. Admission 25c.

Kill the Cacoons

Editor Morning Times—

Sir,—Let me use the Times to make it known that now is the time to make war on the caterpillar pest by destroying the cacoons. Cacoons can easily be seen and as easily destroyed. They are most numerous on fences, close to the eve-troughs on the houses, and between crevices on sheds, stables, etc.

The caterpillar weaves a web around himself, and vanishes from sight. In other words, he dissolves and turns into a winged insect. This insect lays the eggs that forms the ringlets on the limbs and twigs of trees, which bring forth caterpillars. Now is it not the season to destroy the cocoon at once, then wait until the ringlets are found?

On Sunday the writer noticed some fences literally covered with cacoons. One place in particular was the fence in the rear of Mr. D. Ullyott's residence, on Reid Street.

I think the town should take immediate action to have all cacoons destroyed. A few days' work now would do more to obliterate this pest than many weeks' toil next spring when the ringlets show thousands.

FIGHTING AHEAD

Carmarra Will Appear in an Unexpected Quarter

GEN. SHAFTER TO THE FRONT

Juragur, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Monday, June 27, per the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, 6 p. m., via Kingston, June 28, 10 a. m.—At about 2 o'clock this afternoon, Major General Shafter, in command of the United States army of infantry, arrived here on board the transports Seguranca from Baiquiri with Colonel John Jacob Astor, Captain Stewart Brice and Lieutenants Milay and Noble and his staff. He was met by General Bates, who was superintending the landing of the commissary supplies in the surf.

Gen. Shafter rode through the town, surveying the scene of the landing operations and the camps of the troops. He halted for a moment before the cottage which serves as headquarters of the Cuban insurgents, where Generals Garcia and Castillo paid their respects to the American commander.

About an hour later General Shafter struck on the road to the front in order to consel with General Wheeler and the division commanders, and look over the field of operations before Santiago de Cuba. The General said he would probably return to the Juragua headquarters to-night. Permanent hospital arrangements are to be provided at Juragua at once.

TROUBLE FOR SAMPSON

London, June 28.—The Star to-day prints a story from a foreign correspondent to the effect that part of Admiral Camara's fleet left him off Olgeciras, near Gibraltar, and is now on its way to Porto Ricco to join the squadron of torpedo boats, which Captain Vallamil has had concealed near there for three weeks past.

The correspondent adds.—This fleet will attack Admiral Sampson in the rear, while Admiral Cervera attempts a sortie, simultaneously with the land battle.

Thus Admiral Sampson will be too much proccupied to help General Shafter.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA

Madrid, June 28, 4 p.m.—The Government has received the following despatch from Captain-General Augustin, dated from Manila on June 23rd. "The situation is still grave. I continue to maintain my position inside the line of blockhouses; but the enemy is increasing in numbers as the rebels occupy the provinces, which are surrendering..

Torrential rains are inundating the intrenchments, rendering the work of defence difficult. The number of sick among the troops is increasing, making the situation very distressing and causing increased desertions of the native soldiers. It is estimated that the insurgents number 30,000 armed with rifles and 100,000 armed with swords, etc.

Aguinaldo has summoned me to surrender, but I have treated his proposals with disdain, for I am resolved to maintain the sovereignty of Spain and the honor of the flag to the last extremity. I have over one thousand sick and 20 wounded. The citadel has been invaded by the surbuban inhabitants, who have abandoned their homes, owing to the barbarity of the rebels. These inhabitants constitute an embarrassment, aggravating the situation, in view of the bombardment, which, however, is not seriously apprehended for the moment.

TO THE PHILIPPINES.

New York, June 28.—The First Regiment New York Volunteers, composed of the 10th Battalion of Albany, and eight separate companies, have received orders from Washington to proceed to San Francisco and thence to the Philippines.

CERVERA'S SEAMEN AT WORK.

Off Santiago de Cuba, Monday, June 27, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 28.—A bulletin issued by Admiral Sampson to the fleet says it appears a considerable part of the damage done to the American troops on Friday was from machine guns manned by seamen.

Lieut. Blue of the Suwanee has made another trip ashore, almost up to the enemy's batteries, and has obtained valuable information for the use of the fleet.

CANADIAN STEAMER SINKS

St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway Sells for $34,000.

Earthquakes in Italy—Military Barracks are Rendered Uninhabitable—A Child Killed and Many People Injured—Other Late News by Wire

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, June 28.—The Yukon troops are in a state of mutiny. A letter received here to-day from a member of the Interior Department survey party with the contingent of Canadian volunteers, dated June 8th, states that that day the Fredericton, N. B., company of troops mutined and refused to carry 80-pound packs and demanded better food.

Lt.-Col. Evans, the commanding officer, called his men into camp and pleaded with them not to mutiny, telling them that their was abundance of good food and money for them when they reached Selkirk. The men could not be appeased, and stated that they would not go over the rest of the trail. The trail, they said, had been misrepresented to them.

The letter states that the men complain they have been treated like dogs and mules, and the officers have been inconsiderate. The writer of the letter adds that he fears the mutiny will extend to the whole force.

CANADIAN STEAMER SINKS

Marquette, Mich., June 28.—The Canadian steamer Tecumseh struck on Ripley's Rock, in the lower harbor yesterday. Her crew attempted her release by the use of a line, but the steamer stuck in the harder and finally broke her shoe and wrenched her rudder. A bad leak was started, and during the afternoon the leak increased and the steamer filled until finally she slid off the rock part way and settled down with her forward decks awash and her stern high in the air. An attempt was made to hold her with the schooner Gergoer, but the lines were not strong enough and parted. The bridge and light upper works of the steamer were torn away by the steam when she sank. The officers and crew of the ship escaped in the yawl and on rafts and saved most of their personal property

RAILWAY SOLD

Toronto, June 28.—The St. Catharines and Niagara Central railway was sold this afternoon to J. A. McMahon, of St. Catharines, for $34,000. There was four tenders for the line, the first from F. W. Wilson, $20,000; the second from R. H. Carman, $22,000, the third from D. M. Nealon, $25,990; and the fourth from Mr. McMahon, $31,800. Afterwards, however, the Master-in-Chancery allowed the latter to increase his tender to $34,000, and the road went at that figure.

EARTHQUAKE IN ITALY

Rome, June 28.—Two sharp earthquake shocks were felt this morning at Rieti, 42 miles from here. The worst one was at 1a. m. It lasted nine seconds and a number of buildings were damaged. The Carbiner barracks were rendered uninhabitable and the whole population was panic-stricken. At Castlefranco an earthquake shock has injured a number of people and has killed one child.

WHILE SEIZING OUTLAWS

San Antonio, Texas, June 28.—Deputy Sheriff Sofis was killed yesterday at Rio Grande City while assisting United States Deputy Marshal Hansen and posse to capture a desparate band of outlaws that have been terrorizing the community about Rio Grande City for some time. The leader of the outlaws is a Spaniard named Guiterro. The outlaws were in ambush and a desperate battle ensued, in which Sofis was killed and one of Hansen's deputies was wounded. Several of the bandits were wounded. Posses are now scouring the country on both sides of the Rio Grand river in search of the outlaws.

INDIANS ARE DISSATISFIED

Cornwall, June 28.—The St. Regis tribe of Indians of Franklin county, N. Y., just across the river, claim that they were buncoed by the last State Legislature, and are so incensed that serious trouble is feared at the reservation. The cause of the trouble is the passage of a law doing away with hereditary chiefs in the tribe and providing for their election every three years. The red men are opposed to this because it is contrary to their traditions, and they claim to have been unaware of the passage of the measure till the other day. Joseph Wood, the head chief of the tribe, says the young bucks are very hot-headed about the matter, and he had difficulty in keeping them from creating a demonstration at the reservation. The Chief claims that the treaty entered into between the tribe and the State is violated by this law. This will form the basis of the suit to test its constitutionality.

BAPTIST MINISTER CONVICTED

New York, June 28.—After a session of 12 hours representatives of 110 Baptist churches in session from one o'clock yesterday afternoon until one o'clock this morning found Rev. Dr. Daniel C. Potter, formerly pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, guilty of conduct unbecoming a christian minister. This action was taken as the result of a vote of a majority of the representatives of a committee of 15, the vote standing 8 to 7. The vote of the representatives of the churches stood 29 for the majority report and 19 against. The case grew out of misunderstanding between Dr. Potter and some wealthy members of the Baptist Church and the City Mission Society. Dr. Potter says he will appeal the case and fight the matter to its bitter end.

GERMAN ELECTIONS COMPLETED

A Domestic Disappears

Some weeks ago the wife of a well-known business man gave employment to a new domestic, and was well satisfied with the service which the girl gave on the first forenoon. Just before dinner the new domestic went down to the well to get a pail of water, and as considerable time elapsed without her re-appearing, some anxiety was felt as to her safety. A search resulted in the finding of the pail—nothing more. It was a few hours later before the lady of the house discovered that her pocket book, containing about twelve dollars, had disappeared. The constables were notified of the occurrence, but the girl could not be traced until a day or so ago, when it was ascertained that she was in trouble down east. The local case has been dropped, as the theft could not possibly have been proven unless the girl had been caught with the stolen money on her person. Doubtless it is all spent by this time.

TERROR INJURED

Capt. Sigsbee Nearly Sinks Her off Porto Rico

Washington, June 28.—The Navy Department to-day posted the following bulletin. "Admiral Sampson reports that the Yale arrived yesterday and discharged her troops. Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul, reports that on Wednesday afternoon while off San Juan, Porto Rico, he was attacked by a Spanish unprotected cruiser, and the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror. The Terror made a dash which was awaited by the St. Paul. The St. Paul hit the Terror three times, killing one officer and two men and two men wounding several others. The Terror dropped back under cover of the fortifications with difficulty, and was towed in a sinking condition into the harbor, where she is now being repaired. Later a cruiser and a gunboat started out, but remained under protection of the forts.

WILL ENFORCE NEUTRALITY.

London, June 28.—The British Government has assured the Administration at Washington, through Ambassador Hay, that the neutrality laws shall be strictly enforced in relation to the Suez canal.

Communications have been passing between the British Foreign Office through Lord Cromer, the British Resident at Cairo, and the Egyptian Government regarding the coaling problem, and permission to coal was refused upon the request of the American consul. Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American Embassy, was at the House of Commons, where he had interviews with the Government leader, Arthur Balfour, and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

The canal convention provides in relation to ships of belligerents that "their stay at Port Said and in the roadstead at Suez shall not exceed twenty-four hours except in case of distress, and in such case they shall be bound to leave as soon as possible."

The Spanish fleet has now been in Port Said that period, entitling the United States to demand its expulsion or detention.

Sir Charles Dilke said last night.—"I am not at all clear that the Spanish fleet is not entitled to take coal in the canal. My impression is that when these neutrality laws were last in practiccal operation, during the Russo-Turkish war, Russian ships were allowed to coal there."

Sir Charles said that everything depended on the interpretation of the words "strictly necessary." It may be deemed "strictly necessary that they should get coal to carry them on their journey."

This view, however, is not generally held.

GERMANY IS INTRIGUING.

Madrid, June 28.—It is said that France and Russia are much displeased to discover that Germany has stolen a marcch on them, taking advantage of Spain's embarrassment to pave the way for drawing her into the triple alliancce.

When Premier Sagasta selected the Duke of Almodovar for Foreign Minister, diplomatic circles in Madrid surmised that the Pope and Austria had pulled wires for the appointment, and the accomplished nobleman's intimacy with the German Ambassador, Von Radowitz, was well known. Radowitz, who poses as an out and out friend of Spain, is in high favor at court and with the aristocracy, and especially the Liberal section.

Since then, rumors of German action in the way of intervention in the war have steadily increased, and now the frequency of the Duke's conferences with the German and Austrian ambassadors has attracted notice. Germany and Austria are not expected to show their hands until the progress of the war invites it, and not at all if Spanish reverses bring on internal strife.

Germany has cleverly allowed Spain to understand that she cannot interfere during the war without deranging her own deep-laid plans in other important directions, above all in Africa and Egypt.

The German Emperor's policy is to play France and England against one another until the time comes either to crush France again, with Spain as an ally, on the Pyrenees, or to side with France and Russia in a commercial war against England all over the world, but particularly in Africa and the far East. Germany is baiting France now with the hope that Germany will, first minimize the consequences of war with America, offering, if necessary, her joint protectorate over the philippines and her financial guarantee for the indemnity, and then assist in restoring the prestige of Alfonso and the monarchy. This would upset all the French and English designs against the German empire.

WHY MANILA HOLDS OUT.

Hong Kong, June 28.—Gen. Aguinaldo, according to letters brought here from Cavite by a German steamer, occupies the mansion of the late Governor of Imus to make room for the American troops. The insurgents now have 5,000 prisoners. A hundred and eighty-seven of the Spanish wounded have been sent to Manila with a flag of truce by permission of Admiral Dewey.

The Spanish Brigadier Moret was killed at San Fernando in an attempt to force the rebel line.

An Americcan official at Cavite writes as follows.—

"If great bloodshed and destruction come to Manila, Spain may justly blame the Germans. Manila would have surrendered before the arrival of the German squadron without bloodshed, but now, owing to the moral support of its presencce, the city refuses to surrender."

A CHANGE OF OPINION.

London, June 28.—The St. James Gazette, this afternoon commenting upon the prospect of an American force attacking the coast of Spain, says. "The recception of the news evidences a change in public opinion which at the commencement of the war, thought Europe should notify the United States that the war must be confined to American waters. It is now recognized that the Americans are fully entitled to make war in their own way, and they are indeed driven to retaliate upon Spain in this manner owing to the tactics which Spain has chosen to pursue."

EXTENDING THE BLOCKADE.

Washington, June 28.—The President has issued a proclamation extending the blockade of Cuba to the southern coast from Cape France to Cape Cruz inclusive, and also blockading San Juan, Porto Rico.

Neutral vessels lying in any of the ports to which the blockade is extended will be allowed thirty days to issue therefrom with cargo.

THE QUEEN WILL ABDICATE.

London, June 28.—There is little doubt in English political circles that the abdication of the Queen Regent of Spain is being seriously discussed in Madrid. It has been stated by many that there is no precedent for such a course, but general conversation among those who are competent to speak shows that history furnishes many instances and one on all fours with the present one.

The case of King Charles Albert of Sardinia offers almost a parallel to that of the Queen Mother. Fifty years ago this monarch was defeated by the Austrians, and preferred to abdicate rather than submit to the harsh conditions imposed by a victorious foe who were at the gates of his capital. The king was face to face with a distracted parliament, an exhausted treasury, and a people on the verge of revolution, conditions practically analogous to those confronting the present ruler of Spain, whose surrender of the monarchy to the Infanta Isabella has frequently been announced, and is certain to take place before peace is restored. Cristina has sworn not to consent to any decrease in her son's dominions by the surrender of territory. So strong is her sense of honor that sooner than break her promise she would give up the regency. Besides, she is disliked by the Spanish people, and hopes that by removing herself from their view she may turn public wrath from the little king's head, believing that the Spaniards will submit to the inevitable with far more grace if the terms of peace were arranged by a regent of Spanish blood, like the Infanta, than if they were arranged by herself, a foreigner.

GOOD ROADS

The report of the Provincial Instructor in road making is to hand for the year 1897. A large number of municipalities were visited by the instructor during the year, addresses delivered and reports made, the requests for his services being very numerous. It is gratifying to record the increasing interest which is being taken in this branch of public work. We then what may prove a valuable memo. to road-builders. "For the average country road, a graded roadway twenty-four feet in width between the inside edges of the open drains will be amply to accommodate travel. For the average road, if the central eight feet is metalled with gravel or stone, it will be sufficient. The depth and width of the open drain will have to be governed by circumstances. Sufficient capacity must be provided to carry away all surface water. The depth must be dependent also on the fall obtainable. With tile under drains, deep open ditches are not needed to drain the road foundation. The use of tile does away with the deep and dangerous open ditch which may otherwise be necessary. The crown of the road should be such as to give a fall of one inch to the foot from the centre to the edge of the ditch."

AN EXPLANATION.

The reason for the great popularity of Hood's Sarsaparilla lies in the fact that this medicine positively cures. It is America's Greatest Medicine, and the American people have an abiding confidence in its merits. They buy and take it for simple as well as serious ailments, confident that it will do them good.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 29 1898

TWO IMPORTANT BY-LAWS

To-day the electors are asked to vote on two very important by-laws. We feel it our duty, in the interests of the taxpayers, to urge the passage of both by-laws.

The by-law to change and simplify the mode of representation of the town and the administration of its affairs, is the most important of the two. The by-law provides that the council "shall be composed of a mayor and one alderman for each one thousand of the population of the town, as determined by the last census of the Dominion, to be elected byg eneral vote.' Every ratepayer, instead of voting for three councillors, as at present, will have a vote for the whole number that will be chosen under the new system. This will be an immense improvement over the present system. A candidate that is not successful in having large sums of money spent in his particular ward, without regard to the rest of the town, is really re-elected. Not only this, but the new system will secure for service at the council board men of more intelligence and of larger scope in thet own. Ratepayers will also have an opportunity of voting for or against every candidate presented for election. For these and many other reasons the Times is strongly in favor of the proposed change. We are sure that the change will result in better roads, lower rate of taxation and better municipal government generally. Therefore, it is, we firmly believe, the duty of every ratepayer who has the welfare of the town at heart to votefor the by-law to-day.

In regard to the money by-law, the Times has come to the conclusion, after carefully looking into the whole matter, that the by-law should pass. It will not only be money in the pockets of the people, but better roads will result from the purchase of a proper street roller. The bridges are necessary and it is more economical to erect permanent bridges and have done with it than the everlasting expense connected with keeping up the present wooden structures.

THE INLAND FISHERIES

That decision of the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council leaves several points still in doubt as to the respective jurisdiction of the Federal and Provincial authorities in the protection of the inland fisheries. It is satisfactory to note, however, that the Premiers of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, in conjunction with Sir Louis Davies, have undertaken to straighten out the legal tangle and come to an understanding as to their respective spheres of responsibality. The conflict of authority has resulted in a state of affairs highly injurious to the fisheries of our inland waters, particularly those of Ontario, where private supervision is not exercised. It seemed to be nobody's business in particular to see to the inforcement of close seasons and the prevention of illegal methods of fishing. As a result, many of the best fishing resorts in Northeran Ontario are already threatened with depletition; so that if the powers now assebeled at the capital can arrive at some understanding which will obviate the present conflict of authority and thereby guarantee protection to the inland fisheries, their conference will be regarded as beneficial move regardless of its technical advantage to either party in the exercise of jurisdiction.

From all parts of Ontario and Quebec come reports that the crop prospects are the best for many years. There is no exception. Barring something very exceptional in the weather now, the eastern half of the Dominion will have the greatest harvest on record.

When Ague Shakes You

you can shake the Ague by using AYER'S AGUE CURE. It is the one certain and infallible cure for that depleting disease. It has been tried in many countries and under various conditions, and has never been known to fail. An old veteran writes:—

"You may be interested to know my experience many years ago with Ayer's Ague Cure. The year before the war I was in Kansas. Some twenty of us were engaged in farming, and suddenly all were taken with fever and ague. We tried almost everything without getting any help, till at last I sent to the city and procured a bottle of Ayer's Ague Cure. I recovered at once. The others followed my example, and they, too, recovered. Every one in camp took the remedy and was cured by it. I went all through the war, have lived in thirteen different states of the Union, and have never had the ague since."

A HARD NUT TO CRACK

On the Rio Guama, June 26, noon, via Kingston, Jamaica, Monday, June 27.—9 a. m.—The advance force of the American army rests on this stream with the city of Santiago de Cuba 4 1-2 miles westward in plain sight. Last night the outposts consisting of two companies of seventh infantry under Major Coolidge occupied positions at right angles to the road, guarding the crossing a mile and a half beyond Sabanilla, where three regiments of General Lawton's division are camped, the first, fourth and seventeenth. The eigth, twenty-second and second Massachusetts with the rough riders, tenth cavalry and portions of several regiments strung behind them towards Juragua. About 800 Cubans, under General Gonzoles were camped around General Lawton's headquarters, but less than fifty of them did scout duty last night. General Wheeler to-day with the first, second and tenth cavalry and the rough riders with dynamite guns, moved up to where General Lawton's outposts were last night, and four batteries of the third artillery and four Gatling guns, with a special detail under Lieut. Parker were brought up and planted on the brow of a hill overlooking the basin in which Santiago de Cuba lies. Not a shot was fired from the American side last night though the front of the American Line was not 2800 yards from the entrenchments, where the Spaniards proposed to combat the advance on Santiago de Cuba. Three cannon shots were heard during the night. They seemed to come from the distant Spanish batteries or perhaps seaward. The top of every hill and mountains north and east of Santiago is occupied by block-houses, from which the Spaniards can view the movements of the American army as it advances beyond Subanila, while to the city gashing every knoll and but of high grounds are Spanish entrenchments.

The correspondent of the Associated Press from an elevation to the right of the American line to-day counted 34 of these entrenchments, completely fencing every approach to the city.

The trenches have been dug as the ground admitted. The ends of trenches overlap where breaks in the line occurr, thus securing comparative safe retreat from rifle fire in case part of the trenches are captured. Upon one of these works modern guns have been They can be plainly seen with the naked eye. Spies report that inside the entrenchments are four parallel lines of rifle pits shoulder deep, and in front of them are marked ranges and several rods of barbed wire fence. No officer who has surveyed the field over which the advance must be made underestimates the task ahead of the Americans. The general opinion is that more artillery will be needed before it will be safe to attempt an assault upon the Spanish works, as the fire of the rifle pits must necessarily be deadly and sufficient to demoralize any force, no matter how brilliant is its courage when stopped by wire obstructions.

THE ATTACK ON SANTIAGO.

Washington, June 27.—The War Department this noon received a despatch from General Shafter announcing that a general attack by land and sea would be made on Santiago this afternoon, or early to-morrow, and that Sampson and Schley would bombard the harbor while the United States troops, assisted by the insurgents, would make a simultaneous attack from the hills surrounding the city. A later despatch announces that fighting had commenced.

Impure blood is an enemy to health, and may lead to serious disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla conquers this enemy and averts danger.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

IF LOVE WERE OTHER THAN PERFECT

If love were other than a perfect thing,
Love were no gain, but only all a grief,
And better were to check its blossoming
Ere one poor bud could struggle into leaf;
To kill it in the spring,
If love were other than a perfect thing.

If love were other than most sweet of all,
Love were the bitterest gift of bitter fate,
And better were to spurn beyond recall
Its magic cup more perilous than hate.
Its sweetness were but gall,
If love were other than most sweet of all.

If love were other than the love of you,
Love were a poverty, and nothing worth,
And all the task that memory had to do
Would be to loathe the hour that gave it birth.
Love were not sweet nor true
If love were other than the love of you.

But love is love, and you are you, and I
Am I that dare to love you with a will,
Knowing that love is perfect, true and high,
And always greater than its greatest ill;
Knowing it cannot die,
Since love is love of you, and I am I.

—J. Colmore in Woman's Journal.

A VILLAGE ROMANCE.

There could be no doubt about it. Molly had been a different girl since she and John Lock had been "keeping company." At least this was what the village gossips declared, and surely no one would have the temerity to contradict authorities so well informed. And the village gossips had spoken truth this time. Molly, the pride of all Longville, the pretty country girl whom nature had endowed with a superabundance of animal spirits; Molly, the fascinating coquette, had been subdued, and John Lock, the village carpenter's son, had conquered. At least that was what all Longville thought.

John in himself, although boasting no ancient lineage, was, as the laborers termed him, "a cut above the ordinary run." Somehow without having had any educational advantages he had developed a strong love for books, and when the day's work in the little carpenter's shop was done he would go out into the soft summer eve, and a brisk walk over the hills would bring him to the rugged cliffs by the sea. Here he would throw himself down, and as long as the red shoots of the setting sun gave light over the land he would read with rapturous intent, and when at last it had disappeared in a blaze of color in an opalescent sea he would watch the stars and talk learnedly of their distances and of what constellations they formed part.

The good people of Longville could never quite understand John. He would astound them with his enthusiastic descriptions of fleeting clouds, would bid them hear a poem in the constant roaring of the sea and tell them that there were new worlds, of which they knew nothing, in pictures and books. But John was genial and kind hearted, and so, although his personality eluded definite analysis by them, they yet recognized him as the village favorite for the humbler and maybe more useful qualities of good fellowship and unselfish courage.

It was little wonder that when Molly and John commenced "keeping company" that Longville should talk. Never two persons had less in common, so far as temperament and tastes were concerned, and yet somehow, for a reason which even old Mrs. Knight, who had seen two generations of village courtships, could not explain, these two people of opposite dispositions were destined to share life's storm and sunshine together.

How they came to be engaged I cannot say. There was a meeting of the two, when the usual cheery "Good night, John," and "Good night, Molly," ceased to have the old prosaic significance. The untamed, restless little heart of Molly beat convulsively, and the roses on her cheeks burned a deeper hue when that evening John stopped her and insisted on her talking with him. I was not there, so that of what was said I am unaware.

This much, however, all Longville soon knew—that John Lock and Molly Lane had become sweethearts. How the good wives enjoyed standing at the doorway of their cottages and discussing the probabilities of a village wedding and what it involved! These good souls would have made the devious, sinuous track of these two lives much straighter and more direct than it was fated to be.

No event is too wonderful to become familiarized with, and so it was that the wonder ceased, and Molly and John for months pursued their pleasant way, dreaming the old love dreams common to youth since the world began. It was true that sometimes John imagined "his Molly" was restless and scarcely contented. She seemed to sigh for new opportunities of conquest. The old spirit, which he thought dead, reared its head again and gave warning of, although it never actually broke out in, open rebellion. Then John would be troubled and would search his generous, simple heart in the hope of discovering some excuse for the discontent which only too obviously was smoldering in his sweetheart's mind.

One week in the midsummer of the following year Squire Hurst's only son came of age, and the event was celebrated with great eclat by the whole of the inhabitants of the village. The lovely old park surrounding the hall was thrown open, and numerous were the al fresco attractions provided to amuse the assembled guests. The sports of the day terminated with a grand villagers' ball, at which the heir to Longville Hall himself was present. There had been many a rumor that Harry Hurst had been "a gay young spark" in his time, but tonight all ugly memories were lost in the pleasure and excitement of his presence among the common folk at the ball.

All seemed happy save one, and that was John. In spite of his best attempts to suppress it a great pain was at his heart—almost as severe as a physical one—as he saw his Molly being claimed for dance after dance by the squire's son. How she seemed to enjoy the distinction, too, as with flushed cheeks she was waltzed around in a whirl of excitement!

And when the evening's amusements had ended Molly seemed cross when John pushed his way to the front and claimed his right of seeing her from the park to her father's cottage gate. She was irritable and moody. John had never known her so before, and it was with a heavy, aching heart that he kissed her good night. Nor was the unhappiness of his mind diminished when for several nights after she refused to take her customary walk with him.

At length the climax came, and one evening, after he had succeeded in inducing her to come with him over the hills, he received the dread ultimatum which he had almost expected would fall. Molly was frank. She avowed shyly that she did not and could not love him and then, with a pretty, disdainful toss of the head, declared that she would be glad if he did not worry her any more. John took the blow quietly, but the agony of soul he suffered no one but himself knew.

Then grave whispers and nods and winks passed around from house to house in the village. There were talks in bated breath of secret meetings at night, and of Molly and the young squire being seen together. And John would be questioned, but he never answered. His sorrow was for himself alone—so he would tell himself—it could not be shared by the curious. It was his wont to go and sit by the sea, and there find a sort of melancholy satisfaction in the low wail of the billows as they broke in at the foot of the cliffs. As for Molly, after one final attempt to reclaim her, John avoided her. To have met her would have increased the inconvenience of both, and in his case would have opened afresh the wounds but hardly healed. In the months that followed the whispers took an uglier form, and Longville delighted its soul at last in a village scandal.

And so Molly went away and left her poor old father sorrowing.

There was only one who ever defended the fair name of Molly when it was made a byword with the young roughs of the place, who loafed outside the village inn or at the roadsides. John was never known to have become so incensed as when one evening in his hearing one of these thoughtless youths mentioned inappropriately Molly's name and coupled it with a foul epithet. Then he thrashed the young lout within an inch of his life.

After awhile the sad incident was forgotten—at least until Molly's return to her home again. Then trouble began anew. She was very much altered, and the roses had faded from her cheeks. In tearful sorrow she would sit and nurse her baby all day long.

The last act in the tragedy came when one day Molly's father received a note from the hall. The steward brought it round, and as Molly's father was growing old and feeble and his sight waning the steward read the note aloud. It was a formally worded epistle giving the poor, old, sorrow stricken parent a month's notice because the squire felt that it was "not conducive to the morals of the village that people of Molly's stamp should be harbored" in the midst of his cottagers. Needless to say Molly's father was almost broken hearted at the thought of leaving the house he had occupied for so long, while as for Molly herself her distress was too piteous for words.

One morning not long after John stepped down the old roadway, his face haggard, but the expression firm, resolute and determined. He presented himself at the door of Molly's cottage and was admitted. It was only a look they exchanged, and the floodgates were opened again, and, having sobbed on his shoulder awhile, Molly gradually recovered herself, while John, with a choking sensation in the throat which he tried in vain to keep down, avowed: "I have always waited for you, Molly. I knew you would come back to me."

"But I can't. You forget that is his," and she pointed in her anguish to the cot wherein the babe was slumbering peacefully.

John didn't turn his head to look, but he took Molly in his arms again.

And love was consummated in service.—London Sun.

The Newest Stationery.

The latest fad in paper is a sheet the size of the envelope, which goes into its envelope without folding. In the usual correspondence size—that small size used for a hurried note or invitation—the style goes very well, but when it comes to larger sizes stationers say it will not take. In this connection it is reported in the New York Herald that the most popular style is a sheet of paper which folds in half and fits into an envelope which has a square flap. This style comes in billet, note and letter sizes, and the envelopes are graduated to match. The favorite colors are white, cream azure, regimental gray and bond blue. The fancy tints of pinks and heliotropes, yellows and greens, though carried to meet a certain demand for them, are considered in poor taste.

A very dainty little machine is made for weighing letters, useful to a woman with a large correspondence or to a business woman who must needs send letters inclosing samples or circulars.

Smooth Roads and Traffic.

The increase of efficiency in vehicles having a smooth surface on which to travel is very great. Perfect rails are a necessity for the steam engine, and a smooth roadbed is essential if high speed is to be obtained. The motor carriage, which has already become an established fact abroad, depends for its efficiency on good road surface. The bicycle gains enormously in ease of propulsion, in speed and in adaptability to new fields of usefulness by having good roads. About these three there is no dispute, but it seems necessary to prove by argument, illustration and statistics that carriages, wagons, trucks, carts and all other vehicles are equally benefited by a smooth traveling surface.—Exchange.

PLUCKING THE INNOCENT.

One Fakir Who Was "Done" by the Farmers.

"No," said the soap fakir to a group of people that had gathered around him, "there is no use talking to me about the innocence of the countryman. He may buy a gold brick occasionally or sign a blank check and lose his farm, but, as a rule, he can take care of himself just as well as the next one and generally a little better. If I knew as much as some farmers I wouldn't be in this business, and you can gamble on that.

"Why, say, do you know what happened to me the last time I was down in the country? I got pinched, that's what I done. I got my satchel out in front of the hotel in a little town about thirty miles out east of here and began to do a few tricks to draw a crowd.

"After I'd made an egg disappear and pulled a few knots open for them, I says: 'Now, gentlemen, I'm goin' to show you a trick that nobody else on earth has ever attempted. You see my hat here? Well, we'll imagine for the time bein' to a flower pot. Out of that hat I'm goin' to make a bush grow up, and when I've done that I'll make every leaf on it turn into a $5 note.'

"What? Did I do it? Of course I did! But, say, do you know what came of it? Blamed if they didn't arrest me and fine me $15 for raisin' bills, which the justice of the peace said was contrary to the statoots made and provided.

"Well, I sort of had a hankerin' to know whether they done it in good faith or just because they thought I was easy pickin', and what do you think I found out? Why, the people of that town hadn't paid any taxes for eight years. They'd actually been runnin' things by pluckin' just such innocent fellows as me.

"Now, gentlemen, there's a $1 bill in one of these little packanges. Who will give me 10 cents for the first choice?" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Curiosity.

"I hear that Jenkins, the politician, was found in his flat in a starving condition."

"Poor fellow! He must have been honest."

A New Evasion.

"Yes, Miss Agnes, these are the customs officers waiting for us."

"And is it true that returning tourists are only allowed $100 worth of baggage?"

"It is too true. The law is imperative. How much baggage have you, Miss Agnes?"

"Fully $175 worth."

"And I have $25."

"Must I pay?"

"There is— there is but one way to avoid it, Miss Agnes, dear Miss Agnes, let us share our lives and—and our baggage! Be my wife!"

"Why, Mr. Littlebat, how you have startled me!"

"See, they are looking this way! Quick, your answer!"

"How can I——"

"Here they come! Yes or no?"

"Y-es, but——"

"Yes, Mr. Inspector, it is just a hundred apiece."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ambiguous.

The following rather ambiguous advertisement appeared in the "Personal" column of a western newspaper a short time ago:

"Wanted—Information regarding the whereabouts of Ebenezer Jones, who is supposed to have died in this city last year."

A still more ambiguous personal appeared in a Chicago paper a year or two ago. It was as follows:

"If this should meet the eye of Lewis J. Smith and he will send his present address to his old home he will hear something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

HASTA MANANA.

When all's in bud and the leaf still unfolding,
When there are ruby points still on the spray,
When that prim school gown your charm is withholding,
Then, Manuela, child, well may you say:
"Hasta Manana! Hasta Manana!
Until tomorrow, amigo," alway.

And Manuela, when crimson and yellow
Peep through green sepals the roses of May,
And through black laces the bloom of your face is Fresh as these roses, child, still you may say,
Through your mantilla, coy Manuela,
"Hasta Manana! amigo," alway.

When all's in bloom and the rose in its passion,
Warmed on your bosom, would never say nay,
Still it is wise—in your own country fashion—
Under your opening fan only to say:
"Hasta Manana! Hasta Manana!
Until tomorrow, amigo," alway.

When all is gray and the roses are scattered,
Hearts may have broken that brooked no delay,
Yet will tomorrow surcease of sorrow
Bring unto eyes and lips that still can say:
"Hasta Manana! Hasta Manana!
Until tomorrow is best for today."

Phrase of Castilian lands! Speech that in languor
Softly procrastinates for aye or nay—
From Seville's orange groves to remote Yanguas,
Best heard from rosy lips—let thy words say:
"Hasta Manana! Hasta Manana!
Until tomorrow, amigo," alway.

—Bret Harte in Cosmopolitan.

A Realistic Scene.

"Realism is the thing," insisted the garrulous actor while they were taking their night lunch after the show. "Nothing takes like the real sawmill, the cotton mill, train of cars, fire engine, burning block, genuine horse and all that sort of thing.

"I discovered that when I was a kid getting up amateur performances. That's where I learned human nature before we youngsters knew anything about the ways of the world and had a comb with a piece of paper over it and a jew's harp and a mouth organ for the orchestra. I'll never forget when we gave 'Red Handed Antonius' in the barn—3 cents for adults, 1 cent for children over 5 and free seats for the balance. Everything was real. I had a corn knife for a sword, and there wasn't a soldier in the squad that didn't have a musket longer than himself. When we fought, the anger of battle flamed from our eyes, and when one fell he went down so hard that it took weeks to remove the bruises. The audience would get on their feet to cheer, and it took half a dozen husky marshals to keep them from going after the villain with pitchforks.

"When it came time to behead Antonius, the excitement was intense. The music of the orchestra was slow and dismal. The children had to be carried out, and they whooped as they went. The people held their breath as I ground the corn knife on a real grindstone and hissed my vow of vengeance. When I removed my coat and rolled up my sleeves, the breathing stopped. Just here my father entered by way of a granary door and carried me kicking off the stage. If he had not, I would have decapitated the youngster who was playing Antonius as sure as I am alive. If the whole thing hadn't been so realistic, we couldn't have held our audience for ten minutes. It's the same way the world over."—Detroit Free Press.

Laughed Himself to Death.

Among the historical incidents connected with the rathhaus is one relating to an old judge who laughed himself to death. One sultry day, reads the record, during a recess of the council the members were leaning from the windows of the rathhaus in the hope to catch any stray wind. It was the period of hoops and voluminous skirts, and maid shared with mistress the mania for distended attire. On this pulseless summer day a pretty servant girl in a wide hooped skirt and a gay bodice made her way through the loitering groups up to the fountain. She filled her tub and lifted it to her head, but in this movement, lo, the wonderful skirt was wrested from its fastenings and it dropped to the ground. The judge had seen the maid approach the fountain like a ship under full sail, and when he now beheld her, collapsed and abashed, he was filled with such humor that upon the spot he laughed himself to death.—"Stuttgart," by Elsie J. Allen, in Harper's Magazine.

Clerk Worm Turns on Shopper.

She wanted to look at baskets, and for that purpose the clerk took from the shelves a large assortment until all but two were scattered over the counter. The woman did not want to buy, so she turned away, making the excuse, "I only came in to look for one of my friends." The clerk felt rather exasperated and replied, "Madam, if you have the slightest idea that your friends are in either of these two baskets on the shelves, I shall be pleased to take them down for you to examine."—Springfield Republican.

The Rabbit Industry.

It doesn't take much to start the rabbit industry—a few rabbits and a turnip patch or some other pasture—but it takes a mighty hustling to check it after it gets a good start. We kill about 14,000,000 of them in North Caroline every winter, but there are more here now than there were when Mr. Raleigh brought his immigrants over.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

The Chrysanthemum.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisylike flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1860 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1859, when the plants suffered severly from early frosts, that there was any idea of growing it under glass. The Japanese variety was noticed in 1864 as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely ornamental." How little did the author of these remarks suspect what a future was before the plant he so summarily set aside! Three years later, however, we find Japanese varieties recommended with pompom and incurved, and since then they have ever increased in favor.

The gorgeously colored, mopllke blooms now exhibited every autumn would certainly astonish that writer of 30 years ago. The golden and bronze shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" esthetic movement of a few years ago, which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and revived the culture of sunflowers, which were fast becoming extinct in our gardens.—Longman's Magazine.

DECORATION DAY SERVICE

The Silent Dead Faithfully Remembered in Yesterday Evening's Ceremonies

The Members of the Local I. O. O. F. Lodges Conduct very Successful Memorial Services—The Graves Decorated

The members of the two local lodges and a number of visiting brethren gathered at the Central Park at 6 o'clock, and, headed by the 57th Batt. band, marched from George street to the Little Lake cemetery.

All afternoon relatives and friends of those interred at the cemetery were busy in spreading flowers on the graves of deceased friends and relatives.

On account of the unusual commotion likely to arise from the visit of the Godfrey band on Monday and the approaching meet of the C.W.A. on Friday, it was deemed advisable—as far as possible—to avoid unnecessary trouble and loss of time on the part of the public, in carrying out the programme of Decoration Day.

It was thought best by the committee in charge to limit the time to a few hours in the evening, and the services to brief addresses.

This programme was carried out faithfully.

On arriving at the cemetery the procession formed up at the chapel, Rev. Mr. Potter, officiating chaplain, in the centre, who offered a short prayer and was followed by the 57th band in a delightful selection beautifully rendered.

The procession then broke into four sections, each headed by two brethren, who led them to the graves of the sixty or more departed brethren, upon each of which was placed by one of the members of the respective leaders a beautiful boquet, while a short and appropriate poetical selection was read by one of the leaders.

When the decoration of the graves was completed the members of the Order and the 57th Batt. band gathered at the foot of the hill in rear of the chapel, where several of the clergymen of the town were gathered, on a platform erected for the occasion.

Bro. Perry, N. G., Peterborough Lodge No. 111, acted as chairman.

Short and very appropriate addresses were delivered by Rev. Bros. Davidson, of St. John's; Potter, of St. Andrew's; Moore and Symonds, of Ashburnham; and Elliott, of the Park Street Baptist church.

Just here, we are informed, the chairman owes an apology to the Rev. Mr. Stevenson, who was present and was inadvertently not called to the platform.

The remarks of all were very appropriate to the occasion, while we may particularize that of Rev. Bro. Davidson as being specially appropo of the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Symonds suggested an idea well worthy of consideration by the members of the Order. It was to intersperse the addresses and splendid instrumental music by the singing of hymns. In the future he thought that vocalists and soloists would willingly contribute their share to make the inovation a remarkable feature of the ceremony.

All of the speakers referred in superlative terms to the credit due the committee of management, and particularly to Mr. Ford, the caretaker; Revs. Messrs. Elliott and Potter dwelt very eloquently and forcibly upon the spititual effect of the services.

The lake steamers and street cars conveyed homewards a crowd well pleased with the ceremonies.

Bro. Judge J. B. Hall, ex-M.P., 1st N. G., Otonabee Lodge.

A STRANGE CASE

Wm. Gould Appears Before the Beak on Very Vague Charges

A case which attracted attention more by reason of the flood of subpoenas that were issued in connection with it than anything else, was up at Police Court yesterday morning. It was a charge against Wm. Gould, of the town of Peterborough, that he had "no peaceable profession or calling to support himself but for the most part makes his living by gambling and the avails of prostitution."

Mr. R. S. Davidson, J.P., acted in the absence of the Magistrate, having the Mayor on the bench with him. Mr. G. M. Rogers acted for the prosecution, while Mr. W. A. Stratton defended the accused.

Several witnesses were examined and the case was adjourned until the evening.

Court was opened at 8 p.m., with P. M. Dumble on the bench.

A host of witnesses were examined—the majority of whom had no more knowledge of the case than the "man in the moon."

So ridiculous did the affair become that, owing to disorder and the abuse of the authorities, the court had to be cleared in order to allow the case to proceed.

About midnight the case was dismissed.

A greater piece of "tomfoolery" has never been brought before a court of justice in Peterborough in years.

A criminal charge—introduced after calm consideration, as this was—should have better foundation in fact.

KENNEDY AND WADE

To Get a Cheque for the Amount of Their Sewer Contracts

The Sewerage Committee of the town council met last night.

There were present—Chairman Best, Mayor Davis, and Councillors McWilliams, Cobb, Dawson, Langford and W. H. White.

Town Engineer, S. Belcher, Esq., was also in attendance.

It was decided to put in a 12-inch pipe on Hunter street, from Belmont avenue to Reid street, and on Park from Hunter to Charlotte; and a 15-inch pipe on Charlotte from Park to Aylmer, when a petition sufficiently signed by the interested parties is presented, otherwise under section of local improvement law.

Considerable discussion took place over the payment of the account of the contractors for sewer construction.

The matter was finally settled by the following resolution.—

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that Kennedy & Wade be paid the amount of certificate given by Town Engineer Belcher and the words "and claim of any description" be struck out of the certificates—Carried.

The Committee then adjourned.

CHURCH PARADE

The 57th Batt. will Attend Divine Service at St. John's Church

The 57th Batt. assembled for its regular weekly drill last night.

There was a fair attendance and a couple of hours was spent in company drill.

The following orders were issued.—

Headquarters,
Peterborough, June 28, 1898.

Orders by Lt.-Col. R.W. Bell, Commanding 57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers:

No. 1.—Detail of duty for week ending July 2nd. Officer for the week, Capt. Hayes; next for duty, Capt. Clegg. Regimental Orderly Sergeant for the week, Col.-Sergt. Roberts; next for duty, Col.-Sergt. Gaskin. Bugler for the week, Bugler Gilley; next for duty, Bugle-Sergt. Sharpe.

No. 2.—The Batt. will parade with both bands on Sunday, July 3rd at 3.15 p. m., to attend divine service at St. John's church.

By order,
H. A. MORROW,
Capt. and Adjt.

Ponton's $50,000 Suit Against the Dominion Bank May be Tried Here

Mr. W. H. Ponton's $50,000 suit against the Dominion Bank for malicious prosecution, wrongful dismissal and false imprisonment, will be tried at Cobourg, Whitby or Peterborough, just as Mr. Ponton chooses, but not at Napanee, where the action arose, nor at Belleville, where he lives. Mr. Aylesworth for the bank, had obtained an order from the Master-in-Chambers at Osgoode Hall, changing the venue from Napanee to Belleville, but this did not suit the bank, which produced affidavit evidence that a fair trial would be impossible, even in Belleville. Judge Meredith accordingly acceeded to the bank's appeal and changed the venue as described.

Acute Rheumatism

Pains in the Foot and Limb—A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a family and must always be at my post." Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. VOL 24—NO 152 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JUNE 30, 1898 PRICE TWO CENTS

WHEELER ACTIVE

The U. S. Troops Preparing for the Assault

At the front on the Rio Guama, June 28.—General Lawton. General Wheeler and General Chaffee have had riders but beyond our advance posts several times and yesterday afternoon, as already cabled, General Wheeler on the crest of the hills forward of the American left, actually climbed a tree in order to obtain better view of the country. This is startling evidence of the wonderful vitality and energy of the great ex-Confederate cavalry leader, now 67 years of age, and will put many a younger and less agile officer to blush.

Captain Wright of General Bates' staff to-day followed the line of the railroad running out of Juragua towards Santiago de Cuba to within two miles and a half of the city. The road approaches within one and a half miles of our front, and can be utilized to bring up supplies and siege guns tons of which were landed at Baiquiri this afternoon. So soon as the remaining battalions of the 34th Michigan and 8th Massachusetts, which arrive on the Howard to-morrow, and the six thousand reinforcements sent out from Tampa, reach here at Aguidores town, on the coast, 4 four miles west of Juragua will be taken. The place was shelled to-day by several ships of the fleet. Aguidores is on the line of the advance of the army into the interior and close to the railroad it will then probably become the base of operations while the supply base may remain at Juragua.

Capt. Wright obtained information on his reconnoisance, which is believed to be reliable, to the effect that 3,000 Spanish troops have been sent to reinforce the garrison at Aguidores. General Lawton will probably make a diversion with his artillery as soon as it is placed in position. Heavy rain this afternoon made it impossible to move to-day beyond General Wheeler's headquarters. But the roads will be in condition to-morrow and the guns will probably be brought up and the intranchments shelled by the artillery and by Col. Wood's dynamite gun.

The shrapnel fire will be more used by the artillery. The guns are 32—10 inches and with shrapnel they are effective at 3500 yards.

The Cubans say the Spaniards are in deadly fear of dynamite and General Lawton will see how he can terrify them simultaneously with the bombardment.

General Chaffee's brigade will move forward and occupy a position of vital importance in advance of the front. The correspondent of the Associated Press is not permitted to divulge its location at present. The military telegraph line has been completed as far as General Wheeler's headquarters, thus placing the front in direct communication with General Shafter, who still maintains his headquarters on board the [illegible] where he can keep in close touch with Rear Admiral Sampson. It is probable, however, that he will establish his headquarters at Juragua to-morrow or Thursday.

CAMARA AT THE SUEZ CANAL

Madrid, June 29.—Six p. m.—In an interview Lieut. General Correa, Minister of War, said the Government had no special news from Cuba, but took a favorable view of the situation. He asserted that Admiral Camara's squadron has begun the passage in the Suez Canal.

It is announced that the Victoria, the Numancia, the Alfonso XIII, and the Lepanto, all armored cruisers, are ready to form the third squadron. The armored cruiser Cardenal Cisneros and the torpedo gunboat Dona Molina, with several auxiliary cruisers and torpedo boats that are to be included will be ready shortly.

MURDER AT ALMONTE

Watchman Shot by a Burglar Caught Operating at a Mill

EARLY SPRING IN DAWSON

Lieut. Grandon Indulges in a Dream and Loads it on a London Paper

Carranza Away—The Spaniard Leaves Montreal Quietly, but Where he Went is Unknown—Reward of $500—For the Capture of the Peglegged Murderer—He Abandons the Horse

Almonte, Ont., June 29.—Burglars operating here last night shot and killed Henry Gray, night watchman for the Almonte Knitting Co., whose building they broke into.

It would seem that Gray saw the man entering a blacksmith shop, which stands opposite the mills, and attempted to interfere. He fell, fatally wounded, on the roadway, where he was found some time later, but too weak to speak. He died without being able to explain how he received the wound.

Wylie's flour mills, over the river, were also entered, and the door of the safe blown off, but the burglars did not get at the money.

There is no trace of the murderer.

EARLY SPRING IN DAWSON.

Kingston, June 29.—A prominent Kingstonian holding a place in officles writes on April 18, where he is saying.

The weather is getting warm and snow is disappearing. This promises to be a very early spring. The starvation scare is long since gone by, though last fall it was a most serious matter, and but for the mildness of the winter, permitting hundreds to go out over the ice, there would have been actual suffering and possibly many deaths from want of necessary food. Even as it is many have felt the pinch, and not a few have lived on flour, beans and bacon.

Unless, however, the Stickine-Teslin railway is built in time this summer the trouble will be repeated next winter, only on a larger scale owing to the vase crowds that will come in.

"I notice that there is a big effort in Parliament to frustrate the Government's plans as to the immediate construction of that road. Certainly the opposition are assuming a terrible responsibility if they succeed in preventing the completion of that road before the ice closes the Lewes and Yukon.'

CARRANZA AWAY.

Montreal, June 29.—It is ascertained that Lieut. Carranza left town very quietly on Monday, but his route or present whereabouts it is impossible to ascertain. Senor Du Bosc, his associate, is still in the city.

J. E. Dalrymple, assistant to the general traffic manager of the G. T. R., goes to Toronto to-night to relieve agent, who is to take six weeks' va- Arthur White, district passenger cation on account of ill health. Mr. White will go to Caledonia Springs.

REWARD OF $500.

London, June 29.—A reward of $500 has been offered for the capture of the wooden-legged murderer of Policeman Twohey.

The horse stolen by the fugitive was found two miles east of Petrolea to-day.

The man was seen yesterday near Marthaville.

NEW ENGINE OF WAR.

London, June 29.—The Daily Mail publishes this morning an interview with Lieut. Grandon, describing his alleged invention of a torpedo system that will revolutionize naval warfare, increasing the range of torpedo boats to 6,000 yards with aerial torpedoes, charged with an explosive more powerful than dynamite.

He asserts that he has a letter from President McKinlye promising to investigate the system.

TO MEET IN HAMILTON.

Montreal, June 29.—The Canadian Electrical Association this morning accepted an invitation from the Cataract Power Company to meet next year in Hamilton.

The committee on legislation reported against the system of municipal competition in private companies.

THE VISIT TO SEATTLE.

Victoria, June 29.—Lieut.-Colonel Prior, M.P., commanding the Fifth Regiment, publishes a letter to the employing public of Victoria and Vancouver, in which he sets forth the cordial relations between Britain and the United States, announces the two days visit of the Fifth to Seattle on July 3 and 4, and appeals to the employers to grant the holiday to their men.

GAUDAUR THE FAVORITE.

Vancouver, June 29.—Great preparations have been made for Dominion Day celebrations. The city will hold holiday on Friday and Saturday. The great event will be the rowing race for the championship of the world, and the presence of five war ships from Esquimalt. The betting favors Gaudaur against Johnston, the challenger.

HE HAS QUIT.

Montreal, June 29.—A. H. Harris, general traffic manager of the Government System of Railways, to-day denied the persistent reports that he had been dismissed, but he admitted that he had resigned.

He adds that he leaves on the best of terms with all the officials, from the Minister down, and that the office here is being closed on account of difficulties in running the road on a commercial basis, it being apparent to all that it is impossible to divest the line of political influence.

THE OFFICE ABOLISHED.

Ottawa, June 29.—The position of traffic manager of the Intercolonial Ry. has been abolished, and his office in Montreal will be closed.

TO MAKE A SORTIE

Spaniards Preparing to Attack U. S. Troops

One of the most vexed problems which have arisen in connection with the attack upon the Philippines is the attitude of Germany. It is apparent that that irresponsible and juvenile ruler, the Emperor William, is aching to emulate "my late lamented grandfather" and do a little blood and iron work on his own account, though all the world known that he is as competent for the task as Polichinello to write an epic poem. On no other theory can his action in assembling a fleet of seven warships in Manila Bay be explained. As Germany has no interests of great importance in the Philippines, Rear Admiral Dewey is quite entitled to regard the presence of Prince Henry of Prussia and the German vessel as a piece of unpertinent meddling, and we rather admire his testy warning that they had better keep out of the way if they don't wish to be hurt. The London correspondent of the New York Tribune, a reliable journal, suggests as the only imaginable explanation of the Emperor's impudent folly and the absurdity of a weak fleet like that of Camara being sent to the Philippines, that there is an agreement between Spain and Germany whereby the latter will take sides against the Americans when the squadron arrives. Though the theory is incredible many people would not be surprised if the Kaiser played the role of an unwished-for mediator and was severely snubbed in consequence. As to Camara's fleet it is extremely probable that difficulty in coaling at Port Said and the reported equipment of an eastern squadron by the United States will form an admiring excuse for its return to Cadiz.

SPANISH SPY SYSTEM.

With the Army near Santiago, June 29.—A Cuban spy sent out by General Shafter three days ago was successful in penetrating the Spanish lines and reaching the heart of the city of Santiago, where he remained during Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, gleaning many valuable facts regarding the state of the inhabitants and garrison.

He reports that troops from interior towns and villages are arriving in Santiago every day, most of them bearing signs of having had severe fighting with the rebels on their way. He calculates that there are at least 30,000 soldiers in and immediately around the city and that thye are not seriously pressed for necessary supplies, though wanting in many articles of luxury and comfort.

General Linares, who is in command, has the reputation of being a skilful and efficinet officer, and his men have every confidence that he will do all that can be done to resist the American advance without risking their lives more than is requisite. Already the main thoroughfares of Santiago atre being barricaded with waggons, empty casks, furniture and piles of scrap iron, so that in case the Americans carry the defences desperate street fighting will take place. In addition to this all the houses outside the walls for a distance of 1,000 yards have been burned or razed to the ground, so as not to afford the [illegible] shelter to an American advance from the fire of the rifles and gatlings placed on the bastions.

The most important news brought out by the spy was that the Spaniards are making preparations for a sortie upon the American army. General Linares in person will lead 3,000 picked men upon a midnight expedition, hoping to surprise General Shafter's troops, inflict gtreat damage upon them and get back to the city before sufficient men can be assembled to check his retreat. On this account General Shafter has tripled and in some cases quadrupled the outposts, and has issued orders to observe the greatest vigilance.

WHY HOBSON IS RETAINED.

New York, June 29.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: The Spanish Government and Captain-General Blanco are equally disposed to exchange the Merrimac prisoners; in fact an authorization to exchange them was telegraphed to General Blanco, but Havana and Madrid newspapers affected to believe it would be dangerous to liberate men who had been so close to defences of Santiago. Accordingly the Government insisted on Gen. Blanco, Gen. Linares and Admiral Cervera refusing to exchange. Lieut. Hobson and the other prisoners are believed to be safe as long as Linares and Cervera can control the situation. The only danger is from the volunteers.

WILL ENFORCE NEUTRALITY.

London, June 28.—The British Government has assured the Administration at Washington, through Ambassador Hay, that the neutrality laws shall be strictly enforced in relation to the Suez canal.

Communications have been passing between the British Foreign Office through Lord Cromer, the British Resident at Cairo, and the Egyptian Government regarding the coaling problem, and permission to coal was refused upon the request of the American consul. Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American Embassy, was at the House of Commons, where he had interviews with the Government leader, Arthur Balfour, and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

The canal convention provides in relation to ships of belligerents that "their stay at Port Said and in the roadstead at Suez shall not exceed twenty-four hours except in case of distress, and in such case they shall be bound to leave as soon as possible."

The Spanish fleet has now been in Port Said that period, entitling the United States to demand its expulsion or detention.

Sir Charles Dilke said last night—"I am not at all clear that the Spanish fleet is not entitled to take coal in the canal. My impression is that when these neutrality laws were last in practical operation, during the Russo-Turkish war, Russian ships were allowed to coal there."

Sir Charles said that everything depended on the interpretation of the words "strictly necessary." It may be deemed "strictly necessary" that they should get coal to carry them on their journey."

This view, however, is not generally held.

EXTENDING THE BLOCKADE.

Washington, June 28.—The President has issued a proclamation extending the blockade of Cuba to the southern coast from Cape France to Cape Cruz inclusive, and also blockading San Juan, Porto Rico.

Neutral vessels lying in any of the ports to which the blockade is extended will be allowed thirty days to issue therefrom with cargo.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH JUNE 30 1898

THE TWO SQUADRONS

The Camera movement towards the Phillipines and the Watson dash for the Spanish coast, both look more like pyrotechnics than war. The report that Admiral Camera is tied up at Port Said endinpg the decision of the question, whether he should be should be permitted to coal there or not, is a discouraging comment on the probable effectiveness and speed of the "dash.' There was a time when ships and men might have been sent to Manila with a reasonable certainty of success. but with the Spanish garrison practically unable to keep back the insurgents any longer, and with reinforcements sailing from San Francisco every day or two for Dewey, it looks as if Admiral Camara would have a hard nut to crack when his arduous voyage is over. The theory that he sailed for Manila because it was necessary to asil somewhere to keep the Spanish people quet, does not appear so wildly improbable in the face of the actual circumstances as it might. His giving of battle in the Philippine waters will be largley a matter of choice, for it is not likely that Admiral Dewey will attack him with his lighter armoured vessels.

or does the carefully heralded sailing of Admiral Watson's squadron squadron look much like business. The pains taken by the American Government to announce its coming departure long before i t could possibly leave American waters —when even the colliers are yet to be loaded —wears the appearance of a summons to the Camara squadron to come back and guard the Peninsula. Undoubtedly the day that the Camara fleet emerges from the Suez Canal, the anxieties of the Washington Government will icrease. There will be an instant outcry for the despatch of heavier ships to the support of Dewey —no easy task with the Nicaragua Canal still on paper. Consequently they would undoubtedly like to keep the Cadiz squadron at Cadiz, or, it could come ovver to Cuba where there are plenty of American ships to take care of. Then if Admiral Watson gets to the coast of Spain, what is he going to do? The bombardment of unfortified towns is against international law. and the bombardment of fortified of fortified places is dangerous, particularly by a fleet far from its base of supplies. Moreover, any attack on Spain would only arouse the war spirit of the Spanish people, thus lightening the task of the rulers who now are hard put to it to gain popular support for their war policy.

Toronto "Telegram"—The Trent Valley Canal, if it is to giveevery owner of 221 acres in Peterboro' county a $20,000 claim against the government for land damages, will be a greater producer of money than several big crops of wheat at war prices.

One of the most amusing things which the war between the United States and Spain has brought about is that all the newspapers of Venezuela are abusing the United States to the utmost of their ability, with one exception, a paper published in English by an Englishman.

Were Canada annexed to the United States she she would certainly have to bear her share of what bids fair to be one of the world's great navies. Is it fair to the empire that defends us—still more, is it fair to ourselves, is it consonant with nation al self-respect, that we should do nothing?

Lieutenant Hobson wrote an article in 1894 in which he pictured the downfall of Great Britain before the allied powers of Europe. To-day he is a captive of war in a Spanish prison, the only friend who calls to comfort him being the British Consul at Santiago while his country owes her immunity from the intervention fo European [illegible] will of great Britain. He is learning by hard experience that first impressions are not always the best.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be desccribed as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Write for catalogue No. 30, to the Columbia Phonograph Company, No. 313 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

GEN. SHAFTER TO THE FRONT

Juragur, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Monday, June 27, per the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, 6 p. m., via Kingston, June 28, 10 a. m.—At about 2 o'clock this afternoon, Major General Shafter, in command of the United States army of infantry, arrived here on board the transports Seguranca from Baiquiri with Colonel John Jacob Astor, Captain Stewart Brice and Lieutenants Milay and Noble and his staff. He was met by General Bates, who was superintending the landing of the commissary supplies in the surf.

Gen. Shafter rode through the town, surveying the scene of the landing operations and the camps of the troops. He halted for a moment before the cottage which serves as headquarters of the Cuban insurgents, where Generals Garcia and Castillo paid their respects to the American commander.

About an hour later General Shafter struck on the road to the front in order to consel with General Wheeler and the division commanders, and look over the field of operations before Santiago de Cuba. The General said he would probably return to the Juragua headquarters to-night. Permanent hospital arrangements are to be provided at Juragua at once.

TROUBLE FOR SAMPSON

London, June 28.—The Star to-day prints a story from a foreign correspondent to the effect that part of Admiral Camara's fleet left him off Olgeciras, near Gibraltar, and is now on its way to Porto Ricco to join the squadron of torpedo boats, which Captain Vallamil has had concealed near there for three weeks past.

The correspondent adds.—This fleet will attack Admiral Sampson in the rear, while Admiral Cervera attempts a sortie, simultaneously with the land battle.

Thus Admiral Sampson will be too much proccupied to help General Shafter.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA

Madrid, June 28, 4 p.m.—The Government has received the following despatch from Captain-General Augustin, dated from Manila on June 23rd. "The situation is still grave. I continue to maintain my position inside the line of blockhouses; but the enemy is increasing in numbers as the rebels occupy the provinces, which are surrendering..

Torrential rains are inundating the intrenchments, rendering the work of defence difficult. The number of sick among the troops is increasing, making the situation very distressing and causing increased desertions of the native soldiers. It is estimated that the insurgents number 30,000 armed with rifles and 100,000 armed with swords, etc.

Aguinaldo has summoned me to surrender, but I have treated his proposals with disdain, for I am resolved to maintain the sovereignty of Spain and the honor of the flag to the last extremity. I have over one thousand sick and 20 wounded. The citadel has been invaded by the surbuban inhabitants, who have abandoned their homes, owing to the barbarity of the rebels. These inhabitants constitute an embarrassment, aggravating the situation, in view of the bombardment, which, however, is not seriously apprehended for the moment.

TO THE PHILIPPINES.

New York, June 28.—The First Regiment New York Volunteers, composed of the 10th Battalion of Albany, and eight separate companies, have received orders from Washington to proceed to San Francisco and thence to the Philippines.

CERVERA'S SEAMEN AT WORK.

Off Santiago de Cuba, Monday, June 27, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 28.—A bulletin issued by Admiral Sampson to the fleet says it appears a considerable part of the damage done to the American troops on Friday was from machine guns manned by seamen.

Lieut. Blue of the Suwanee has made another trip ashore, almost up to the enemy's batteries, and has obtained valuable information for the use of the fleet.

Washington, June 28.—The Navy Department to-day posted the following bulletin. "Admiral Sampson reports that the Yale arrived yesterday and discharged her troops. Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul, reports that on Wednesday afternoon while off San Juan, Porto Rico, he was attacked by a Spanish unprotected cruiser, and the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror. The Terror made a dash which was awaited by the St. Paul. The St. Paul hit the Terror three times, killing one officer and two men and two men wounding several others. The Terror dropped back under cover oft he fortifications with difficulty, and was towed in a sinking condition into the harbor, where she is now being repaired. Later a cruiser and a gunboat started out, but remained un-

GERMANY IS INTRIGUING.

Madrid, June 28.—It is said that France and Russia are much displeased to discover that Germany has stolen a marcch on them, taking advantage of Spain's embarrassment to pave the way for drawing her into the triple allianece.

When Premier Sagasta selected the Duke of Almodovar for Foreign Minister, diplomatic circles in Madrid surmised that the Pope and Austria had pulled wires for the appointment, and the accomplished nobleman's intimacy with the German Ambassador, Von Radowitz, was well known. Radowitz, who passes as an out and out friend of Spain, is in high favor at court and with the aristocracy, and especially the Liberal section.

Since then, rumors of German action in the way of intervention in the war have steadily increased, and now the frequency of the Duke's conferences with the German and Austrian ambassadors has attracted notice. Germany and Austria are not expected to show their hands until the progress of the war invites it, and not at all if Spanish reverses bring on internal strife.

Germany has cleverly allowed Spain to understand that she cannot interfere during the war without deranging her own deep-laid plans in other important directions, above all in Africa and Egypt.

The German Emperor's policy is to play France and England against one another until the time comes either to crush France again, with Spain as an ally, on the Pyrenees, or to side with France and Russia in a commercial war against England all over the world, but particularly in Africa and the far East. Germany is baiting France now with the hope that Germany will, first minimize the consequences of war with America, offering, if necessary, her joint protectorate over the philippines and her financial guarantee for the indemnity, and then assist in restoring the prestige of Alfonso and the monarchy. This would upset all the French and English designs against the German empire.

WHY MANILA HOLDS OUT.

Hong Kong; June 28.—Gen. Aguinaldo, according to letters brought here from Cavite by a German steamer, occupies the mansion of the late Governor of Imus to make room for the American troops. The insurgents now have 5,000 prisoners. A hundred and eighty-seven of the Spanish wounded have been sent to Manila with a flag of truce by permission of Admiral Dewey.

The Spanish Brigadier Moret was killed at San Fernardo in an attempt to force the rebel line.

An Americcan official at Cavite writes as follows.—

"Ifg reat bloodshed and destruction come to Manila, Spain may justly blame the Germans. Manila would have surrendered before the arrival of the German squadron without bloodshed, but now, owing to the moral support of its presencce, the city refuses to surrender."

A CHANGE OF OPINION.

London, June 28.—The St. James Gazette, this afternoon commenting upon the prospect of an American force attacking the coast of Spain, says. "The reception of the news evidences a change in public opinion which at the commencement of the war, thought Europe should notify the United States that the war must be confined to American waters. It is now recognized that the Americans are fully entitled to make war in their own way. and they are indeed driven to retaliate upon Spain in this manner owing to the tactics which Spain has chosen to pursue."

THE QUEEN WILL ABDICATE.

London, June 28.—There is little doubt in English political circles that the abdication of the Queen Regent of Spain is being seriously discussed in Madrid. It has been stated by many that there is no precedent for such a course, but general conversation among those who are competent to speak shows that history furnishes many instances amlost on a par with the present one

The case of King Charles Albert of Sardinia offers almost a parallel to that of the Queen Mother. Fifty years ago this monarch was defeated by the Austrians, and preferred to abdicate rather than submit to the harsh conditions imposed by a victorious foe who were at the gates of his capital. The king was face to facce with a distracted parliament, an exhausted treasury, and a people on the verge of revolution, conditions practically analogous to those confronting the present ruler of Spain, whose surrender of the monarchy to the Infanta Isabella has frequently been announced, and is certain to taek place before peace is restored. hCristina has sworn not to conens: to any decrease in her son's dominions byt he surrender of territory. So strong is her sense of honor that sooner than break her promise she would give up the regency. Besides, she is disliked by the Spanish people, and hopes that by removing herself from their view she may turn public wrath from the little king's head, believing that the Spaniards will submit to the inevitable with far more grace if the terms of peace were arranged bya heegnt of Spanish blood, like the Infanta, than if they were arranged by herself, a foreigner.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton Recalls Some Incidents of the Closing Days of the War—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill In Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods.

The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house.

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard.

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child.

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity.

"Penned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother.

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side.

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother.

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him.

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man.

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you.

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest nighbors.

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days.

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington.

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig.

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion.

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, us likes the rector; 'is ears are so clean." Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, "You are all so plain" (a word of high commendation), "but as for the vicar, 'e's beautiful." The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness, "What I likes 'bout the bishop is 'e's not a gentleman."—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Huk wandering in the far interior of Asia.

FRENCH SUSPICION.

IT HAS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN THE COUNTRY'S HISTORY.

In France the Element of Suspicion Has Reached the Preternatural and Is No New Thing—How It Influenced the Actions of Robespierre.

At all the great crises of French life the element of preternatural suspicion has played an important part. Like some mischievous Puck it hovers over the land, whispering doubts here, misgivings there, converting the whole nation into mouchards, whose business it is to set a watch on their neighbors day and night. We have such a profound admiration for many qualities of the French people, such a sincere belief in the necessity of a powerful French factor in the complex mesh of modern civilization, that we can afford to bring this charge of undue suspicion against France as a whole. No student of French history can fail to see the confusion it has wrought. It is not the growth of yesterday, but it is almost as evident in the memoirs of the France of the seventeenth century as on the Paris boulevards at the present moment.

It pervaded the court and the official classes in the time of Richelieu, it was constantly present in the mind of Mazarin when negotiating with Cromwell, and it is visible all through the pages of the memoirs of De Retz. This spirit of preternatural suspicion naturally attained its climax in the French revolution, when, for the first time, the monarchy was involved in its infinite entanglements.

From the moment when the national assembly met at Versailles to the day when Napoleon was banished to Elba universal suspicion filled the air and dictated the cruel aspect of French policy. The queen was, of course, suspected, and justly, in political matters, and perhaps it was not altogether unreasonable that the suspicion in which she was enveloped should have attached to her weak but perfectly honest husband, who was assumed to be absolutely under her fatal influence.

The attack on the Bastille was animated not merely by memories of the past, not in the least because of actual cruelties at the time, for there was none, but mainly because it was suspected that the Bastille was to be utilized as an armed fortress to overawe Paris. The day of the "black cockades" and the march of the Maenads (to use Carlyle's graphic phraseology) were due to excited suspicion. The assembly had scarcely organized itself before the demon of suspicion spread its dusky wings over that body, and Mirabeau and Barnave, at first popular idols, became suspected of intrigue with the court. The vigorous personalities who came to the front all suspected one another. To them the famous warning which Benjamin Franklin addressed to the founders of the American republic, "Gentlemen, we must hang together or we shall hang separately," would have been useless. They could not hang together, and they did hang, or were guillotined, separately. It was Danton's suspicion of an aristocratic plot which caused the September massacres. It was pure suspicion that created the most revolting and unjust of all the revolutionary excesses, the tribunal of Fouquier-Tinville. Danton in his turn was suspected and fell.

We may, of course, justify the suspicion of Dumouriez, but what possible explanation can be given of the suspicion of the harmless astronomer Bailly, with his precisian virtues, who paid with his head for the dangerous folly of meddling with things he did not understand? It was obviously a question of war to the knife between Jacobin and Girondin, for each took an absolutely different view of both foreign and internal politics; but why could not the struggle have been confined to party warfare within the walls of the convention? Why was it necessary to decimate the Girondin chiefs? The only answer that can be made is that suspicion had grown to such a pitch that the very existence of Girondism was considered incompatible with the security of the republic. Men had become frenzied, insane, through constant spying on one another's actions and perpetual attempts to fathom one another's inward thoughts, and the "law of suspects" was simply a formal expression of national craziness. That way madness lies. In the person of Robespierre preternatural suspicion attained its most complete incarnation. His feline nature was ever on the dart for its prey. He could not bear a good word said of any man but he instantly began to revolve in his mind the question as to whether there were not some concealed motive in the praise. The shout of triumphant relief which reverberated over France when Robespierre's head fell into the basket marked the break of the straining point of that suspicion which had created and sustained the terror. When we remember that but for an accident Carnot would have fallen a victim to Robespierre's suspicions and that this suspicious disposition had led a man of sentimental virtue to become a wholesale murderer, we can understand that feeling of relief.—London Spectator.

Nothing to Work On.

"Fellows, I tried to get that blooming mind readah, don't you know, to come up to the club some evening and give us one of his deuced queeah entertainments. By Jove, he said he couldn't come."

"Did he give any reason, deah boy?"

"Why, he said he couldn't make a success of his efforts where there wasn't any material to work on."

"I wonder what the deuce he meant by that?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

"I think not."

"Well, good-by."

Stella retired to her room; her rain was thronged by conflicting houghts. Her happiness and joy beause she had won Walter Derwent's ove were clouded and obscured by he alarming appearance on the scene f the escaped felon.

"Oh, that I had the courage to tell Walter the truth!" she said, clasping er hands across her brow and resessly pacing the floor. Fever raged through every vein, and still cold shivers ran over her at the recollection of Croft's words.

"May you never have cause to ask forgiveness on your own account."

The sentence seemed prophetic. She shuddered over the thought of how she must one day sue for pardon if Walter Derwent ever discovered the deception she had practiced upon him. Still she felt that she had done no wrong.

"If it had been my own father," she said, "I should have told him all."

She loved him so well that it seemed as though her life's happiness was bound up in a casket of which he held the key.

"I could never see him again if he knew," she said. "I shall conceal the story as long as I live."

Oh! how bitter in after years became the memory of that day.

CHAPTER XXII.

Of course Nina was as anxious as Pettus for the next time of meeting. The West Indian was of an age when girls are usually full of romance, and delights in little secrets and mystery.

Her knowledge of the world was not great enough to impress her with the trtuh of the old saying, "No man who respects a woman will ever invite her to a clandestine interview."

Sunday morning was the only time she could be certain was her own, so the following Sabbath morning she aid the pictures in her shopping-bag and set out for the place of meeting.

On this occasion Jeffrey Pettus had no carriage engaged. He did not intend to keep up his acquaintance with Nina when he once got possession of the portraits.

He met her, however, with all the gallant devotion he could assume, complimenting her highly on her charming appearance, and expressing his joy at beholding her.

"I brought the pictures," she said, "and one other paper. It does not seem like a letter, but I brought it along, in case you would like to have it."

She handed him the contents of the bag.

"Your old pictures, ain't they?" she said; "and here is the paper."

The letter proved to be a marriage certificate.

Jeffrey Pettus' eyes glistened. He had examined the packet he had received from Nina on the other occasion, and this made the evidence complete. He smiled till his sallow face seemed one mass of wrinkles.

Silly Modern Magic.

It would be quite wrong to conclude that the crystal sphere is discredited among the faithful. Large numbers are sold every year—few, by comparison, with the parchment talismans, of course, and for excellent reasons. In the first place, the parchment worn next the skin requires periodical renewal; in the next, the crystal ball will last forever, and is, moreover, expensive. The genuine article—real crystal—may cost as much as £30, but that is a luxury only accessible to the wealthy and earnest prober into the future; for 15 shillings or a guinea you may possess yourself of a composition or glass ball nicely served up in a morocco case lined with satin like a jeweler's casket, and this will answer the purpose equally well. They are usually made perfect spheres, but if you prefer it egg shaped you can order an "ovoid crystal."

I understand that astrology recognises no difference in the relative merits of the two forms. The chief essential to success in using the crystal ball is great concentration. A north light is recommended, for reasons I am unable to explain, but is not absolutely necessary. You recline in an easy attitude, hold the ball up to the light, and center your mind upon it until you see something; that which you see is going to happen. My knowledge of this particular matter is so slender that I will say no more about it.

That crystal balls have their sincere believers would seem to be proved by the prices they command. The richest man or woman does not pay 30 sovereigns for a sphere of crystal the size of a lawn tennis ball unless he or she confidently anticipates some return for the money.—Chambers' Magazine.

He Had a Record.

A person who was bargaining for a mule in southwest Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, lively creetur?"

"I reckon he air," replied the young man. "He kicked ded through a circus tent, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and throwed a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin!"—Atlanta Constitution.

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scene In the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense usher called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant" —or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was— advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives' hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 25 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the nighest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louis

IF LOVE WERE OTHER THAN PERFECT

If love were other than a perfect thing,
Love were no gain, but only all a grief,
And better were to check its blossoming
Ere one poor bud could struggle into leaf
To fill it in the spring,
If love were other than a perfect thing.

If love were other than most sweet of all,
Love were the bitterest gift of bitter fate,
And better were to spurn beyond recall
Its magic cup more perilous than hate.
Its sweetness were but gall,
If love were other than most sweet of all.

If love were other than the love of you,
Love were a poverty, and nothing worth,
And all the task that memory had to do
Would be to loathe the hour that gave it birth.
Love were not sweet nor true
If love were other than the love of you.

But love is love, and you are you, and I
Am I that dare to love you with a will,
Knowing that love is perfect, true and high,
And always greater than its greatest ill;
Knowing it cannot die,
Since love is love of you, and I am I.

THE C. W. A. MEET

Great Interest and Keen Rivalry Manifested in the Different Events

The full list of entries for the C.W.A. meet races to-morrow and Saturday is now to hand, and is interesting as showing the great interest and keen rivalry that has arisen in the events within the past few days. hTe amateur contestants are as follows Alf. Sherritt, Axton, Smith, Muir, Mott, Brantford; Moore, French, Coleman, Moore, Wilson, Harrington, Crashley, Kempt, Shortt, Anstey, Westrop, W. J. Vennels, Simpson, A. H. Vennels, Abbott, Hancock, Chapman, Attock, Hughes, Smith, Blaylock, Gascoyne, Barnett, Falconer, Robinson, Toronto; McKeaud, Thomson, Barnes, Butterfield, Ripley, Hamilton, Stackhouse, Wilson, Mulhall, Baldwin, Ottawa; Reid, London; Highley, Blyth; Powell, Kingston; Dyment, Barrie, Wilson, Perth; Boulter, Picton; Mounsell, Roidis, Port Hope; Kelly, Beaverton; Davidson, Walker, Peterborough; Martin, Callaghan, Bell, Lindsay; Riddle, Winnipeg; Little, Woodstock.

The professionals are: Lougheed, McLeod, McCarthy, Richardson, Blackwell, Westbrooke, Carman, Tucker, Hutchins, Middleton, Davidson and Marshall, the latter of Bracebridge.

Some of the amateur events will have over 40 starters, and will have to be run in heats. The professional field, too, is just large enough to make interesting sport for the spectators.

The bicycle clubs or Toronto, says the Globe of yesterday, have united their efforts to bring a big crowd to town in the old and proper manner for the C.W.A. meet. A special train, via the Canadian Pacific Railway, will leave the Union Station at 9 p. m. sharp and arrive here at 11 p. m., enabling those who desire to get a night's sleep before the day's work of the 1st to do so in the right way. Among the clubs who will have official representation on the train are the Athenaeums, Wanderers, Royal Canadians, Ramblers, Tourists, Gendrons and Queen City. hTis should be a sufficient guarantee that the fun and refreshment on board will start from the time the special train pulls out of the station. It should be borne in mind that no special trains will leave Toronto on the morning of the 1st of July and that the regular trains do not reach Peterborough until nearly noon. Everbody should get away on the "All-Toronto Bicycle Clubs'" special and be in time to get a good start in the day's fun and sport.

THE NEW GRAND STAND

Mr. T. A. S. Hay, Constructing Engineer, who Furnished the Plans, Reports as to the Finished Structure

F. H. Dobbin, Esq., Secretary C.W.A. Meet Committee, Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—I beg to report as follows re grand stand at driving park. hTe committee have approved of my plan for new open stand 150 feet long, the contract being given to Mr. Thos. McKee.

The contract for rebuilding the east end of the old stand was awarded to Mr. James Montgomery.

hTe east half having been found on examination unsafe it was decided to remove all old material, which was done and that part is now entirely new.

Since completion of both contracts I have carefully examined the structures and have much pleasure in certifying that the contractors have carried out the plan and instructions in a most satisfactory manner and provided the committee with a first-class, substantial grand stand, capable of sustaining more than double the weight required.

Yours truly,

T. A. S. HYA, C. E.

In addition to the above the committee wish to state that the grand stand as planned by Mr. Hay is a most commodious structure. The aisles are broad and ample seating room is allowed. A number of staircses have been provided, making easy access to all parts of the stand. From the stand an excellent view can be had of the races from start to finish, and a capital view of the bandstand and platforms. The committee are indebted to the contractors mentioned for doing very excellent work and carrying our faithfully all details.

A STRONG TEAM

Point—Lynch.
Cover Point—Brown.
1st Defence—Jas. McCabe.
2nd Defence—Glover.
3rd Defence—McDonough.
Centre—King.
3rd Home—Hogarth.
2nd Home—John McCabe.
1st Home—Phelan.
Outside Home—Galley.
Inside Home—Victor McWilliams.
Field Captain—M. H. Halpin.

This is a parrticularly strong team and one which should be able to win fresh laurels from the Peterboroughs.

Friday Night's Entertainment

For the entertainment of visitors and citizens the committee of the Wheelmen's Meet have provided an open air entertainment to be given in the driving park, evening of July 1st, Dominion Day. The programme is one especially suitable for such a gathering and will be given by the band of the Athenaeums Cycle Club of Toronto, assisted by local talent and a drum corps of ten of the Queen's Own of Toronto. Programmes will be distributed on the streets Friday morning giving full particulars. All seats in grand stand free for the evening. hTe park will be brilliantly lighted with electric light. The park will be open at 7.15 p.m., concert to begin at 8 p.m. Busses and street cars will be run to the grounds. Wheelmen and ladies can bring their wheels and ride on the track during the evening and with the park in the fine condition it is in here is an opportunity that will not occur again.

Fiske—Miller

There was an exceedingly pretty wedding at the residence of Capt. W. J. Miller, McDonnel street, Wednesday evening. hTe contracting parties were Miss Minnie Miller, the Captain's daughter, and Mr. H. O. Fiske, Superintendent of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. J. Shorey, of the George Street Methodist Church, a number of the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties being interested spectators. The bride entered the parlor leaning on her father's arm, Miss Fiske playing the wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream." She was charmingly attired in a gown of white organdie trimmed with valenciennes lace, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Minnie Jones, was also attired in white organdie and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Ethel Miller, gowned also in white, acted as maid of honor and carried a beautiful basket of roses. Mr. Fred Skitch acted as best man for Mr. Fiske. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was partaken of. Mr. and Mrs. Fiske left on the 12.02 C.P.R. train for a trip to Montreal and the summer resorts of the New England States. The friends of the bride and groom remembered them with many beautiful and handsome presents. Among these was a fancy centre table from the employees of the Light and Power Co's office and an easy rocker from the Peterborough Canoe Co. The groom's present to the bride was an elegant gold watch and chain, to the bridesmaid a beautiful gold jewelled belt, and to the maid of honor a gold bracelet. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fiske will wish them a happy married life.

A LAKEFIELD LADY

Who has Done Good Work for Canada—The Oldest Living British Writer

There is living at Lakefield the voldest living author in the British Empire in the person of Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill, now in the 97th year of her age. Born in England in 1802, the daughter of Thomas Strickland, she wrot eher first work in 1817 at the age of 15. She came to Canada in 1832 and wrote her last book in 18995 at the age of 93. So that this remarkable lady has maintained literary activity for nearly 80 years and her intellect is still bright and keen. She bids fair to outlive the century. Among Mrs. Traill's many works are the following. "The Young Emigrant," "Sketches from Nature," "The Backwoods of Canada," "A Peep Into Canadian Forests," "A Guide for Female Emigrants," "Studies of Plant Life in Canada." Her last works, 'Pearls and Pebbles, or Notes of an Old Naturalist,' and "Cot and Cradle Stories,' were published by Briggs, of Toronto, in 1894 and 1895. It is said that her book, "The Backwoods of Canada," Charles Knight, London, 1835) had a wide circulation and induced many to turn their eyes to Canada. Mrs. Traill, and granddaughter, Miss K. Traill, at 'Westcove,' Lakefield, upon an income barely sufficient to keep them in simple comfort. Unfortunately the death of a few weeks ago of a trusted agent revealed a disastrous state of affairs with regard to Mrs. Traill's investments, so that the income is now greatgly reduced. It is hoped that something may be saved from the wreck. Sir Sandford Fleming, of Ottawa, an old friend, and a committee of ladies and gentlemen have started a movement to recognize Mrs. Traill's unique position in the literary world. The story of her arrival in Canada, where she was struck down the momnet she landed, her battles with poverty, in which she enlisted her pen, writing sketches and stories for magazines; and amid all her domestic and literary cares finding time to study the botany of the country, is intensely interesting and instructive. In 1832 Mrs. Traill married a retired army officer. He died 27 years later, leaving four sons and five daughters.

A Successful Entertainment

'Fanny' Simons' entertainment in the Opera House last night was a howling success. Everybody was there and standing room was at a premium. hTe programme was just what the audience expected—full of fun from start to finish. "Dany" was the bright and shining star and had strong support in his talented sister, Miss Lillie. Dan has entertained Peterborough audiences for years but never did he score a greater success than that of last night. The program could stand repeating at an early date.

SAVE THE CARGO

Madrid, June 30, 2 p. m.—The Governor General of Porto Rico cabled that it will be difficult to save the cargo of the Spanish steamer Antonio Lopez, which was run ashore at Salinas, near the entrance of the harbor of San Juan de Porto Rico to escape the United States auxiliary cruisers St. Louis and St. Paul, which prevented her from landing a cargo of provisions and war material. He explained his inability to save the steamer's cargo by the fact as alleged that an American cruiser is continuously firing upon the stranded vessel.

A Cabinet Council over which the Queen Regent presided was held to-day. The Ministers decline to furnish any information beyond saying that they discussed the war.

TO BE SENT BACK

Lisbon June 30.—It is rumored here that four American warships are on their way to this port.

WARSHIPS TRAVELLING

Del Este, June 23 (delayed in transmission).—It is believed that General Calixto Garcia, whose forces were taken to the East in order to co-operate with the United States army in the capture of Santiago de Cuba, will be sent back with 3,000 of his men to stop the advance of General Pando, the Spanish commander, who with 7,400 troops, many pack horses and a quantity of cattle has arrived at a point 71 miles from Manzanillo, going east towards Santiago de Cuba, according to information which reached the flagship New York today from Col. Rios in command of the Cuban camp. General Pando started from Manzanillo on June 22nd, and is travelling at the rate of 12 miles a day. The distance to Santiago de Cuba is 127 miles, and the roads leading there are rough and difficult to travel. The Cubans now opposing General Pando only number about 200 men.

DENIES THE REPORT.

One of the most startling reports since the declaration of war, is to the effect that the United States, prior to the declaration of war, possessed very meagre information respecting the coast of the island they were going to invade, but that the Navy board now have the most complete and accurate charts of the Cuban coast line, thanks to the British Admiralty. It is incredible that the United States, having at her doors an island which for half a century she has been on the closest terms of commercial intimacy, her trading vessels passing to and fro to all points all the year round, should be compelled to go abroad for the information requisite to conduct a campaign. Besides American filibusterers have been surreptitiously carrying supplies to the Cuban insurgents for twenty years, and performing work which required, above all things, a full knowledge of the Cuban coast, and it is safe to say that from among these enterprising gentry the American navy would not only have been able to obtain recent charts, but also competent pilots, to every accessible part of the Cuban coast. Up to the present Great Britain has shown herself severely neutral, resisting infringement of the laws whether by Americans or Spaniards. It must likewise be remembered that the ruler of the Queen's navy is not Mr. Chamberlain, but Mr. Goschen, a gentleman who is not likely to be led into so grave a breach of neutrality by Anglo-American sentiment, as the former might be. The story must then be accredited to one of the many Baron Munchausens of hte war epoch, and placed side by side with one equally absurd that Shafter's army will go to Porto Rico after the fall of Santiago, leaving the city to take care of itself, until the Spaniards resume possession.

THE STORY IS ABSURD.

London, June 30—Right Hon. J. G. Goschen, First Lord of the British Admiralty, was interviewed this morning respecting a report that the American navy, had, prior to the commencement of the war, been furnished by the English government with complete charts of the coasts of Cuba and Porto Rico, and that the government was exercising considerable influence in the direction of the war. Mr. Goschen characterized the story as most absurd, stating that the American navy board, owing to the proximity of the islands to the United States, and the intercourse carried on between them, for so many years, was in a much better position than England for obtaining information for use in the war. As to the statement that Great Britain was influencing the method of carrying on operations, it was ridiculously untrue. Great Britain had observed, and would continue to observe, the strictest neutrality.

A GIGANTIC CONSPIRACY.

Washington D.C., June 30.—Serious dissensions have arisen between President McKinley and his Cabinet in connection with the handling of troops now before Santiago. It is known that the President was anxious to place General Miles at the head of the invading army, but Secretary of War Alger decidedly objected to General Shafter being superseded, and he was supported by a majority of the Cabinet. General Miles informed me to-day that he was in no way responsible for differences that may have occurred, but that as soon as he can make the necessary arrangements he will go to Cuba and take charge of the forces with General Shafter as his principal aide. Secretary Alger, however, claims that General Miles will not take command, and that his duties of arranging for transportation will hold him here until after Santiago has fallen, and that he will not go to Porto Rico for similar reasons.

Around the White House to-day there is grave talk of almost gigantic swindle alleged to have been perpetrated on the United States Administration, the conspirators including prominent officials, one of them a member of the Senate, others being army contractors manufacturers of arms, and a number of officers of both the army and navy. It is said that the supplies furnished to the Santiago expedition while at Tampa, Fla., were away below the standard, and immensely short in quantity. It is further alleged that a large quantity of the new arms supplied the 10,000 soldiers now in Jacksonville are defectiev, the hammers and firing pins being so brittle as to break off when the weapon is exploded. A protest has been received here, and an investigation will be held. It is openly stated that certain high officials both in the army and nayv have accepted big commissions for their influence in holding troops and ships at certain points for the benefit of the contractors and that the railway companies have also paid large sums in order to get these officials to move from place to place when it was unnecessary. It is claimed that the conspirators have netted over $3,000,000 and that the stealing is still going on. A formal report will be presented to President McKinley this week.

New York, June 30—A despatch to The World, from Madrid, says; The rumored coming of an American fleet to the peninsula, has caused alarm, although the authorities try to conceal the fact. Especially is this the case on the coasts in the north of Spain, where the defences are nowhere complete except at Ferrol, where there is an arsenal. All the other ports there are protected only by ancient citadels and forts equipped with equally venerable cannon. In consequence of the report the annual influx of visitors to the fashionable watering places there will not take place. More than fifty ports between the boundary of Portugal and the French frontier will suffer. Even in San Sebastian, the summer residence of the court, half of the houses and villas are tenantless, as it has been officially intimated that the queen and king will remain in Madrid until the end of the war.

TORPPEDO DEFENCE.

Serious resistance might be expected by an American fleet at Ferrol, Cadiz, Corunna, Algercietrras, Ceuta, Barcelona, and Cartagena, both from fortifications and mines. Torpedoes have been prepared and carefully planted at these points in the last two months. Spain has also about twenty torpedo boats of 120 tons each, manned by crews and officers trained in torpedo schools. Pilots are required in order to enter the ports of Bilbao and Algercierras, owing to the submarine defences. The Spanish arsenals are fences. The Spanish arsenals are working night and day to get the second reserve fleet ready. Six thousand sailors of the reserve list and 300,000 reserves have been called out; both classes have been trained for two years. All of the principal garrisons including those on the Balearic islands, have been reinforced, mostly with artillery, of which Spain has 17 regiments.

PEACE PARTY GROWING.

The peace party is gaining ground daily in the middle and working classes, particularly in the provinces.

The authorities in Barcelona report imposing demonstrations and manifestoes by the Chamber of Commerce, economical societies, trades unions, employers of labor, winegrowers and even the shipping and banking interests.

The same sentiment is strong in Andalusia, Biscay, Arragoin and Castile.

This makes more striking the contrast between the material interests of financial, commercial and landed classes, and a certain class of politicians in Madrid who affect to believe in the possible prolongation of the war, on the principal that Spain, having virtually lost her colonies, cannot lose much more, but can inflict more damage upon her adversary than she can incur.

It is highly significant, however, that the prospects and possible conditions of peace are now freely discussed, even in the Madrid press and political circles. The diplomatic corps and courtiers think that peace will be imminent the moment when the fall of Santiago and Manila will allow either the present cabinet or its successor, to propose it, provided the United States government does not make terms so harsh as to play unconsciously inot the hands of the Carlists, Republicans and other parties eager for revoluttion and civil war.

SPAIN'S STATESMEN WANT PEACE

London June 30—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says Captain-General Augusti has renewed his request for permission to promise the Philippine insurgents extensive reforms. Now that the Cortes is closed it is understood that Senor Puigeerver, Minister of Finance, and Senor Gamaso, Minister of Public Instruction and Public Works, desire to resign. Senor Gamaso opposed pursuing the war until Spain is politically and financially ruined. The whole world having recognized her galant sacrifices and traditional bravery, he thinks the government ought to have the moral courage to fix a reasonable limit for national sacrifices.

It is an open secret, that Senor Moret and many other Liberal statesmen share the views of Senor Gamaso. The peace agitation is spreading in the provinces, but not at Madrid.

The goverment has completed its arrangements for coaling and provisioning Admiral Camara's squadron, and he should now be able to reach Manila before the end of July after stopping at several points en route to receive instructions

WHY CAMAR WAS DELAYED.

London, June 30—The Madrid Correspondent of the Times, says; "Ministers deny rumor sof Spain's purchasing cruisers from China or other nations. According to La Imparcial the demand for a cash payment of the canal dues delayed Admiral Camara's squadron.

The dues amounting, we are trustworthily informed, to less than 4000,0000 francs, are now paid. Duke Almedovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, denied in the Council, El Imparcial says, that Italy had refused to coal Admiral Camara.

If the United States imagines that the threat to bombard Spanish ports would induce the Spaniards to recall Camara and to sue for peace, the Americans are bound to be disappointed. The threat has only tended to excite the bulldog qualities of the Spanish national character. When these are aroused, prudence and logic are alike powerless. The peace prospects, therefore, are much less bright than they were a week ago.

CYCLE BOOM COLLAPSES.

Birmingham, England, June 30.—Commercial circles in Birmingham are looking forward to a disastrous reaction from the cycle boom, which attained its zenith a year or two ago. Already the depreciation in capital invested in cycles and accessories within the last twelve months is estimated to represent at least £10,000,000.

The workers have already had a foretaste of the impending collapse. During the hey-day of the boom the Birmingham trade alone found employment for 14,000 or 15,000 men. Night shifts were in operation at most of the factories, and at one period of extreme pressure the hands toiled for sixteen hours at a stretch.

The backwash of events has changed all that. Fully two-thirds of the 14,000 or 15,000 have had to be dismissed, and this number will receive a heavy addition if the anticipated crash comes.

Coventry is also suffering, and in Nottingham the dismissals have been on a wholesale scale. The worker attributes his misfortune to overcapitalization leading to ruthless entrenchment at the behest of shareholders hungering for diivdends.

A CHURCH CONSPIRACY.

London, June 30.—The growing tendency in the Church of England towards ritualism, which by some is said to be a direct return to the tenets of Rome, has been brought before the House of Commons. When the Benefices bill, which proposes to deprive private patrons of their rights in connection with livings came up for discussion, Mr. Samuel Smith of Flintshire, expressed the hope that the Government would seriously consider the alarming growth of Roman Catholic churches in England, and the shameless manner in which Anglican clergymen were breaking their ordination vows.

Sir William Harcourt made the strong statement that there was at present in the Church of England "a conspiracy to overthrow the principles of the Reformation," and that the conspiracy was widely spread and deeply rooted. There could be no stronger ground, he said, upon which the institution of a benefice should be refused than that of the perjury on the part of a man who had taken an oath which publicly and secretly he was violating.

Mr. Balfour said that all parties in the Church of England regretted the practices referred to, as they were productive of much scandal. The present bill, however, was a separate matter. Mr. Smith and Sir William Harcourt were unsuccessful in having an amendment dealing with ritualism adopted.

16,000 RIFLES ESIZED.

London June 29.—As the result of inquiries instituted by the British Government into the amount of arms and ammunition imported into towns on the Persian Gulf by British firms and suspected to have been conveyed to the Afridis during their war with England, it has been found that since November, 1897, when importation was prohibited, with the aid of the Persian authorities, no less than 16,000 rifles all of English make, and 21-2 million rounds of ball cartridges have been seized, consigned to the towns of Muscat and Bushire. The most important seizure was made by H.M.S. Lapwing, which confiscated 4,000 rifles, part of the cargo of the S. S. Baluchistan.

REVOLT AGAINST BELGIUM.

Liverpool, June 29.—Advices received from the Congo, in East Africa, state that the forces of the Free State are engaging in frequent conflicts with rebels. Commandant Dorme fell in with a party of Batetla rebels at Bako and after several hours' fighting compelled them to retreat. There were about 80 killed on the side of the State forces. On January 10 Commandant Dorme again encountered them at Pian [illegible]ikunda, and after severe fighting the Belgians were forced to retire, losing 50 killed. Baron Dhanis is at present at Lokangu from which place he is directing the operations against the rebels, who are about 1,500 strong and well equipped. Commandant S[illegible]n is now following them with a new expedition of State troops of 700 men. The ultimate destination of the rebels is the Nyangwe. The Belgians have now 3,000 men in the Nile valley under 55 European officers. At present they are distinctly within the British sphere of influence, and complications may ensue.

WILL BE INDEPENDENT.

Kingston Jamaica, June 29.—A despatch from Dominica states that at a meeting of the Legislative Assembly the offer of the British Government of financial aid to Dominica in the West Indies on condition that its present constitution be changed to the status of a crown colony was refused by eight votes to six.

PETERBOROUGH JULY 1 1898

IMPERALISM IN THE AIR

The party papers in the States are scenting imperialism in the air, and some of them express anxiety lest the new policy in the republic will lead to some change in the form of administration; To those who are not interested ion the party welfare involved, there seem sno immediate danger of anything of the kind. The Baltimore Sun says editorially, "how would it sound—'President of the United States and King of Hawaii? Other additions may come later on. 'Emperor of the Philippines, Prince of Cuba, Duke of Porto Rico,' etc. There is nothing like getting ready for the surprises which our republican friends at Washington appear to be preparing for the 'American people.'" And even so. What's in a name? The Americans hacve a species of absolute rule over them without feeling it. The Puritans used to object to the word "presbyter" on the ground that it was priest "writ large," and a "President" may be an Emperor in effect.

Blacking.

Liquid blacking, such as is now used, was invented early in the present century. Previously various mixtures were used. There are many allusions in last century literature to shoeblacks and blacking. In the London World of Jan. 31, 1754, Edward Moore, describing the miseries of an author, says that he would rather have started in life as a shoeblack had he but had the money to buy or credit to procure "a stool, brushes and blackball." An old kind of blacking consisted of ivory black, very coarse moist sugar and water, with a little vinegar. A mixture of whale oil and soot was used in Gay's time. The author of "Trivia" has several allusions to the "black youth" who stood at street corners then, as now:

> Hark! The boy calls thee to his destin'd stand,
> And the shoe shines beneath his oily hand.

De Foe makes his Colonel Jack describe himself when a boy as a dirty vagabond, "like a 'Black your shoes, your honor?' a beggar boy, a blackguard boy or what you please, despicable and miserable to the last degree."

Here is another quotation from "Trivia" (1715?):

> His treble voice resounds along the mews,
> And Whitehall echoes, "Clean your honor's > shoes!"

—Notes and Queries.

Quick Journeys Made Now.

A French statistician has just drawn up an interesting document showing at various periods in what time certain frontier towns could be reached from Paris. The years chosen are 1650, 1782, 1834, 1854 and 1897. In 1650 it took five days to go from Paris to Calais. One hundred and thirty-two years later, in 1782, the duration of the journey had been reduced to 60 hours. In 1834 it had fallen to 28 hours and in 1854 to 6 hours 40 minutes. Today one of the boat expresses takes 3 hours 49 minutes.

The journey to Strassburg took 218 hours in 1650, 108 hours in 1792, 10 hours 40 minutes in 1854 and today a matter of 8 hours 20 minutes.

The difference for Marseilles is still more phenomenal. From 15 days in 1650 the duration of the journey was reduced to 80 hours in 1834, and today it takes 19¼ hours. The distance from Paris to Bayonne two centuries ago took 888 hours. Today it occupies 11 hours 11 minutes. Brest can be reached in 13 hours 37 minutes, while in 1650 it took 270 hours. Finally, for Havre, 97 hours was considered quick traveling in 1650. It took 17 hours in 1782 and 17 hours in 1884. Today it is a matter of 3 hours 15 minutes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Chrysanthemum.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisylike flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1860 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1859, when the plants suffered severely from early frosts, that there was any idea of growing it under glass. The Japanese variety was noticed in 1864 as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely ornamental." How little did the author of these remarks suspect what a future was before the plant he so summarily set aside! Three years later, however, we find Japanese varieties recommended with pompom and incurved, and since then they have ever increased in favor.

The gorgeously colored, mopliks blooms now exhibited every autumn would certainly astonish that writer of 90 years ago. The golden and bronze shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" esthetic movement of a few years ago, which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and revived the culture of sunflowers, which were fast becoming extinct in our gardens.—Longman's Magazine.

"Some years ago my hair began to fall out and I became quite bald. I was advised to try

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft,
  Deep in the dusky wood!
Swing thee low and swing aloft—
  Sleep as a papoose should,
For safe in your little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
  If the little papoose is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
  And the owlet hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
  As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
  That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
  Dreaming of hunt and fight,
And the pine leaves rustle with mournful sound
  All through the solemn night;
But the little papoose in his birchen nest
Is swinging low as he takes his rest,
  Till the sun brings the morning light.

THE DERELICT.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float, when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself inboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I knew by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point: next, she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her decks, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her scupper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecastle ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The caboose or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecastle were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuit in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went on deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was noon before I began an examination of the lazarette to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wines, table waters, preserves, boxes of biscuit, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecastle, I found boots, oilskins, sou'-westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,200 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mints. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck, with a wild hope of seeing a sail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and pricked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landsmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could set no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had set a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, lashing and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 80 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta set inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

A Friendly Pointer.

Jinks—What! You don't mean to say you are engaged to the beautiful Miss de Pink?

Blinks—Yes, I do. Got engaged to her last night. This afternoon I am to bring her into town. She wants to go to an optician's, I believe. New pair of glasses or something. She is nearsighted, you know.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

SPANISH SPY SYSTEM.

With the Army near Santiago, June 29.—A Cuban spy sent out by General Shafter three days ago was successful in penetrating the Spanish lines and reaching the heart of the city of Santiago, where he remained during Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, gleaning many valuable facts regarding the state of the inhabitants and garrison.

He reports that troops from interior towns and villages are arriving in Santiago every day, most of them bearing signs of having had severe fighting with the rebels on their way. He calculates that there are at least 30,000 soldiers in and immediately around the city and that thye are not seriously pressed for necessary supplies, though wanting in many articles of luxury and comfort.

General Linares, who is in command, has the reputation of being a skilful and efficinet officer, and his men have every confidence that he will do all that can be done to resist the American advance without risking their lives more than is requisite. Alqready the main thoroughfares of Santiago atre being barricaded with waggons, empty casks, furniture and piles of scrap iron, so that in case the Americans carry the defences desperate street fighting will take place. In addition to this all the houbses outside the walls for a distance of 1,000 yards have been burned or razed to the ground, so as not to afford the least shelter to an American advance from the fire of the rifles and gatlings placed on the bastions.

The most important news brought out by the spy was that the Spaniards are making preparations for a sortie upon the American army. General Linares in person will lead 3,000 picked men upon a midnight expedition, hoping to surprise General Shafter's troops, inflict great damage upon them and get back to the city before sufficient men can be assembled to check his retreat. On this account General Shafter has tripled and in some cases quadrupled the outposts, and has issued orders to observe the greatest vigilance.

WHY HOBSON IS RETAINED.

New York, June 29.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says: The Spanish Government and Captain-General Blanco are equally disposed to exchange the Merrimac prisoners; in fact an authorization to exchange them was telegraphed to General Blanco, but Havana and Madrid newspapers affected to believe it would be dangerous to liberate men who had been so close to defences of Santiago. Accordingly the Government insisted on Gen. Blanco, Gen. Linares and Admiral Cervera refusing to exchange. Lieut. Hobson and the other prisoners are believed to be safe as long as Linares and Cervera can control the situation. The only danger is from the volunteers.

WILL ENFORCE NEUTRALITY.

London, June 28.—The British Government has assured the Administration at Washington, through Ambassador Hay, that the neutrality laws shall be strictly enforced in relation to the Suez canal.

Communications have been passing between the British Foreign Office through Lord Cromer, the British Resident at Cairo, and the Egyptian Government regarding the coaling problem, and permission to coal was refused upon the request of the American consul. Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American Embassy, was at the House of Commons, where he had interviews with the Government leader, Arthur Balfour, and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

The canal convention provides in relation to ships of belligerents that "their stay at Port Said and in the roadstead at Suez shall not exceed twenty-four hours except in case of distress, and in such case they shall be bound to leave as soon as possible."

The Spanish fleet has now been in Port Said that period, entitling the United States to demand its expulsion or detention.

Sir Charles Dilke said last night.—"I am not at all clear that the Spanish fleet is not entitled to take coal in the canal. My impression is that when these neutrality laws were last in practical operation, during the Russo-Turkish war, Russian ships were allowed to coal there."

Sir Charles said that everything depended on the interpretation of the words "strictly necessary." It may be deemed "strictly necessary that they should get coal to carry them on their journey."

This view, however, is not generally held.

CAMARA AT THE SUEZ CANAL

Madrid, June 29.—Six p. m.—In an interview Lieut. General Correa, Minister of War, said the Government had no special news from Cuba, but took a favorable view of the situation. He asserted that Admiral Camara's squadron has begun the passage in the Suez Canal.

It is announced that the Victoria, the Numancia, the Alfonso XIII, and the Lepanto, all armored cruisers, are ready to form the third squadron. The armored cruiser Cardenal Cisneros and the torpedo gunboat Dona Molina, with several auxiliary cruisers and torpedo boats that are to be included will be ready shortly.

At the front on the Rio Guama, June 28.—General Lawton, General Wheeler and General Chaffee have had riders out beyond our advance posts several times and yesterday afternoon, as already cabled, General Wheeler on the crest of the hills forward of the American left, actually climbed a tree in order to obtain better view of the country. This is startling evidence of the wonderful vitality and energy of the great ex-Confederate cavalry leader, now 67 years of age, and will put many a younger and less agile officer to blush.

Captain Wright of General Bates' staff to-day followed the line of the railroad running out of Juragua towards Santiago de Cuba to within two miles and a half of the city. The road approaches within one and a half miles of our front, and can be utilized to bring up supplies and siege guns tons of which were landed at Baiquiri this afternoon. So soon as the remaining battalions of the 34th Michigan and 8th Massachusetts, which arrive on the Howard to-morrow, and the six thousand reinforcements sent out from Tampa, reach here at Aguidores town, on the coast, 4 four miles west of Juragua will be taken. The place was shelled to-day by several ships of the fleet. Aguidores is on the line of the advance of the army into the interior and close to the railroad it will then probably become the base of operations while the supply base may remain at Juragua.

Capt. Wright obtained information on his reconnoisance, which is believed to be reliable, to the effect that 3,000 Spanish troops have been sent to reinforce the garrison at Aguidores. General Lawton will probably make a diversion with his artillery as soon as it is placed in position. Heavy rain this afternoon made it impossible to move to-day beyond General Wheeler's headquarters. But the roads will be in condition to-morrow and the guns will probably be brought up and the intrenchments shelled by the artillery and by Col. Wood's dynamite gun.

You will not know how much good Hood's Sarsaparilla will do you until you try it. Buy a bottle to-day and begin to take it.

The following are a few from scores as testimonials the Sergt-Major has from people who have used this preparation:

This is to certify that my hair was falling out for seven or eight months, and I was getting bald on top of my head, until I commenced the use of Kenny's Hair Restorer. Two bottles stopped my hair falling out and restored the growth. My hair is now in a healthy condition and growing like magic.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SHAFTESBURY DRUMMOND

SERVANTS' LIVERIES.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "liveries" made in history was during the reign of King Pepin of France, who flourished about the year 750 A. D.

A form of amusement to which King Pepin was partial was what were termed cours plenieres. These were assemblies at which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—at Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the larger French cities and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took all his meals in public, bishops and dukes alone being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for abbots, counts and other leading men, and at both tables there was shown more profusion than delicacy, both in the quality of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Flutes, hautboys and other musical instruments were played before the bearers of each course as it was removed from the tables. When dessert was served, 20 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted thrice, "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators shouted and the meaner sort scrambled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the cours plenieres, alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to continue them. One of the severest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Pepin's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. These garments were said to be livres—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Society.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Distorted Portraitures of French Wives and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuileries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Wives and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boutet de Monvel. Miss Bicknell says:

Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life presented by popular writers. But it is not so in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroines of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of "The Lady Flabella" in "Nicholas Nickleby." The pictures presented in Octave Feuillet's writings are perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the society which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the upstarts who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Feuillet, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Champalion in "M. de Camors" or the dreadful Julia de Trecœur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "La Clef d'Or," with the home of Sibylle and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally sweet and pure among the heroines of Feuillet's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfully copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemia of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict burgeois homes. They know only the borderland, peopled in general by the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which budded and expanded during the second empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

Power of the Marseillaise Hymn.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals receives that wonderful air (the "Marseillaise"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workingmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis! Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives; then it would have been truly remarkable.—Chicago News.

AMERICAN HEIRESS IN PARIS.

Impecunious Titled Parisians Drew Lots to Decide Who Should Marry Her.

Lilian Bell, in a letter from Paris to The Ladies' Home Journal, writes that the most shameless thing in all Europe is the marriage question, and proceeds to narrate the experiences of a rich American girl who came to Paris with letters to friends. On account of her wealth she was invited everywhere by mothers of marriageable sons, but being unable to speak French was not much of a success. She went to a convent to learn French, and was shown much attention by the Duchesse de Z——, who was determined that her son should marry her. "Suddenly, to the amazement of everybody, the heiress sailed for America without a word of warning. The duchesse was furious. 'You must follow her,' she said to her son. 'We cannot let so much money escape.' The son said he would be hanged if he went to America or if he would marry such a monkey, and as for her money, she could go anywhere she pleased with it, or words to that effect. So that ended the affair of the Marquis de G——.

"When the other impecunious young nobles heard that the duchesse no longer had any claims upon the American's money, they got together and said: 'Somebody must marry her and divide with the rest. We can't all marry her, but we can all have a share from whoever does. Now we will draw lots to see who must go to America and marry her.' The lot fell to the Baron de X——, but he had no money for the journey. So all the others raised what money they could and loaned it to him, and took his notes for it, with enormous interest, payable after his marriage. He sailed away, and within eight months he had married her, but he has not paid those notes. His wife won't give him the money!"

Austrian Christmas Customs.

In Austria they are particularly thoughtful of the bringer of the gifts and joy. The people place lighted candles in their windows, that the Christ child, in passing through the city or village or along the country road, shall not stumble or fall.

A belief in the special presence of evil spirits during Christmastide and in their efforts to interfere with and lessen the joys of the season prevails throughout Europe.

The bugbear "ruprecht," under different names and in numerous varying disguises and in strange antics, plays a conspicuous part among the Germans and surrounding peoples. In Tyrol the terrible "klanbacf" accompanies St. Nicholas, and is continually hovering about his path ready to kidnap naughty children.

In Austria this monster is very terrible in appearance, going about with clanking chains and hideous devil's mask. He is frequently heard at night as he flies through the air, and his rattling chains are giving notice of his presence.

In many places there is the belief that wolves roam the earth on the night before Christmas and create great havoc in destroying vines and other property and even human beings. This belief has made an excuse for a means of mischievous frolic. Men and boys frequently disguise themselves as wolves and go about frightening the people.—Chicago Times-Herald.

He Had Forgotten.

Sir W. R. Hamilton, the great mathematician, had a very promising boy whom he reared with true parental triumph, as Aubrey de Vere tells us. When he was going to bed one night, his father said to him: "Tomorrow Aubrey de Vere will be here. Shall you not be glad to see him?" He mused for some time and then made reply remorsely, "Thinking of Latin, and thinking of trouble, and thinking of God, I had forgotten Aubrey de Vere."—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE TOWN IS YOURS

"Anything that You See That You Don't Want Ask for It"

The Fun Began at Midnight when the Visiting Bands and Clubs from Toronto, Hamilton and Oshawa, Woke the Echoes and Practically Opened the Great Meet—The Programme for To day and Saturday

All indications point to to-day's celebration surpassing everything in the history of Peterborough. The chief element is, of course, th egreat Ontario provincial meet of the C.W.A., the first in the history of the association.. So much has been written and said concerning this for the pats few weeks and it ha sadvertised itself so thoroughly within the past few days very little need be added now.

The fun began about midnight when the Toronto, Hamilton and Oshawa clubs came in on a special C. P. R. train. Briefly—"thye didn't do a ting.'

The town will be alive with them this morning.

At 10 o'clock the great bicycle parade will start from the east Nicholls park and do up the town. All wheelmen are invited to join in this whether they are in costume or not. Of course it will add greatly to th emagnificence and display to have a smany as possible in costume, and itis hoped that all will avil themselves of the good opportunity to use these. The costuming headquarters is ion the old council chamber, opera house block, where is a splendid variety of fancy and comic costumes to rent. All riders are requested to decorate their wheels in some way.

At 1.30 o'clock the great races will begin in the Driving park. Everybody should see these, for such a big list of good riders may never be seen in Peterborough again in years. The track is in splendid condition an dit is confidently expected thit the Canadian records will be broken.

St. Josephs picnic. All day.

Toronto Industrial Exhibition

The prize list for the Toronto nIdustrial exhibition, which is to be held this year from the 29th of August to the 10th of September, has been issued, a copy of which we have received. The exhibition is to be formally opened by the Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen, on Tuesday, the 30th August, and this will probably be their last official public act in the Dominion previous to their departure from our shores. The exhibition this year promises to be more interesting than usual, on account of Great Britain and France each sending large exhibits.

Compressed Flour.

The British admiralty and the war department are testing, under various climatic conditions, the new method for preserving flour. One objection to the establishment of national granaries has been the difficulty of storing grain for any length of time. The grain germinates and is ruined, and to keep large quantities in sound condition has been pronounced impracticable. Experiments are being made with a system of compression into bricks by hydraulic pressure. The trials show that the flour so treated is not affected by damp, even under unfavorable conditions, and is free from mold. The compression destroys all forms of larval life and the flour is thus rendered safe from the attacks of the insects. The saving in storage is enormous, as the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold more than 300 pounds of the compressed article.—Scientific American.

1,000 KILLED AND WOUNDED

The American Army Practically Sustains a Severe Reverse in Front of Santiago

Headquarters in the field outside Santiago de Cuba, July 2, via Guantanamo.—The American army drove the Spaniards back at every point in an all day engagement yesterday.

The American loss is probably close to a thousand. The total proportion of killed is very large, about 25 per cent.

One part of the line of the American forces slept on captured ground and will renew the fight at sunrise.

Capt. Grimes' battery yesterday shelled the last surburban fortification for half an hour before any reply was made.

The Spanish shells overshot the battery and killed four and wounded 25 infantrymen in the rear of it. Gen. Wheeler's cavalry commanded by Gen. Sumner and Gen. Kent's division advanced at noon and carried the San Juan battery by storm before sunset. Gen. Lawton's division and Capt. Capron's battery drove the Spaniards from Caney. The enemy was cut up by an American cross fire while retreating in the direction of Santiago. The 6th and 16th infantry stormed the eastern rifle pit, and after a bitter fight drove the enemy headlong into Santiago. The 6th cavalry captured the first Spanish flag. Capt. Parkhurst's battery last night commanded the east side of Santiago from a hill. The eastern line of defence is practically wrecked. The fighting yesterday was steady, though the Americans were embarrassed by the heavy brush. The Spaniards made a brave but spasmodic defence, much of the Spanish firing being by volley, while the Americans fired mostly at will, each bullet being aimed at a special target. It is impossible to estimate the Spanish losses. Simultaneously with the land attack the fleet bombarded the fortifications.

General Duffield, with the 33rd Michigan, made a demonstration in force on Aguadores as a diversion in favor of the main attack on the east. The fleet bombardment was renewed this morning.

OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED

Washington, D. C., July 3.—The following despatch from General Shafter was received to-day and made public from the White House.

Playa Del Este, July 3.—To Secretary of War, Washington — Camp Sevilla, Cuba, July 3.—We have the town well invested on the north and east, but with a very thin line. Upon approaching we found it of such a character and the defences so strong that it will be impossible to carry it by storm with my present force. Our losses up to date will aggregate a thousand, but list has not yet made. But little outside of exhaustion from intense heat and exertion of the battle of the day before yesterday and the almost constant fire which is kept up on the trenches and wagon road to the rear is kept up with some difficulty on account of rains, but I will be able to use for the present. Gen. Wheeler is seriously ill, and will probably have to go to the rear to-day. Gen Young is also very ill and confined to his bed. Gen. Hawkins is slightly wounded in the foot, received during a sortie with the enemy made last night, which was handsomely repulsed. The behaviour of the troops was magnificent. Gen. Garcia reported he holds the railroad from Santiago to San Lius and has burned a bridge and removed some rails, also that Gen. Pando has arrived at Palma and that the French Consul with about 400 French citizens, came into his line yesterday from Santiago. Have directed him to treat them with every courtesy possible. (Signed) Shafter, Maj.-General.

A DRAWN BATTLE

Washington, July 3.—Gen. Miles said the result at Santiago appears to be a drawn battle. He also said that the withdrawal of Gen. Shafter to the highlands of Siboney near the sea to await reinforcements would be temporarily enabling the troops to rest and prepare for future work. Gen. Shafter would probably give up El Caney and the plain not far from Santiago.

THE GREAT C.W.A. MEET

It was Favored with Queen's Weather and a Large Attendance

A Royal Welcome Extended to the Members of the C. W. A.—Carman Easily Wins the Half Mile Professional Championship Fred Loughead Drops the Half Mile Record—A Hot Time at Night

Friday's issue of the Times contained an account of the arrival in town Thursday night of hundreds of visiting wheelmen from all parts of the province and the opening of the great C.W.A. meet.

All the regular trains in the morning brought in more visitors and the Grand Trunk specials from Belleville and Toronto, which arrived at about half past ten were loaded with wheelmen coming to Peterborough for the holiday.

The parade did not materialize to any extent, as the boys were more intent on having a good time and looking for fun than riding in a procession, though the Ottawaegians and the Picton Rough Riders materialized immensely.

The attendance at the races in the afternoon was fully up to expectation and the various events were exciting to a degree, and raised the enthusiasm of the spectators to the highest pitch The races were run off promptly.

The one mile amateur novice brought out A. C. McKeand, Hamilton, Bert Coleman, Toronto; Allan Muir, Brantford, T. Stuart Reid, London; T. D. Higley, Blythe, Ont.; F. A. Harrington, Toronto; John Butterfield, Hamilton; W. G Crashley, Toronto; W.F. Grass, Westbrooke; Harry Roddis, Port Hope; A W. Kelly, Beaverton; Fred Kempt, Toronto; W. J. Vennels, Toronto; Geo. C. Abbott, Toronto; Fred Davidson, Peterborough; Ralph C. Ripley, Hamilton; John Robinson, Toronto; W. P. Thompson, Hamilton; F. B. Chapman, Toronto; H. A. Callaghan, Lindsay; W. Hitch, Toronto; Rich. Stoner, Toronto; W. H. Blaycock, Toronto; R. L. Bell, Lindsay; R. Falconer, Toronto; W.H. Dent, Woodstock; E. V. Patterson, Hamilton.

On account of there being so many entries the event had to be run off in heats. The first was won by T. D. Higley of Blythe, with Allan Muir, of Brantford, second, and Ralph Ripley, of Hamilton, third, time 2.17 2-5, Crashley of Toronto qualified by pacing. The second heat was taken by Vennels of Toronto, Dent of Woodstock, and Fred Davidson, of Peterborough taking second and third, the latter receiving a great cheer as he crossed the line so well up in the bunch, time 2.18. Abbott, of Toronto, qualified by pacing. The final heat brought out the winners of the two previous ones, and was won by Ripley, of Hamilton, Muir being a good second and Abbott third, time 2.23 2-5.

The half-mile open (professional) was contested by McLeod, McCarthy, Richardson, and Wills, of Toronto, and Carman, of Morrisburg. It proved the surprise of the day. Everyone thought that the race lay between McCarthy and McLeod, but Carman pulled away from the bunch in the home stretch and won by a wheel's length, with McCarthy second and McLeod third. Time 1.07 4-5.

Those riding in the half-mile championship (amateur) were Alf. W. Sherrit, Brantford; T. W. Barnes, Hamilton; F. H. Moore, Toronto; N. S. French, Toronto; Bert Coleman, Toronto; A. W. Stockhouse, Frank Wilson, Ottawa; Harry J. Boulter, Picton; Jos E. Shortt, E. F. Gascoyne, Fred Robison, Toronto; A. F. Little, Woodstock; Alex. Murray, Hamilton.

McLeod, McCarthy, Carman, Tucker, Greatrix and Mills came to the scratch for the one mile professional. Middleton, Hutchinson and Becke did the pacing on a triplet. Carman caught the triplet at the start, with McCarthy behind him, and the pace was a hot one. Carman dropped out, and McLeod got his place. The finish was a great fight up the stretch between McLeod and McCarthy, but the former was able to win out. Time, 2.06 1-5.

Twenty-three riders were entered in the amateur one mile open, which had to be run off in two heats. The entries were Alf. W. Sherrit, Brantford; T. W. Barnes, Hamilton; F. A. Moore, Toronto; Bert Coleman, Toronto; David Wilson, Toronto; A. W. Stockhouse, Ottawa; W. C. Baldwin, Ottawa; Allan Muir, Brantford; Lawrence Smith, Brantford; W.F. Grass, Westbrooke; C. W. Powell, Kingston; A. Mott, Brantford; J. E. Shortt, Toronto; R. E. Westrop, Toronto; W. J. Vennels, Toronto; H. Hancock, Toronto; John Smith, Toronto; E. F. Gascoyne, Toronto; J. H. Barnett, Toronto; Geo. W. Riddell, Winnipeg; Fred Robinson, Toronto; A.F. Little, Woodstock; A. Murray, Hamilton; Ralph Ripley, Hamilton; A. Mulhall, O. A. A. C.

The first heat was won by Smith, with Moore second and Mulhall third. Time 2.23 2-5.

Second heat—1, Riddell; 2 Smith; 3 French. For pacing, Hancock. Time 2.19.

In the final heat the quad was brought out, manned by Bruce Rickey, Will Lytle, McLeech and McNeiledge. At the start Riddell caught the quad and lived it throughout, breaking away in the stretch and making a great sprint in, closely followed by Moore and Smith. Time, 2.13.

There was a great when it was announced that Fred Loughead, of Sarnia, half mile champion of America, would try to lower the record for that distance, but the cheer was even greater when he crossed the tape in 56 3-5 seconds, lowering the record from 57 and one-fifth.

The two mile championship (professional) tandem race brought out McCarthy with Greatrix and Hutchins with Middleton. The two pair took the pace in time until the last half, when the latter refused to yield the place to McCarthy and Greatrix. They were collared in the back stretch, however, and after a hard struggle had to give in to superior staying power, McCarthy and Greatrix winning out by a couple of wheels. Time 4.45 1-5.

Forty-two riders faced the starters in the 2.40 class (amateur). They were divided up into three squads, and the event was run off in heats. The riders were; A. W. Sherrit, Brantford; A. C. McKeand, Hamilton; Bert Coleman, Toronto, Allan Muir, Brantford; T. Stuart Reid, London; David Wilson, Toronto; Robt Mulhall, Ottawa; T. S. Higley, Blythe; F. Harrington, Toronto; Jno. Butterfield, Hamilton; W. L. Glass, Westbrooke; C.W. Powell, Kingston; A.M. Dyment, Barrie; Jno. Wilson, Perth; A. Mott, Brantford; H. J. Boulter, Picton; Ed. Mounsell, Port Hope; H. Shortt, Toronto; A. H. Martin, Bracebridge; W. Fenson.

Four riders fell in the first and two in the second heat but fortunately no one was hurt seriously.

The result was as follows.

1st heat—1, Mott; 2 Muir; 3, Shortt. For pacing, Hancock. Time 2.18 1-5.

3rd heat—1, Robertson; 2, Smith; 3, Davidson. For pacing, Barnett. Time 2.22 1-5.

Final heat—1, Robinson; 2, Barnett; 3 Mott; 4, Abbott. Time, 2.17 and two fifths.

The handicappers did their work work well in the two mile professional handicap, the riders finishing in a bunch with Carman a half wheel to the good, McLeod second and McCarthy third. The entries were Richardson and Greatrix, Toronto, 100 yards; McLeod and McCarthy scratch; Cameron, Tucker and Wills, 125 yards. Time, 4.45 2-5.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the five mile amateur championship, in which the following riders started: T. Barnes, Hamilton; F. A. Moore, Toronto; Bert Coleman, Toronto; Allan Muir, Brantford; David Wilson, Toronto; Frank Wilson, Ottawa; Robt. Mulhall, Ottawa; F. A. Harrington, Toronto; Lawrence Smith, Brantford; A. In the Lacrosse Match with Perth on Dominion Day Dominion Day on the P. A. A. A. grounds the Peterboroughs succeeded after a close contest in defeating the Perth team by a score of 5 to 4.

The match started about eleven o'clock and was a fast and clean exhibition of our national game.

Almost before Perth realized that the match had commenced Peterborough had scored three goals in one-half minute, six minutes and seven minutes respectively.

The Perth boys then woke up and scored three goals in six, four and seven minutes.

Peterborough scored the next goal and Perth evened things up by scoring again.

The last game fell to Peterborough, making the score 4 to 5 in favor of the home team.

Both teams had good defence fields, the goal-keeper and point man of the Perths being excellent players. Their home had a very good combination style. The juniors on Peterborough's team played well.

The teams were as follows.

Perth.—Goal, Cameron; Point, Lattin; Cover, E. Meighen, Defence, Wilson, Noonan, Stafford; Centre, Kellock; Home, McGregor, O'Brien, Wilson; Outside Home, McLaren; Inside Home, L. Dobbin; Field Captain, Stonefield.

Umpires—R. Hay, J. Meighen.
Referee—D. Davidson.

HOW SHE WAS TROUBLED

"I was afflicted with that tired feeling and had no appetite. A friend advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did and in a short time my appetite was better and the tired feeling was gone. Since then we always take Hood's when we need a blood purifier." Mrs. S. Kinch, Beatrice, Ontario.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Be sure to get Hood's.

Strawberries, 4 for 25 cents, 17 for $1.00, for this day only

Men, women and children who are troubled with sores, humors, pimples, etc., may find permanent relief in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

PEACE PARTY GROWING.

The peace party is gaining ground daily in the middle and working classes, particularly in the provinces.

The authorities in Barcelona report imposing demonstrations and manifestoes by the Chamber of Commerce, economical societies, trades unions, employers of labor, winegrowers and even the shipping and banking interests.

The same sentiment is strong in Andalusia, Biscay, Arragoin and Castile.

This makes more striking the contrast between the material interests of financial, commercial and landed classes, and a certain class of politicians in Madrid who affect to believe in the possible prolongation of the war, on the principal that Spain, having virtually lost her colonies, cannot lose much more, but can inflict more damage upon her adversary than she can incur.

WOMEN IN FRENCH FICTION.

Distorted Portraitures of French Wives and Mothers Presented by Novelists.

Miss Anna L. Bicknell, who lived for some years in the Tuileries as a governess in the household of Napoleon III, contributes to The Century an article on "French Wives and Mothers." This is richly illustrated by drawings by Boutet de Monvel. Miss Bicknell says:

Those who have gathered their opinions as to the real character of the average Frenchwoman from the romantic literature of the present century, more especially that of the last few years, would necessarily bear a severe judgment, tinged with a considerable amount of contempt. Such an opinion would, however, be unjust and wholly undeserved, as any impartial observer, having been privileged to share French home life, could truly tell them. The average English woman is very graphically depicted in English novels, and a foreigner can form a fair estimate of her merits and demerits from the descriptions of English domestic life presented by popular writers. But it is not so in France or in French literature. The real French gentlewoman deserves to be better understood, for she is totally unlike the heroines of modern novels, whose writers know about as much of aristocratic life as the author of "The Lady Flabella" in "Nicholas Nickleby." The pictures presented in Octave Feuillet's writings are perhaps the truest to nature as it is seen in some melancholy cases. But he himself certainly would have been ready to admit that the women he met in daily life had nothing in common with his morbid heroines. As he belonged to a good old family of the upper bourgeoisie, he had better opportunities of knowing the society which he depicted so powerfully in his novels of fashionable life than have the upstarts who describe salons of which they have never crossed the threshold.

But even in the works of Feuillet, although the frame is accurate, the portraits are those of exceptionally diseased minds. Women like Mme. de Champallon in "M. de Camors" or the dreadful Julia de Trecœur may exist in France or elsewhere, but those who know French society will certainly recognize more readily women like Mme. de Camors and her charming mother or the Suzanne of "La Clef d'Or," with the home of Sibylle and the dear old people so delightfully described there. Many examples might be quoted equally sweet and pure among the heroines of Feuillet's impassioned narratives, and one is convinced that these have been more faithfully copied from nature than the others.

The fact is that the great majority of French novelists belong to the Bohemia of literature and are not admitted within the precincts either of aristocratic circles or of the less refined but equally strict burgeois homes. They know only the borderland, peopled in general by the wealthy and adventurous foreign set which budded and expanded during the second empire and has now taken its place by the side of French society, but not within its pale.

Tennyson's Praise of Burns.

Mr. Aubrey de Vere contributes to the biography of Lord Tennyson a report of some conversations with the poet, in which was disclosed his singular freedom from the spirit of rivalry.

In these conversations he never uttered a word that was disparaging or tainted with the spirit of rivalship. The only poet I heard him criticise roughly or unfairly was himself. "Compare," he once said to me, "compare the heavy handling of my workmanship with the exquisite lightness of touch in Keats."

Another time he read aloud a song by one of the chivalrous poets of Charles I's time, perhaps Lovelace's "Althea," which Wordsworth also used to croon in the woods, and said, "There, I would give all my poetry to have made one song like that."

Not less ardent was his enthusiasm for Burns. And here an incident with no small significance recurs to me. "Read the exquisite songs of Burns!" he exclaimed. "In shape each of them has the perfection of the berry, in light the radiance of the dewdrop. You forget for its sake those stupid things, his serious pieces."

The same day I met Wordsworth and named Burns to him. Wordsworth praised him even more vehemently than Tennyson had done as the great genius who had brought poetry back to nature, but ended: "Of course I refer to his serious efforts, such as the 'Cotter's Saturday Night.' Those foolish little amatory songs of his one has to forget."

I told the tale to Henry Taylor that evening, and his answer was, "Burns' exquisite songs and Burns' serious efforts are to me alike tedious and disagreeable reading."

So much for the infallibility of poets in their own art.

Toads In Rock.

Stories of toads inclosed in solid rock are not at all uncommon, but of all the reported cases not one has ever been substantiated. When investigated, it is found that they are made up stories or that there was no toad or no rock or that there was a way for him to get in or get out. People who find toads in solid rock must understand that it is an important matter. If ever there is one single case verified beyond dispute of finding a toad or any other living animal in an absolutely solid rock, the science of geology will be swept from the realms of belief. The doctrine of evolution will crumble to airy nothings. Half of the exact sciences will have to be reorganized on an entirely new basis. Accumulated human knowledge will have to be revised from the bottom, and most of what is so called rejected entirely. So the man that finds the toad had better be pretty sure that it is a toad in a solid rock, and while he is about it he had better have witnesses and photographs and everything possible to be had in proof of his assertion, for it will be doubted. If he proves his case, no man ever known will have such enduring fame. Just find the toad, gentlemen.—Milwaukee Journal.

A Diagnosis.

Maude—Do you know, I really believe that Tom is going to propose.

Bertha—I noticed that he was looking terribly sad about something or other, but then, you know, dear, it may not be that. Perhaps his mother is sick, or possibly he isn't feeling well himself.—Boston Transcript.

For Evening Entertainments

A couple of fine new concert graphophones to rent for evening parties, entertainments, socials, etc. These instruments can be heard to the remotest corner of any large hall, and are superior to any similar instruments in Peterborough. They may be seen at the Times Bookstore.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be deescribed as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Write for catalogue No. 30, to the Columbia Phonograph Company, No. 313 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

HIS BUSY DAY.

It Is Easier to Forget Some Things Than to Remember Them.

The business man was very much occupied when one of his acquaintances came in.

"I want to ask you"— began the caller, but the other, without looking up, waved one hand back of him and reduced the friend to silence. After waiting half a minute the visitor tried again.

"I won't take much of your time," he said. "This is something too important to be neglected or I'd go away and come again."

"I suppose there's no use of my trying to get through with this before dark anyhow," was the rejoinder, with a sigh.

"I'm sorry it's necessary to interrupt you."

"Oh, it's all right. When I come to think of it, I wouldn't know whether I had the right answer when I got through."

"You could easily have the bookkeeper verify it, couldn't you?"

"No. I tried the bookkeeper on it. He didn't know any more about it than I did."

"Isn't it anything connected with business?"

"No. If it were, I'd be comparatively serene. Business isn't the only thing in life."

"It's a great deal of it, though."

The calculator rang for the office boy, and when he appeared said, "Thomas, you take this $2 bill and buy me as many works on arithmetic as you can for it" Then turning to his friend with the air of a cross questioner he said:

"Why do men engage in business?"

"To make money."

"And what do we want with money? We want independence and respect. We want to feel that we can hold up our heads in the world and not be obliged to face humiliation. The purposes of this calculation, distant from business though they may be, are the same. I have a boy who has done well in his studies and who does me the honor to ask my advice every once in awhile. Most boys don't do that. They think it's impossible for their fathers to know very much owing to the misfortune they labored under in not having the same schoolteachers. This boy of mine remarked yesterday that he was going to take up cube root today. Have you tried to extract any cube roots since you left school?"

The caller answered in the negative.

"Then you don't know how much you have forgotten. It's a heap easier to learn to extract a cube root in the first place than it is to remember it again after you have got out of practice. But I'm going to keep at it. Tonight he'll come home with some examples to do and Napoleon when he started for St. Helena didn't feel a bit worse than I will if I have to lay down my lead pencil and paper and own up that I can't do them."—Detroit Free Press.

Power of the Marseillaise Hymn.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals receives that wonderful air (the "Marseillaise"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workingmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis! Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives; then it would have been truly remarkable.—Chicago News.

SAVE THE CARGO

Madrid, June 30, 2 p. m.—The Governor-General of Porto Rico cabled that it will be difficult to save the cargo of the Spanish steamer Antonio Lopez, which was run ashore at Salinao, near the entrance of the harbor of San Juan de Porto Rico to escape the United Stated auxiliary cruisers St. Louis and St. Paul, which prevented her from landing a cargo of provisions and war material. He explained his inability to save the steamer's cargo by the fact as alleged that an American cruiser is continuously firing upon the stranded vessel.

A Cabinet Council over which the Queen Regent presided was held to-day. The Ministers decline to furnish any information beyond saying that they discussed the war.

TO BE SENT BACK

Lisbon, June 30.—It is rumored here that four American warships are on their way to this port.

WARSHIPS TRAVELLING

Del Este, June 28 (delayed in transmission).—It is believed that General Calixto Garcia, whose forces were taken to the East in order to co-operate with the United States army in the capture of Santiago de Cuba, will be sent back with 3,000 of his men to stop the advance of General Pando, the Spanish commander, who with 7,400 troops, many pack horses and a quantity of cattle has arrived at a point 71 miles from Manzanillo, going east towards Santiago de Cuba, according to information which reached the flagship New York to-day from Col. Rios, in command of the Cuban camps. General Pando started from Manzanillo on June 22nd, and is travelling at the rate of 12 miles a day. The distance to Santiago de Cuba is 127 miles, and the roads leading there are rough and difficult to travel. The Cubans now opposing General Pando only number about 200 men.

A GIGANTIC CONSPIRACY.

Washington, D.C., June 30.—Serious dissensions have arisen between President McKinley and his Cabinet in connection with the handling of troops now before Santiago. It is known that the President was anxious to place General Miles at the head of the invading army, but Secretary of War Alger decidedly objected to General Shafter being superseded, and he was supported by a majority of the Cabinet. General Miles informed me to-day that he was in no way responsible for differences that may have occurred, but that as soon as he can make the necessary arrangements he will go to Cuba and take charge of the forces, with General Shafter as his principal aide. Secretary Alger, however, claims that General Miles will not take command, and that his duties of arranging for transportation will hold him here until after Santiago has fallen, and that he will not go to Porto Rico for similar reasons.

Around the White House to-day there is great talk of an almost gigantic swindle alleged to have been perpetrated on the United States Administration, the conspirators including prominent officials one of them a member of the Senate, others being army contractors, manufacturers of arms, and a number of officers of both the army and navy. It is said that the supplies furnished to the Santiago expedition while at Tampa, Fla., were away below the standard, and immensely short in quantity. It is further alleged that a large quantity of the new arms supplied the 10,000 soldiers now in Jacksonville are defective, the hammers and firing pins being so brittle as to break off when the weapon is exploded. A protest has been received here, and an investigation will be held. It is openly stated that certain high officials both in the army and navy have accepted big commissions for their influence in holding troops and ships at certain points for the benefit of the contractors, and that the railway companies have also paid large sums in order to get these officials to move from place to place when it was unnecessary. It is claimed that the conspirators have netted over $3,000,000 and that the stealing is still going on. A formal report will be presented to President McKinley this week.

New York, June 30—A despatch to The World, from Madrid, says; The rumored coming of an American fleet to the peninsula, has caused alarm, although the authorities try to conceal the fact. Especially is this the case on the coasts in the north of Spain, where the defences are nowhere complete except at Ferrol, where there is an arsenal. All the other ports there are protected only by ancient citadels and forts equipped with equally venerable cannon. In consequence of the report the annual influx of visitors to the fashionable watering places there will not take place. More than fifty ports between the boundary of Portugal and the French frontier will suffer. Even in San Sebastian, the summer residence of the court, half of the houses and villas are tenantless, as it has been officially intimated that the queen and king will remain in Madrid until the end of the war.

TORPPEDO DEFENCE.

Serious resistance might be expected by an American fleet at Ferrol, Cadiz, Corunna, Algercietrras, Ceuta, Barcelona, and Cartagena, both from fortifications and mines. Torpedoes have been prepared and carefully planted at these points in the last two months. Spain has also about twenty torpedo boats of 120 tons each, manned by crews and officers trained in torpedo schools. Pilots are required in order to enter the ports of Bilbao and Algercierras, owing to the submarine defences. The Spanish arsenals are working night and day to get the second reserve fleet ready. Six thousand sailors of the reserve list and 300,000 reserves have been called out; both classes have been trained for two years. All of the principal garrisons including those on the Balaeris islands, have been reinforced, mostly with artillery, of which Spain has 17 regiments.

PEACE PARTY GROWING.

The peace party is gaining ground daily in the middle and working classes, particularly in the provinces.

The authorities in Barcelona report imposing demonstrations and manifestoes by the Chamber of Commerce, economical societies, trades unions, employers of labor, winegrowers and even the shipping and banking interests.

The same sentiment is strong in Andalusia, Biscay, Arragoin and Castile.

This makes more striking the contrast between the material interests of financial, commercial and landed classes, and a certain class of politicians in Madrid who affect to believe in the possible prolongation of the war, on the principal that Spain, having virtually lost her colonies, cannot lose much more, but can inflict more damage upon her adversary than she can incur.

It is highly significant, however, that the prospects and possible conditions of peace are now freely discussed, even in the Madrid press and political circles. The diplomatic corps and courtiers think that peace will be imminent the moment when the fall of Santiago and Manila will allow either the present cabinet or its successor, to propose it, provided the United States government does not make terms so harsh as to play unconsciously into the hands of the Carlists, Republicans and other parties eager for revolution and civil war.

SPAIN'S STATESMEN WANT PEACE

London June 30—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says Captain-General Augusti has renewed his request for permission to promise the Philippine insurgents extensive reforms. Now that the Cortes is closed it is understood that Senor Puigeerver, Minister of Finance, and Senor Gamaso, Minister of Public Instruction and Public Works, desire to resign. Senor Gamaso opposed pursuing the war until Spain is politically and financially ruined. The whole world having recognized her galant sacrifices and traditional bravery, he thinks the government ought to have the moral courage to fix a rasonable limit for national sacrifices.

It is an open secret that Senor Moret and many other Liberal statesmen share the views of Senor Gamaso. The peace agitation is spreading in the provinces, but not at Madrid.

The goverment has completed its arrangements for coaling and provisioning Admiral Camara's squadron, and he should now be able to reach Manila before the end of July after stopping at several points en route to receive instructions

WHY CAMAR WAS DELAYED.

London, June 30—The Madrid Correspondent of the Times, says; "Ministers deny rumors of Spain's purchasing cruisers from China or other nations. According to La Imparcial the demand for a cash payment of the canal dues delayed Admiral Camara's squadron.

The dues amounting, we are trustworthily informed, to less than 4000,000 francs, are now paid. Duke Almedovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, denied in the Council, El Imparcial says, that Italy had refused to coal Admiral Camara.

If the United States imagines that the threat to bombard Spanish ports would induce the Spaniards to recall Camara and to sue for peace, the Americans are bound to be disappointed. The threat has only tended to excite the bulldog qualities of the Spanish national character. When these are aroused, prudence and logic are alike powerless. The peace prospects, therefore, are much less bright than they were a week ago.

CYCLE BOOM COLLAPSES.

Birmingham, England, June 30.—Commercial circles in Birmingham are looking forward to a disastrous reaction from the cycle boom, which attained its zenith a year or two ago. Already the depreciation in capital invested in cycles and accessories within the last twelve months is estimated to represent at least £10,000,000.

The workers have already had a foretaste of the impending collapse. During the hey-dey of the boom the Birmingham trade alone found employment for 14,000 or 15,000 men. Night shifts were in operation at most of the factories, and at one period of extreme pressure the hands toiled for sixteen hours at a stretch.

The backwash of events has changed all that. Fully two-thirds of the 14,000 or 15,000 have had to be dismissed, and this number will receive a heavy addition if the anticipated crash comes

Coventry is also suffering, and in Nottingham the dismissals have been on a wholesale scale. The worker attributes his misfortune to over-capitalization leading to ruthless entrenchment at the behest of shareholders hungering for diivdends.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

FANTASTIC VAGARY.

A PUBLIC MAN WHO CONSULTED THE OUIJA BOARDS.

This is One of the Grounds on Which it is Sought to Show That He Was Incapable of Making a Proper Will—The Estate Involved is a Large One.

The Ouija board, that curious little device which attracted so much attention and furnishd so much amusement to many people a few years ago, has got into the courts. It is cited as evidence of a man's mental weakness and his incapacity to make a proper will. This man was Charles M. Pond, once State Treasurer of Connecticut, a Senator in the same State and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. A suit is now under way in New York to break his will. It was instituted by his brother, Anson Phelps Pond.

Among the property which Charles M. inherited from his father was the Prospect Hill farm, on the outskirts of the city of Hartford, and this, with about $450,000 worth of other realty, he willed to Hartford. The disputed farm or homestead which Hartford proposes to turn into a public park, is now valued at about $250,000.

The claim is made by the contestant that his brother had no right to devise away this tract, and counsel bring forward his father's will in substantiation of this position, and quote that part of it which reads: "And it is my express desire that my said son, Charles M. Pond, will not alienate or sell my farm known as the 'Prospect Hill Farm,' but that the same may descend and be from time to time devised to my lineal descendants."

Among the testimony already introduced is that of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, a sister of the Ponds, which it is said showed the deceased brother to be an extraordinary and eccentric person.

In his public career Charles M. was known only as a man of rare judgment and brilliant parts, but it seems that for some time previous to his death his mind was clouded or weakened by dissipation, and he displayed oddities of intellect that were entirely at variance with his character as the public and all but his intimates knew it.

According to Mrs. Porter's statement, some of the evidence that would be important and valuable as corroborative proof has been deliberately destroyed. The destroyed evidence consisted of works on Spiritism and the several Ouija boards that were the property of Charles M. Pond, and were used by him. It is said that the dead man was a firm believer in Spiritism and was an easy dupe of mediums. Luther R. Marsh was not more thoroughly fooled by Miss De Bar than he was by the men and women who pretended to be able to rematerialize those who had passed to the shining shores.

After the death of his wife, it is said, he was almost constantly under the influence of mediums. He had implicit confidence in the oracular qualities of the Ouija board which is a rudimentary sort of planchete. In the latter case the spirits are supposed to communicate with their friends in the flesh by means of writing; in the former the spirits have not got so far in the three R's, and they spell out their communications.

A panchette is a small heart-shaped bit of wood, mounted on two tiny legs with casters, and having for the third leg a pencil. When the little table is placed on a sheet of paper and the hands are permitted to rest lightly upon it, the pencil moves, and some people pretend that the lead-marks made by the pencil are legible messages, and they go through the solemn formality of reading them.

Ouija has a three-legged, heart-shaped little table, too, which the hands rest upon, but it travels not over writing paper but over a smooth rectangular board, on which the alphabet and the numerals are stenciled so that they make the segment of a circle, and the words "yes" and "no" are stenciled in two of the corners. Messages are read by following the movements of the leg at the apex of the heart. It travels from letter to letter and spells out words, the nerves and muscles of the manipulators having much to do with the direction of its movements.

Chalres M. Pond had several of these Ouija boards and he consulted them dozens of times a day. Through them he communicated with his dead wife. The story is told that often he would arise in the midst of a group of friends, excuse himself and hurry off to another room to ask Ouija certain questions.

These Ouija boards with all of her brother's Spiritistic books, Mrs. Porter says, she burned. Her statement is that she went to the office of one of the executors of the will and in his absence obtained from his father, who drew up the will, permission to remove the books and boards from the house, which she did and made a bonfire of them.

There is a great deal of secrecy about the proceedings and a whole lot of mystery, but the plaintiff feels confident that he will be able to show the mental insufficiency of his brother to make a will as well as to clinch his own right to the disputed part by the restricting clause in his father's will, which insists that the property shall not be devised away from the family.

The dissipated habits of Pond's brother have been pretty well established. He seems to have bad a wild and terrible mania for morphine and administered it to everybody and everything on his place, even the dogs. The Ouija board weakness, though, appears to be the most fantastic of all his vagaries.

Tactics in the Band.

A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. Their uniforms are neat, said the colonel, and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I must insist upon.

What is it, colonel?

You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! one, two!

The Military College.

The Kingston Military College is a very expensive luxury to the people of Canada, and some of the items we have to pay for are very peculiar. An opera glass, $9.95; Prince of Wales hunting belt, $3.59; emigrant's knife, $7.49; trout rod, twelve feet long with three joints, $6.99; a lawn tennis bat, $3.71. The college cost us $70,000. No wonder there is a deficit.—Brockville Recorder.

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton Recalls Some Incidents of the Closing Days of the War—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill in Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods.

The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house.

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard.

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child.

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity.

"Penned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother.

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side.

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother.

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him.

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man.

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you.

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest nighbors.

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days.

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington.

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig.

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion.

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, us likes the rector; 'is ears are so clean." Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, "You are all so plain" (a word of high commendation), "but as for the vicar, 'e's beautiful." The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness, "What I likes 'bout the bishop is 'e's not a gentleman."—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Huk wandering in the far interior of Asia.

THE ISOLATION OF A CHILD.

I once knew a dear little mother,
  With a beautiful blue eyed boy.
She constantly bathed and brushed him,
  And when he had tired of a toy
She would take it and scald it and scrape it
  And lay it away in the sun,
And that is the way she took care of
  His playthings, every one.

Pent up in his own little playhouse
  The baby grew peaked and pale,
And there were the neighbors' children,
  All dirty and happy and hale.
If the baby went out for an airing,
  The nurse was to understand
That none of the neighbors' children
  Was ever to touch his hand.

But they did, and the injured mother
  Brought the dear baby inside
And shut him up in his playhouse,
  Where the little one fretted and died.
Then the torn heart turned to the Virgin,
  And this was the weight of her prayer:
"O mother, dear, don't let him play with
  The other angels up there!"

MR. JORDAN'S MONEY.

The Former United States Treasurer Once Narrowly Escaped Arrest.

Ex-Treasurer Jordan frequently amuses his friends by telling of an exciting experience he had while treasurer of the United States. Mr. Jordan occasionally indulges in joking remarks uttered with a serious countenance. It was the indulgence of this proclivity while connected with the treasury department that came near resulting in his introduction to a pair of handcuffs and incarceration in a dingy cell. Mr. Jordan had occasion to make a trip to New York just at a time when a new $5 bill was issued by the bureau of engraving and printing. It happened that the treasurer on the day of starting on his trip drew a portion of his salary, and the cashier handed him a bunch of the new $5 bills, which had reached the office within an hour. When he arrived in New York, Mr. Jordan proceeded to purchase some needed articles and handed the clerk one of the new bills. The clerk had never seen money that looked like that bill, which was spotless and uncrumpled by handling. He examined the alleged money and the man who gave it to him with equal care. Mr. Jordan watched him with suppressed amusement and remarked in a matter of fact way:

"It's good money. I made it myself."

That was enough for the clerk, who went to the cashier's desk with the bill. There was a hurried conference and a message was sent to police headquarters over the telephone. In a short time a couple of detectives in citizens' attire were standing on either side of the treasurer of the United States. They waited there to watch developments, fumbling their handcuffs in their pockets. In the meantime the cashier studied the new bill further, looked carefully over his counterfeit detector and rummaged through treasury circulars relating to the issuance of money. Finally he came across a description of the new $5 bill which was to be issued by the treasury department. His message had not yet reached the clerk, who was exchanging significant glances with the detectives and watching Mr. Jordan, when the latter, getting tired of waiting for his change and realizing that his new money was probably puzzling the cashier, produced his card. At the same moment the cashier's message that the money was not counterfeit reached the clerk, the detectives wandered off with crestfallen countenances and the treasurer proceeded to the nearest bank, where he exchanged his new bills for money that had passed through a thousand hands and was far from being sanitary.—Washington Star.

An Unpleasant Rencounter.

"Why, Ned!" shouted the prosperous looking man as his kindly eye fell upon his neighbor.

"That's my name," the other grumbled, with anything but welcome in his look.

"How are you, old boy? I have not see you—let me see—since we left college. It's nearly six years, by George!"

The seedy passenger grunted and looked nonplused.

"Well, how is the world treating you Ned?" the demonstrative man pursued, more intimately than ever.

"Worse than you anyhow," his classmate snarled, jumping to his feet and abruptly disappearing from the car.

The successful man looked sheepish, and as if by way of setting himself right before the other passengers he proceeded quite audibly:

"I pity him, poor fellow. He was one of the brightest in our class, but he never had system in his work or any tact in his dealings with the other students. He always knew any lesson but the one he was called upon to recite, and he would read a lot, but not the books he wanted for his college work, and he always managed to be out of sorts with some classmate or other, if not with the whole class. Still, he is the most honest and good natured fellow you ever came across. I don't know what he is doing, but I have heard he is in pretty hard luck."—New York

SMOKED CANARY BIRDS.

A little old shoemaker who has a busy, old style cobbling shop on the east side is a bird fancier, and he has peculiar ideas about canaries. One night he was sitting on his leather covered bench, smoking an extremely odorous quality of tobacco in a black pipe. A customer was waiting for him to finish straightening up a worn heel, and he made several remarks concerning the birds which hung about the cobbler's shop. They were fancy birds, and he could not help noticing it. Finally he asked the shoemaker how he got such richly colored birds.

"It's part in the breeding and part in the atmosphere," said the cobbler. "You raise birds in a shop where two or three men are constantly smoking, and in time you will get the darkest orange color if you use a little judgment in mating and they don't run to green."

"I should think that tobacco smoke would be unwholesome for the birds," said the visitor.

"On the contrary, it makes them hardy and seems to be good for them every way. Women who have canaries would do well to put them where they can get a little tobacco smoke once in awhile, although I don't think cigarette smoke would do them much good. What they need is strong tobacco smoke from an old pipe like this or the smoke from a black cigar. I've raised my best birds when I had two jours working in this little shop with me and all of us smoking pretty nearly all the time."

Then the old man sighed and said: 'That was before they half soled and heeled shoes while you wait—before machines were used for cobbling. No two or three jours and an apprentice for me now. I sit here alone, with my birds, pegging away and keeping them well smoked."—New York Sun.

Road and River.

The brave Pierre Stuppa, the Swi general, having been deputed by the 1 cantons to solicit the arrears of pa, which had been owing for a long time to the Swiss officers in the French service, M. de Louvois, the war minister, who was present, said to the king, Louis XIV:

"Sire, those Swiss are very importunate. If your majesty had all the money that your royal predecessors have given to that people, it would form a road from Paris to Basel."

"That may be," observed Stuppa with an air of firmness, "but at the same time if your majesty had all the blood that the Swiss have shed in the service of France it would form a river from Paris to Basel."

The king was so struck with the observation that he ordered M. de Louvois to pay the whole of the money without delay.—Nuggets.

English Jacobite Societies.

To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar For 1895," which includes the order of the White Roses, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (ponderous title!), the Eastern Counties' (shade of Cromwell!) White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hunts) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration league, the Surrey White Rose league, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Grey Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Ludgate circus) if they so decide.—London Mail.

Rheumatism Cured

after seven years suffering.

GENTLEMEN: Having suffered with Rheumatism for the past seven years was recommended to use Walton's Rheumatic Pills, which gave me immediate relief and am as well as ever and can follow my trade again. I have tried all different remedies that came to my hearing without any relief, and been to the mineral springs year after year, but with no such results as from Walton's Rheumatic Pills.

POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894.
I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements.
J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.
I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known.
F. G. FLOURNOY, M. D.

COLUMBIA, PA., Jan. 18, 1895.
I have been a constant user of Pond's Extract since 1852, and do not expect to discontinue it while I live. S. ARMOR, M. D.

CHELSEA, MASS., Nov. 8, 1894.
I have made diseases of the skin a specialty for thirty years, and am free to say I know of no remedy that has given me such perfect satisfaction as Pond's Extract in cases for which it is recommended.
G. W. BABCOCK, M. D.

ASTHMATICS' INSTITUTE, Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 8, 1894.
I know Pond's Extract to be a valuable remedy, and shall continue its use whenever the opportunity offers.
GEO. H. CALKINS, M. D.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 13, 1894.
I am pleased with the purity and strength of Pond's Extract.
J. L. DURYEE, M. D.

POND'S EXTRACT is used by the leading physicians and principal hospitals of America and Europe.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to billious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." MRS. H. F. PARM, Degrassi Street.

CERVERA'S FLEET AT BOTTOM OF THE SEA

All who Escaped the Frightful Carnage, Including Admiral Cervera, are Prisoners on U. S. Vessels

CERVERA'S FLEET AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

Ten miles west of the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, Sunday, July 3, 4 p.m., by Associated Press Despatch Boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, Monday, July 4—via Kingston, July 4, 4.45 a. m.—Admiral Cervera's fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers Cristobal, Colon, Almirante, Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and Vizcaya and two torpedo boat destroyers, the Furor and the Pluton, which had been held in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba for six weeks past by the combined squadrons of Rear Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, lies to-day at the bottom of Carribbean Sea, off the southern coast of Cuba. The Spanish Admiral is a prisoner of war on theau xiliary gunboat Gloucester, formerly Mr. J. Pierrepont Morgan's yacht Corsican, and 1,000 to 1,500 other Spanish officers and sailors—all who escaped the frightful carnage caused by the shells from the American warships are also held as prisoners of war by the United States navy.

The American victory is complete, and according to the best information obtainable at this time the American vessels were practically untouched and only one man was killed, though the ships were subjected to the heavy fire of the Spaniards all the time the battle lasted.

UTTERLY UNTRUE

Madrid, July 4, 4 p.m.—The following semi-official statement was issued this afternoon.—"The semaphore from Morro Castle to Santiago says the Spanish squadron after a cannonade with the Americans, showed no signs of injury, therefore the American news of the route of Admiral Cervera must be utterly untrue. Moreover Admiral Cervera's squadron is faster than Admiral Sampson's.

U. S. TROOPS ARRIVE AT MANILA

Hong Kong, July 4.—The United States despatch boat Seafiero, which arrived here early this morning from Cavite with the report that the American troops arrived at Cavite on June 30, reports also that Admiral Dewey, the Zeofiero left on July 1st, was planning to attack Manila with the fleet and troops on July 4th.

BOMBARDMENT TO-DAY

Delay in Action Attributed to the Suffering in the City

Santiago is Surrendered—The Demand for Surrender Expired at 10 o'clock Yesterday Morning

CERVERA CAPTURED.

Washington, July 1.—The Secretary of the Navy has received the following.—Playo, via Hayti, Secretary of the Navy, Washington. 3.15 a. m., Siboney, July 3.—The fleet under my command offers the nation, as a Fourth of July present, the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. No one escaped. It attempted to escape at 9.30 a. m., and at 2 p.m. the last vessel, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore sixty miles west of Santiago and let down her colors. The Infanta Maria Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within twenty miles of Santiago, the Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss, probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,300 prisnoers, including Admiral Cervera. The man killed was George H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn. (Signed.) Sampson.

BOMBARDMENT POSTPONED.

Washington, July 4.—The Secretary of War has received a lengthy and most important despatch from General Shafter. It is the one which has excited much rumor, but the essential point can now be given authoritatively. It states Shafter's demand for surrender of Santiago at noon to-day,o n pain of bombardment. Thereupon the foreign Consuls at Santiago made a joint representation requesting that women and children in the city have until Tuesday noon to withdraw before the bombardment begins. The Spanish general declined to to surrender at the time first set by Shafter. At present a truce exists pending the expiration of the 24 hours ask ed for by the foreign Consuls.

COURAGE ON BOTH SIDES.

London, July 4.—The Times this morning, discussing the fighting at El Gauey, says.—"Both sides have shown courage of a very high order, and it is hard to say whether the splendid dash and bravery of the American advance in the teeth of a galling fire or the stubborn tenacity of the Spanish defence is the more admirable. Both sides have learned to appreciate the splendid military qualities of their adversaries. It is a pity that enemies who show themselves such worthy foemen in the field cannot see their way to save bloodshed by coming immediately to an agreement on the inevitable basis. The Spaniards have amply vindicated their honor, and if they were wise they would now prove their common sense by ofering terms to their opponents, terms which if they were reasonable would almost certainly be accepted.'

THE CAPTURE OF GUAM.

Washington, July 4.—Admiral Dewey's telegram to the Navy Department is given out as follows. "Hong Kong, July 4, Cavite, July 1.—Three transports and the Charleston arrived yesterday. The Charleston captured Guam, Ladrones Islands, on June 21. No resistance. Brought Spanish officers from the garrison, six officers and 52 men to Manila. On June 29 the Spanish gun vessel Leyte came out of a river near Manila and surrendered to me, having exhausted ammunition and food in repelling attack by insurgents. She had on board 62 officers and 94 men, naval and military."

WILL DIE BEFORE YIELDING.

London, July 4.—A special despatch from Madrid quotes Premier Sagasta as saying that he thought the Americans would "get the reinforcements they had requested, which would enable them to take Santiago de Cuba."

The Premier is said to have added.—"Though the American warships may destroy our squadron in the harbor, yet we will pursue the war. There are in Cuba 100,000 men ready to die in its defence, but they will not yield."

WARNING TO AMERICANS.

London, July 4.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says. "German public and the German press, which are not always identical, are now thoroughly awakened to the inconvenience of the position in which German policy has been placed by unfortunate articles on the subject of the Philippines. The papers are now trying to explain the matter away. The National Gazette considers it ludicrous to discuss a partition of a bear's skin before the bear is killed. 'We Europeans, it says, 'from our own sorrowful experience know what surprises a conclusion through a peace congress is likely to have in store. In all human probability the Spaniards will lose their colony, but the Americans will not be the only gainers in the struggle. In Cuba, as in the Philippines, they will have to reckon with the insurgents now. 'The abandonment of the Philippines to the natives would undoubtedly lead to the intervention of Europe.'"

BOMBARDMENT POSTPONED.

Washington, July 4.—General Shafter has notified the War Department that the bombardment of Santiago has been postponed until to-morrow. The delay of the action is based on the suffering within the city. Secretary Alger is now in conference with the President.

CAN HOLD THE ENEMY.

Washington, July 4.—General Miles has received two despatches from Gen. Shafter this morning. In one Shafter says. "I feel that I am master of the situation and can hold the enemy for any length of time."

PANDO'S POSITION.

Washington, July 4.—General Miles has received the following telegram from General Shafter, dated Playa del Este, July 3.

"Headquarters Fifth Army Corps—Killed a Spanish General in affair at Ganey and a large number of officers and men who are still unburied. Gen. Linares arm was broken."

SANTIAGO IS SURROUNDED.

Washington, July 4.—The War Department has just given out the following. "Headquarters Fifth Army Corps, near Santiago, July 3.—To-night my lines completely surround the town from bay on north of city to point on San Juan river on south. The enemy holds from west bend San Juan river at its mouth up to the railroad to the city. General Pando, I find to-night, is some distance away and will not get into Santiago. (Signed) Shafter."

THE DEMAND FOR SURRENDER.

Washington, July 4.—After conferring with high officials a prominent Senator said hi sunderstanding was that the time of Shafter's demand for the surrender of Santiago expired 10 a.m. to-day. The Spaniards asked 24 hours. This was granted with the understanding that no military operations occurred meantime.

SURRENDER BEING CONSIDERED.

Washington, July 4.—It is now admitted by the War Department officials that there is a general despatch from Shafter regarding the demand for the surrender of Santiago, terms, etc. The mention of "truce" in Shafter's despatch given out further confirms the report that terms of surrender have been considered. The officials decline to give any exact information at present.

KILLED AT SANTIAGO.

Madrid, July 4.—At the conclusion of yesterday's Cabinet meeting the Ministers announced that official information had been received that General Vara de Rey and two of General Linares' aides-de-camp were among the killed in the third attack upon El Gauey. The American losses are said, from Spanish sources, to have exceeded two thousand men. It is reported that General Linares has succumbed is not confirmed. The Spanish Government has no news from Aguadores nor from the reinforcements from Manzanillo and under Generals Esorarja and Pareja.

GREAT NEWS FOR THE FOURTH.

Washington, July 4.—Adjutant-General Corbin to-day voiced the feelings of every one of the officials in the Capitol when he said, "I don't care how the fleet was destroyed. It was destroyed. That is enough for me. It is great news for the Fourth of July. The fleet of Admiral Cervera was one of the finest Spain possessed. Three of the vessels—the Almirante Oquendo, the Vizcaya and the Cristobal Colon—were modern armored cruisers of the first class."

Details of the destruction of Cervera's fleet have not been received at this writing by either the War or Navy Departments. Whether Sampson's ships entered the harbor and there attacked and annihilated the Spanish squadron or whether Cervera made a desperate dash past the sunken Merrimac to the ocean beyond, in the hope that he might be able to save at least a part of his fleet, has not been officially ascertained.

BRITAIN'S TURN TO LAUGH.

If the United States decides to carry the war to the coasts of Spain, Great Britain will have another chance to lauh atg the concert of Europe.

The great powers of Europ einsisted that the Turks should have a free hand in Armenia, and now they would like Great Britain to ojin their game to prevent the Yankees from having a free hand in Europe.

Perhaps Great Britain will mildly suggest that if th econcert of Europe had power enough to prevent the rescue of the Armenians from the Turks it had better try and see whether it had power enough t orescue Spain from the Yankees.

The concert of Europe was formed with intent to regulate the afairs of the universe to the exclusion of Great Britain's influence, and thi ssame concert now finds, that, lacking Great Britain's support, it i s incapable of regulating the Yankees off the hsores of Europe.

When the concert of Europe was keeping Great Britain's hands off Turkey, the military powers were inclined t olaugh at the British people; but if the concert of Eurpoe tries to protect Spain against th e United States, the English-speaking people will be abl eto laugh at Europe.

SMOKED CANARY BIRDS.

A little old shoemaker who has a busy, old style cobbling shop on the east side is a bird fancier, and he has peculiar ideas about canaries. One night he was sitting on his leather covered bench, smoking an extremely odorous quality of tobacco in a black pipe. A customer was waiting for him to finish straightening up a worn heel, and he made several remarks concerning the birds which hung about the cobbler's shop. They were fancy birds, and he could not help noticing it. Finally he asked the shoemaker how he got such richly colored birds.

"It's part in the breeding and part in the atmosphere," said the cobbler. "You raise birds in a shop where two or three men are constantly smoking, and in time you will get the darkest orange color if you use a little judgment in mating and they don't run to green."

"I should think that tobacco smoke would be unwholesome for the birds," said the visitor.

"On the contrary, it makes them hardy and seems to be good for them every way. Women who have canaries would do well to put them where they can get a little tobacco smoke once in awhile, although I don't think cigarette smoke would do them much good. What they need is strong tobacco smoke from an old pipe like this or the smoke from a black cigar. I've raised my best birds when I had two jours working in this little shop with me and all of us smoking pretty nearly all the time."

Then the old man sighed and said: "That was before they half soled and heeled shoes while you wait—before machines were used for cobbling. No two or three jours and an apprentice for me now. I sit here alone, with my birds, pegging away and keeping them well smoked."—New York Sun.

Road and River.

The brave Pierre Stuppa, the Swiss general, having been deputed by the 1 cantons to solicit the arrears of pay, which had been owing for a long time to the Swiss officers in the French service, M. de Louvois, the war minister, who was present, said to the king, Louis XIV:

"Sire, those Swiss are very importunate. If your majesty had all the money that your royal predecessors have given to that people, it would form a road from Paris to Basel."

"That may be," observed Stuppa with an air of firmness, "but at the same time if your majesty had all the blood that the Swiss have shed in the service of France it would form a river from Paris to Basel."

The king was so struck with the observation that he ordered M. de Louvois to pay the whole of the money without delay.—Nuggets.

PETERBOROUGH JULY 5 1898

THE MODERN SHELL.

The appalling power for destruction that the modern projectile possesses was impressively exhibited by the shell that burst aboard the Texas off Guantanamo· According to the correspondence of a London paper, this projectile was a six-inch steel shell and was believed to have been fired from one of the high-power ship's guns that Cervera put in the land batteries. It struck the Texas on the the port bow, between the gun deck and the spar deck and burst in the forward compartment, where the crews of six guns were at their posts. As has been recorded, only one man was killed and only eight wounded. The shell pierced one and one quarter inches of plating as though it were paper, without exploding, and undoubtedly would have gone out the other side still intact had a steel stanchion not been in its path. The compartment in which the explosion occurred was practically wrecked, while the smoke from it was driven down the ammuntion hoists into the forward compartments of the ship in such quantities that the men there were almost suffocated. Two feet of the metal stanchion were shivered to atoms and pieces of the shell flying forward along the original path bulged the starboard side of the compartment fully three inches in some places. One of the double-headed angle irons of the ship, nearly twice the size of a railroad rail, was cut through in places as if it had been so much cheese and nearly two feet of it was smashed into mintute pieces. The base of the shell plowed a furrow down the steel deck just as a plow would cut through the soft soil of a fallow field. It hit and broke another rib of the ship, and breaking itself in two, both pieces lodged in a cable reel standing close to the starboard side. The core of this reel was a prism of oak over two feet in circumference and there was wound on it at the time a coil of hemp hawser that made a cylinder about our feet in diameter. The hemp rope was cut through to the wood and the stout oaken prism was shivered to splinters. Splinters of steel from the stanchion, the irons and the shell itself tore along the compartment for a distance of 30 feet, cutting off bolt heads, breaking gun fittings and stripping off paint as though men had worked for hours with chisels. The only piece of the shell larger than a hazel nut that could be found after the explosion was about half the base that had torn the deck. One gunner was hit by fifteen pieces of metal. The man who was killed was directly in the path of the projectile and was blown literally to fragments. Strangely enough he was at that moment talking to another man not an arm's length away, yet the latter escaped unscratched.

THE TORONTO PRESS AND THE T. V. C.

The hostility of the Toronto press to the Trent Valley Canal is becoming more and more pronounced, as the merits of the great internal waterway, which is gradually approaching completion, is becoming better known and more thoroughly understood. The Telegram which leads in coarse abuse of everything that does not live, more and have its being in Toronto, is particularly hostile to the Trent Valley Canal. Here is a sample of the reasoning of our contemporary,

STOP THE WORK.

Would it not be better to stop work on the Trent Valley canal than to go on damaging land at the rate of $20,000 damage done to the 221 acre farm belonging to his Lordship Chief Justice Armour.

No wonder the Trent Valley canal is popular in the district which it is to enrich.

The Don Valley improvement was popular among the people whose land was to be damaged by its development.

The people who paid the bill for land damages did not think quite so much of the Don Improvement, and the people of Canada have a right to protest against progess with a work which is injuring land at the rate indicated by the terms of Chief Justice Armour's claim.

Agriculture is the basis of the nation's wealth, and it is an outrage to injure agriculture by promoting the canal which cannot be built without doing $20,000 worth of injury to every 221 acres of farm land.

It would have been far better for the Dominion Government to let Chief Justice Armour keep his land and let the country keep the money which will have to be poured out like water if the canal cannot be built without giving every properly owner a claim, not only for the value of the land taken but for damages to all the remaining land in the farm.

We can tell our contemporary that the land which is being used is for the most part comparatively valueless. There are exceptions, as naturally would be expected. Probabty, the land of Chief Justice Armour is the most valuable along the whole route.

However, this is not the point. The Toronto Press, as we said before, are actuate by mean and selfish motives in its hostility to everything that does not emanate in Toronto. The country is committed to this great project that it will be completed if the country knows itself, and we apprehend it does.

THE ONTARIO CABINET

The Belleville Sun which is published by a son-in-law of the Hon. G. W. Ross, and while it is possible that it may no treflect the opinion of that gentleman, it is reasonably safe, nevertheless, to assume that it does.

"Whil eno Liberal desire sto hamper the Ontario cabinet in their arrangement of the portfolios fo rnet session of the legislature, ther eis a strong feeling in th eparty that it unnecessary delays should be avoided, and the two defeated ministers be provided with constituencies, or new blood be taken in. It is the general belief that Mr. Gibson does not desire to continue in public life, but the sentiment is general that he can be spared less readily than can Mr. Dryden, Mr. Hardy's ill-health, unfortunately, has made a successor to his department practically necessary, while Mr. Bronson, the member without portfolio, has left public life. Disregarding all personal considerations, the Liberals must certainly go to the House next winter with a cabinet properly filled, and ready to put up an aggressive session's work. n levent of the gentlemen named retiring, o rany other change being made, the man best fitted for a cabinet post, is beyond doubt, Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., of Peterboro. Not alone does eastern Ontario need an aggressive representative in the cabinet but Mr. Strdatton's exceptional ability as a speaker and a business man, is such as to demand early recognition. The Liberals of the eastern part of the province, and for that matter, people irrespective of politics, would like like to see the cabinet in good working order as soon as possible, and, if a portfolio is given Mr. Strdatton, thye are confident he will do good work for the province."

Mr. Stratton is entitled to a seat in the cabinet, not only because he "redeemed" Wes Peterborough, from the "enemy," but because of his ability as a public speaker, and his thorough knowledge of the duties of a minister of the Crown. The people of eastern Ontario would, therefore, respectfully urge th eclaims of Mr. Stratton, when a re-construction of the cabinet takes lpnce.

There will be an awful howl from the scorchers to-day if Mayor Davis spills any of the new sewer tacks on the bicycle paths.

The Health of the Hair is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease; when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the ill health of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secretions of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lustre is restored.

"I have used

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

A SONG OF LIFE

Weed the way for joy
  Ere life's morning closes.
Let not thorns destroy
  Sweets of all life's roses.

See on earth's green bosom
  Flowers, like stars of night
See the desert blossom
  With a rose of light.

In the darkness one ray
  Shineth from afar,
Hope's unfettered sun ray,
  Love's immortal star.

See the black night riven
  By thy work—thy will.
Though the hills kiss heaven
  They shall throne thee still.

Weed the way for joy—
  Trample thorns of strife,
And be thy faith thy future,
  And be thy love thy life.

ERRORS OF INSTINCT.

Mistakes of Insects Which Seem to Deny Them the Power of Selection.

The opinion is still very generally entertained that with animals, especially those of the lower order, instinct is the determining guide that incites to the proper performance of action or function, and that as such it is far less liable to err than the reasoning of intelligence. Few scientific prejudices have been more difficult to overcome than that which removes from animals the reasoning faculty, and probably many years will yet elapse before it will be recognized that all animals which come under ordinary observation are endowed with the same kind of faculty, although developed in various degrees of a descending scale, which distinguishes man and the so called higher organisms. The bee and ant have been frequently held up as the best exponents of the instinct class, and more recently of the "exceptional" animals which developed reasoning powers, and it was a rude shock, not only to the layman, but as well to the scientist, when Sir John Lubbock, as the result of an almost endless series of experiments, announced a few years ago that these animals were "sadly wanting" both in their instinctive and intellectual traits. In other words, there were many times when both instinct and intelligence erred for them.

Some most remarkable instances of the erring of instinct among insects have recently been noted by naturalists, and they add an interesting chapter to the physiology of sense. One of these was the case of a butterfly, which persisted in visiting the artificial flowers on a lady's bonnet, mistaking them for the natural product. Another, and perhaps more striking, instance of fault is noted by the distinguished French entomologist, M. R. Blanchard, and concerns a species of sphinx moth, which entered a hotel room in the half obscurity of early morning, and was found to flit with direct intent to definite parts of the walls and ceiling. These were decorated with paintings of leaves and flowers, and to the latter the insect approached in repeated attacks, thrusting forward its proboscis as though intent upon intruding it into the opened cups of the beguiling flowers. After repeated failures and the resulting discouragement, the effort was given up, and the sphinx escaped by the window. This case of self deception is interesting in another way, inasmuch as it proves that it is not always the sense of smell, but at times that of sight, which directs insects to their flowers.—Washington Star.

The Phonograph In Russia.

Edison's phonograph has had a battle royal with Russian press censorship, says The Anglo-Russian. In the pavilion of the public gardens in Tagonrog the machine was exhibited, and attracted large audiences. It played and sang, and laughed and spoke for some time undisturbed, until a police officer heard the machine reciting one of Kriloff's famous fables—viz., "Demyan's Ukha" (soup or hospitality), but with some variations on the original text. The officer got suspicious, and not trusting to his memory, he ran at once and got Kriloff's book, and came again to listen to the phonograph's version of the fable. To his horror he found the fable reproduced not at all as it was passed by the censorship more than half a century ago.

An alarm was raised at once, the higher local authorities communicated with, and the manager of the pavilion, Mr. Paraflnovitch, was called upon to explain the behavior of that speaking American beast. All the poor manager could do was to open the mysterious inside of the criminal machine and hand over to the authorities the indiscreet cylinder which threatened to tell the peaceful inhabitants so many undesirable things. But the arrest of the chief criminal was considered insufficient, as it could not have acted without a human accomplice. So, according to he Taganrog Viestnik, the affair has taken its official course, and the innocent manager of the pavilion has lost in the meantime his generally good appetite and sound sleep, as he does not know in what punishment the official proceedings will result, and how long he will have to wait until his fate is decided.—Invention.

Yule Dough.

The first authentic record of Christmas pie or pudding is that of the Yule dough. This was a paste made in the form of a baby and presented by the bakers to their customers as a Christmas gift. In ancient Rome on the vigil of the nativity sweetmeats in the form of images were presented to the holy fathers, and it is probable that Yule dough had its origin in this custom. A belief was prevalent at one time that mince pie, which is composed of fruits and spices grown in the east, was a survival in memory of the offerings brought by the wise men to Bethlehem, when they came to worship the infant Saviour. The pie in later years came to be a wonderful compound of fruits, spices and meats, eggs and sugar, and inspired the poet Herrick to write:

Come, guard this night the Christmas pie
That the thiefe, though ne'er so slie,
With his flesh hooks don't come nie
To catch it.

Plum pudding, now the universal piece de resistance in England, was originally "plumb porridge," and was served from a tureen at all the Christmas festivals—

An Appreciable Difference.

"The chief difference between the man with a lot of new made money and the gentle zephyr," said the corn fed philosopher, "is that the gentle zephyr blows itself quietly."—Indianapolis Journal.

In 1680 the Duchesse de Fontanges had the misfortune to have her hat blown off at a hunting party, and she tied her hair with one of her ribbon garters. Hairdressing with ribbons remained a fashion for seven years.

No fewer than 26,896 doors and windows in London have been found open at night by the police in one year.

ELECTRICITY AND CROPS

THE CURRENT HELPS THINGS TO GROW WITH GOOD RESULTS.

Frenchmen Know the Secret—Seeds, Flowers, Grapes, Strawberries and Vegetables Showing Extraordinary Vigor When Electricity is Applied.

It has long been known that the electricity in the atmosphere plays an important part in the stimulation of vegetable growth, but hitherto no practical use has been made of this knowledge.

The results recently obtained by some French scientists, who have been experimenting with the effects of electricity on plants indicate that a most valuable aid to agriculture has been discovered. A plant deprived of atmospheric electricity by covering it with a network of fine steel wires soon withers away and dies; when artificially stimulated by an electric current it blooms with far more vigor than in a normal condition.

With these data to work upon the experimenters moistened seeds with water and then subjected them to the influence of an electric current. The seeds thus treated grew with far more vigor and came to maturity sooner than those not so treated. They even succeeded in making date stones germinate, which is a very unusual thing to happen in France.

Peas, beans and maize grew with astonishing swiftness when treated with the powerful current of a Ruhmkorff coil and the yield was greater than ordinary. Experiments with batteries were not so successful when the current was passed through the earth, because of the difference in the resistance of the soil in various places to the passage of the current. The resulting crop was uneven in character, according as one particular section received more or less of the electric current. With the powerful electrical machines much more satisfactory results were obtained. Strawberries in particular were ripened in a remarkably short time

Electrical machines are far too expensive, however, for a farmer to use, and though all right in theory they are too costly in practice.

The new invention is called the geomagnetifere, and consists of an ordinary pole forty or fifty feet high, surmounted with a cheval de frise of copper spikes, designed to act as a collector of atmospheric electricity. This collector is insulated from the pole by a porcelain knob, and connects with a copper wire (also insulated from the pole), which transmits the current to a network of wires which are laid under the soil at a depth of about six feet. These wires are made of galvanized iron, and their cost is not large.

By the use of this apparatus the production on a given area has been increased 50 per cent. The grapes from vineyards in which the geomagnetifere is used are richer in sugar and alcohol than ordinary grapes. Flowers have a stronger perfume also when stimulated in this manner.

The exact chemical action which the current has upon fruits and vegetables cannot be determined. It is only certain that such action takes place. Some hold that it acts by aiding the plants to assimilate the azote of the atmosphere, while others think that it favors the assimilation of certain mineral salts in the soil.

The experiment can be tried on any lawn or flower bed so long as the pole is away from the house. If too close it acts as a lightning conductor, but without giving any protection.

It is estimated that a geomagnetifere sixty feet high will enrich the soil to the same degree as ten times its cost in manure. At the present time a successful farmer has to be something of a chemist, and it now seems as though he will have to be an electrician, too.

A NEW CURE FOR ERYSIPELAS.

Colorless Liquid With an Extraordinary Name Dr. Marmorek Has Made.

It is reported that a Parisian physician, Marmorek by name, has discovered a new serum for the cure of erysipelas, puerperal fever and bronchial pneumonia. This recently discovered remedy has been given the peculiar and lengthy name of Antistreptococcique. It has been seen at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and is a thin, colorless liquid, resembling water in almost every detail. No word has come so far as to its success or whether any really definite cures have been made.

As a matter of fact, there is only a very small quantity of it as yet in existence—little more than a tiny vialful, indeed, but this is sufficient to have aroused pretty nearly all Paris—that section of it it least which takes an interest in medical affairs and in the science of curing disease—into making frequent inquiries and regarding the discovery as of great practical importance. Dr. Marmorek says that he is beset on every hand with requests for a small quantity of the serum on the part of both physicians and sufferers, and he has been obliged to shut out the public and the medical fraternity for a time until he has prepared more of the precious liquid.

His reason for so acting is his remembrance of the time of the discovery of the antitoxine cure, when the institute was besieged by anxious crowds demanding the new remedy and offering large sums of money for even a little of it. When the doctors then explained to them that it was impossible to give them what they asked for because there was no supply of it on hand, the crowd returned and upbraided the Pasteur physicians violently, calling them unhuman and brutes. Dr Marmorek is anxious that such a scene shall not occur in connection with his discovery. In a month and a half Marmorek claims that he will have an ample supply and will meet all demands that may be made upon him.

Deadly Work of the New Bullet.

Sir Benjamin Baker, in a paper on "War and Engineering," calls attention to the devastation which the small-bore rifle effects in the human body. He says: "The magazine rifle bullet, though no larger in diameter than a lead pencil, does not simply perforate a bone, but "the part is always pounded; fragments are frequently carried out through the wound of exit, which is commonly converted into a gaping orifice, the muscles are pulped, and, in fact, the limb mangled and damaged beyond repair." It may not unreasonably be contended, therefore, that by supplying soldiers with a weapon which kills or maims for life everyone a bone of whose body is touched by a bullet even at a mile's distance, and further, by making victors and vanquished suffer equally, and the cost of killing a man to be incomparably greater than of old, engineering science has done more to make war unpopular than all the army tailors of the world will ever be able to undo, however much they may endeavor to distract attention.

OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED

Washington, D. C., July 3.—The following despatch from General Shafter was received to-day and made public from the White House.

Playa Del Este, July 3.—To Secretary of War, Washington — Camp Sevilla, Cuba, July 3.—We have the town well invested on the north and east, but with a very thin line. Upon approaching we found it of such a character and the defences so strong that it will be impossible to carry it by storm with my present force. Our losses up to date will aggregate a thousand, but list has not yet made. But little outside of exhaustion from intense heat and exertion of the battle of the day before yesterday and the almost constant fire which is kept up on the trenches and wagon road to the rear is kept up with some difficulty on account of rains, but I will be able to use for the present. Gen. Wheeler is seriously ill, and will probably have to go to the rear to-day. Gen Young is also very ill and confined to his bed. Gen. Hawkins is slightly wounded in the fott, received during a sortie with the enemy made last last night, which was handsomely repulsed. The behaviour of the troops was magnificent. Gen. Garcia reported he holds the railroad from Santiago to San Lius and has burned a bridge and removed some rails, also that Gen. Pando has arrived at Palma and that the French Consul with about 400 French citizens, came into his line yesterday from Santiago. Have directed him to treat them with every courtesy possible. (Signed) Shafter, Maj.-General.

Headquarters in the field outside Santiago de Cuba, July 2, via Guantanamo.—The American army drove the Spaniards back at every point in an all day engagement yesterday.

The American loss is probably close to a thousand. The total proportion of killed is very large, about 25 per cent.

One part of the line of the American forces slept on captured ground and will renew the fight at sunrise.

Capt. Grimes' battery yesterday shelled the last surburban fortification for half an hour before any reply was made.

The Spanish shells overshot the battery and killed four and wounded 25 infantrymen in the rear of it. Gen. Wheeler's cavalry commanded by Gen. Sumner and Gen. Kent's division advanced at noon and carried the San Juan battery by storm before sunset. Gen. Lawton's division and Capt. Capron's battery drove the Spaniards from Caney. The enemy was cut up by an American cross fire while retreating in the direction of Santiago. The 6th and 16th infantry stormed the eastern rifle pit, and after a bitter fight drove the enemy headlong into Santiago. The 6th cavalry captured the first Spanish flag. Capt. Parkhurst's battery last night commanded the east side of Santiago from a hill. The eastern line of defence is practically wrecked. The fighting yesterday was steady, though the Americans were embarrassed by the heavy brush. The Spaniards made a brave but spasmodic defence, much of the Spanish firing being by volley, while the Americans fired mostly at will, each bullet being aimed at a special target. It is impossible to estimate the Spanish losses. Simultaneously with the land attack the fleet bombarded the fortifications.

General Duffield, with the 33rd Michigan, made a demonstration in force on Aguadores as a diversion in favor of the main attack on the east. The fleet bombardment was renewed this morning.

BLACKBIRD'S GRAVE.

LAST RESTING PLACE OF THE FAMOUS INDIAN CHIEF.

On a Bluff That Is Now Inside the City of Omaha—On Its Summit the Chief Watched For His White Friends—Romance of the Omaha-Poncas Feud.

Omaha has within her city limits an unknown and uncared for historic spot which in a few decades will be looked upon with far more interest than it has in the past or is now, for the value of historical places grows with the distance in time from the events which made them historical. This spot, which is in Omaha, and yet has been forgotten and neglected by the city, is the grave of the famous Omaha chief and warrior whom even Washington Irving thought worthy of a place in his writings. This chief lived in the latter part of the last century, dying in 1792. In those days, according to Irving, the Omahas looked upon themselves as the most powerful and perfect of human beings, and considered all created things as made for their peculiar use and benefit. The leader of this tribe, Blackbird, or Wash-ing-guh-sah-ba, was a warrior of the highest class. Early in life he had been taken a prisoner by the Sioux, where he had his metal tested. Under his leadership the Omahas attained a reputation among the other tribes that they never had possessed before. The Pawnees having inflicted an insult upon an Omaha bravo, Blackbird led his men against their town and slaughtered many of the inhabitants and burned it to the ground. He also waged a fierce war against the Otoes until peace was effected by the interference of the whites.

Yet, notwithstanding his fiery disposition, he fell a victim to Cupid's dart. The Poncas had raided the Omaha tribe and carried off many of their women and horses. Blackbird took the field with the sworn determination of eating up his enemy. So fiercely did the battle rage that the Poncas began to sue for mercy. A herald was sent out with the pipe of peace, but he was shot down by Blackbird. A second herald shared the same fate. As a last hope the Ponca chief then sent out his daughter, arrayed in all her finery and bearing the calumet of peace. Her charms conquered. A treaty was made, and Blackbird married the herald. She became his favorite wife, yet nevertheless in one of his ungovernable fits of rage he killed her with a single blow of his knife.

No sooner did he see her lying dead at his feet than his anger left him, and for three days he sat by her corpse—silent, motionless and tasting no food. On the third day his people began to fear that he intended to starve himself to death and entreated him to be comforted. He paid no attention to their entreaties, and at last a warrior brought a little child into his presence and placed it beneath the chief's foot. This appeal brought him to himself, and, arising, he made a speech to his followers and seemingly threw off his grief as easily as he had taken it on. In 1792 the smallpox swept over Nebraska, and Blackbird was one of its victims. The following description of his death and burial is quoted from Washington Irving's "Astoria:"

"When the general horror and dismay were at their height, Blackbird himself was struck down with the malady. The poor savages gathered around his bed and forgot their own miseries. His dominant spirit and love for the white men were manifested in his latest breath, with which he designated his place of sepulture. It was to be on a hill or promontory upward of 400 feet high, overlooking a great extent of the Missouri river, from whence he had been accustomed to watch for the barks of the white men. The Missouri washes the base of the promontory, and after winding and doubling in many links and mazes in the plain below returns to within 900 yards of its starting point, so that for 30 miles navigating with sail and oar the voyager finds himself continually near to this singular promontory as if spellbound.

'It was the dying command of Blackbird that his tomb should be on the summit of this hill, in which he should be interred, seated on his favorite horse, that he might overlook his ancient domain and behold the barks of the white men as they came up the river to trade with his people.

"His dying orders were faithfully obeyed. His corpse was placed astride of his war steed and a mound raised over them on the summit of the hill. On the top of the mound was erected a staff from which floated the banner of the chieftain and the scalps that he had taken in battle. When the expedition under Mr. Hunt visited that part of the country (1802), the staff still remained, with the fragments of the banner, and the superstitious rite of placing food from time to time upon the mound for the use of the deceased was still observed by the Omahas."

"That promontory is now within the city limits of Omaha," says Dr. Mercer, "and I located the grave 20 years ago. When I came to Omaha 36 years ago, the river wound around in the shape of an 'S,' and this promontory upon which I found the grave exactly answers to the description given by Irving. It is in the south part of the city, and Williams street would run through it if extended to the river. Just east of it and under the bluff is a brickyard, the roofs of which reach nearly up to the top of the hill.

"The Omaha camp was located in the bottom beneath the bluff and a little to the north. This point was Blackbird's favorite place for sitting to watch for the coming of the traders with whom he was very friendly. No doubt you have heard the story. When the traders came up, he greeted them most friendly, made them open up their goods and selected what he wanted himself. Then he called in his tribe and compelled them to trade. The whites made up for their gifts to him by the extra charge they put upon the goods sold, and not an Indian dared kick. The chief had got his bribe and his people had to pay for it.

"There is another story about the old fellow. He was great on superstition, and when pursuing the enemy would fire into their tracks, claiming that would kill them. He posed as a kind of god, but after awhile some of his people grew skeptical of his superhuman power and refused to obey him. In this difficulty he consulted his friends, the white traders, and they told him to prophesy the death of all who disobeyed him. He did so, announcing according to instructions that all who were disobedient would die a mysterious death upon a certain day. When that day came, he invited the whole tribe in to dine with him, and put a dose of arsenic in the bowl of each man whom he wished to serve as an example of his godlike power. Of course they died. From that time on his power was never questioned, and the traders who put him up to the trick and furnished the arsenic stood higher than ever with him."—Omaha World-Herald.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

ONE, GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SHAFTESBURY DRUMMOND.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS.

"On the return of the judge to New York,' be said, "all remaining doubts will be cleared up, as he will then be at leisure to examine some family papers. I wish all the preparations for our wedding to go on at once, under your own superintendence, dear mother."

So the marriage was announced in all the papers. Miss Sterling it was stated, was the niece of Judge Orlin, and heiress in prospective to a large vfortune. Many of Mrs. Derwent's friends called on the bride-elect, and all seemed promising and harmonious.

"It is always to make an enemy," says the Arabian proverb. Stella was destined to prove the truth of this maxim.

Waddy Marshall had spent some days in bed after his adventure with Stella Sterling. Her blow with the umbrella had been a severe one, and Walter Derwent's arm wa salso powerful, so Waddy required time t oiecover from the result sof his insulting behaviour to the defenceless girl. His wife had mocked him openly. Of course hse was not aware of the cause of his disfigured face, but attributed it to intemperance, and felt little sympathy for his suffering. She had been well aware of his character when hse married him, and cared nothing for him.

"He is an intemperate fool,' she said her mother, who was a votary of fashion, who kept up apearances on very slender means, "but he has plenty of money, I shall marry him, and see as little of him as possible after the knot is tied.'

Wadd yrose fro mhi sisck bed vowing vengeance on Stella Sterling, who had been the means of his humiliation.

He felt too angry with his bride to accompany her into fashionable society, and sulked alone in hi selegant home, except when he sought congenial company at various low haunts and dens of vice, with which he had for years been thoroughly familiar.

He was acquainted with Jeffrey Pettus. The crook had swindled him many many times, but Waddy had no tbrains enough to recognize the fact.

To him Pettus was "a devilish good fellow, don't cher know."

Waddy's thoughts turned to Jeffrey when he vowed that Stella would repent in sackcloth and ashes for her disdainful treatment of a man of his pretensions. He also thought it might be prudent to keep himself in the background, for Walter Derwent, ewas a foe not to be despised, and Walter had elected to champion Stella's cause. Discretion, was, therefore, the better part of valor.

Waddy was too thorough a coward to break th eletter of the law in any way, but he wished to induce Stella to compromise herself by some imprudent act. He began as soon as he caught Jeffrey Pettus, to unfold his schemes. He did not mention any names at first, and Jeffrey's interest was somewhat lukewarm; but after partaking freely of brandy and soda, Waddy grew more communicative and less cautious.

"I'd give five hundred, yes, one thousand dollars, to get that young hussy in a fix,' he said, staring straight before him, with drunken solemnity.

"Would you? I shouldn't mind lending a hand if I could make money out of the ojb. Who is she anyhow?"

"Never mind who she is; none of your business. Don't take lib—lib—liberties with a gen'l—gentleman; See?" ? Waddy was becoming more idiotic everty moment.

"Certainly not; but I do not see how I can put up a job on any one when Idon't know who it is."

Waddy looked wiser than ever.

" Iain't going to give any names away,' he said, "but you know old Jameson the lawyer?"

"Certainly.'

Jefrey began to give more attention to the rambling talk of the drunken dude.

"Well he's got a governess, saucy as they make 'em. I'djust like to see that young woman taken down a peg, byt Walt Derwent," here he muttered an oath, "he's got to meddle. Some day he's going to marry her."

"Marry Stella Sterling?"

Jefrey was roused now.

"Yes. Why—why—you seem to know th egal.'

"So I do. Know all about her. Is she the girl you'll pay a thousand dollars to play a trick on?"

"Yes, unless she's a friend of yours."

"Friend! Ihate he rlike poison."

"Then we shall do all we can to make her work cheap. Come make up a plan.

The fool and villain drew their chairs close together and plotted together to ruin an innocent girl.

CHAPTER XXIII.

For some time Edith had seen little of her friend Stella. She had heard of her engagement, and congratulated her, though in the depht of her heart she felt that no good could result from a marriage which was founded on deception.

Edith had heard so much of Walter Derwent's pride of birth and aristoctratic ideas, that sh ewell knew he would never wed a girl on whom the cloud of her step-father's shame rested.

"If she only told hi mthe truth, and he loved her well enough to overlook the past, then all would be well; but as it is, I dread what will surely take place. He will learn the whole story, and his anger will be terrible."

She could not confide in anyone, not even Harry; fo rshe felt that Stella's secret was no the rown, and therefore, she must keep it even more sacredly than if it was solely hers.

"Poor Stella," she said, after an interview, when the bride-elect had told her of the beautiful mansion that was being so luxurioulsy fitted up as the home of Walter Derwent's wife. "She will be worsted in 'the battle of fate' we spoke of so gayly. I shall be happier with my Harry, though we shall have to live in a four-room frame-house at Hyde Park."

Mr. McDonald expects to have the transfer made and the mill in running order by the first of September. STREETS AND BRIDGES.

Chairman Dawson presented the report of the Street and Bridge Committee, which was as follows.—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough.—

Gentlemen,—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report and recommend that no pipes conducting water from roofs be allowed to discharge on the streets or sidewalks on George street or other streets where concrete sidewalks are laid and that all pipes so discharging must be carried to the cellars and connected with the sewers.

The report was adopted.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Councillor Denne presented the following report.—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough.—

Gentlemen,—Your Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report as follows.—

1. That in view of the time being too late no action be taken on the application of the Times Printing Co. in regard to publishing a pamphlet on Picturesque Peterborough.

2. That Mr. R. H. Green's application for a rebate on account of last year's market tolls be not granted, as to do so would have a tendency to cause reckless bidding and would be unsound in principle.

3. That no action be taken on the application of the Peterborough Light & Power Co. for the remission of the rental charged the Company for having its poles on the streets.

4. That the salaries of J. Montgomery and E. Lawrence be increased to $375 a year each from July 1st inst.

5. Your Committee instructed the Town Solicitor to take the necessary action to protect the town's interest in the island in the Otonabee River which the Canadian Pacific Railway line crosses, and also instruct the solicitor to make further enquiries regarding the position of the same.

Moved by Councillor Denne, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that the report be adopted.

Mr. R. H. Green appeared before the council asking the re-consideration of Clause 2, also soliciting a rebate of $48 on balance due on market fees.

Councillors Dawson, Denne, Langford, Best and Meldrum were opposed to making any reduction. It would be a bad precedent to establish.

Councillor Hamilton was in favor of the rebate. Mr. Green had built the market up and was surely entitled to some recognition for past services.

Councillor McWilliams moved in amendment, seconded by Councillor Hamilton, that clause 2 of the report be referred back to the committee of the whole council.

The amendment was declared lost.

The report was then adopted.

An application from Mr. Green for time in which to pay the balance due the town was referred to the Finance Committee.

BY-LAWS.

The By-law authorizing the borrowing of $10,000 for the building of bridges and the purchase of a steam roller received its third reading and was passed.

A By-law appointing Mr. H. Denne tax collector received its several readings and was passed.

A By-law granting $250 to the Fire Brigade Band, $50 to Sons of England band, $50 to Salvation Army band, and $100 to the Childrens' Aid Society, received its several readings and was passed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Moved by Councillor Robinson, seconded by Councillor W. H. White, that the street inspector be instructed to replace sod removed from Dalhousie street, opposite Mr. Benton's residence. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Denne, seconded by Councillor Hamilton, that the extra constables, etc., employed during the C.W.A. meet be paid on the certificate of the mayor.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

COLLINS FOULED DOYLE

In the Wrestling Contest Last Night at the Opera House

A large audience gathered last night in the opera house to see the wrestling contest between Doyle, of town, and Collins, of Toronto.

Before the match began Collins, who apparently seemed to anticipate trouble, refused to go on with the contest unless police protection was procured, on the plea that there was considerable money at stake and he was practically alone against the whole town of Peterborough.

After some delay the services of Chief Roszel and P. C. Stewart were secured and the contestants took their positions on the carpet.

After about forty-five minutes hard work in which Doyle seemed to have considerably the best of it, Collins, without any provocation whatever, led out with his left and struck Doyle. Immediately the oficials on the platform stepped in and after considerable tugging succeeded in parting the combatants.

Doyle offered to proceed with the match, but Chief Roszel would not allow the contest to be continued, so the affair was postponed. It is rumored that it will be finished in Lindsay to-night.

The only reason that we can see for Collins' peculiar behaviour is that previous to his hitting Doyle he had been lying quietly on the floor for some time and perhaps he dreamed that if he could only succeed in giving Doyle Fitzsimmons' "solar plexus" blow he would spring into world-wide fame. Mr. Connelly, of Saginaw, Mich., discharged the exacting duties of referee to the satisfaction of everyone. Bert Dolan acted as time-keeper for Collins, while Fred Jones performed the same duty for Doyle.

RESOLUTIONS.

A deputation from Mark Street Methodist church waited upon the council and requested the use of the town hall on Monday and Wednesday evenings and Sundays during the 3 months the church is undergoing repair at the lowest possible terms.

Councillor Johnson moved, seconded by Councillor Craig, that this council grant to the Mark street Methodist church the use of the town hall in which to hold their Sunday, Monday and Wednesday services, on condition that they pay all expenses attached thereto and keep the hall clean and in good repair.—Carried.

Councillor Johnson moved, seconded by Councillor Craig, that the Street Inspector be instructed to make out a statement of amount of money spent on roads and bridges from January 1st. to August 1st, 1898, and also the amount of new work not passed by this council, said statement to be presented to this council at its next regular meeting.—Carried.

Councillor Rutherford moved, seconded by Councillor Morgan, that the treasurer be instructed to collect the rents for town hall stores monthly, at the rate of $6.25, in advance.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

Port Said, July 5.—Admiral Camara's torpedo boats boats have sailed, it is said, for a Spanish port.

DESPATCH BOAT SENT TO MANILA

Madrid, July 5.—It is inferred that the news received in Madrid to the effect that the British Consul at Hong Kong has sent a despatch boat to Manila for the purpose of informing Rear Admiral Dewey of the fact that Admiral Camara's squadron has traversed the Suez canal, refers to the British authorities at Hong Kong having taken that step.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM

Madrid, July 5, 1 p.m.—Almost indescribable enthusiasm continues to prevail here over the supposed escape of Admiral Cervera and his squadron from the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. The Admiral's name is on every tongue and it is claimed that it was he who saved Santiago de Cuba by "adding to General Linares handful of soldiers his brave sailors to mann the guns ashore and repel the Americans under General Shafter."

Such is the exultant eulogy of Admiral Cervera heard on all sides. This state of public feeling being due to the official announcement from Santiago de Cuba for instance one statement from Santiago de Cuba is as follows. 'When Admiral Cervera found that it was certain Col. Escarios reinforcements were in proximity to Santiago the Admiral held a council with the commanders of his squadron disclosing to them a plan to force the blockade in broad daylight. The commanders responded unanimously. Adelante (Forward).

"It was then arranged that the torpedo boats destroyers should take the lead feigning an attack and discharge their torpedos against the enemies' ships the Cristobal Colon protecting their advance sheltered by the batteries of Morro Castle and distracting the enemy's attention, while the remainder of the squadron sailed out of the harbor. The Americans at first were taken by surprise, then recovering they opened a tremendous and esecialply against the torpedo boat destroyers, which Admiral Cervera had instructed to steer an opposite course to the squadron. The Americans were deceived and manoeuvred toward the supposed course of the Spaniards, while Admiral Cervera went full steam ahead, maintaining a continuous fire until clear of the American lines and then steamed away westward pursued and breasted for some distance by the swiftest American vessels until they were lost sight off Morro Castle. Meanwhile the torpedo boat destroyers sank under a rain of shell from the numerous American warships. It is presumed part of their crews were seved by the enemy or swam ashore."

SPANISH CREWS SAVED

They Willingly Surrender, Fearing Attacks by Murderous Cubans

A Whole Fleet Destroyed, While the Victorious Vessels Come Out Uninjured—Cervera Brokenhearted

Ten miles west of the harbor of Santiago, Sunday, July 3, per the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 4.—It was about 9 o'clock this morning when the flagship Infanta Maria Teresa passed under the wall of Morro Castle and steamed out to sea. She was followed by the Cristobal Colon, Vizcaya and Oquendo and last by the torpedo boat destroyers Pluton and Furor. The lookout on the American vessels, which were lying five or ten miles off the entrance to the harbor sighted them immediately. Most of the American cruisers were at the usual Sunday morning quarters, without thought of anything as surprising as the Spanish fleet getting past the sunken collier Merrimac, which they had been deluded into believing effectually blocked the channel. There was great excitement at once and very rapid action all along the American lines. Signal for "Full speed ahead" was running from bridge to engine room of every ship, and thee ntire fleet commenced to move in shore towards the Spanish, and the great 12 and 13-inch guns of the battleships and the smaller batteries on the other vessels fired shot after shot at long range. As the ships ran in towards the shore it soon became evident that the Spaniards had not come out to make an aggressive fight, for they turned to the eastward as soon as they had cleared the harbor and started on their race for safety, at the same time sending answering shots at the American ships as fast as the men could load and fire the guns. The Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Texas, Oregon and Iowa were nearer the Spaniards than any others of the American vessels, but still most of them were too far away to get an effective range. They crowded on all steam in preparation for the chase, never stopping their fire for one moment.

The Gloucester, a fast little yacht that cannot boast of any heavier battery than several six-pounders and three-pounders, was lying off Aguadores, three miles east of Morro, when the Spaniards came out. At first she joined in the attack upon a large vessel and then held off, Captain Wainwright concluding to reserve his efforts for the two torpedo boat destroyers in the rear.

The Gloucester steamed after them when they appeared and chased them to a point five miles west of Morro, pouring shot after shot into them all the time. Her efforts bore abundant fruit, for to her belongs the credit for the destruction of both the destroyers. She fired 1,400 shots during the chase, and it was not long before both destroyers were on fire and plainly disabled.

The Gloucester then sent a boat to the assistance of the crews of the destroyers. It did not take the flames which had broken out on the Furor long to reach her magazines and then there were two terrific explosions. Her stern sunk immediately and she went to the bottom to perpetual oblivion, giving out a hissing, scalding sound as she disappeared below the surface. Meantime the Brooklyn and the five battleships were keeping up an incessant fire upon the Infanta Maria Teresa, Vizcaya and the Almirante Oquendo, and the latter were returning it bravely, though with no success.

The guns of the battery just east of Morro took part in the game, and their shells fell around the American ships; many of them struck the upper works of the fleeing Spaniards and must have resulted in the killing and wounding of many of their men.

The flagship and Oquendo were the first to show signals of disaster. Two 13-inch shells from one of the battleships had struck the Maria Teresa at the water line, tearing great holes in her side and causing her to fill rapidly. The Oquendo suffered about the same fate, and both ships headed for a small cove and went aground 200 yards from the shore, flames shooting from them in every direction.

The Gloucester later steamed along the coast to where the cruisers were stranded. There was danger from the magazines, and many of those on board jumped into the water and swam ashore, though a number were unable to reach the small strip of sandy beach in the cove and were thrown against the rocks and killed or drowned.

The Gloucester had all her boats out, and the seamen swam through the surf with a line from the Maria Teresa, making it fast to a tree on the shore. By this means many on the flagship, including Admiral Cervera, lowered themselves into the Gloucester's boats. The wounded were taken to the Gloucester as rapidly as possible, and the lower deck of the yacht was soon covered with Spanish sailors, mangled in limb and body by the bursting of shells. There were still some men on both vessels when the fire commenced to reach the magazines and the boxes of ammunition lying on the decks. A dozen or more explosions followed, the smoke from which covered the hillside, running down almost to the water's edge. Another column of smoke two miles further to the westward was observed. The Vizcaya also was in flames and was obliged to run ashore to keep from going down. The Iowa and the Indiana were keeping up a terrific fire upon her, and her condition was as bad as that of the others.

The Brooklyn, Oregon, Massachusetts and Texas, and several smaller vessels continued the chase after the Cristobal Colon, and in less than an hour were lost to view of the burning ships on shore. The Iowa gave assistance to the imperilled crews of the Vizcaya. Her captain surrendered his command, and the prisoners were transferred to the battleship. The Vizcaya probably lost about sixty men, as she carried a complement of 400 and only 340 were taken aboard the Iowa.

Soon after Admiral Cervera reached the sore and surrendered, he was taken to the Gloucester at his own request. There was no mistaking the heart-broken expression upon the old seaman's face as he took the proferred hand of Captain Wainwright and was shown to the latter's cabin, but he made every effort to bear bravely the bitter defeat that had come to him. He thanked the captain of the Gloucester for the words of congratulation offered on the gallant fight and then spoke earnestly of his solicitude for the safety of his men on shore.

For hours after Admiral Cervera went aboard the Gloucester, the Infanta Maria Teresa, Almirante, Oquendo and Vizcaya continued to burn, and every now and then a deep roar, accompanied by a burst of flame and smoke from the sides of the ships would announce the explosion of more ammunition or another magazine. The Pluton and the Furor sank. The Gloucester's boat picked up as many of the survivors as she could find on the shore.

The prisoners of war included the captains of both boats. None offered any resistance, and were glad to go to the Gloucester, as they feared an attack from the Cubans.

A number of survivors, including officers of the Furor, who, it was reported, had their legs shot off, were scattered along the coast for some distance, and could not be found.

The most remarkable feature of the combat was the fact that, notwithstanding the utter destruction of the Spanish fleet and the hard fight those ships made even after they were on fire the American vessels should escape without injury.

WARSHIPS LEAVE.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—The British warships Pallas and Alert have left for Santiago de Cuba in order to bring away British subjects who are desirous of leaving that city.

CHEERS GREET THE VICTORY.

At the Front, Headquarters of General Shafter's army, before Santiago de Cuba, July 3, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—Early in the day a man on the look-out had reported that the Spanish fleet, under the command of Admiral Cervera had sailed out of the harbor, but it was not known until late this afternoon that the result was so victorious at the front. As the word of the magnificent victory flew from sentry to sentry along the firing lines and was shouted to the companies, regiments and brigades, a great cher swept down the line of weary men, which gathered force as it went, until the rattle of musketry was drowned in the roar from glad American throats. The news flashed back into the underbrush, where the reserves lay, and the men almost stampeded in their enthusiastic desire to get to the front.

The cheering continued through the evening. As the details of the fight came in the men could not have displayed more enthusiasm had hae the victory been theirs intsead of belonging to the navy. Although the firing continued all day between the outposts very little damage was done on either side. Gen. Chaffee was wounded slightly, a rifle bullet cutting through his foot, but he will not be compelled to leave the field. The only severe fighting done during the day occurred when the Spanish fleet was leaving the harbor.

GUILLEMAIN MURDER TRIAL

Prisoner Had Plenty of Money and Said He Stole It From Barnum's Circus

St. Hyacinthe Que., July 5—The Guillemain murder trial was resumed this morning, Judge Tellier presiding. Ludger Guilbault of Biddeford, millhand, said that he met Guillemain in Cassavant's restaurant on November 13th, last. There were alos present Louis Pietere and two other young men. The accused handed the witness $110 in Canadian bills, for safe keeping. Ladoux, Pietere, Guillemain and himself Guilleman also bought pipes and afterwards started for the flats. On the way they had a number of drinks, gloves. The witness made all the purchases, tendering a ten dollar bill each time, and invariably returning the change to Guillemain. The accused had boasted to him that he had stolen the money from Barnum's circus in Montreal. He said he intended to return to Canada the following week for a trial, and proposed taking $56 for expenses. Guillemain also expressed to the witness his intention to leave the balance of the money in Guilbault's hands during his absence in Canada.

Judge Tellier ordered the preliminary evidence taken at Biddeford last autumn to be read, meantime reserving his decision as to its admissibility.

Sheriff Sicotte read the depositions of City Marshall Marmon and Constable Roberge. Both declared that Guillemain freely confessed his guilt. They offered him no inducement whatever, nor did they force him to make admissions.

WOLSLEY FOR CANADA

And Lord Roberts His Successor—Prediction of the London Outlook

We hazard a series of suggestions which may very well prove to be true forecasts. Lord Woleley will go to Canada as Lord Aberdeen's successor, in the position of Governor-General, and heartily will he be welcomed there. Lord Roberts will go to Whitehall to fill Lord Wolseley's place as Commander-in-Chief. The Duke of Connaught will go to Dublin to take up the post of commander in-chief in Ireland, and at the same time, with the help of the Duchess, meet the desire of Irishmen to be more closely associated with royalty; and the Duke's place at Aldershot as general in command will be taken by General Sir Redvers Buller—London Eng., Outlook.

CAN AN OIL LAMP EXPLODE?

An Expert Says It is an Absolute Impossibility for It to Explode

Philadelphia, July 5.—Th einquest in the case of Lucy Smith, the 13-year-old colored child, who was burned to death last Saturday night, was reopened yesterday. It was in evidence at the first hearing that a coal lamp had exploded and set fire to the girl's clothing.

J. W. Daniels, an expert, testified that he had examined the oil of the same kind as that which is said to have exploded, and found it above the test required by law, and further declared that it was impossible for a coal oil lamp to explode. It is my opinion," said the witness, "based on years of experiments, that it is an absolute physical impossibility for a lamp filled with coal oil to explode. I have made the tests in every possible way that could be suggested. Lamps have been filled to every degree of fulines sand emptiness in these experimnents. The wicks have been turned down until they have fallen into the oil in the lamps. Lighted matches have been thrown in, and red-hot iron run down into the oil, but no explosion has ever followed. In order to have an explosion there must be a vaporous gas generated within the tank. The line is so finely drawn that if there is any oil atfall in the lamp it is absolutely safe. Twenty-four drops of oil placed in a one gallon can will generate enough of this vaporous gas to cause an explosion, but if forty-eight drops are introduced into a can of the same size there will be no harm result.

PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERY

Assembled at Campbellford but Adjourned to Peterborough to Conclude Business

The Presbytery of Peterborough convened in St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, Monday evening at 7.30. A conference on the work of the church was the cause of a large congregation, and a very interesting and enthusiastic meeting.

Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's, presided and after devotional exercise called upon the Rev. Dr. Smith, of Port Hope, to give an address on "The Relation of the Church and the Home."

Rev. Mr. followed with a very interesting address on "The Personnel and Work of the Assembly of 1898."

Rev. Dr. Robertson, of the Northwest Mission, followed with a most inspiring address on "The progress and power of the church in missionary enterprise in the far west," and made a very strong appeal in favor of a forward movement all along the line.

At the close of the public meeting, word having been received regarding the sudden death of Rev. James Clelland, for many years a familiar figure in Port Hope, and a man beloved by many, the Presbytery decided to discontinue business till 11.30 and adjourn to St. Andrew's, Peterborough, at 9 yesterday morning, then proceed south to Port Hope at noon and take charge of the obsequies.

The first matter was the introduction of Rev. R. F. Hunter, M.A., lately installed pastor of Coldsprings and Baltimore. Rev. Dr. Smith, of the First church, Port Hope, to whom leave to retire from the active duties of the ministry had been granted, formally laid his resignation before the Presbytery. The Presbytery expressed its deep regret at the severance of such a valued member and acquiesced in the wish of Dr. Smith. Arrangements were made for the supply of the pulpit after Sept. 30th, when the resignation will take effect. Rev. John Hay was appointed moderator, and Rev. Jas. Somerville, of Norwood, was chosen to declare the pulpit vacant.

A letter read from the convener of the Augmentation Fund committee urging upon all congregations to take a deep interest in this most important part of the church's work was ordered to be printed and circulated throughout the Presbytery. It was also decided to strive at raising at least the amount annually used by the Presbytery within its bounds.

A SESSION IN TOWN.

In St. Andrew's yesterday morning the clerk reported that the Rev. R. McKnight, M. A., had been received by the General Assembly a minister of the church, and the clerk was instructed to furnish certificate when required.

The Rev. J. G. Potter reported visitation of committee to the mission fields of the Presbytery and the report was received and recommendations of interest referred to the Home Mission committee.

Revs. Dr. Torrance and John Hay, B. D., were appointed a committee to draw up a minute expressive of the Presbytery's loss in the death of the Rev. James Clelland, and also to attend officially to the funeral services in the afternoon at Port Hope.

The Presbytery then adjourned to meet in Mill street church, Port Hope, Sept. 20th, at two p. m.

John Boyd's Death

The Algoma Advocate contains the following reference to the death of John Boyd, well-known in Peterborough, where he resided for years. He was also well-known in East Peterborough, having been a resident of Marmora and Blairton for years.—

"The death of John Boyd, the well-known and popular Inspector of Colonization Roads, formerly of Peterborough, on Monday morning, June 27th, has cast a gloom over this community. Early in the winter he was taken ill and confined to his room, but recovered so as to be able to be around. In the forepart of February, after consulting several local physicians, who pronounced his ailment an affection of the heart, he decided to see some city specialists, and went to the city for that purpose early in March. The specialists on making an examination pronounced him suffering from aneurism of the aorta, and ordered perfect quiet, and that he should take to his bed and live on low diet for a couple of months. On his return he followed the instruction given him for upwards of two months. He has been out more or less since the first of May, and appeared to be steadily improving until on Saturday morning last, when he was seized with heart failure and succumbed on Monday morning. He had driven down to church alone on Sunday morning, and was on his way home, having taken in a lady, Mrs. Chisholm, who was walking, when on the road a short ditsance north of Mr. Dyment's residence, he was seized with dizziness and blindness and fell over insensible. Assistance was speedily obtained and he was brought back to town and taken to the residence of his brother, Mr. A. Boyd. Drs. Richards, Baxter and McCort were at once in attendance and did all possible to restore him to consciousness, in which they succeeded after a short period. He suffered considerable throughout the day and evening, but towards morning appeared to be improving. His second son, Geo. A. and daughter, Mrs. C. A. McKinnon and his brother, William, who live at the Soo, were wired for during Sunday afternoon and deceased's great anxiety during the night was for their arrival, that he might see them once more before he passed away. During the night he was quite himself and seemed much improved towards morning, though there is no doubt he felt the end was approaching as he expressed great anxiety for the arrival of his family from the Soo who arrived by the steamer Parry Sound about 6 a.m., the captain of which boat kindly departing several hours before the regular time, as soon as the party were ready to come. After greeting them all affectionately and after some conversation with them, with scarcely a struggle the spark of life went out. Thus passed away one of Algoma's foremost friends who has everavoured to advance the interests of the district.'

PETERBOROUGH JULY 6 1898

LAST CHAPTER OF THE WAR.

The loss of the Spanish fleet at Santiago is the culmination of a ridiculous naval policy. After parading the Atlantic to and fro for weeks, Admiral Cervera ran his fleet into the first Cuban port he could reach. He must have known that his chances of getting out of Santiago were exceedingly slight, and so it proved, for within a few hours of his arrival, the United States fleet had him bottled up. That meant that, for all the harm his vessels could ever do again, they might as well never have been built. All that remained was to land the available artillery and send the marines to the assistance of the military forces on shore. Thereafter, the fleet was so much waste iron and wood, and its ultimate destruction by the United States vessels was simply a matter of a few days.

It is probable that Cervera's tactics—stupid as they must appear to everybody outside of Spain—were dictated by the Spanish Government, with a view to persuading the Spanish people that a most courageous effort had been made to vindicate the Spanish honor. But whether the Spanish people will take this view of it, or decide that the Spanish Government is a parcel of heaven-sent idiots, remains to be seen.

In any event, the destruction of Cervera's fleet makes this a land war, since Camara's tubs cannot be taken seriously. And in spite of the probability that the Spanish land forces will fight at first with skill and courage, the likelihood is that the proud Spanish will soon be made to sue for peace.

Unless peace is suddenly restored the war-taxed Americans will have to look for United States dollars much harder than they have ever looked for Spanish ironclads.

Students of heredity have doubtless observed before this that Admiral Cervera the son of a wine merchant, has been nined by the bottle.—Bay City Tribune.

According to dispatches from Washington, Quartermaster's Department is just now considering bids for sets of colors for the volunteer troops. Under the law every regiment must have a full set of National and regimental colors of the finest silk and the best workmanship and the matter of selection of contractors is, therefore, of considerable importance. Separate and fixed designs are used for the colors of the different branches of the service—infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers. The battalion color of engineers is of scarlet silk, with a castle worked in white, and the number of the battalion in silver thread. The colors of a regiment of infantry are of blue silk with the coat of arms of the United States in red and yellow and the number of the regiment in a scroll. The artillery colors are of scarlet silk with a pair of cannon crossed and the number of the regiment in scarlet on an orange yellow scroll. The cavalry standard is of yellow silk with the coat of arms in white and a red scroll with the number of the regiment thereon. The National flag for each regiment is of prescribed size and quality and bears the number and State of the regiment. Cavalery and artillery guidons must also be provided.

HIS BUSY DAY.

It Is Easier to Forget Some Things Than to Remember Them.

The business man was very much occupied when one of his acquaintances came in

"I want to ask you"— began the caller, but the other, without looking up, waved one hand back of him and reduced the friend to silence. After waiting half a minute the visitor tried again.

"I won't take much of your time," he said. "This is something too important to be neglected or I'd go away and come again."

"I suppose there's no use of my trying to get through with this before dark anyhow," was the rejoinder, with a sigh.

"I'm sorry it's necessary to interrupt you."

"Oh, it's all right. When I come to think of it, I wouldn't know whether I had the right answer when I got through."

"You could easily have the bookkeeper verify it, couldn't you?"

"No. I tried the bookkeeper on it. He didn't know any more about it than I did."

"Isn't it anything connected with business?"

"No. If it were, I'd be comparatively serene. Business isn't the only thing in life."

"It's a great deal of it, though."

The calculator rang for the office boy, and when he appeared said, "Thomas, you take this $2 bill and buy me as many works on arithmetic as you can for it." Then turning to his friend with the air of a cross questioner he said:

"Why do men engage in business?"

"To make money."

"And what do we want with money? We want independence and respect. We want to feel that we can hold up our heads in the world and not be obliged to face humiliation. The purposes of this calculation, distant from business though they may be, are the same. I have a boy who has done well in his studies and who does me the honor to ask my advice every once in awhile. Most boys don't do that. They think it's impossible for their fathers to know very much owing to the misfortune they labored under in not having the same schoolteachers. This boy of mine remarked yesterday that he was going to take up cube root today. Have you tried to extract any cube roots since you left school?"

The caller answered in the negative.

"Then you don't know how much you have forgotten. It's a heap easier to learn to extract a cube root in the first place than it is to remember it again after you have got out of practice. But I'm going to keep at it. Tonight he'll come home with some examples to do and Napoleon when he started for St. Helena didn't feel a bit worse than I will if I have to lay down my lead pencil and paper and own up that I can't do them."—Detroit Free Press.

The Black Cap.

There is one particular part of the dress belonging to the order of the coif—the black cap—which the judges in England always put over their wigs when passing sentence of death. Little is known concerning this black cap, and many mistakes have been made about it. Mr. Sergeant Pulling, in his work "The Order of the Coif," says: "The black cap, or sentence cap, of the judges and sergeants is certainly not the coif, as Lord Campbell repeatedly states. It is, on the contrary, the covering expressly assigned to veil the coif on the only occasion when the coif was required to be hidden. By the ancient privileges of the sergeants the coif was not to be taken off even in the royal presence. The chief insignia of the order was to be so displayed when sitting on the bench or pleading at the bar, but this rule seems always to have been departed from in passing sentence of death.

"The head of the administrator of justice was then covered, as a token of sorrow, by the black sentence cap. This cornered cap, black cap, or sentence cap, as it is sometimes termed, is a piece of limp black cloth, which is put on the top of the wig. The cap is rarely put on, except when a prisoner has been convicted of murder, and then the judge places the cap on the top of his wig and passes sentence of death."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Analogous Reasoning.

A poet proffering his work to an editor said:

"This is a small poem, but quality is the main thing. I venture to think you'll find it true poetry."

Having read it the editor put it into a drawer and, handing the poet a 10 cent piece, said:

"This is a smallish coin, but I am so bold as to hope that you will be pleased with its purity. It is nearly all silver."—San Francisco Examiner.

"Lay" Plates.

In caring for the table during a dinner party it is customary to reserve the most valuable or artistic plates for the "lay service." The scheme of providing does not permit the guest to be without a plate before him, and between the courses plates are laid at each cover, one laid down while the used plate is removed. Cauldon Copeland and Royal Worcester china are much liked for "lay plates."—Philadelphia Press.

Silly Modern Magic.

It would be quite wrong to conclude that the crystal sphere is discredited among the faithful. Large numbers are sold every year—few, by comparison, with the parchment talismans, of course, and for excellent reasons. In the first place, the parchment worn next the skin requires periodical renewal; in the next, the crystal ball will last forever, and is, moreover, expensive. The genuine article—real crystal—may cost as much as £30, but that is a luxury only accessible to the wealthy and earnest prober into the future; for 15 shillings or a guinea you may possess yourself of a composition or glass ball nicely served up in a morocco case lined with satin like a jeweler's casket, and this will answer the purpose equally well. They are usually made perfect spheres, but if you prefer it egg shaped you can order an "ovoid crystal."

I understand that astrology recognises no difference in the relative merits of the two forms. The chief essential to success in using the crystal ball is great concentration. A north light is recommended, for reasons I am unable to explain, but is not absolutely necessary. You recline in an easy attitude, hold the ball up to the light, and center your mind upon it until you see something; that which you see is going to happen. My knowledge of this particular matter is so slender that I will say no more about it.

That crystal balls have their sincere believers would seem to be proved by the prices they command. The richest man or woman does not pay 80 sovereigns for a sphere of crystal the size of a lawn tennis ball unless he or she confidently anticipates some return for the money.—Chambers' Magazine.

Bad Blood Is a Good Thing

to be rid of, because bad blood is the breeding place of disfiguring and dangerous diseases. Is your blood bad? It is if you are plagued by pimples or bothered by boils, if your skin is blotched by eruptions or your body eaten by sores and ulcers. You can have good blood, which is pure blood, if you want it. You can be rid of pimples, boils, blotches, sores and ulcers. How? By the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It is the radical remedy for all diseases originating in the blood. Read the evidence:

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me by my physician as a blood purifier. When I began taking it I had boils all over my body. One bottle cured me."—BONNER CRAFT, Wesson, Miss.

"After six years' suffering from blood poison, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and although I have used only three bottles of this great medicine, the sores have nearly all disappeared."—A. A. MANNING, Houston, Texas.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton Recalls Some Incidents of the Closing Days of the War—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill In Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods.

The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house.

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard.

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child.

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity.

"Penned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother.

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side.

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother.

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him.

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man.

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you.

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest nighbors.

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days.

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington.

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig.

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion.

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, us likes the rector; 'is ears are so clean." Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, "You are all so plain" (a word of high commendation), "but as for the vicar, 'e's beautiful." The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness, "What I likes 'bout the bishop is 'e's not a gentleman."—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Huk wandering in the far interior of Asia.

FANTASTIC VAGARY.

A PUBLIC MAN WHO CONSULTED THE OUIJA BOARDS.

This is One of the Grounds on Which It is Sought to Show That He Was Incapable of Making a Proper Will—The Estate Involved is a Large One.

The Ouija board, that curious little device which attracted so much attention and furnishd so much amusement to many people a few years ago, has got into the courts. It is cited as evidence of a man's mental weakness and his incapacity to make a proper will. This man was Charles M. Pond, once State Treasurer of Connecticut, a Senator in the same State and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. A suit is now under way in New York to break his will. It was instituted by his brother, Anson Phelps Pond.

Among the property which Charles M. inherited from his father was the Prospect Hill farm, on the outskirts of the city of Hartford, and this, with about $450,000 worth of other realty, he willed to Hartford. The disputed farm or homestead which Hartford proposes to turn into a public park, is now valued at about $250,000.

The claim is made by the contestant that his brother had no right to devise away this tract, and counsel bring forward his father's will in substantiation of this position, and quote that part of it which reads: "And it is my express desire that my said son, Charles M. Pond, will not alienate or sell my farm known as the 'Prospect Hill Farm,' but that the same may descend and be from time to time devised to my lineal descendants."

Among the testimony already introduced is that of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, a sister of the Ponds, which it is said showed the deceased brother to be an extraordinary and eccentric person.

In his public career Charles M. was known only as a man of rare judgment and brilliant parts, but it seems that for some time previous to his death his mind was clouded or weakened by dissipation, and he displayed oddities of intellect that were entirely at variance with his character as the public and all but his intimates knew it.

According to Mrs. Porter's statement, some of the evidence that would be important and valuable as corroborative proof has been deliberately destroyed. The destroyed evidence consisted of works on Spiritism and the several Ouija boards that were the property of Charles M. Pond, and were used by him. It is said that the dead man was a firm believer in Spiritism and was an easy dupe of mediums. Luther R. Marsh was not more thoroughly fooled by Miss De Bar than he was by the men and women who pretended to be able to rematerialize those who had passed to the shining shores.

After the death of his wife, it is said, he was almost constantly under the influence of mediums. He had implicit confidence in the oracular qualities of the Ouija board which is a rudimentary sort of planchete. In the latter case the spirits are supposed to communicate with their friends in the flesh by means of writing; in the former the spirits have not got so far in the three R's, and they spell out their communications.

A panchette is a small heart-shaped bit of wood, mounted on two tiny legs with casters, and having for the third leg a pencil. When the little table is placed on a sheet of paper and the hands are permitted to rest lightly upon it, the pencil moves, and some people pretend that the lead-marks made by the pencil are legible messages, and they go through the solemn formality of reading them.

Ouija has a three-legged, heart-shaped little table, too, which the hands rest upon, but it travels not over writing paper but over a smooth rectangular board, on which the alphabet and the numerals are stenciled so that they make the segment of a circle, and the words "yes" and "no" are stenciled in two of the corners. Messages are read by following the movements of the leg at the apex of the heart. It travels from letter to letter and spells out words, the nerves and muscles of the manipulators having much to do with the direction of its movements.

Chalres M. Pond had several of these Ouija boards and he consulted them dozens of times a day. Through them he communicated with his dead wife. The story is told that often he would arise in the midst of a group of friends, excuse himself and hurry off to another room to ask Ouija certain questions.

These Ouija boards with all of her brother's Spiritistic books, Mrs. Porter says, she burned. Her statement is that she went to the office of one of the executors of the will and in his absence obtained from his father, who drew up the will, permission to remove the books and boards from the house, which she did and made a bonfire of them.

There is a great deal of secrecy about the proceedings and a whole lot of mystery, but the plaintiff feels confident that he will be able to show the mental insufficiency of his brother to make a will as well as to clinch his own right to the disputed part by the restricting clause in his father's will, which insists that the property shall not be devised away from the family.

The dissipated habits of Pond's brother have been pretty well established. He seems to have had a wild and terrible mania for morphine and administered it to everybody and everything on his place, even the dogs. The Ouija board weakness, though, appears to be the most fantastic of all his vagaries

Tactics in the Band.

A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. Their uniforms are neat, said the colonel, and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I must insist upon.

What is it, colonel?

You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! one, two!

The Military College.

The Kingston Military College is a very expensive luxury to the people of Canada, and some of the items we have to pay for are very peculiar. An opera glass, $9.25; Prince of Wales hunting belt, $3.59; emigrant's knife, $7.48; trout rod, twelve feet long with three joints, $5.95; a lawn tennis bat, $5.71. The college cost us $70,000. No wonder there is a deficit.—Brockville Recorder.

BOMBARDMENT TO-DAY

Delay in Action Attributed to the Suffering in the City

Santiago is Surrendered—The Demand for Surrender Expired at 10 o'clock Yesterday Morning

CERVERA CAPTURED.

Washington, July 4.—The Secretary of the Navy has received the following.—Playo, via Hayti, Secretary of the Navy, Washington. 3.15 a. m., Siboney, July 3.—The fleet under my command offers the nation, as a Fourth of July present, the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. No one escaped. It attempted to escape at 9.30 a. m., and at 2 p.m. the last vessel, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore sixty miles west of Santiago and let down her colors. The Infanta Maria Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within twenty miles of Santiago, the Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss, probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,300 prisoners, including Admiral Cervera. The man killed was George H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn. (Signed.) Sampson.

BOMBARDMENT POSTPONED.

Washington, July 4.—The Secretary of War has received a lengthy and most important despatch from General Shafter. It is the one which has excited much rumor, but the essential point can now be given authoritatively. It states Shafter's demand for surrender of Santiago at noon to-day, on pain of bombardment. Thereupon the foreign Consuls at Santiago made a joint representation requesting that women and children in the city have until Tuesday noon to withdraw before the bombardment begins. The Spanish general declined to to surrender at the time first set by Shafter. At present a truce exists pending the expiration of the 24 hours asked for by the foreign Consuls.

COURAGE ON BOTH SIDES.

London, July 4.—The Times this morning, discussing the fighting at El Gauey, says.—"Both sides have shown courage of a very high order, and it is hard to say whether the splendid dash and bravery of the American advance in the teeth of a galling fire or the stubborn tenacity of the Spanish defence is the more admirable. Both sides have learned to appreciate the splendid military qualities of their adversaries. It is a pity that enemies who show themselves such worthy foemen in the field cannot see their way to save bloodshed by coming immediately to an agreement on the inevitable basis. The Spaniards have amply vindicated their honor, and if they were wise they would now prove their common sense by ofering terms to their opponents, terms which if they were reasonable would almost certainly be accepted."

THE CAPTURE OF GUAM.

Washington, July 4.—Admiral Dewey's telegram to the Navy Department is given out as follows. "Hong Kong, July 4, Cavite, July 1.—Three transports and the Charleston arrived yesterday. The Charleston captured Guam, Ladrones Islands, on June 21. No resistance. Brought Spanish officers from the garrison, six officers and 52 men to Manila. On June 29 the Spanish gun vessel Leyte came out of a river near Manila and surrendered to me, having exhausted ammunition and food in repelling attack by insurgents. She had on board 62 officers and 94 men, naval and military."

WILL DIE BEFORE YIELDING.

London, July 4.—A special despatch from Madrid quotes Premier Sagasta as saying that he thought the Americans would "get the reinforcements they had requested, which would enable them to take Santiago de' Cuba."

The Premier is said to have added.—"Though the American warships may destroy our squadron in the harbor, yet we will pursue the war. There are in Cuba 100,000 men ready to die in its defence, but they will not yield."

WARNING TO AMERICANS.

London, July 4.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says. "German public and the German press, which are not always identical, are now thoroughly awakened to the inconvenience of the position in which German policy has been placed by unfortunate articles on the subject of the Philippines. The papers are now trying to explain the matter away. The National Gazette considers it ludicrous to discuss a partition of a bear's skin before the bear is killed. 'We Europeans,' it says, 'from our own sorrowful experience know what surprises a conclusion through a peace congress is likely to have in store. In all human probability the Spaniards will lose their colony, but the Americans will not be the only gainers in the struggle. In Cuba, as in the Philippines, they will have to reckon with the insurgents now. The abandonment of the Philippines to the natives would undoubtedly lead to the intervention of Europe.'"

BOMBARDMENT POSTPONED.

Washington, July 4.—General Shafter has notified the War Department that the bombardment of Santiago has been postponed until to-morrow. The delay of the action is based on the suffering within the city. Secretary Alger is now in conference with the President.

CAN HOLD THE ENEMY.

Washington, July 4.—General Miles has received two despatches from Gen. Shafter this morning. In one Shafter says. "I feel that I am master of the situation and can hold the enemy for any length of time."

PANDO'S POSITION.

Washington, July 4.—General Miles has received the following telegram from General Shafter, dated Playa del Este, July 3.

"Headquarters Fifth Army Corps—Killed a Spanish General in affair at Ganey and a large number of officers and men who are still unburied. Gen. Linares arm was broken."

SANTIAGO IS SURROUNDED.

Washington, July 4.—The War Department has just given out the following. "Headquarters Fifth Army Corps, near Santiago, July 3.—To-night my lines completely surround the town from bay on north of city to point on San Juan river on south. The enemy holds from west bend San Juan river at its mouth up to the railroad to the city. General Pando, I find to-night, is some distance away and will not get into Santiago. (Signed) Shafter."

THE DEMAND FOR SURRENDER.

Washington, July 4.—After conferring with high officials a prominent Senator said his understanding was that the time of Shafter's demand for the surrender of Santiago expired 10 a.m. to-day. The Spaniards asked 24 hours. This was granted with the understanding that no military operations occurred meantime.

SURRENDER BEING CONSIDERED.

Washington, July 4.—It is now admitted by the War Department officials that there is a general despatch from Shafter regarding the demand for the surrender of Santiago, terms, etc. The mention of "truce" in Shafter's despatch given out further confirms the report that terms of surrender have been considered. The officials decline to give any exact information at present.

KILLED AT SANTIAGO.

Madrid, July 4.—At the conclusion of yesterday's Cabinet meeting the Ministers announced that official information had been received that General Vara de Rey and two of General Linares' aides-de-camp were among the killed in the third attack upon El Gauey. The American losses are said, from Spanish sources, to have exceeded two thousand men. It is reported that General Linares has succumbed is not confirmed. The Spanish Government has no news from Aguadores nor from the reinforcements from Manzanillo and under Generals Esorarja and Pareja.

GREAT NEWS FOR THE FOURTH.

Washington, July 4.—Adjutant-General Corbin to-day voiced the feelings of every one of the officials in the Capitol when he said. "I don't care how the fleet was destroyed. It was destroyed. That is enough for me. It is great news for the Fourth of July. The fleet of Admiral Cervera was one of the finest Spain possessed. Three of the vessels—the Almirante Oquendo, the Vizcaya and the Cristobal Colon—were modern armored cruisers of the first class."

Details of the destruction of Cervera's fleet have not been received at this writing by either the War or Navy Departments. Whether Sampson's ships entered the harbor and there attacked and annihilated the Spanish squadron or whether Cervera made a desperate dash past the sunken Merrimac to the ocean beyond, in the hope that he might be able to save at least a part of his fleet, has not been officially ascertained.

BRITAIN'S TURN TO LAUGH.

If the United States decides to carry the war to the coasts of Spain, Great Britain will have another chance to laugh at the concert of Europe.

The great powers of Europe insisted that the Turks should have a free hand in Armenia, and now they would like Great Britain to join their game to prevent the Yankees from having a free hand in Europe.

Perhaps Great Britain will mildly suggest that if the concert of Europe had power enough to prevent the rescue of the Armenians from the Turks it had better try and see whether it had power enough to rescue Spain from the Yankees.

The concert of Europe was formed with intent to regulate the afairs of the universe to the exclusion of Great Britain's influence, and this same concert now finds, that, lacking Great Britain's support, it is incapable of regulating the Yankees off the shores of Europe.

When the concert of Europe was keeping Great Britain's hands off Turkey, the military powers were inclined to laugh at the British people; but if the concert of Europe tries to protect Spain against the United States, the English-speaking people will be able to laugh at Europe.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

STELLA STERLING.

BY JULIA EDWARDS

Stella told Edith nothing about her interview with Croft or the loss of the letters. She still loved and admired her friend's character, but she knew Edith disapproved of her concealment of the truth, and this disapprobation caused a lsight coolness between the two girls.

Edith read the notice of the coming marriage with a sad smile.

"Heiress to a large fortune!" she said bitterly. "What strange blindness has come over Stella that she cannot see that the frail bark of her future happiness is drifting on to the quicksands?

Of course Edith knew nothing of Judge Orlin, and his practical recognition of the young stranger as his niece; neither had Stella ever told her of the papers which her mother had bequeathed to her on her deathbed.

In fact, Stella had almost ceased to confide in Edith, and Walter was also partly to blame for this.

He had requested his betrothed wife to offer to her friends a position under their roof, just a ssoon as theycould have a home of their own.

"I shall ask her Walter as you wish me to do so," said she, "but Edith is a curious girl, and I know she will refuse."

"Why?"

"Because she will not care to work for me. She considers herself my equal."

Walter's fair face flushed hotly.

"Then she is both presumptuous and ungrateful," he exclaimed, "and I wish you to see less of her. You cannot keep up an intimate friendship with a girl in her position. I hear she is to marry a milkman, the nephew of Mrs. Rush, my mother's housekeeper."

"Yes, so she informed me," said Stella, carelessly.

They were riding through Jackson Park together, and Stella, who was an expert horsewoman, and feeling her best when mounted on a fine horse, was feeling so happy that it seemed as if she could bid defiance to all misfortune.

"By the way, dearest," Walter said, dismissing the subject of Edith and her matrimonial intentions as beneath notice, "did you know that Judge Orlin has returned to the city, and will be at the reception to-night."

"No, I was not aware of it," said Stella.

She regretted that she had not informed Walter of the disappearance of her precious letters; but after all, that was only a detail in the whole plan of concealment.

"Yes. I need not tell you how produ I felt when I announced our engagement; and he was exceedingly kind. He said he preferred me as a husband for his niece to any other man in Chicago."

"And he comes to our reception to-night?"

"Yes, I am sure he will be proud of his niece. My mother tells me you are to be more lovely than usual, though I cannot see how that is possible."

(To be continued).

THIS IS OUR REWARD

A New York Paper sees Things as it Would Like Them

The New YoYrk Journal discussing the action of the Mayor of Niagara Falls, in declaring July 4th a holiday, has this to say;

"Striking evidence of the growth of the spirit of all-embracing Americanism comes from the Canadian town of Niagara Falls, where the mayor has proclaimed the Fourth of July a national holiday. Shall we presently see Washington's birthday celebrated with memorial services in Westminster Abbey, a statue to eJfferson erected in the House of Lords, and Jackson's day celebrated with wassail and oratory in Windsor Castle.

These things seem scarcely more unbelievable than a real American Fourth proclaimed by a Canadian mayor, and to be celebrated on Canadian soil.

The era of good feeling brought on by British friendliness in our international complications doubtless has much to do with causing this phenomenon, but manifest destiny had more. It was as inevitable that American political customs hsould follow American social and business customs acros the Canadian line as that the water shall flow over the Horseshoe fall.

This year it is an American Fourth of July in Canada by courtesy. What will it be fifty years from now? ? Who that puts the question to himself seriously will doubt that Canada's destiny is manifest?"

WALRUS LEATHER.

Used For Making Wheels For Polishing. Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making buffer wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a cub walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1¼ inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1½ to 1¾ inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the sea lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of sea lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, sir. You see, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 30 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but"—

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the piano after you left the house, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got red. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retorted:

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I ll never come here for help again, never!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Samantha at Saratoga, in a New Dress

One of the funniest of all the funny books is certainly "Samantha at SCaratoga." Will Carleton pronounces it "delicious humor," and Bishop Newman says it is "bitterest satire, coated with the sweetest of exhilarating fun." Formerly published by subscription at the price of $2.50, and sold, it is said, by the hundred thousand, it has recently been issued in an exquisite little cloth-bound volume in the "Cambridge Classics" series by the celebrated cheap-book publishers. Hurst &Co., of New YYork, as a means of widely advertising that series, and is sold at the fabulously low price of 25 cents, it would seem strange if they should not sell a million of them. They are sold by booksellers, or the publishers direct.

Interesting Items of Local and District Happenings in Brief

—Passenger traffic on the C.P.R is unusually heavy.

—Trains to Lakefiled are carrying large numbers back to the lakes.

—A Smith farmer's team attached to a wagon, became unmanageable at London Street west yesterday afternoon, and ran away. The wagon was badly damaged.

—Mr. H. S. Graham, late of The Whitby Chronicle and The Templar, Hamilton, has been appointed editor of the Royal Templar Advocate, a new journal to be published in Hamilton.

—The annual excursion of the Sons of England will take place on July 26th, the objective point being Jubilee. A first-class programme of sports isbe ing arranged for the occasion, concerning which further particulars will be announced later.

—The passenger department of the Grand Trunk has secured the appointment of a customs office at Muskoka wharf so that American summer visitors can have their goods bonded to the wharf, instead of to Orillia or Toronto, as was necessary last year.

—It is a well-known fact that there are more drowsy people on Sunday morning, than any other day of the week, and for this reason no great crime would be imputed to ministers of the gospel, if during the melting weather, they practiced economy in lopping off the forty minute end of their sixty minute sermons.

—The G.T.R. has had constructed at its London car shops thre cars known as the "road department equipment." They consist of a dining, kitchen and sleping car. The sleeping car is fitted up with a large steel range, and a refrigerator in one end, while in the centre is the sink. A neat pantry and cupboard are also at hand. Pots, frying pans, dishes of all kinds, andevery utensil to prepare and serve an excellent meal are at the convenience of the cook. A large carving table stands on one side of the car. A cook will be taken along to look after htis department. The men when on the road will just work the regulation day hours, and then repair to their department cars, which will be side-tracked until the repairs or track laying is finished. A second set of cars is under construction. One of the above cars have been alloted to this division, as the present construction car is old and unsafe.

Portraits Presented

Warden Pearce has presented to each member of the County Council, and to the county officials and press representatives, a group picture which was taken of them at the January session of the council by Mr. R. M. Roy. The picture is a capital one and is fully appreciated. Mr. Pearce has also presented to the council a picture of his father, who was a warden of the county, in the hope that in so doing he may inaugurate the custom of presenting portraits of the wardens in order that a complete collection may hang in the chamber.

THE PRISONERS REBEL

450 Spanish Prisoners on the Harvard Rebel and are Summarily Punished

They were Fired on and Six were Killed Outright and Twelve Wounded—The Alfonso III Destroyed while Attempting to Leave Havana

(Special to the Times.)

Washington. July 6.—A special despatch to the Evening Star dated off Santiago, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 6, says. After the destruction of the Spanish fleet some 450 of the men on the Maria Teresa were placed as prisoners on the Harvard For some reason not yet ascertained, these men mutinied. The officers and crew of the Harvard were not unprepared, however, and the mutineers were fired on. Six Spaniards were killed outright and 12 wounded. This taught the Spaniards a lesson and restored quiet.

Washington, July 6.—Secretary Long received word through Gen. Greely, signal officer, which is accepted as confirming the report that the Spanish ship Alfonso XII. was destroyed while trying to run the Havana blockade. Gen. Greely's information came in cipher message, and he considers the report reliable. The ships seem to be a total loss.

Madrid, July 6.—The Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph says peace will be demanded to-day.

Unusual precautions are being taken with a view to a possible rising in Spain.

The London Chronicle this morning says.—"The Spanish Government think it impossible to make peace now, because it would throw the balance of power in Spain into the hands of the Carlists."

The Pope, it is rumored, has telegraphed the Queen Regent, begging her not to compromise the future of the monarchy by refusing to treat for peace, "which, after the heroism displayed by the Spanish navy, could not be other than honorable." At the same time, the Pope cabled President McKinley, so it is rumored, appealing to United States generosity toward "an unfortunate but chivalrous enemy!"

The U. S. War Department posts the following from Gen. Shafter. Camp near Santiago, July 5.—I am just in receipt of a letter from General Toral, agreeing to exchange Hobson and men here, to make exchange in the morning. Yesterday he refused my proposition of exchange.

The Spanish warship Alfonso XIII. attempted to run the blockade out of Havana and was captured by a United States cruiser.

MADRID GETS THE NEWS.

Madrid, July 6.—Senor Sagasta last night announced officially that Adm. Cervera's squadron has been defeated, that the Almirante, Oquendo was burned and the Infanta Maria Teresa sunk and that Admiral Cervera himself is a prisoner of war.

THE STORM GATHERING.

The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegram, telegraphing Tuesday night, says.—"Disorder is spreading among the military, the crowds in the city are getting riotous, and everywhere signs are apparent that the population is arming for civil war. Marshal Martinez Campos and Captain-General of Madrid have held long consultations as to ways and means of preserving order."

The Madrid correspondent of the Times says.—"Despatches received from American sources describing the destruction of Admiral Cervera's squadron, which the morning papers considered wild exaggerations, and consequently held back, have now been published in special editions. They are generally regarded as substantially true, and have produced a most painful impression among all classes, but there is perfect tranquility. I perceive no symptoms of dangerous popular excitement."

EXCITEMENT INCREASING.

The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says.—"The public is still in favor of prolonging resistance, but excitement is increasing among all classes, and strong precautions are being taken in all the large towns, where the garrisons are confined to barracks."

The correspondent describes the irritation of the newspapers, which withheld the special reports as to the disaster to Cervera's squadron till the Government's confirmation had been received.

THEY ADMIT THE TRUTH.

The Madrid correspondent of the Times says. "Admiral Cervera's family have received a telegram, professedly from him, stating that he is a prisoner, but its authenticity is doubtful.

"The following is the only official despatch the Government has received since yesterday. 'At dusk last night there reached the Socapa battery seven shipwrecked men from the sunken torpedo-boat destroyers. They said the Infanta Maria Teresa was steaming in a damaged condition behind Point Buzor, out of sight of the town, and that the Almirante Oquendo was afire. Subsequently other sailors I do not know how many, got ashore and confirmed the above. The enemy attacked our forces during the morning, causing us a loss of seven wounded. Col. Escarlo's column has arrived.' The despatch goes on to describe the intervention of the foreign Consuls at Santiago, and the offer of the Americans to delay bombardment on the morning of July 5th, provided the Spanish refrain from attacking them. It concludes with these words. 'I have agreed.'"

CAMARA'S COMEDY.

Port Said, July 6.—The San Augustin, with Government permission, will tran-ship to the Spanish fleet 1,500 additional tons of coal when four miles from Suez.

One thousand troops with supplies and ammunition were transferred from the Buenos Ayres to the Isle de Luzon, thereby making the Buenos Ayres available for a cruiser.

The torpedo boats have gone back to Sicily.

The machinery of the battleship Pelayo is out of order, and she has been compelled to stop at Ismailia since early morning.

MAY SURRENDER.

New York, July 6.—A World despatch from Siboney says that Pando's arrival with reinforcements put heart in the Spaniards in Santiago, and they resolved to fight to the last ditch but the news of the destruction of Cervera's fleet changed their elation to gloom.

It is believed they will at once reopen negotiations for the surrender of the city. The surrender is deemed possible to-day.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE

Greyhound Crashes Into a Vessel while Going Fast During a Dense Fog

Watertight Compartments Fail to Operate and the Great Vessel Plunges to the Bottom—Only One Woman Escapes in the Melee—Repetition of the Elbe Wreck

Halifax, N. S., July 6.—The British iron ship Cromartyshire was towed in here this morning by the Allan Liner Grecian, with her bow torn away by collision 60 miles off Sable Island, with the French steamer La Bourgogne, which went down ten minutes later.

Of the six hundred passengers and crew on board the latter, only two hundred were saved.

One woman was saved by her husband.

The captain and other deck officers went down with the ship.

The Cromartyshire laid-to and picked up the 200 passengers and seamen who were rescued, transhipping them to the Grecian, which came along at that hour.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The log of the Cromartyshire, signed by Captain Henderson, is as follows.—On July 4th, at 5 a.m., dense fog; position of ship, 60 miles south of Sable Island; ship by wind, on the port tack, heading about w.n.w.; under reduced canvas, going about 4 or 5 knots per hour; our fog horn was being kept going regularly every minute. At that time heard a steamer's whistle on our weather side or port beam, which seemed to be nearing very fast. We blew horn, and were answered by steamer's whistle. All of a sudden she loomed through the fog on our port bow, and crashed into us

AT A TERRIFIC SPEED.

Our foretop mast and maintopgallant mast came down, bringing with it yards and everything attached. I immediately ordered the boats out and went to examine the danger. I found that our boats were completely cut off, and the plates twisted into every conceivabel shape. The other ship disappeared through the fog. However, our ship was floating, but kept ahead, so there seemed no immediate danger of her sinking. We set to work immediately to clear the wreckage, and also to ship our starboard anchor, which was hanging over the starboard bow, and in danger of punching more holes in the bow. We heard a steamer blowing her whistle on coming back, and we answered with our fog horn. The steamer then threw up a rocket and fired a shot. We also threw up some rockets and fired several shots, but we neither saw nor heard any more of the steamer. Shortly after, or about 5.30 a.m., the fog lifted somewhat, and we saw the boats pulling towards us, with the French flag flying. We signalled them to come alongside, and found that the steamer was the La Bourgogne, from New York to Havre, and that she had

GONE DOWN

We laid to all day, and received on board about 200 survivors from amongst passengers and crew, reported to be in all about 600.

Several of the passengers were on rafts, without oars, and I called for volunteers from among my crew and the surviving French seamen to bring these rafts alongside the ship. Some of the passengers and seamen from the sunken steamer assisted us, and we jettisoned some 30 tons of cargo from our forehold, in order to lighten the ship.

ASSISTANCE.

At about 3 p.m. another steamer hove in sihgt, bound westward. We put up our signal. "Want assistance." Shortly after, the steamer bore down toward us. She proved to be the Grecian, bound from Glasgow to New York. The captain of the Grecian agreed to take the passengers on board and also agreed to tow my ship to Halifax. Owing to the condition of my ship, I accepted the offer, and we proceeded at once to transport the passengers and get ready our tow line. At 6 p.m., we had made a connection and proceeded in tow of the Grecian towards Halifax, having put a sail over the broken bow, to take part of the strain off the collision bulkhead. There was at that time 14 feet of water in the forepeak."

A WOMAN'S STORY.

Mrs. Henderson, wife of the captain was on board the Cromartyshire, with her two children. She tells a thrilling tale of the terrible experience. The collision occurred at 5 a. m. The weather was foggy, and she had risen from her bunk at an early hour, as was her custom when the weather was thick. Shortly before the vessels came together she detected a steamer's whistle blowing on the port side of the vessel. The Cromartyshire was sounding her fog horn at intervals of one minute. Mrs. Henderson called the attention of her husband to the sounding of the whistle, and a minute later the mate, who was on the watch, also detected the sound. It came nearer and nearer, and Mrs. Henderson stood near the cabin in order to should a disaster occur. Suddenly the huge hulk of an ocean greyhound loomed up in the mist, going about 17 knots an hour. Almost immediately there was a fearful crash and Mrs. Henderson ruhsed below and found her children awakened by the shock. She dressed the little ones as quickly as possible, and removed them to the expecting to see her own ship go down any minute. Capt. Henderson had, as soon as the collision occurred, ordered the boats to be lowered and the damage to be ascertained. As it was found that the Cromartyhsire was in no immediate danger, the Britisher was put about. The vessel with which they had collided was at that time unknown.

AN AWFUL SILENCE.

A few minutes later her whistle was heard and several rockets were sent up. Capt. Henderson replied in like manner, thinking that the steamer was offering assistance, but in a few minutes all was quiet, and those on board began to realize the awful results of the collision.

At 5.30 the fog lifted, and two boats were seen approaching the Cromartyshire with only men on board. Later the weather cleared still more and men were to be seen in every direction, clinging to wreckage and floating on life rafts. It was a terrible scene. No pen can picute the unveiled to the onlookers when the curtain of mist arose. The work of rescue was commenced without a moments's delay and over 200 persons were picked up, and taken on board the ship.

WOMEN THE VICTIMS.

Mrs. Henderson, who had ample opportunity of interviewing those who were rescued, and expressed her belief from what she heard that there had been no effort to save the women. There were many foreigners on board, who fought for places in the boats. It was fully ten to fifteen minutes before La Bourgogne went down, and during that time there was ample opportunity afforded to rescue at least some of the women and children. As it was, only one woman was saved. Mrs. Lacasse was saved, and she has been on board ever since.

Mrs. Lacasse, wife of Ad. Lacasse, language teacher of Plainville, N. J. was the only woman saved from La Bourgogne. The crew of the Cromartyshire expressed the belief that there must have been some

FOUL PLAY

Seeing that only one woman was saved out of 300.

Nearly all the first-class passengers were lost, those saved being steerage and sailors. Lacasse and his wife were in the water eight hours, clinging to a raft, before they were picked up by a boat from the Cromartyshire. They lost everything but what they stood in, including money and valuables.

One passenger was going home to France with his two children, his wife having died a month previously. He was saved, but his two babies went down with the ill-fated ship. Mrs. Lacasse says the officers bravely stood by their posts.

GOING DOWN WITH THE SHIP.

The only officer saved was the purser. He went down with the ship, but being a strong swimmer managed to save himself. When the ships struck they were off Cape Sable, La Bourgogne being about 40 hours from New York. The passengers, with the sole exception of Prof. Lacasse, were below decks. Without warning came the terrible shock. Lacasse rushed in haste to his state room on the saloon deck, got his wife out of bed and partly dressed. They hastened on deck, to be precipitated into the water [illegible] it. They were not long in the water, however, when they found a [illegible] on which Lacasse lifted his unconscious wife and clung on himself. Some of the boats Lacasse saw capsize and all on board drowned. The spasmodic struggles, swishing water and terrible screams made the situation an one, never to be forgotten. One man on board La Bourgogne before she sank went out of his mind, and jumped to a watery grave.

On the morning of the collision Captain Henderson was on the poop, with his third mate, A.C. Stewart, Sailor Haley was on the look-out, and First Officer Killman was also on the forecastle deck. The Cromartyshire was making about five knots an hour, with several sails set, and taking in all the time. Not a sound was heard until Look-out Haley saw a large steamer half a ship's length ahead, on the port bow. In an instant, the Cromartyshire's jibboom was crashing into the Bourgogne's bridge, and the vessel stoving a big hole near the engine-room. La Bourgogne scraped the whole length of the Cromartyshire's port side, and then sheered off. La Bourgogne blew long, mournful whistles for assistance. Third Mate Stewart, of the Cromartyshire, says that the Frenchmen evidently thought they were another ship, and that they, the Bourgogne, had sunk the colliding vessel. Boats were sent out and nearly 150 were saved. At the time of the collision Mr. Stewart says the Bourgogne must have been going at the rate of 18 or 19 knots per hour, though a dense fog prevailed, shutting out everything not less than 20 yards away.

ANOTHER WRECK.

About three hours after the Cromartyshire picked up the survivors, the Allan Liner Grecian was sighted, and took the Cromartyshire in tow. About 8 o'clock that evening, three miles away, Third Mate Stewart heard guns, and saw light—the signal of distress—burning. The Grecian signalled to the Cromartyshire that she was going to assist the vessel signalling. In a few minutes, however, the light disappeared, and no more guns or rockets were discharged, the vessel certainly having sank. This must have been another steamer from the Bourgogne, as Lacasse, one of the survivors, saw her go down ten minutes after the collision. It could not have a boat, as they were too far from the scene of the wreck, and guns could not be discharged from a boat.

THE NORTH STAR TRIPS.
The Steamer North Star will start her Daily Trips on Thursday, July 7th, leaving Peterboro' wharf at 9.15 a.m each day for Jubilee and Idyl Wild. This was the popular boat last season and is now faster and more complete than ever. GEORGE McWILLIAMS, Proprietor.

VAN HORNE'S TRIUMPH

The C. P. R. will Probably Take Up the Atlantic Fast Line

It is Said that Lord Strathcona and Mr. Angus are in It—Cattle Shipments at Montreal Falling Off

Montreal, July 6—)Special(—The news given some weeks ago in this column that the Canadian Pacific would take up the fast line scheme appears to be confirmed. Although the monopoly cry may be raised, the opinion appears to be pretty general here that if Sir William Van Horne takes hold of the scheme he will carry it through. The officials here smiled when I asked if the C.P.R. will take up the fast line project, but will give no information on the subject. It is believed, however, that Lord Strathcona, Sir William Van Horne and Mr. R. B. Angus sawed a pretty big pile of wood during their recent meeting in London, and that an announcement to the effect that the big company will take a hand in the fast line business may be expected at any moment. It is understood that Lord Strathcona stuck loyally to Mr. Petersen while there was any prospect of that gentleman meeting with success, although several capitalists of London promised their hearty co-operation in floating the scheme if the Canadian Pacific people would take hold of the matter themselves. It is said Lord Strathcona feared that the Grand Trunk might object if the C.P.R., a rival road, should go into the trans-atlantic carrying business; but rumor also states that Sir Rivers-Wilson has informed the C.P.R. people that if they decide to consider the question they will encounter no opposition from the Grand Trunk influence in the Old Country. It is also stated that Sir William Van Horne was for years the only man on the company's directorate who favored tacking on an Atlantic steamship line service to their already great system, but that the ever-active president has at last converted Lord Strathcona and most of the other directors to his way of thinking, and that if it succeeds the triumph will be Van Horne's and his alone.

CATTLE SHIPMENTS.

Montreal cattle shipments are considerably behind last year, but are a little ahead of the year before, although not much. Sheep shipments, however are smaller than they were in '97 or '96; in fact, smaller than for several years past. The movement of horses to the other side is also lighter than for several years. Following are the full comparative figures to date...

Year	Cattle,	Sheep,	Horses
1898	28,899	2894	2682
1897	37,011	6566	3032

SPECIAL LONDON CABLE.

London, July 6.—(Star special cable)—Some improtant new developments are on foot respecting the fast Atlantic mail service, and they are expected to be completed within a week. Evidently they have nothing whatever to do with Petersen, for Hon. Mr. Blair, when asked by a Star representative, said 'It it my impression that it is all up with him. There need be no delay in the placing of the enterprise in fresh hands, for I think the Canadian Pacific Railway would like to take it up Of course, this would mean a delay of a year or two in the fulfillment of the project.'

THE POSTAL CONFERENCE.

Hon. Mr. Mulock, Postmaster General, to-day moved his Imperial Penny Postage resolutions before the Inter-Imperial Postal Conference, Lord Strathcona being present. The British government inclines to favor the Canadian proposal, an din that case it will be certainly carried. Canada once again asserting herself as the pioneer of the Empire.

LONDON SENSATIONS

Body Found in the Cove—One Boy Stabbed Another Telephone Competition

London, Ont., July 6.—The body of Arthur Carron, cooper, 3 York street, was found in the cove to-night. He has been missing two days, and it is supposed he committed suicide.

A ten-year-old boy named Carroll stabbed the 5-year-old son of Mr. M. Wright, of Sire's restaurant this afternoon on Richmond street. The child is badly injured, but the doctors cannot state if the knife entered the lung.

The Bell Telephone company are to have opposition in this city. A chartered company, in which a number of local capitalists are interested, has begun a canvas for subscribers in the city. They offer to give a house service for $18, and an office service for $25 per annum, without other charges. Among those who are members, of the company are; Messrs. Walters and Evans, Detroit; J. R. Minhinnick, F. B. Leys, T. H. Smallman, John Labatt, Robert Fox, M. Masuret and John Milne, of this city. Mayor Wilson visited Detroit several times this year in connection with the formation of this company.

PETERBOROUGH JULY 7 1898

SPAIN'S NEXT STEP.

The Spanish "fighting man" has behaved himself with magnificent courage in all of the unequal battles which we have thus far seen. But he has not been equipped for modern war-fare. The fact that four of the best cruisers in the Spanish navy could sail out to attack the entire American fleet and then be destroyed without damaging any of their opponent's ships and killing only one man, proves the Spaniards to be at once brave and badly armed. When they are opposed by a force of superior numbers, great powers of recuperation, fully equal courage and magnificently equipped for war the result cannot be in any real doubt. Now that the Cervera fleet is out of the way, the Americans have command of the West Indian waters and can pour their men and guns at leisure into Cuba. Apparently this is the time for the politicians in command of Spain to be as courageous as their soliders, and assume the responsibility of proposing peace.

This step will undoubtedly require courage. The Spanish people are not likely to treat with any great kindness the men who advise them to abandon a goodly share of their colonial empire, but under the circumstances such a course would seem to be the only real patriotism. Havana may stand siege for quite a time. The lives of many brave Spaniards and Americans may be sacrificed; but unless the Spanish Government hope to gain control of the sea, it is difficult to understand how they can expect any but one ending to the beleaguerment. General Blanco's force is a fixed quantity; his food supply is ever more limited; while the Americans have a nation of seventy millions and the food stores of the world to draw upon.

It begins to look as if the men who attempted to escape from the bottle got it in the neck.

The Spaniards call them "the Yankee pigs." But it looks to us as though it were the Spaniards who are stuck.

It is something to have captured an admiral and destroyed his ships. It is true that they do not seem to have amounted to very much. Lord Rodney once did something similar some miles to the east of Sampson's feat. But Cervera is not a Count de Grasse, nor were his men of the same kind as those of the latter. They fought until 9,000 were killed. Still, an admiral is an admiral, just as a book is said to be a book, although there is nothing in it. Now there is a good chance for the Americans making a good swap. It has been seen that Cervera has a little in him to fear, and what little claw he had is cut. Hobson and his merry men are worth something But perhaps the Spaniards are too cunning to make the exchange.

A Madrid paper informs its readers that "the commander-in-chief of the American army is one Ted Roosevelt, formerly a New York policeman," who was "born near Haarlem," "emigrated to America when young," was educated at "Harvard Academy, a commercial school" (there being no universities or colleges in America), and that his "body-guard" is fittingly termed "rough-ritors."—Guelph Advocate.

It is to be regretted that the people of Spain should be so ill-informed. Roosevelt was certainly born near Haarlem he being a native of Tacoma, on the Stickeen river. But he was never a New York policeman, being by inheritance a lineal descendant of one King Tammany I, who was afterwards the sub-treasurer of Tammany II., being thus the real heir of Boss Tweed, who was the discoverer of Spain, A. D., 711.

Taking advantage of the Ontario permissive legislation of last session, Peterboro' has decided to abolish the municipal ward system. A by-law was adopted by popular vote last week in favor of electing aldermen by a general vote, regardless of the old ward limits. The by-law allows one alderman for every thousand of population. Peterboro' is the first town to come under this act. Its experiment will be watched with some interest. There are things to be said in favor of the ward system as well as against it.—Ottawa Journal.

Of all the States, Wyoming took the lead in sending volunteers, having contributed three times her quota. The fact that Wyoming is ruled by women may have had nothing to do with this But there are many men who hold that it is wisest to choose the lesser evil.

Power of the Marseillaise Hymn.

Nothing of the kind in this world can be more impressive than the way in which an audience of 6,000 French radicals receives that wonderful air (the "Marseillaise"), says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic. I observed that the chorus of young men who led the singing never once looked at the notes, and few even had any, so familiar was it to all. There was a perfect hush in that vast audience while the softer parts were sung, and no one joined even in the chorus at first, for everybody was listening. The instant, however, that the strain closed, the applause broke like a tropical storm, and the clapping of hands was like the taking flight of a thousand doves all over the vast arena.

Behind those twinkling hands the light dresses of the ladies and the blue blouses of workingmen seemed themselves to shimmer in the air. There was no coarse noise of pounding on the floor or drumming on the seats, but there was a vast cry of "Bis! Bis!" sent up from the whole multitude, demanding a repetition. The moment the first verse was sung through for the second time several thousand voices joined in the chorus. Then the applause was redoubled, as if they had gathered new sympathy from one another, after which there was still one more great applauding gust, and then an absolute quiet.

Nothing Remarkable.

Smith—Hear about the fire over on the West Side this morning? Nine persons barely escaped with their lives. Remarkable, wasn't it?

Brown—I fail to see anything very remarkable about it.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, suppose they had escaped without their lives; then it would have been truly remarkable.—Chicago News.

Hebrew Texts of the Old Testament.

The most ancient Hebrew manuscript of any part of the Bible is in St. Petersburg and dates no earlier than the tenth century. More than 2,000 copies of the Hebrew Old Testament have been compared, and very few variations have been found. This is accounted for by the fact that from the time when the Hebrew canon was formed, and even before that time, very strict rules were laid down for the scribes who copied the Bible. The lines and letters were counted, and each copy had to correspond precisely with the one from which it was taken. They calculated, for instance, that there were 5,245 verses in the Pentateuch, 22,206 in the whole Bible and 78,100 letters in Genesis. All of these rules and calculations were called the Massorah tradition, and about the tenth century the college of rabbis of Tiberias, on the Euphrates, decided upon a standard Bible, or "authorized version."

The Hebrew consonants alone had been written down up to that time, the pronunciation being a matter of tradition. Now a system of vowel signs was devised, fixing the sense in many instances. The vowels are just as important in Hebrew as in English · so it is easy to see how necessary this reform was. The English consonants b r d may be read board or bread, or bored or braid, and if they occurred in a sentence without the vowels we should have to guess by the connection which vowels were necessary. It is possible that after a text had been adopted all older manuscripts were destroyed, or more probably were neglected because of their defects, and hence they have altogether disappeared.—Review of Reviews

Can't Hurt a Reporter.

That newspaper men are full of resources was well illustrated recently. One of the craft who lives on the south side is fond of seeing a chicken fight, and he has some good chickens. Recently he attended a cocking main and took one of his game chickens with him. There had been several lively bouts when a policeman appeared and gathered the crowd in. The newspaper man had hold of his chicken when the policeman arrived, and in his excitement held on to it.

At the hearing the policeman told his story, and no one denied being present or declared that the story was not true. The police magistrate turned to the newspaper man and said, "How does it come that you were there?"

The culprit looked puzzled for a moment, and then a smile broke over his face, and he said: "Why, you know, I am always after news. I heard about this main and got a tip that it was going to be raided, and I went there to get the news."

"That's all right," said the magistrate. "But what were you doing with a chicken in your hand?"

The newspaper man hesitated but an instant and said, "Well, you see, I wanted to clinch my news item as being true, so I just grabbed the chicken to show there was a chicken fight."

The magistrate looked at him a moment and said: "Well, you'll do. You are discharged."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

AN INDIAN CRADLE SONG.

Swing thee low in thy cradle soft,
  Deep in the dusky wood!
Swing thee low and swing aloft—
  Sleep as a papoose should,
For safe in your little birchen nest
Quiet will come and peace and rest,
  If the little papoose is good.

The coyote howls on the prairie cold,
  And the owlet hoots in the tree,
And the big moon shines on the little child
  As it slumbers peacefully.
So swing thee high in thy little nest
And swing thee low and take the rest
  That the night wind brings to thee!

Father lies on the fragrant ground,
  Dreaming of hunt and fight,
And the pine leaves rustle with mournful sound
  All through the solemn night;
But the little papoose in his birchen nest
Is swinging low as he takes his rest,
  Till the sun brings the morning light.

THE DERELICT.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

I was second mate of the American brig Ruby, bound from Java to New York, and all had gone well with us for a fortnight, when accident brought about a curious adventure. Just as night was closing down, with the brig sailing along on an even keel and the breeze steady, I swung myself upon the rail to get a look at what seemed to be a raft floating past us. I may have been overcareless or a rope may have given way, but of a sudden I found myself in the water. The man at the wheel witnessed my mishap and gave the alarm and threw me the life preserver always ready for such an emergency, and I had no doubt of being picked up within ten minutes. I had seized the float, when down thundered a black squall from out of the west, and next moment it was as dark as midnight and the sea all in a chop. I felt that it was all over with me then. The men would be lucky to bring the brig through the fierce squall without thinking of me. Indeed, if she had had 100 men on board instead of 12, they would not have dared to lower a boat. I got just one glimpse of the craft as she shot away into the darkness and then began to work to get the life preserver under my arms. I was buffeted and knocked about in the most confusing manner, and had the squall lasted five minutes longer I should have been drowned on the surface. It passed away as suddenly as it came, and ten minutes later the sea had calmed down, and I was floating with my head well out of the water.

I had gone overboard at about 7 o'clock in the evening. For the first three hours my hopes and fears made me alert, but by and by I felt a dull languor and was only half conscious of what was going on. An hour after midnight I was suddenly aroused from what seemed to be a troubled dream. I was bumping against something hard, and my first idea was that I had been cast ashore. It took me several minutes to shake myself together and make out that I was alongside the hull of a vessel. It was hard to credit the fact, but fact it was, and when I realized it I had scarcely more to do than lift up my hands and seize the low rail and draw myself inboard. I had found a derelict brig. Both masts were gone close to the deck, much of her bulwarks swept away, and I know by the feel of her that she was waterlogged. I took one glance over her and no more, but dumped myself down on the deck and was asleep in five seconds. When I opened my eyes, the sun was an hour high, and a big albatross was poised directly above me and not 50 feet high. It did not take me long to master the details of the wreck. In the first place, she was loaded with Australian redwood and could not sink beyond a certain point; next, she had been floating about for months and months. There was some wreckage on her decks, but masts and yards and boats and booms had gone clear off her as they fell. She had settled down until her scupper holes were only a few inches above water, but owing to the buoyant cargo she could not sink deeper. As a sailor I made her out to be a French craft, and later on I discovered that she was the Marie of Brest. She was a small craft, carrying a crew of eight or nine men, and was a forecastle ship instead of having a deckhouse for the men. The caboose or cook's galley had gone overboard with the rest, but the doors of the cabin and the scuttle to the forecastle were tightly closed. The brig had been wrecked aloft in squall or gale and had at the same time sprung a leak. Whether her crew had been washed overboard or taken to the boats there was no means of telling until I had made an investigation below.

The first thing was to get something to eat and drink. After a few minutes' work I broke open the cabin doors and got into the pantry. There was wine in plenty, as might have been expected, and I soon came across some meat and biscuit in tins. I wanted water, but there was none to be had, and so, taking what I could lay hands on, I went on deck and made a fair meal. When this had been concluded, I returned to the cabin for an overhaul. All the charts and nautical instruments were there, nor had any of the spare clothing of captain or mates been taken away. I found the logbook, and though I could not read French I made out the latitude and longitude last recorded. As near as I could figure it out the brig was then midway between Australia and the Cape, and the date was nearly seven months old. She had drifted to every point of the compass, but must have drifted nearly 2,000 miles to the north to reach the spot where I found her. It was noon before I began an examination of the lazarette to see how I should fare for provisions. I found flour, wines, table waters, preserves, boxes of biscuit, choice bacon, codfish and other articles in liberal quantity—enough to last one man for months. Forward of the cabin I found a storehouse, in which were several barrels of beef and pork, with four barrels of coarse flour, dried fish, beans, coffee, tea and other articles of food for the men. Forward of this were the water casks, a dozen or more, and all full. When I came to examine the forecastle, I found boots, oilskins, sou'-westers and other belongings of the crew, to prove that they had not gone away in the boats. Indeed I was sure before I had half concluded my investigation that every man had perished when the brig was wrecked. It was night before I had finished, and I tumbled into the captain's berth and never slept more soundly. You may think it queer that during the day I had scarcely glanced around the horizon and given no thought to rescue, and that I went to bed with a contented mind, but sailors are prone to take luck as it comes, good or bad. I had made a miraculous escape and was fairly safe on the wreck, and there was nothing to worry over if not taken off for weeks. Interested as I was in overhauling the stranger, I would not have tossed up a penny to be taken off by a passing vessel.

When morning came again I made a more thorough investigation of the cabin. In rear of the captain's stateroom I chanced upon a closet which had escaped me the day before, and here I made a great find. There was about $1,000 in French gold and notes, $1,200 in English goldpieces and exactly $7,000 in goldpieces just struck off at the Australian mints. The money was in two tin boxes, but whether it belonged to the ship, her captain or to other people I could not determine. It was a big fortune to a poor sailor, and I remember that I acted very foolishly over the find. I counted it over and over again, and when I at last realized that I was rich I rushed on deck, with a wild hope of seeing a sail close at hand. But for the money I believe that the long days and nights which followed would have been rather contentful for me, isolated as the situation was. I had plenty to eat and drink, there was nothing to break my sleep, the wreck might drive where she would, but there was no danger of her going down. The discovery of the money was followed by a hope of rescue, and this again by worry and anxiety. I wanted to go ashore to enjoy my wealth. I feared that when rescue did come I should be robbed. I conjured up a thousand senseless fears, and the upshot was anything but beneficial. I have spoken of the general situation in a careless way. As a matter of fact, being a navigator, I took observations regularly when the weather permitted and pricked off the drift of the wreck on the chart. On the average the weather was fine, but there were days and nights when gale and sea tumbled the waterlogged craft about until only a sailor could have lived through it. Instead of lifting her the waves ran over her, and at such times the decks were two feet under water and the cabin was flooded. The cargo was afloat with the water in the hold, and as the wreck rolled and pitched the timbers rubbed together and produced noises which would have frightened landsmen into fits.

I kept an accurate reckoning, and I had been on the wreck just 49 days when I caught sight of my first sail. No doubt ships had passed and repassed me by day and night, but I could set no signal by day and from the first I slept all through the night. This sail was discovered early one morning, coming up from the south, and her course was such that she must see me. I had put the money into bags and the bags into bundles of clothing in view of a rescue, and therefore had nothing to do but wait. The stranger, which proved to be an English merchantman bound for India, but considerably off her course, was within four miles of me and had set a signal to gladden my heart when a big whale suddenly broke water close to the wreck. He was followed half a minute later by a second, which attacked him with great fury. The monsters put up a terrific battle, lashing and biting each other and kicking up a sea like a gale of wind. They at first drew away from me, but after a few minutes made a circle which brought them back. What I had feared from the first came to pass after a quarter of an hour. Half blinded by pain and fury, or feeling itself overmatched and desirous of getting away, one of the whales suddenly whirled about and came for the wreck head on. He was fully 60 feet long, and he came like a moving mountain. I made sure of my hold as I saw him coming, but he struck the wreck on her port side with such force that I was thrown across the deck and into the sea beyond. I heard the crash of planks and timbers, was tossed about by the waves, rubbed against the whale as he sounded and reached the surface to find the wreck a hull no longer. It was simply a heap of floating debris. The strange ship drew nearer, lowered a boat, and I was picked up as I clung to a plank. The money was gone, all else but the timbers which composed the cargo had disappeared, and my adventure, surprising as it had begun, had ended in a manner strange enough to satisfy even the most imaginative novelist. I was carried to India by the rescuing ship, and I know that the French consul at Calcutta set inquiries on foot regarding the fate of the crew of the Marie. What they amounted to I never learned, but have always felt satisfied that all perished when their craft was dismasted. But for the fight between the whales I believe the brig could have been pumped out and sailed into port, but fortune is a jade who robs Jack Tar far oftener than she smiles upon him.

Jinks—What! You don't mean to say you are engaged to the beautiful Miss de Pink?

Blinks—Yes, I do. Got engaged to her last night. This afternoon I am to bring her into town. She wants to go to an optician's, I believe. New pair of glasses or something. She is nearsighted, you know.

Jinks—I say, old fellow, just slip round to that optician's and bribe him not to give her any better glasses than she has.—London Tit-Bits.

SPANISH CREWS SAVED

They Willingly Surrender, Fearing Attacks by Murderous Cubans

A Whole Fleet Destroyed, While the Victorious Vessels Come Out Uninjured—Cervera Brokenhearted

Ten miles west of the harbor of Santiago, Sunday, July 3, per the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 4.—It was about 9 o'clock this morningw hen the flagship Infanta Maria Teresa passed underthe wall of Morro Castle and steamed out to sea. She was followed by the Cristobal Colon, Vizcaya and Oquendo and las: by the torpedo boat destroyers Pluton and Furor. The lookout on the American vessels, which were lying five or ten miles off the entrance to the harbor sighted them immediately. Most of the American cruisers were at the usual Sunday morning quarters, without thought of anything as surprising as the Spanish fleet getting past the sunken collier Merrimac, which they had been deluded into believing effectually blocked the channel. There was great excitement at once and very rapid action all along the American lines. Signal for "Full speed ahead" was running from bridge to engine room of every ship, and thee ntire fleet commenced to move in shore towards the Spanish, and the great 12 and 13-inch guns of the battleships and the smaller batteries on the other vessels fired shot after shot at long range. As the ships ran in towards the shore it soon became evident that the Spaniards had not come out to make an aggressive fight, for they turned to the eastward as soon as they had cleared the harbor and started on their race for safety, at the same time sending answering shots at the American ships as fast as the men could load and fire the guns. The Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Texas, Oregon and Iowa were nearer the Spaniards than any others of the American vessels, but still most of them were too far away to get an effective range. They crowded on all steam in preparation for the chase, never stopping their fire for one moment.

The Gloucester, a fast little yacht that cannot boast of any heavier battery than several six-pounders and three-pounders, was lying off Aguadores, three miles east of Morro, when the Spaniards came out. At first she joined in the attack upon a large vessel and then held off, Captain Wainwright concluding to reserve his efforts for the two torpedo boat destroyers in the rear.

The Gloucester steamed after them when they appeared and chased them to a point five miles west of Morro, pouring shot after shot into them all the time. Her efforts bore abundant fruit, for to her belongs the credit for the destruction of both the destroyers. She fired 1,400 shots during the chase, and it was not long before both destroyers were on fire and plainly disabled.

The Gloucester then sent a boat to the assistance of the crews of the destroyers. It did not take the flames which had broken out on the Furor long to reach her magazines and then there were two terrific explosions. Her stern sunk immediately and she went to the bottom in perpetual oblivion, giving out a hissing, scalding sound [illegible] disappeared below the surface. Meantime the Brooklyn and the five battleships were keeping up an incessant fire upon the Infanta Maria Teresa, Vizcaya and the Almirante Oquendo, and the latter were returning it bravely, though with no success.

The guns of the battery just east of Morro took part in the game, and their shells fell around the American ships; many of them struck the upper works of the fleeing Spaniards and musth ave resulted in the killing and wounding of many of their men.

Theflagship and Oquendo were the first to show signals of disaster. Two 13-inchshells from one of the battleships had struck the Maria Teresa at thewater line, tearing great holes in herside and causing her to fill rapidly. The Oquendo suffered about the samefate, and both ships headed for a small cove and went aground 200 yards from the shore, flames shootingt rom them in every direction.

TheGloucester then steamed along thec oast to where the cruisers were stranded. There was danger from the magazines, and many of those on board jumped into the water and swam ashore, though a number were unable to reach the small strip of sandy beach in the cove and were thrown against the rocks and killed or drowned.

The Gloucester had all her boats out, and the seamen swam through the surf with a line from the Maria Teresa, making it fast to a tree on the shore. By this means many on the flagship, including Admiral Cervera, lowered themselves into the Gloucester's boats. The wounded were taken to the Gloucester as rapidly as possible, and the lower deck of the yacht was soon covered with Spanish sailors, mangled in limb and body by the bursting of shells. There were still some men on both vessels when the fire commenced to reach the magazines and the boxes of ammunition lying on the decks. A dozen or more explosions followed, the smoke from which covered the hillside, running down almost to the water's edge. Another column of smoke two miles further to the westward was observed. The Vizcaya also was in flames and was obliged to run ahsore to keep from going down. The Iowa and the Indiana were keeping up a terrific fire upon her, and her condition was as bad as that of the others.

The Broolynk, Oregon, Massachusetts and Texas, and several smaller vessels continued the chase after the Cristobal Colon, and in less than an hour were lost to view of the burning ships on hsore. The Iowa gave assistance to the imperilled crews of the Vizcaya. Her captain surrendered his command, and the prisoners were transferred to the battleship. The Vizcaya probablylost about sixty men, as she carried a complement of 400 and only 340 were taken aboard the Iowa.

Soon after Admiral Carvera reached the sore and surrendered, he was taken to the Gloucester at his own request. There was no mistaking the heart-broken expression upon the old seaman's face as he took the proferred hand of Captain Wainwright and was shown to the latter's cabin, but he made every effort to bear bravely the bitter defeat that had come to him. He thanked the captain of the Gloucester for the words of congratulation offered on the gallant fight and then spoke earnestly of his solicitude for the safety of his men on shore.

For hours after Admiral Cervera wentaboard the Gloucester, the Infanta Maria Teresa, Almirante, Oquendoand Vizcaya continued to burn, and every now and then a deep roar, accompanied by a burst of flame and smoke from the isdes of the ships would announce the explosion of more ammunition or another magazine. The Plutonand the Furor sank. The Gloucester's boat picked up as many of the survivors as she could find on the shore.

The prisoners of war included the captains of both boats. None offered any resistance, and were glad to go to the Gloucester, as they feared an attack from the Cubans.

A number of survivors, including officers of the Furor, who, it was reported, had their legs hsot off, were scattered along the coast for some distance, and could not be found.

The most remarkable feature of the combat was the fact that, notwithstanding the utter destruction of the Spanish fleet and the hard fight those ships made even after they were on fire the American vessels should escape without injury.

WARSHIPS LEAVE.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—The British warships Pallas and Alert have left for Santiago de Cuba in order to bring away British subjects who are desirous of leaving that city.

CHEERS GREET THE VICTORY.

At the Front, Headquarters of General Shafter's army, before Santiago de Cuba, July 3, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—Early in the day a man on the look-out had reported that the Spanish fleet, under the command of Admiral Cervera had sailed out of the harbor, but it was not known until late this afternoon that the result was so victorious at the front. As the word of the magnificent victory flew from sentry to sentry along the firing lines and was shouted to the companies, regiments and brigades, a great cher swept down the line of weary men, which gathered force as it went, until the rattle of musketry was drowned in the roar from glad American throats. The news flashed back into the underbrush, where the reserves lay, and the men almost stampeded in their enthusiastic desire to get to the front.

The cheering continued through the evening. As the details of the fight came in the men could not have displayed more enthusiasm had hae the victory been theirs intsead of belonging to the navy. Although the firing continued all day between the outposts very little damage was done on either side. Gen. Chaffee was wounded slightly, a rifle bullet cutting through his foot, but he will not be compelled to leave the field. The only severe fighting done during the day occurred when the Spanish fleet was leaving the harbor.

CAN AN OIL LAMP EXPLODE?

An Expert Says It is an Absolute Impossibility for It to Explode

Philadelphia, July 5.—Th einquest in the case of Lucy Smith, the 13-year-old colored child, who was burned to death last Saturday night, was reopened yesterday. It was in evidence at the first hearing that a coal lamp had exploded and set fire to the girl's clothing.

J. W. Daniels, an expert, testified that he had examined the oil of the same kind as that which is said to have exploded, and found it above the test required by law, and further declared that it was impossible for a coal oil lamp to explode. It is my opinion," said the witness, "based on years of experiments, that it is an absolute physical impossibility for a lamp filled with coal oil to explode. I have made the tests in every possible way that could be suggested. Lamps have been filled to every degree of fullnes sand emptiness in these experiments. The wicks have been turned down until they have fallen into the oil in the lamps. Lighted matches have been thrown in, and red-hot iron run down into the oil, but no explosion has ever followed. In order to have an explosion there must be a vaporous gas generated within the tank. The line is so finely drawn that if there is any oil at all in the lamp it is absolutely safe. Twenty-four drops of oil placed in a one gallon can will generate enough of this vaporous gas to cause an explosion, but if forty-eight drops are introduced into a can of the same size there will be no harm result.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

WALRUS LEATHER.

Used For Making Wheels For Polishing. Other Polishing Leathers.

Walrus leather is used for making buffer wheels for polishing brass, steel and silver. It has a peculiar, coarse grain that holds the emery or polishing powder well. It takes about five years to tan a walrus hide. Some walrus leather is made in this country, but the bulk of it is imported from England. Leather made from the hide of a cub walrus would be about half an inch thick. The hide of an old bull might be two inches thick. The value of the leather depends upon its thickness. Half inch would sell for about 50 cents a pound; 1½ inches would be worth $1.40 a pound, and walrus leather from 1½ to 1¾ inches thick, smooth and well trimmed, would be worth $2 a pound, and a side of such leather would cost about $300.

Walrus wheels are made in a variety of shapes, depending upon the work on which they are used. They are made with a flat face, grooved, cone shaped or of any shape that may be desired, and by cementing layers of leather together wheels of any desired thickness are made. Walrus leather is also used for valve packings.

Bull necks are used also for polishing purposes. Three-quarter inch bull necks sell at about 50 cents a pound. Leather made from the hide of the sea lion is used for polishing purposes. This is a smoother and softer leather used for softer metals. Sea lion leather of an average thickness costs about 50 cents a pound. Built up wheels of any thickness are also made of sea lion and of bull neck leather.—New York Sun.

The Lost Purse.

"I have had my pocket picked!" exclaimed a middle aged woman as she hurriedly entered a suburban police station a day or two ago.

"Where did it occur?"

"In a shop in the High street, and I know it was a man who stood near me took it."

"How much was in it?"

"I can't say, sir. You see, it was this way: I came out to do some shopping. I put my purse in my pocket when I left home. When I went to pay for the goods, it was gone. I think I had about 30 shillings."

"Did any one have an opportunity to pick your pocket?"

"I suppose they did."

"Sure you brought the money with you?"

"Yes."

"Are you certain you did not lose it?"

"Do you think I'm a fool, sir?" she indignantly exclaimed. "When I say I had my pocket picked, I know what I'm talking about."

"I hope you do, ma'am, but"—

At this moment a boy entered the room with the purse in his hand and said:

"Here's your money, ma. We found it on the piano after you left the house, and Sarah sent me down to the shop after you."

The woman and the sergeant looked at each other for a few seconds. Then he smiled. Then she got red. Then he said he was glad she had found her money, and she retorted:

"I don't believe it! You wish I had lost it! I ll never come here for help again, never!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Hobson's Choice.—Mother—Johnny, I see your little brother has the smallest apple. Did you give him his choice, as I suggested?

Johnny—Yes'm. I told him he could have his choice, the little one or none, and he took the little one.—London Tit-Bits.

Almost Beyond Belief.—"Tender-hearted?" said one who knew him. "Very much so. Upon my word, he would not even hurt a baseball umpire."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EDMUND BURKE.

As Able and Versatile Statesman Who Never Attained High Office.

Though Burke never attained high office his abilities were so versatile as to qualify him for any post which a cabinet minister could fill. His practical wisdom was as conspicuous as his power of generalization. No one had a clearer comprehension or a firmer grasp of great principles of universal application; at the same time his policy in every department of English politics rested on a wide and solid basis of information and experience. He was steeped in the history of the past, yet penetrated through and through with the reality of the present and ever and always mindful of that future in which the speculations and measures of the day were to be tested and finally approved or condemned. His prodigious activity in public affairs sprang not from an intellectual source alone, nor from his imperial patriotism. It was constantly fed from an inexhaustible store of moral energy. He was animated by a detestation of all forms of oppression, whether by kings or governors, parliaments or peoples, which was in him a consuming passion, from which his noble nature could only obtain relief by denunciation of the oppressor and the destruction of his power.

I cannot help thinking that Burke must have been stimulated, too, and sustained by delight in his studies and his work. It is impossible, without counting this as an additional incentive, to understand the amazing industry which he devoted to the elucidation of all the great questions dealt with in his speeches and writings. How his method reproves the habit, too common in our day, as in other days, of debating subjects affecting the fate of millions of our fellow creatures as if they could be disposed of by echoing the chatter of ignorance, or prejudice, or vanity, or self interest! When we read Burke's speech on Fox's East India bill, we say, "What a great proconsul he would have made!" When we read his speech on conciliation with America, we feel that the greatest of colonial ministers was lost in him, and when we read his speech on economical reform we exclaim, "Here is an ideal chancellor of the exchequer!"—J. O'Connor Power in North American Review

EDWIN BOOTH

The Great Tragedian Was Possessed of a Keen Sense of Humor.

Booth had a keen sense of humor, and among his intimates he was anything but the sad and gloomy man whom the outside world associated always with the character of the melancholy Dane of the stage. His published letters show how bright and cheerful he was usually in his familiar correspondence, and the following rhyming epistle is worth printing here as an example of his not infrequent efforts in that peculiar line. It came with an engraved portrai neatly framed:

Xmas Eve, '78.

Dear H.:

Think not that I forget,
Or that because the walkin's wet
Is why I haven't called as yet
Fumer la pipe, ou cigarette,
In your sanctum sanctorum.
'Tis but because I have to fry
Some other fish before they're dry.
This only is the reason why
My friends I do not bore 'em.
So, since I can't aller chez vous,
This deadhead I present in lieu
Of the one which here I shoulder,
Hoping this, too, may likewise call
Before the New Year learns to crawl
Or the old one grows much older.
But I know not, dear Hutton,
If you'll care a button
For this mug o' my own that I send,
Though 'tis told me as truth
(May be flatt'ry, forsooth)
By some who are judges
That this very mug is
By far the best phiz
Of your friend
Edwin Booth.

P. S.—You may spurn it, or dern it,
Or dash it, or dang it, or burn it,
Or mash it by puttin yer fut on.
Do anything—rather than hang it,
If you don't like it, dear Hutton.

—Laurence Hutton in Harper's Magazine.

He Had a Record.

A person who was bargaining for a mule in southwest Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, lively creetur?"

"I reckon he air," replied the young man. "He kicked dad through a circus tent, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and throwed a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Duty.

To do the duty nearest, simple and natural as it may seem, is really the most difficult thing in life. To see it even is difficult. I do not know what it is in man that always makes him enamored of the distant thing. It is always tomorrow and tomorrow. Today we will dream and plan and postpone; tomorrow we will act, and so life gets to be a snarl of neglected yesterdays, a deceiving show of promised tomorrows, nothing really accomplished.—J. F. W. Ware.

NEWS IN THE OLD DAYS.

How the Wreck of a Steamship In 1852 Was Reported.

The ocean passenger steamer Franklin ran ashore on the south side of Long Island, opposite Center Moriches, at 8 o'clock on the morning of July ., 1852. There was a dense fog prevailing at the time, and the officers of the vessel lost their bearings completely and did not know exactly where they were when the steamer stranded.

Surfmen and boats were not as plentiful along the coast line in those days as they are now. Several hours elapsed before boats were secured equal to the task of making their way through the surf to the steamer. Until communication was had with the vessel nothing was known about her. Finally a boat's crew came ashore, and the vessel's name and destination were made known. Her commander made arrangements with Sidney B. Topping to go to New York and report the stranding of the steamer to the board of underwriters, whose office at that time was in Wall street.

Mr. Topping at once crossed the bay to the mainland and harnessed up his horse to a light wagon and started for Patchogue, 14 miles away. It was just noontime when he stepped into the wagon. At Patchogue he changed horses and continued his journey to Babylon. Another change of horses was made at that place, and Mr. Topping started for Jamaica. His horse was pretty well winded when that place was reached, and he changed animals and continued on to Brooklyn, and crossing the ferry drove to the underwriters' office in Wall street. It was just 6 o'clock in the evening when he ascended the office steps. He had made the journey of a little more than 70 miles in exactly six hours.

Having reported the full details of the wreck to the underwriters, Mr. Topping drove around to the office of a leading newspaper and furnished the information for publication. He received a check for $50 from the paper and was told that had he brought a copy of a foreign newspaper from the Franklin they would have given him $100.

Mr. Topping was postmaster in Westhampton during the war and was a prominent figure on the east end of Long Island. He died in West Hampton at the age of 77. —New York Herald.

The Rabbit Industry.

It doesn't take much to start the rabbit industry—a few rabbits and a turnip patch or some other pasture—but it takes a mighty hustling to check it after it gets a good start. We kill about 14,000,000 of them in North Carolina every winter, but there are more here now than there were when Mr. Raleigh brought his immigrants over.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

POND'S EXTRACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29, 1894.
I have used "Pond's Extract" for many years and always insist upon my patients getting "Pond's," not the ordinary Extract, which is often a very poor article. W. K. BROWN, M. D.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9, 1895.
I use Pond's Extract a great deal in my practice. I think it very valuable in all venous enlargements.
J. L. BRADFORD, M. D.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL., Nov. 27, 1894.
I have been using Pond's Extract in my practice for twenty years. I frequently have the experience you mention of druggists insisting they can put up as good as yours. I don't believe it. I use Pond's Extract a great deal as an antiseptic in combination with glycerine and carbolic acid. I think it far superior to any antiseptic known.

Clydesdale

Dominion day is every year becoming more important in this vicinity, on account of the annual picnic held on that day by the Presbyterians. This year it was a monster. Early in the morning democrats, wagons and buggies began to arrive at the farm of Mr. James Trother, where the picnic was being held. This procession was kept up until about 400 people had taken possession of the lawn. The dinner was served up in a style that the ladies of Clydesdale may well be proud of. Baseball, swings, etc., entertained th ecrowd until the programme commenced at 4.30. Space will not permit going into detail, but all was well rendered. After tea, Apsley and Coe Hill teams lined up for football, resulting in a tie. The proceeds of the day were about $85, Grea tcredit is due tthose who had charge of the committees, The student, Mr. L. S. Hall, and his congregation are to be congratulated on the great success of the picnic.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Interesting Items of Local and District Happenings in Brief

—The Canadian Atlantic, and Ottawa Arnprior and Parry Sound railways are threatened with a tie-up. Four hundred sectino men want $1.25 a day, instead of $1 a sformerly. As this is a busy season of the year the railways may have to meet the men's demands.

—The members and friends of the Charlotte street Methodist church excurted to Jubilee Point yesterday on the steamer City of Peterborough. The weather was all that could be desired and everyone that could took advantage of the occasion to have a good day's outing. There were about three hundred on board. A West-End Fire

Mr. John Spence, of 35 Bonacord-st., had a fire on his premises yesterday morning. He had a field of hay next his house which was just cut the day previous and was lying out to dry. In the centre was a brush heap. Mr. Spence went out and set fire to this to destroy it, then leaving it. In a few moments the whole field of hay was ablaze. The fences caught and for a time it threatened to be a serious blaze, but a number of ladies from surrounding houses and the fire brigade from Blade's greenhouse turned out in force and got it under control. The hay was almost totally consumed.

A Kingston Kicker

The Kingston News says...—"Charlie Powell does not think much of the manner in which the bicycle races att Peterborough on Dominion day were conducted. He says at the curve on the track there were no judges to see that no fouling was done. Seventeen riders started in the 2.40 class. The man that ran into him did so by cutting the corner on the grass. He was spilled out into the track, and the pedal of one of the wheels came in contact with his head, giving him a severe clip and cutting a gash. His left leg was also bruised, which prevented him and Grass entering the tandem race. W. Grass, who rode in the handicap, was given 150 yards start. He ended up seventh." ......

A GENUINE ROMANCE

Andrew Crabtree, a Former Cattle Dealer of Toronto Figures as a Hero

Toronto, July 6.—The pretty town of Mount orest i sreported to be enjoying a romance worthy of the pen of a Hawthorne.

Seventeen years ago Andrew Crabtree, a well-to-do cattle dealer, left Toronto for England with a consignment of live stock. The arrival of the vessel wa srecorded, but that was all. Andrew Crabtree himself, unaccountably dropped completely out of sight, like a pebble cast into the middle of Lake Ontario, and for seventeen years was not heard of. Mrs. Crabtree giving her husband up for dead, removed to Mount Forest with her son, now a boy of 18, and engaged in dressmaking. Her father died not long ago, and left her a large estate, but she never married again. On Sunday last there walked into the Tremont Hotel, Toronto, a big, well-dressed, ruddy-faced, man, with grey beard, who registered as Andrew Crabtree. From friends he ascertained his wife's whereabouts in Mount Forest, and going tremblingly to the telephone, he asked if she would receive him. "It depends upon how you look,' came the answer. The traveler at once set off for the town. He has not returned empty-handed from abroad, and owns a row of buildings on Strachan avenue

County Police Court at Norwood

County Magistrate Edmison held Court at Norwood Tuesday. Richard Greaves, Wm. Cross and Wm. Simpson were charged by J. L. Squires with stealing two hundred weight of cheese from the Norwood cheese factory on the nights of June 29th and 30th. Greaves and Simpson had been arrested by the constable and were put on trial. They pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily by the Magistrate. They were remanded till Friday next, being held in Peterborough in the meantime. Cross could not be found, although the constables have a warrant for his arrest.

The same three parties were charged by W. H. Tucker with having stolen twelve loaves of bread from his bakery on the night of July 3rd, also 10 lbs. of white sugar and a suit of clothing, and this, notwithstanding the fact that bread sells in Norwood at ten cents a large loaf. Greaves and Simpson pleaded guilty to the theft of the bread, but denied having taken the other goods. The whole case was left till Friday when it is expected the officers will have run across Cross.

A search warrant was issued to cover the house of a man suspected of having some of the missing goods in his possession, but nothing was discovered.

Principal Davidson, of the Norwood High School, was charged by an ex-pupil, named James White, with assaulting him on the 24th of May at a baseball game. Mr. Davidson had charge of the grounds, and observed some persons entering the gate without having paid an admission fee. He recalled to White to shut the gate; White replied that he did not have to, and the Principal, forgetting for the moment that his ex-pupil was not just then in school, gave him a shake. Mr. Davidson apologised in writing, agreed to pay the costs, and the matter was dropped.

An Accident At Bickell's Factory

Mr. C. H. Mann of Bridgenorth, an employee of Mr. Samuel Bickell, cheese box manufacturer, happened with an accident at the factory yesterday morning, by which the second and third fingers of the left hand were badly cut on the matcher. The accident was occasioned by a loose knot casued the saw to throw heading back from under his hand, allowing it to drop instantly upon the saw. Dr. Scott dressed the wounds.

TO MOVE AT ONCE

Watson's Fleet to Move at Once and Bombard Frontier Citiy of Spain

The Vessels will be the Oregon, Iowa, Newark and Three Cruisers, Besides Coal Ships—Why Cervera's Fleet Left Santiago—War Notes

Guantanamo, Monday, July 4, 6 p. m., per the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 4, 6 p. m., delayed in transmission.—The steamer Resolute arrived to-day with 508 prisoners including 13 officers and crew of the Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon. The disposition of the prisoners is not yet decided on. The number of killed and wounded on the Cristobal Colon is very small. The captured Spaniards were remarkably cheerful. The officers claim they had nothing to eat for 24 hours before the destruction of the fleet and they had great difficulty in getting the men to their posts and therefore large amounts of liquor were given out. Many of the captured sailors still showed the effects of drink when put on board the Resolute.

The Spanish officers say the order to sail was given by the Minister of Marine of Madrid, and they decided to make an attempt to escape on Saturday night, but it was postponed until Sunday morning for the reason that "Quarters inspection" time and the Americans would not be at their guns.

SPANISH LIGHTER CAPTURED.

Washington, July 7.—The War Department has received a telegram from General Shafter's headquarters stating five auxiliary cruisers, Osceola, has has captured a Spanish lighter loaded with provisions and valued at $50,000.

TO MOVE IMMEDIATELY.

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Long has just cabled Admiral Sampson, ordering him to detach immediately Commodore Watson's squadron and directing the latter to proceed at once upon his mission. The vessels will be the Iowa, Oregon, Newark and three cruisers besides coal ships.

THE REASON FOR MOVING.

Guantanamo, July 4. via Port Antonio, Jamaica, per Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, July 6, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6, 7 p. m.—When the Spanish fleet left Santiago it was with the intention to make for Cienfuegos, the nearest port to secure coal and provisions all the ships were very short of coal, the Cristobal Colon having only two days' supply, which she had secured at Santiago. The Spaniards concentrated their fire on the Brooklyn hoping to disable that vessel as they considered her the fastest of the American warships and thus give an opportunity for at least one or two of the Spanish boats to escape. The Brooklyn was hit 45 times. The Spaniards estimated the forces behind the fortifications at Santiago de Cuba at about 11,000 including the 4,000 reinforcements brought by Gen. Pando, which are known to be in Santiago. The forces besides Gen. Pando's men, consisting of 4,000 regulars and 2,000 volunteers, are not to be depended on much and 1,100 marines and sailors were withdrawn from the city where the Spanish fleet made the ill-fated sortie.

FLEEING FROM SANTIAGO.

El Gauey, Province of Santiago de Cuba, July 6, per the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, via Port Antonio and Kingston, July 7.—Fifteen thousand refugees to-day fill the roads leading from Santiago to El Gauey, Boniato, San Vincent and San Louis, adjacent places. The exodus was in response to a proclamation by General Ros, a political General in Santiago, who gave all people desirous of leaving the city to escape the bombardment a chance to go between 5 o'clock and 9 o'clock this morning. The time between the issuance of the proclamation and the period set for leaving gave a small opportunity for transporting household effects or any of the comforts of life, particularly as the Spanish authorities had forbidden any horse or carriage to be taken from the city, as the horses are needed there for carrying water to the men in the trenches. The way to El Gauey is long and the weather excessively hot. As the fugitives had no means of carrying water and as there is none on the road between Santiago and El Gauey there was great suffering. Men, women and children lay alongside the road, wherever there was a small patch of shade, begging passers-by, particularly soldiers with dangling canteens, for always freely tendered.

PREPARING FOR BOMBARDMENT.

Headquarters in the Field, before Santiago, July 6, via Kingston, July 7.—The artillery has remained in position throughout the day on the ridge above El Pozo, two miles east of Santiago, where it was placed yesterday morning with a view to taking part in the bombardment of the city.

The artillerymen have made preparations to resist a fierce return fire from the Spanish siege guns, are mounted on the outskirts of the town and which have shown they possess good gunners and accurate range finders. Pits have been dug for men and the horses have been removed to a place of safety, where it is thought the Spanish guns will not be able to reach them. Captain Caprons' battery was withdrawn from the hill last night and sent behind General Lawton's position, from which place it will have cross fire with the batteries on El Pozo ridge and at the same time be able to shell the north end of the town.

The artillery officers are confident they will be able when the bombardment begins to silence the Spanish guns and to reduce the entire position of the enemy so that the forward rush of our troops will meet with little or nothing beyond rifle fire; and they are confident the city can be taken as soon as they are permitted to open fire and to take a hand in the battle.

The incidents attending the death of Lieut. Ord, son of the late General E. O. C. Ord, were dramatic. He was an aide on the staff of General Hawkins, and throughout the day of the battle was active and energetic in getting the troops up to the line. He was right in the front rank, when the 6th, 13th and 24th and 16th regiments made their desperate charge on San Juan hill, and was one of the first officers to reach the summit.

Just as he passed the brow of the hill he saw a Spaniard lying on the ground; and pointing to him said.—"Take care of that man." The Spaniard saw the motion, and, evidently thinking Lieut. Ord was ordering him killed, he raised his rifle and shot the lieutenant dead. The soldiers of the 6th Infantry, as Lieut. Ord was an officer of that regiment and very popular with the men, were wild with rage, and literally tore the body of the Spaniard to pieces with bullets. Then they kicked it into a trench.

HOBSON JOINS HIS FRIENDDS.

Off Juragua, July 6, evening, by the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 7.—Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson, of the flagship New York, and the seven seamen who composed the crew of the collier Merrimac, which was sunk by Hobson and his companions in the channel of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba on June 3 last, were surrendered by the Spanish military authorities to-day in exchange for prisoners captured by the American forces.

Hobson and his men were escorted through the American lines by Captain Chadwick, of the New York, who was awaiting them. Every step of their journey was marked by the wildest demonstrations on the part of the American soldiers, who threw aside all semblance of order, scrambled out of the entrenchments, knocked over tent guys and other camp paraphernalia in their eagerness to see the returning heroes, and set up cheer after cheer for the men who had passed safely through the jaws of death to serve their country.

The same scenes of enthusiasm were repeated on the arrival of the men at the hospital station, and at our base at Juragua. Hobson, who reached there in advance of his companions, was taken on board the New York immediately. The flagship's decks were lined with officers and men, and as Hobson clambered up her side and stepped on board his vessel the harbor rang with the shouts and cheers of his comrades, which were echoed by the crews on a dozen transports lying near by.

Hobson had little to say in regard to his experiences, except that he and his companions had been well treated by the Spaniards, and that they were all in excellent health.

TO BLOW UP THE QUEEN.

Washington, July 6.—Information has been received that an attempt was recently made to blow up the apartments of the Queen Regent of Spain at Madrid with a dynamite bomb. Several men were arrested for alleged complicity in the plot, and one of them, Alexandro Argorano, was confined in the fortress of Monjuich at Barcelona and afterwards executed. The others are still under arrest. It is believed, however, that the bomb was placed by adherents of Don Carlos, who wished to expediate his accession to the throne by the destruction either of the boy King Alfonso or his his mother the Queen Regent. The infernal machine was discovered by a young lieutenant of the Palace Guards while making afternoon rounds with the patrol. It was concealed beneath a heavy marble table, and would probably have gone off about midnight. Extraordinary precautions are being observed and the secret police of the city are unusually vigilant. It is is thought that the object lesson which the execution of Argorano furnished will be supplemented by others, as there are at least half a dozen suspects in prison whose fate remains in doubt.

GENERAL WEYLER POPULAR.

London, July 7.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says. "The royal family have decided to remain here. Marshal Campos has abandoned his intended holiday at the seaside. The streets are being occupied by the military, but no riots have occurred so far. General Weyler was publicly acclaimed yesterday with cries of 'The politicians are the nation's enemies!'

"El Nacional declares that the nation is governed by 'idiots.' In the course of an interview a prominent politician asserted that Spain has little to lose now and the Americans have much to sacrifice. Unless they purchase the economy involved in peace with suitable concessions they they will not, he says, obtain it."

A MILITARY CABINET.

Madrid, July 7.—The Cabinet is now sitting, and its resignation may be regarded as threatened. The sequel will probably be a military Cabinet under Martinez Campos. There will also be, most likely, a suspension of of the constitutional guarantees. At this hour the appearance of the city is somewhat quieter.

SPANIARDS FIRE ON AMBULANCE.

Camp Siboney, July 6, per the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, via Port Antonio, Ja., and Kingston, Ja., July 7, 1 a. m.—The general health of the United States troops is excellent. Not a case of yellow fever is reported, despite the fact that Santiago de Cuba is recognized as a great fever focus as far as Rio Santos. Of over a thousand wounded treated in this divisional hospital, only two have died. Both were buried this morning after religious service. There have been no cases of blood poisoning. The behaviour of the patients and wounded is heroic. There is not a moan or a murmur. Last night many were lying on the hard ground outside the tents. Surgeons and nurses worked unceasingly for forty-eight hours without rest or meals; and there are 200 wounded yet to come from the field. The hospital corps is short handed, and doctors from the vessels of the fleet are helping day and night. The wounds show that the Spaniards are not only using explosive bullets but also brass-covered bullets, with the ends filed. The latter make most ghastly wounds, as when they strike the brass lining spreads out, tearing the flesh like barbed wire. The Spanish sharp-shooters are firing at the Red Cross Society people and at the ambulances. They shot one driver who was returning with wounded. The raging surf makes the shipment of the wounded to the transports and hospital ships very difficult.

Admiral Cervera, who was transferred from the Gloucester to the battleship Iowa, is being treated with every consideration.

General Young, who has been very ill with a fever for the past week, left for the United States on the transport Cherokee to-day.

Dr. Guiteras has a large number of cases in his fever hospital, but there is not the slightest indication of yellow fever, most cases being malaria, typhoid and measles.

ADMIRAL VILLAMIL DEAD.

Madrid, July 7.—A Spanish Cabinet Minister is quoted as saying that the present Government of Spain will devote itself solely to the defence of the Spanish coast, and that if negotiations for peace must be opened they will have to be conducted by another Government. The Cabinet is of the opinion that the fleet of Admiral Camara should continue its voyage to the Philippines.

The Government has received a telegram from Admiral Cervera, announcing the death of Admiral Villamil, who was in charge of the Spanish torpedo boat squadron at Santiago de Cuba, and the suicide of Captain La Saga, the commander of the Infanta Maria Teresa.

SPECIAL THANKSGIVING

President McKinley Calls for an Expression of Gratitude

Washington. July 7—President McKinley at 11.40 to-night issued the following proclamation to the American people:

To the People of the United States of America;

At this time, when to the yet fresh remembrance of the unprecedented success which attended the operations of the United States fleet in the Bay of Manila on May 1, last, are added the tidings of the no less glorious achievements of the naval and military arms of our beloved country at Santiago de Cuba, it is fitting that we should pause and staying the feeling of exultation that too naturally attends great deeds wrought by our countrymen in our country's cause, should reverently bow before the throne of Divine Grace, and give devout praise to God, who holdeth the nations in the hollow of his hand and worketh upon them the marvels of His high will, and who has thus far vouchsafed to us the light of His face, and led our brave soldiers and seamen to victory.

"With the nations thanks let there be mingled the nation's prayers that our gallant sons may be shielded from harm, alike on the battlefield and in the clash of fleets, and be spared the scourge of suffering and disease, while they are striving to uphold their nation's honor, and withal, le tthe nation's heart be stilled with holy awe at the thought of the noble men who have perished a sheroes die, an d be filled with compassionate sympathy for all those who suffer bereavement or endure sickness, kwounds and bonds by reason of the awful struggle. And, above all, let us pray with earnest fervor, that He, the dispenser of all good, may speedily remove from us the untold afflictions of war, and bring tio our dear land the blessings of restored peace, and to all the domain now ravaged by th ecruel strife, th epriceless boon of security and tranquility."

MET DEATH IN KLONDIKE

Sir Arthur Curtis Dies of Starvation Efforts of Searching Party Fruitless

Vancouver, B. C., July 7.—Roger Pocock, who returned from the Klondike by the Ashcroft route, brings word that Sir Arthur Curtis Bart., met a miserable death in the bush on the trail beyond Mud river, seventy miles from Quesnell. The entire party of Englishmen left camp to hunt horses, Sir Arthur going alone for the same purpose. He became lost in the dense bush, and Mr. Pocock secured three other members of the camp, and engaged a band of Indians for $100, besides engaging numerous trackers, to hunt for him. On the sixth day they discovered hi stracks, he having no food all this time, and no means of keeping off the mosquittoes, which would render him blind, On the seventh day the tracks of coyotes following the man's track, were discovered, and on the eighth day bear tracks were noticed following along with those of the coyotes. Then all tracks led over a dead fall to a creek and all signs vanished. Blinded by flies a mad and dying man would have hidden himself away, and soon would lose consciousness, feeling no pain, but having brilliant dreams and gorgeous fancies of mind, delivered from rational thought. Indians refused to search further, and Pocock says; "I had to pronounce the death sentence, and turn back."

Sir Arthur Curtis is 41 years old and leaves a widow and one son. The baronetcy descends from a distinguished naval officer, who was knighted for saving the lives of drowning Spaniards after the bombardment and fall of Gibralter.

JEWISH FARMERS FOR CANADA

A Million Dollars to be Expended on Jewish Colonization

Montreal, July 7.—The sum of $1,000,000 for Jewish immigration to Canada is what is now being discussed by the Jewish Colonization association, which has just held a meeting in Paris. Mr. D. A. Ansell, consul-general for Mexico, who attended the meeting, is back home again. He stated to The World to-day that the fruitation of a great scheme entailing the expenditure of a million to aid Hebrew farmers from Europe to settle in the Canadian Northwest, no wdepended on the report of the association's confidential agent, who is now sojourning in western Canada, but who is expected in Mnotreal in a very short time. The idea is to advance a farmer $500 to start with in the way of stock and outbuildings. He pays interest on this amount at 3 per cent. fo rsix years, and at the ned of this term he is supposed to return the principal to the association. Mr. Ansell says that only farmers will be sent to Canada.

That Item Restored

Washington, July 6.—The action of the Senate in restoring the item relating to the commission to settle the controversies between the United States and Canada has cleared the way for the meeting of the commission at Quebec the latter part of this month.

TERMED MURDERERS

Probable That Men of the Bourgogne May be Arrested at Boston

Yousouf was on Board—The Terrible Turk was Seen Dancing and Wrestling on the Bourgogne's Deck

Halifax, N. S., July 7.—La Bourgogne disaster, with its terrible accompaniment of wholesale loss of life, continues to be the talk of this city. The ship Cromartyshire, which is at anchor in the stream, is the centre of attraction. Hundreds of boats loaded with occupants surround the vessel. Many of them were content with viewing the damaged ship from outside, but many of the curious ones go on board and inspect the inside. A survey of the damage commenced this morning. The hull will be put in good condition before the vessel leaves port. No claim for salvage has been made on behalf of the Allan liner Grecian, as there is no possibility of the damaged vessel leaving port for some days yet.

The claimants will doubtless take their time in the matter, and the claim may be eventually settled on the other side of the Atlantic.

Crowds assembled on the wharf from which Halifax sailed last night to have a look at those who escaped the fate of so many of their fellow passengers. Never has there been greater excitement in this city over a great calamity. People seemed to be dazed by the appalling scope of the tragedy. Its revolting details were read with horror on all sides. That human beings should descend to such horrible practices is to be wondered at. It is hard to credit some of the stories of deeds attributed to the sailors of La Bourgogne. Prevailing opinion is that when the Halifax reaches Boston the parties who can be pointed out as guilty of murderous assault will be placed under arrest.

the fact that the passengers of two ships of the same line should be brought to Halifax within a few months. La Champagne was towed here under circumstances which for many days caused great anxiety on both sides of the Atlantic.

The catastrophe is made all the more revolting when the fact that so many more might have been saved is taken into consideration. A few cool-headed and determined men acting at the proper moment might have controlled the raving rabble who fought so terribly for places of safety. On all sides discipline was severely criticized. It is hard for a Britisher to understand how fifty per cent. of the passengers. The fact that only one woman was saved out of 165 will go down in history as a brand of fire on the honor and courage of a cowardly crew. Passengers were there to die in order that these, who were naturally looked to as their protectors, might escape.

YOUSUF ON THE BOURGOGNE.

Halifax, N.S., July 7.—All of the Bourgogne survivors have left Halifax for New York, the last of them, Mr. and Mrs. Lacasse, and two others, going going by train this morning. One of the passengers says he saw Yousuf, "the Terrible Turk," enjoying himself on deck Sunday night dancing, singing and wrestling. But nobody can be found who saw him after the collision.

GOVERNMENT WILL INVESTIGATE.

Halifax, N.S., July 7.—Captain W.H. Smith, R.N.R., of the Marine and Fisheries Department, has been instructed from Ottawa to hold an investigation into the Bourgogne disaster.

SIR OLIVER WAS IN DANGER

The Lieut-Governor of Ontario Was on a Burning Ship

Kingston, July 7.—Sir Oliver Mowat had a very startling experience last evening. He had attended the McDonald memorial ceremony at Fredericksbury to-day, and was returning to this city from Bath with a party of prominent Kingstonians on the steamer Jubilee. When opposite Clarke's Malt house near the entrance of the harbor, about 9.30 o'clock, flames burst forth from the fire hole and caught on the woodwork in that vicinity. A great commotion was caused among the passengers, and the ladies were taken ashore in lifeboats. The flames were finally got under control. The tug Reginald, which was passing, was hailed, and towed the steamer to Kingston. The engineer was scorched about the face, the rest of the party escaping uninjured.

Another Smuggler Fined

Windsor, July 6.—Mrs. Ann Mitcheldam, Mrs. Georgina Papineau and Miss Lacadie Langlois of Belle River; Mrs. Ella Gignic of Sandwitch East; Mrs. Elizabeth Laforge of Sandwitch West; and Louis Brown, of Windsor, were each fined $50 and $3.50 costs for smuggling little purchase sinto Windsor. The magistrate said he had no option but to inflict that penalty, otherwise he would have made it a good deal less. Lacadie Longlois i sa girl of 13, and he could scarcely imagine that she could know anything about smuggling, and the statutes provided that in the case of juveniles the Crown could enter a nolle prosequi. He could not send her to jail, and was certain that she had not a cent to levy on. R. F. Sutherland who appeared for the Crown promised to represent the age of the girl to the attorney-general. As for the others, the magistrate gave them a month to collect the amount of their fines.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH JULY 7 1898

It is, of course, easy to be wise after the event, but still it is funny to read the criticisms passed on the American fleets. For instance, in the Engineering Magazine for July there is an article entitled "Sea Power at the End of the Nineteenth Century." It is by a professed expert. He says:

"The best part of the Spanish fleet was still in Spanish ports. It could be found when wanted. It should surely have been watched from the beginning and destroyed so soon as it ventured to sea. To make up for the relatively small coal endurance of the majority of the United States men-of-war, the Canary Islands might, if desirable, have been seized to serve as a coaling base; the heavy ships, accompained by colliers, might have been stationed there; and the fast ships and the mercantile cruisers might have been stationed off Cadiz and Ferrol, so that nothing could escape without the fact and, all necessary particulars being promptly reported to the battleship squadron. But nothing of this sort was attempted; nothing of this sort was apparently even contemplated by the United States Government, and by American public opinion. I am sure that it was contemplated, and suspect that some scheme of the kind was urged by many naval officers; but public opinion would not have allowed such a plan to be carried out. The people, knowing nothing of the application of sea power, would have insisted that the proper station of the main fleet was on the western side of the Atlantic.

Quietly thinking the matter over to-day do you not think that Sampson knew pretty much as near about it as Cervera did?

The Spanish sea-dog does not appear to have very good command of his bark.

It is pretty hot in Santiago these days, but the slaying is immense.

"This war is not a crusade," says the Washington Times. Come, now, how much would Dewey and Sampson have effected if it had not been for their crews' aid?

On its way to Manila the Dewey aid expedition dropped in on the Spanish garrison of the Ladrone islands and took them prisoners. As a grabber of islands, there does not seem to be much doubt that Uncle Sam is akin to a stout old gentleman of the name of Bull.

If you saw an illuminated football crossing the sky last night, and dropping off to the northwest, you need not worry over any fear that you have "got 'em." It was a meteor, which fell near Collingwood, where people were startled by a sudden blaze of light which crossed the sky with lightning rapidity. After the flash followed a train of smoke. The appearance was attended by a loud roar as of thunder, and many felt, or thought they felt, a slight shock as the aerial visitant reached the ground. It was seen from all over Ontario.

The Examiner the other day prints the query, "what is the lesson which the American people are to draw from the war with Spain? The Times would respectfully suggest that there is no lesson in it for Uncle Sam. He is teaching Spain a lesson:

To all our Canadian visitors on this Independence Day: Welcome, brothers!—Buffalo Express.

Verily, the times change, and the Buffalo papers change their tune with them. For half-a-dozen years Inspector DeBarry has been engaged in winning the applause of the Express and its Buffalo contemporaries by his enforcement of the alien law, turning back and ignominiously expelling Canadians who went from Canada to that city to work for an honest living in the exercise of the same right that is granted, to Americans over here. The Anglo-American entente is a worker of wonders.

The first arrivals from the Klondike this spring have registered at Secattle. There are twenty of them, and their pile aggregates $3,550,0-0. If this is a sample of the success achieved by those who went into the gold country a year ago, a revival of the Klondike rush may be anticipated.

Premier Winter, of Newfoundland, and Receiver-General Morine have been laying their grievances against the French on the west coast of the island before Mr. Joseph Chamberlain in London. The Secretary for the Colonies proved a sympathetic listener, and not only agrees that the Newfoundlanders are entitled to a revision of French claims on the coast, and will insist upon a strict observance of treaty agreements, but also agrees that Newfoundland is entitled to membership in the commission to adjust the differences between Canada and the United States. Mr. Chamberlain evidently is not disposed to go far out of his way to avoid trouble with France. It looks rather as though he is determined to get after the Frenchman, if not in Africa, then in Newfoundland, or wherever else he can find him.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Let loftier poets sing of knights,
Of fairies, sylphs and satyrs,
Of sprites and fays ancient days,
And other outworn matters.
Of kings and ancient heroes brave—
I sing a newer comer—
A man whom fate created late,
His masterpiece—the drummer.

He never fears the face of man,
Meets all men on a level,
Nor snub nor bruise can make him lose
His perpendicular bevel.
Brave as those mythic crews who sought
The Hesperidean apples,
For unafraid with lords of trade
And merchant kings he grapples.

He fights with monarchs of the mart,
He meets them in their fastness,
Shows them his sleek expanse of "cheek,"
And awes them with his vastness.
The merchant king behind his bales
Yields to the bold marauder,
He cowers and quakes—the drummer takes
His thousand-dollar order.

He flies upon the wings of steam,
Nor times nor tides restrict him,
And from his flights he only lights
To swoop upon his victim.
He swoops—then comes the tug of tongues—
Of vibrant voices wrangling—
Loud blows are dealt, then in his belt
Another scalp is dangling.

A thousand miles is but a step,
The continent a straddle,
When on his steed of wondrous speed
He buckles on the saddle;
The sunrise and sunset sea
To him are near together,
With tropic glow and polar snow
He sandwiches his weather.

The longitudes and latitudes
He leaps in tireless motion,
This shuttlecock between New York
And the Pacific Ocean.
This continent waltzer still will dance,
Through states and nations spinning,
And change his climes as many times
As most men change their linen.

"The soul that hustles not shall die,"
This is the creed he preaches;
And 'twill agree with you and me
To heed the truth he teaches.
Life is no languid holiday,
No long and idle summer;
Come, pack your grip, get up and skip
And hustle like the drummer.

—Sam Walter Foss, in New York Tribune.

A MATRIMONIAL ADVERTISEMENT.

"Toast burned to a crisp! Coffee like mud, and beefsteak as tough as leather! I'd like to know how in thunder you think a man is going to live on such stuff as this! I'll die of indigestion in less than a month if I keep on this way. Here! take the mess away, and just pack up your duds and leave as quick as you ever did anything in your life," growled Mr. Aaron Allen, as he arose from the table, giving it a violent push that sent the dishes rattling.

Bridget suddenly set to work, and Mr. Allen strode out of the room, banging the door behind him.

"Well," he muttered, as he reached his study and threw himself in a chair, "this is a go. Five cooks in as many weeks, and no prospect of anything better. It will certainly drive me distracted trying to live in this way. I do hate to break up and board after keeping house so long, and if Sophia hadn't made such a goose of herself she might be here yet, and all would be well."

Mr. Allen was a middle-aged bachelor whose maiden sister, a few years younger than himself, had always directed his household affairs since the death of their mother, twenty years previously, when Sophia was a girl of sixteen. They had always lived peacably enough until about two months since, when Sophia took mortal umbrage at her brother. Miss Sophia had a pet parrot, a beautiful, talkative bird, of which she was very fond. But one unlucky day she unthinkingly left the cage door open, and went out calling. Her brother came from the office before she returned, and a sight met his eyes which set his quick temper in a blaze at once, for there on his table sat Poll, busily engaged in tearing into minute bits some of his most important papers and documents, which she had pulled from the half-open drawers, while over what few remained untouched by her bill, streams of ink were pouring from the overturned stand.

"Fun! fun! fine fun!" shouted Poll, pausing a moment in her work of destruction, and cocking up one eye maliciously at the intruder.

"Yes, I'll make it fun for you, you—you——" sputtered Mr. Allen, using some, I am afraid, not very refined expressions, and seizing Poll unawares he thrust her into the cage, and rushing out on the street, sold her to the first person he met.

Miss Sophia soon came home, and, missing her bird, made inquiries, when her brother at once related the whole affair. His sister stormed and fumed and raged, and ended by calling her brother a "cruel wretch," and other endearing epithets, and declaring she would not remained in a house where she was so abused.

Mr. Allen, in a passion, told her to do as she liked about it—it was immaterial to him whether she went or remained. So she departed, without even leaving her future address; but her brother had no fears on her account. She had relatives to whom she could go, and plenty of money, and she was certainly old enough to take care of herself. The cook, who had lived in the family for years, left when Miss Sophia left, declaring that she "could not be bossed by a man." Mr. Allen, thinking it easy to fill her place, had taken five cooks in succession from the intelligence office with what success we have seen.

"Hum," mused Mr. Allen to himself, a habit he had when alone; "if I knew where Sophia was, I'd send for her, even if she did act so foolishly, but I don't know, so there's an end of that. Heigho! what's a house without a woman to manage it, anyway? Something's got to be done, and soon, too. I can't live this way any longer. I believe I'll get married! Wouldn't Sophia fume then? But there's nobody I exactly take a fancy to. Miss Biggs is too old, Miss Sleepup too vain and extravagant and I don't know any nice widows."

He sat a moment thinking deeply on this important matter, then a light broke over his face.

"The very thing! why didn't I think of it before!"

He sat down before his desk, and drawing pen, ink and paper toward him, commenced writing, and after frequent pauses and much reflection, finally laid down his pen, and read over what he had written.

"I guess that will do," he said. "What an old fool I am! But, then, no one will ever know I did it."

Miss Sophia, on leaving her brother's house, had immediately gone to a cousin's residing about sixty miles distant. Her relatives, not knowing her quarrel with her brother, received her cordially, and endeavored to make herself quite at home. The New York papers came daily and she always perused them with interest. One day in glancing over the advertisements, a certain one caught her eye, and she read it over carelessly, then again with more interest. These were the words which had arrested her attention:

A MIDDLE-AGED GENTLEMAN OF wealth and position is desirous of opening a correspondence with a lady of education and refinement, with a view to matrimony. Address Alpha, Herald office.

"Well," mused Miss Sophia, drawing a long breath, "I really wish I dare do it. There can't be any harm in trying, anyway. Wouldn't Aaron be astonished if I should get married, after all? and I don't know why I shouldn't, I am sure," she said, tossing her head, as much as to say, who dare contradict her! An hour later found Miss Sophia on her way to the postoffice, with a letter hidden in her pocket, which made her heart throb strangely every time she thought of it.

The letter was sent, and an answer anxiously awaited, which came in due season, addressed to "Angelica," in rather stiff, unnatural hand, she thought, but then her correspondent might be disguising his handwriting, as she had hers. Miss Sophia now made frequent excursions to the postoffice, and one day she returned home in quite a flutter, and ran up to her room at once, where she again perused the letter which she had read while walking slowly home along the quiet country road.

"Oh!" murmured Miss Sophia, "oh, dear! what shall I do? I am all in a flutter to think of seeing him so soon, for he wants me to appoint a meeting, and of course I must. 'As soon as possible,' he says. Dear me! how anxious he is to see 'his own Angelica,' as he calls me, and I'll own to myself I'm just as anxious to see him. I do wonder what he is like! He must be nice, anyway, for he writes such charming letters; it is really delightful to read them."

A few days subsequent to Miss Sophia's soliloquy, on a beautiful, bright May morning, she donned her most becoming apparel, and quietly leaving the house, made her way to the one hotel of which the village boasted, where she called for a private parlor, and sat down to await, with what patience she might, for the coming of her correspondent. A few moments of anxious expectancy, then the door slowly opened, and some one entered, closing it behind him.

Miss Sophia, peering through her thick veil, saw no handsome stranger, but—could she believe her eyes?—her brother, Aaron Allen! He approached her.

"Angelica!" he said, softly.

Miss Sophia threw aside her veil, and sprang to her feet.

"Aaron Allen!" she cried, "what are you doing here?"

"Why! why! Sophia!" stammered Mr. Allen, utterly confounded by this sudden denouement. "You here?"

"Yes, I am here, Aaron Allen, and I want to know what you mean by addressing me by that name?" demanded his sister.

"What name?" asked Mr. Allen, utterly bewildered.

"Angelica," answered Miss Sophia, blushing furiously, in spite of herself.

"I—oh! I made a mistake in the person—that's all," replied Mr. Allen, blushing in his turn. "I'd like to know what you're doing here, Sophia."

"That's my business," she interrupted, sharply. "And now I want to know who it was you mistook me for?"

"Well, Sophia, I might as well tell you that I am engaged to be married," said Mr. Allen, sheepishly, "and came here by appointment to meet my intended."

"And I am also engaged," simpered Miss Sophia, "and am here to meet my intended."

"Who is your intended?" demanded Mr. Allen, a fearful suspicion beginning to dawn on his mind.

"I have known him by the name of Alpha," she replied.

"By Jove! Sophia, that's my name."

"What!" shrieked Miss Sophia; "you Alpha?" and she burst into a fit of hysterical tears and sobs.

"And you are Angelica?" asked Mr. Allen. He needed no answer, "Thunderation! Sophia, what a confounded pair of fools we have been," ejaculated Mr. Allen. "I think the best thing we can do is to go home, and live as we have done for so many years, and let matrimony alone for the future."

And Miss Sophia thought so, too.—Grace [illegible]

AN INQUIRING LAD.

Personal Adornment Which Appeared to Be Unnecessary.

"When I was down in the Tennessee mountains doing my turn in that peculiar and primitive section," observed the special pension agent, "I had at various times such glimpses of life as you pampered children of the luxurious capital never get. I remember one June morning I arose from my simple bed of clapboards on the loft floor of a log cabin and proceeded down a ladder to the earth, thence a hundred yards down to the creek, where I was afforded ample opportunity for my matutinal ablutions, as the stream was big enough to run a sawmill with.

"As I splashed my face in the clear water and splttered over it after the usual fashion of a man who likes to wash his face I was joined by the 10-year-old son of the family with which I was stopping. He stood on the shore watching me with much interest, which I am glad to say I returned with zest, for he was a picture boy. He was sandy and freckled and didn't look as if he had had a bath in the memory of man. His clothes were simple enough, consisting of a cotton shirt, and there was no hat to hide a head of hair which I am positive never felt the penetrating and persuading influence of a comb. He was too much interested in the mysteries of my toilet to say anything until I took out a comb and began to use it on my tangled locks. After a tug or two at it, looking at him meanwhile, he spoke.

"'Say, mister,' he said curiously, 'have yer got to do that there?'

"'Do what there?' I smiled in reply.

"'That there that yer doin.'

"'You mean combing my hair?'

"'Yes.'

"'Of course it has to be done.'

"'Every mornin this erway?'

"'Certainly.'

"'Well, geewhillerkins, mister,' he said, with much feeling, 'yer must be a heap of trouble to yerself.'"—Washington Star

He Got a Mate.

A sea captain called at a village inn and asked the landlady, a young widow:

"Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my mate."

"I am very sorry for you, Mr. ——," she said, smiling. "I want a mate, too, and cannot get one. As we are in the same position, I'll tell you what I'll do—if you'll be mine, I will be yours."

He closed with the bargain, and the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.—Pearson's Weekly.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE

Greyhound Crashes Into a Vessel while Going Fast During a Dense Fog

Watertight Compartments Fail to Operate and the Great Vessel Plunges to the Bottom—Only One Woman Escapes in the Melee—Repetition of the Elbe Wreck

Halifax, N. S., July 6.—The British iron ship Cromartyshire was towed in here this morning by the Allan Liner Grecian, with her bow torn away by collision 60 miles off Sable Island, with the French steamer La Bourgogne, which went down ten minutes later.

Of the six hundred passengers and crew on board the latter, only two hundred were saved.

One woman was saved by her husband.

The captain and other deck officers went down with the ship.

The Cromartyshire laid-to and picked up the 200 passengers and seamen who were rescued, transhipping them to the Grecian, which came along at that hour.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The log of the Cromartyshire, signed by Captain Henderson, is as follows.—On July 4th, at 5 a.m., dense fog; position of ship, 60 miles south of Sable Island; ship by wind, on the port tack, heading about w.n.w.; under reduced canvas, going about 4 or 5 knots per hour; our fog horn was being kept going regularly every minute. At that time heard a steamer's whistle on our weather side or port beam, which seemed to be nearing very fast. We blew horn, and were answered by steamer's whistle. All of a sudden she loomed through the fog on our port bow, and crashed into us

AT A TERRIFIC SPEED.

Our foretop mast and maintopgallant mast came down, bringing with it yards and everything attached. I immediately ordered the boats out and went to examine the danger. I found that our boats were completely cut off, and the plates twisted into every conceivabel shape. The other ship disappeared through the fog. However, our ship was floating, but kept ahead, so there seemed no immediate danger of her sinking. We set to work immediately to clear the wreckage, and also to ship our starboard anchor, which was hanging over the starboard bow, and in danger of punching more holes in the bow. We heard a steamer blowing her whistle on coming back, and we answered with our fog horn. The steamer then threw up a rocket and fired a shot. We also thre up some rockets and fired several shots, but we neither saw nor heard any more of the steamer. Shortly after, or about 5.30 a.m., the fog lifted somewhat, and we saw the boats pulling towards us, with the French flag flying. We signalled them to come alongside, and found that the steamer was the La Bourgogne, from New York to Havre, and that she had

GONE DOWN.

We laid to all day, and received on board about 200 survivors from amongst passengers and crew, reported to be in all about 600.

Several of the passengers were on raftes, without oars, and I called for volunteers from among my crew and the surviving French seamen to bring those rafts alongside the ship. Some of the passengers and seamen from the sunken steamer assisted us, and we jettisoned some 30 tons of cargo from our forehold, in order to lighten the ship.

ASSISTANCE.

At about 3 p.m. another steamer hove in sihgt, bound westward. We put up our signal. "Want assistance." Shortly after, the steamer bore down toward us. She proved to be the Grecian, bound from Glasgow to New York. The captain of the Grecian agreed to take the passengers on board and also agreed to tow my ship to Halifax. Owing to the condition of my ship, I accepted the offer, and we proceeded at once to transport the passengers and get ready our tow line. At 6 p.m., we had made a connection and proceeded in tow of the Grecian towards Halifax, having put a sail over the broken bow, to take part of the strain off the collision bulkhead. There was at that time 14 feet of water in the forepeak."

A WOMAN'S STORY.

Mrs. Henderson, wife of the captain was on board the Cromartyshire, with her two children. She tells a thrilling tale of the terrible experience. The collision occurred at 5 a. m. The weather was foggy, and she had risen from her bunk at an early hour, as was her custom when the weather was thick. Shortly before the vessels came together she detected a steamer's whistle blowing on the port side of the vessel. The Cromartyshire was sounding her fog horn at intervals of one minute. Mrs. Henderson called the attention of her husband to the sounding of the whistle, and a minute later the mate, who was on the watch, also detected the sound. It came nearer and nearer, and Mrs. Henderson stood near the cabin in order to should a disaster occur. Suddenly the huge hulk of an ocean greyhound loomed up in the mist, going about 17 knots an hour. Almost immediately there was a fearful crash and Mrs. Henderson rushed below and found her children awakened by the shock. She dressed the little ones as quickly as possible, and removed them to the expecting to see her own ship go down any minute. Capt. Henderson had, as soon as the collision occurred, ordered the boats to be lowered and the damage to be ascertained. As it was found that the Cromartyshire was in no immediate danger, the Britisher was put about. The vessel with which they had collided was at that time unknown.

AN AWFUL SILENCE.

A few minutes later her whistle was heard and several rockets were sent up. Capt. Henderson replied in like manner, thinking that the steamer was offering assistance, but in a few minutes all was quiet, and those on board began to realize the awful results of the collision.

At 5.30 the fog lifted, and two boats were seen approaching the Cromartyshire with only men on board. Later the weather cleared still more and men were to be seen in every direction, clinging to wreckage and floating on life rafts. It was a terrible scene. No pen can picute the unveiled to the onlookers when the curtain of mist arose. The work of rescue was commenced without a momenta's delay and over 200 persons were picked up, and taken on board the ship.

WOMEN THE VICTIMS.

Mrs. Henderson, who had ample opportunity of interviewing those who were rescued, and expressed her belief from what she heard that there had been no effort to save the women. There were many foreigners on board, who fought for places in the boats. It was fully ten to fifteen minutes before La Bourgogne went down, and during that time there was ample opportunity afforded to rescue at least some of the women and children. As it was, only one woman was saved. Mrs. Lacasse was saved, and she has been on board ever since.

Mrs. Lacasse, wife of Ad. Lacasse, language teacher of Plainville, N. J. was the only woman saved from La Bourgogne. The crew of the Cromartyshire expressed the belief that there must have been some

FOUL PLAY

Seeing that only one woman was saved out of 300.

Nearly all the first-class passengers were lost, those saved being steerage and sailors. Lacasse and his wife were in the water eight hours, clinging to a raft, before they were picked up by a boat from the Cromartyshire. They lost everything but what they stand in, including money and valuables.

One passenger was going home to France with his two children, his wife having died a month previously. He was saved, but his two babies went down with the ill-fated ship. Mrs. Lacasse says the officers bravely staid by their posts.

GOING DOWN WITH THE SHIP.

The only officer saved was the purser. He went down with the ship, but being a strong swimmer managed to save himself. When the ships struck they were off Cape Sable, La Bourgogne being about 40 hours from New York. The passengers, with the sole exception of Prof. Lacasse, were below decks. Without warning came the terrible shock. Lacasse rushed in haste to his state room on the saloon deck, got his wife out of bed and partly dressed. They hastened on deck, to be precipitated into the water on reaching it. They were not long in the water, however, when they found a partly-submerged raft, on which Lacases lifted his unconscious wife and clung on himself. Some of the boats Lacasse saw capsize and all on board drowned. The spasmodic struggles, swishing water and terrible screams made the situation an one, never to be forgotten. One man on board La Bourgogne before she sank went out of his mind, and jumped to a watery grave.

On the morning of the collision Captain Henderson was on the poop, with his third mate, A.C. Stewart, Sailor Haley was on the look-out, and First Officer Killman was also on the forecastle deck. The Cromartyshire was making about five knots an hour, with several sails set, and taking in all the time. Not a sound was heard until Look-out Haley saw a large steamer half a ship's length ahead, on the port bow. In an instant, the Cromartyshire's jibboom was crashing into the Bourgogne's bridge, and the vessel stoving a big hole near the engine-room. La Burgogne scraped the whole length of the Cromartyshire's port side, and then sheered off. La Bourgogne blew long, mournful whistles for assistance. Third Mate Stewart, of the Cromartyshire, says that the Frenchmen evidently thought they were another ship, and that they, the Bourgogne, had sunk the colliding vessel. Boats were sent out and nearly 150 were saved. At the time of the collision Mr. Stewart says the Bourgogne must have been going at the rate of 18 or 19 knots per hour, though a dense fog prevailed, shutting out everything not less than 20 yards away.

CRASHED INTO THE LINER.

ANOTHER WRECK.

About three hours after the Cromartyshire picked up the survivors, the Allan Liner Grecian was sighted, and took the Cromartyshire in tow. About 8 o'clock that evening, three miles away, Third Mate Stewart heard guns, and saw light—the signal of distress—burning. The Grecian signalled to the Cromartyshire that she was going to assist the vessel signalling. In a few minutes, however, the light disappeared, and no more guns or rockets were discharged, the vessel certainly having sank. This must have been another steamer from the Bourgogne, as Lacasse, one of the survivors, saw her go down ten minutes after the collision. It could not have a boat, as they were too far from the scene of the wreck, and guns could not be discharged from a boat.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SHAFTESBURY DRUMMOND,

STELLA STERLING

BY JULIA EDWARDS

"You can judge for yourself to-night," said Stella, smilingly. She felt so gay and confident, it seemed as though she had banished all care.

The occasion of whicch they spoke was a reception given by Mr. Jameson in honor of Stella's engagement. It was a grand affair, one of the events of the season. The house was literally a bower of the choicest flowers; the finest band in the city discoursed sweet music, an d the supper provided by Kinsley, was declared by one of the guests, a perfect poem.

Stella stood near the door, she was on Mr. Jameson's right hand; on the left Nina stood. The little creole was quite overshadowed by the bride-elect.

Stella was royally beautiful that night. She wore a robe of gold and white satin, which seemed as though it had been designed by an artist in a moment of inspiration, so rarely did enhance the lovely form it draped. Her long slim neck was encircled by a peculiar necklace, the gift of her lover, who brought it from India. It was a wide band of exquisite wrought filigree gold, set with yellow diamonds,

"Do you know your necklace was once worn by the Indian god Siva? enquired an English officer.

"No. Was it really? I know Mr. Derwent brought it from India. He has travelled a great deal."

"Yes. If a Hindoo were present I should advise you to seek police protection, for they are bound by oath to revenge any insult to their duties."

"But I am not insulting their deities, Sir Hugh," said Stella, laughingly.

"It is a violation of the rules of their religion to remove any ornament from the sacred persons of the gods. That trinket is valuable, but I would not allow my wife to wear it, for it means misfortune and death."

"How can you be so superstitious"

"I have lived in India, and I feel a certain respect for the religious belief of every one. Siva, the destroyer, is gifted with tewrrible power, in the opinion of many intelligent Hindoos."

"What nonsense!"

"Laugh as you please Miss Sterling; I tell you there are stranger things than you ever heard of taking place every day. Idread evil form the uncanny necklace."

Sir Hugh Cameron passed on, and Stella turned away; his words had made no impression on her.

"I think, Stella," said Mr. Jameson, "I would put that ornament among my curios; I don't like to see it around your neck."

"Why Mr. Jameson, has the colonel infected you with his superstitious nonsense?"

'No. I have als obeen in India. The fact the lovely throat of a christian lady is not the place for baubles that have adorned the ugly neck of a heathen god."

"My beautiful necklace! What a shame!

Nina had listened to the whole conversation. She looked serious, an dindeed seemed completely changed. She nol onger expressed any anger or impatience with any one, and appeared so quiet and languid that mroe than once Stella had expressed fears that she was out of health. Such, however, did not appear to be the case; and finding that kindly questioning only

(To be continued).

A STORY OF NAPOLEON.

He Liberated a Scotchman at Oberkampf's Request.

Napoleon had at one time many admirers in England, especially among the commercial classes, who suffered deeply from the war, but he alienated the sympathies of all such by his cruel arrest of the English who were in France at the time of the rupture of the peace of Amiens, in 1803. Some 12,000 English of both sexes were thus detained in irksome captivity till the close of the war, and hardly a family in the middle and upper classes but had to bewail the absence of some friend or connection.

Yet in individual cases Napoleon showed some magnanimity. A young Scotchman, one Robert Hendry, from Glasgow, a scientific dyer and chemist, had taken advantage of the peace to visit the great manufacturing houses of France, and he was staying at Jouy, where Oberkampf has established a huge cotton printing factory, when war suddenly broke out. Hendry was thereupon constituted a prisoner by the authorities, but allowed to remain on parole at Jouy.

Napoleon one day visited the factory unexpectedly, accompanied by Josephine. He made a rapid progress through the works. Villagers and work people, the latter numbering 1,400, assembled to witness his departure, cheering the cortege, and cheering still louder when the emperor was seen to take the cross from his own breast and affix it to that of the modest Oberkampf. Isabey painted the scene, and the picture is still to be found upon the walls of Versailles. But Oberkampf had still something to ask. Napoleon smiled propitiously, but made a wry face when he heard the petition, which was for the release of the prisoner. "An Englishman!" "No, sire, a Scotchman! His mother—his sisters depend on his labors." "Well, he shall be free, then!" said the emperor.—Household World.

BLUE LAWS.

Some of the Peculiar Enactments That Obtained In Old Virginia.

Those who fancy that strict laws were peculiar to New England in colonial days should read some of the enactments of the Virginia assembly.

"It was enacted," writes Professor John Fiske in "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors," that any person found drunk was for the first offense to be privately reproved by the minister; the second time this reproof was to be publicly administered; the third time the offender must be put in irons for 12 hours and pay a fine; for any subsequent offenses he must be severely punished at the discretion of the governor and council.

"To guard the community against excessive vanity in dress it was enacted that for all public contributions every unmarried man must be assessed in church 'according to his own apparel,' and every married man must be assessed 'according to his own and his wife's apparel.'

"Not merely extravagance in dress, but such social misdemeanors as flirting, received due legislative condemnation. Pretty maids were known to encourage hopes in more than one suitor, and gay deceivers of the sterner sex would sometimes seek to win the affections of two or more women at the same time. Wherefore it was enacted that 'every minister should give notice in his church that what man or woman soever should use any word or speech tending to a contract of marriage to two several persons at one time as might entangle or breed scruples in their consciences, should for such their offense, either undergo corporal correction (by whipping) or be punished by fine or otherwise, according to the quality of the person so offending.''

Men were held to more strict accountability for the spoken or written word than in these shameless modern days. One of the most prominent settlers we find presenting a petition to the assembly to grant him due satisfaction against a neighbor who has addressed to him a letter "wherein he taxeth him both unseemly and amiss of certain things wherein he was never faulty." Speaking against the governor or any member of the council was liable to be punished with the pillory. It was also imprudent to speak too freely about clergymen, who were held in great reverence. No planter could dispose of so much as a pound of tobacco until he had laid aside a certain specified quantity as his assessment toward the minister's salary, which was thus assured even in the worst times, so far as legislation could go.

SERVANTS' LIVERIES.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "liveries" made in history was during the reign of King Pepin of France, who flourished about the year 750 A. D.

A form of amusement to which King Pepin was partial was what were termed cours plenieres. These were assemblies at which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—at Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the larger French cities and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took all his meals in public, bishops and dukes alone being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for abbots, counts and other leading men, and at both tables there was shown more profusion than delicacy, both in the quality of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Flutes, hautboys and other musical instruments were played before the bearers of each course as it was removed from the tables. When dessert was served, 20 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted thrice, "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators shouted and the meaner sort scrambled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the cours plenieres, alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to continue them. One of the severest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Pepin's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. These garments were said to be livres—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Society.

SHERMAN WAS KIND.

A SOUTHERN POET'S RECOLLECTIONS OF THE GENERAL.

Frank L. Stanton Recalls Some Incidents of the Closing Days of the War—General Sherman's Goodness to the Elder Stanton, Who Was Very Ill In Savannah.

Frank L. Stanton, the popular Georgia poet, always speaks up for General Sherman when he hears any severe criticism of that famous commander's methods.

The story told by Stanton has never found its way into print, but it deserves a place among the minor incidents and reminiscences of the war period.

"When Savannah fell," said Stanton, "I was a little chap about 8 years old. The confusion and tumult in the streets frightened me, and I was afraid to go very far from the house.

"Young as I was, I understood that something very serious had occurred. Instead of seeing Confederate soldiers parading the streets with a few Federal prisoners I saw thousands of Federals swarming through the town, and they had a great many Confederates under guard.

"The situation had been reversed. That was plain, even to a child.

"My father was very ill, in the last stages of consumption, and my mother was worn out with anxiety and the cares of the household. Our neighbors were panic stricken, and everybody seemed to be expecting some awful calamity.

"Penned up there as we had been for a long time, without supplies and without any money except worthless Confederate currency, the outlook was gloomy enough. How was my sick father to get the things he needed? That was the problem with my mother.

"Somebody told General Sherman about my father and mentioned the fact that he was a kinsman of a very distinguished and powerful officer on the Union side.

"One day when I entered my father's room I found three Federal officers sitting there in pleasant conversation with the invalid and my mother.

"I was scared and started to run, but one of the strangers, a middle aged man with a roughly trimmed brown beard, called me back. He asked my name, and before I knew it had me on his knee, and he said so many nice things to me that I took quite a fancy to him.

"He was General Sherman, and he had called with two of his staff officers to see my father. When the visitors left, the general told my mother at the door that he knew all about the inconveniences of a siege and insisted upon sending from the army stores something that would suit a sick man.

"Under the circumstances such an offer could not be declined. It was a picnic for the children of the family, I can tell you.

"After that, while the general was in the city, something was sent to the house every day. Brandy, wine, loaf sugar, lemons, beef, chickens, coffee, vegetables and I don't know what else came in generous quantities. We had plenty for the family and for our nearest nighbors.

"Nor was that all. The general sent one of the best physicians in the hospital service, and the last days of my father were made far more comfortable than we had hoped for under the adverse conditions of those dark days.

"General Sherman came to the house once more before he left Savannah. I cannot remember what he said, but he was sympathetic and he said something about the pleasure it gave him to aid a relative of his distinguished friend at Washington.

"At that time I was very fond of a showy uniform, and it vexed my childish mind to see my friend the general always dressed so shabbily. His staff officers presented a better appearance, and some of them were really gorgeous in their spectacular rig.

"The other boys and the negroes agreed with me that the commander must be in very hard luck or he would certainly dress better. Still, I was then convinced that he was a wonderfully wise man. With my pockets full of his loaf sugar, which I had surreptitiously abstracted from the pantry, I would have been ungrateful if I had formed any other opinion.

"Sherman left the city and marched onward through the Carolinas, and that ended the war.

"No, I never saw him again. My father died, and I lived in different places, my work keeping me so busy that I had no time to think of the general or anybody else not connected with my immediate business. I wish now that I had seen him before he passed away. As it is, I can only recall him as he appeared to my boyish and wondering eyes, under circumstances which did not give me an opportunity to study him. No matter what may be said of his conduct in war, I cannot help liking him. He was a good friend just when we most needed one."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Doubtful Compliments.

The compliments paid by the poor are often put in an amusing way. One old woman who was very fond of the rector said to Mr. Bernays: "You know, sir, us likes the rector; 'is ears are so clean." Surely an odd reason for parochial affection. Another admirer once declared with regard to the whole staff of clergy, "You are all so plain" (a word of high commendation), "but as for the vicar, 'e's beautiful." The greatest compliment, though at the same time the most curious Mr. Bernays ever heard, was paid by a workingman to a certain bishop, famous for his simple kindliness, "What I likes 'bout the bishop is 'e's not a gentleman."—Westminster Gazette.

Ethnologists, apropos of the statement that the original inhabitants of America were Asiatics, tell of a Chinook Indian woman found in the last century by Father Huk wandering in the far interior of Asia.

An Old Mower

A few days ago a man brought to Mr. Jos. Sucee, Peterborough, quite a curiosity in the shape of a Newcastle mower, which has cut twenty-seven harvests. The machine is quite a curiosity in its way. The drive wheels are very large and extra heavy. The farmer wished to have some repairs put on his machine before using it this year but found that he could not possibly get any parts for it, as it is many years since the machines were discarded and replaced with a more modern one.

ASHBURNHAM PUBLIC SCHOOL

The Transfer of Pupils—Crowded State of the Village Schools

At the meeting of the Ashburnham Pulbic School Board last evening it was decided to transfer some pupils from the third class room to the fourth class room, in order to equalize the attendance in these two rooms. and in order to relieve the crowded state of the third class room, caused by the coming in of sixteen pupils from the second class room, and the passing out of only six pupils, making an increase of ten.

Tha uppils who aret to be transferred, did not pass the promotion examinations, but are moved into the fourth class room for the reason given above.

The following five pupils got the total marks required, (550) but failed in one or more subjects;

Madeline Stone	716
Ernest Fletcher	606
Ernest Wylie	595
Hugh Graham	590
Ida Russell	676

The three following did not get the total required, but got more than 500 marks. They alos failed in one or more subjects, as well as on the total;

Oswald Graham	513
Lulu Armstrong	513
Alice Revoy	504

As during the past year the junior third pupils have gone over much the same work as the seniors in several subjects, it was also decided to transfer the four junior third pupils who were at the head of the list, to the fourth class room. Their names are as follows;

Alice Wand, (honors)	802
Clara Craig	761
Emma Williams	756
Edna Rogers	734

The other five senior third pupils who failed, did a obadly that it was decided to be useless to transfer them as they got very low marks.

This makes a total addition of eighteen pupils to the fourth class room, six having passed into it, and the other twelve being transferred.

These pupils who thus enter the junior fourth class will have to stay in that class until they pass out of it. They will not be transferred to the senior fourth.

These pupils as well as all the others, are to come on September 1, when the school re-opens, supplied with all the required books, etc., so as to begin work at once.

A CLEVER OFFICER

Constable Hill, of Norwood Does Some Clever Work in Connection with the Recent Burglaries

He was in town for the purpose of removing to Norwood for trial, Greaves and Simpson, who are charged with burglarizing the cheese factory and W. H. Tucker's store. They will be tried to-day by County Magistrate Edmison.

Norwood is fortunate in its choice of a policeman as Mr. Hill is possessed of all the qualifications that go to make a model officer. His work in connection with the arrest of the prisoners named was particularly clever.

A wooden-headed officer could never have effected the arrest of Greves and Simpson, who are recognized as particularly shifty fellows.

It is expected that the other parties connected with these robberies will be in the toils by the time the case opens to-day.

A Successful Excursion

Nearly 400 took in the George Street Methodist Sunday School excursion to Juniper Island yesterday. They spent a very enjoyable day.

Through the kindness of stationmaster Sandy excursionists living in the north end were allowed to leave the train at Barnardo and London streets.

The str. Sunbeam carried the excursioniast from Lakefield to the picnic grounds.

CRICKET.

An interesting match will be played on the Nicholls Park oval on Saturday between teams representing the married and single men of the club. If the teams are true to title and score singles and doubles respectively, there is no doubt of the benedicts winning, which is all the more probable since the singles are to be under "professional" care.

THE VETERAN'S KICK

The Veteran's of '66 and '70 Think that Their Officers Should Move to Secure Medals

A good many members of the local Veterans' Association are kicking vigorously because the officers of the Association—they allege—are not looinkg after their interests.

The Veterans in other places are looking after their interests to "drop of the hat," but Peterborough veterans have a different story to tell.

At Southampton yesterday a meeting of the Veterans of 1866 and and 1870 was held in the Town Hall for purpose of signing the claim papers for medals to be awarded, and for organization, at which a number of the boys, now all grey-haird old men were present. While the different claimants were signing the others were reciting incidents of those stirring times, and much of interest and information was elicited.

The Toronto a final meeting of the Veterans of '66 and '70 to fill in application forms for medals will be held in the Armouries on Saturday night.

The officers of the local organization had better awake and see that those under their command receive their dues.

DROPPED THEIR MONEY

Local Sports Drop a Pile of Money on the Wrestling Match Last Night

Doyle and Collins, the latter designated an "unknown," wrestled in Toronto last night in the prenence of a large crowd, which there was quite a sprinkling of Peterborough sports.

The match commenced at 8.30 p.m., and after seventeen minutes hard work Doyle was given the first bout.

The second fall fell to Collins after apparently a hard struggle. When the third round was called begged off on the plea that he was sick.

The local sports who had their money on Doyle to the extent of $1,000 claim that Doyle sold them.

There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in town last night wehn the result of the match was announced.

The Times had the pleasure yesterday of a call from Mr. Jas. McGregor, of Midland, an old Peterborough boy. "Jim" is well-known in Peterboruogh and his many friends were pleased to meet him.

Miss Minnie Begley, of Lindsay, who has been visiting in town, returned home on Tuesday. She was accompanied by her cousin, Minnie Begley, of town, and Mrs. George B. Harding, Cambridgeport, Mass.

Messrs. Jas. Stubbs, W. Pratley, G. W. Powell and Percy Might were delegates from the local lodges of Good Templars attending the convention of the Dominion Alliance in Toronto.

In the report of the commencement exercises of St. Joseph's seminary, Kankakee, Ill., U.S.A., appears the name of Miss Marie Seraphine Dolan, of Peterborough, daughter of the late Thomas Dolan, as one of the two graduates.

The Times was favored with a call yesterday from Rev. Demill, Principal of the college of that name at St. Catharines. The institution over which Mr. Demill presides closed a very successful season, having had over 100 regular boarders and students.

A TEST ALARM

The Inspector Does not Catch the Firemen Napping—A Quick Run

Inspector Howe, of the Underwriters' Association, was in town yesterday morning, but he did not catch the firemen napping.

About nine o'clock he went to the corner of Waterford and London streets, near the Dickson Co's offices and sent in an alarm from the offices. In romptly 3½-4 minutes the firemen had a line of hose laid and a stream playing. This was a half minute better than the time made when the inspector was here last time.

The steamer was brought out, but unfortunately the suction hose was blown off and the test could not be made.

The time made by the firemen was exceedingly good and no fault can be found with it.

Councillor White, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, was with the inspector during the test.

CAMARA TO RETURN

A Despatch from Cairo Says that the Spanish Fleet

Has Been Ordered to Return to Spain, Presumably to Look After Watson's Squadron—1,750 Spanish Prisoners on Their Way to U. S.

Washington, July 8.—All the Spanish naval officers captured by the American fleet are to be confined within the limits of the naval academy grounds of Annapolis. They will be placed in the quarters vacated by the American naval officers, who left the academy to go into active service and will be treated with the greatest consideration. Admiral Cervera, it is expected, will be among the prisoners, who in all liklihood, will be given the freedom of the grounds under limited parole.

CAMARA TO RETURN TO SPAIN.

Cairo, July 8.—Admiral Camara has informed the Egyptian Government that he has been ordered to return to Spain.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA.

Hong Kong, July 8.—A despatch from Manila, under date of July 4, says that Admiral Dewey will remain in active until General Merritt arrives. The rebels are practically doing nothing, but the Spaniards are strengthening their position, destroying huts and woods and constructing entrenchments. The authorities have enacted a penalty of $1,000 against anybody who shall raise the prices for provisions. The Spaniards assert that despite the loss of the waterworks there will be no famine during the rainy season. They are confident that an ample force from Cadiz will arrive soon and annihilate the Americans, and they still hope to conciliate the natives. In the meantime they declare that they will endure positively whatever comes and resist to the uttermost.

COAL FOR DEWEY.

New York, July 8.—It was learned to-day that 40,000 tons of coal are now on their way to the Philippine Islands, where they will be transferred to the bunkers of Admiral Dewey's ships.

1,750 SPANISH PRISONERS.

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 7, by the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, via Port Antonio, July 8, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 8.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Harvard has sailed for Portsmouth, N. H., with the balance of the prisoners. The total is now 1,750.

A board of officers to-day inspected the Cristobal Colon and it is hoped that she may be saved. Naval Constructor Hobson is on board the Spanish cruiser and is about to value the Infanta Meria Teresa. The remains of the Vizcaya and Almirante Oquendo are worthless wrecks.

AN ARMISTICE ASKED

U. S. Officials Expect to Hear from the Madrid Government in a Week

The U. S. will Demand Prompt Evacuation of Cuba and Permanent Possession of Porto Rico

Washington, July 8.—President McKinley and Cabinet expect that a formal request for an armistice will be presented in less than a week. In fact in an indirect way feelers have been put forward by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, who asked upon what terms the United States would be willing to end hostilities. The reply was that, providing formal application came direct from the Government at Madrid—no intermediation being tolerated—war would cease upon Spain agreeing to the following conditions.—

1. Prompt evacuation of Cuba by the Spanish army, so that the Cubans may have an opportunity of estabishing a stable Government.
2. Permanent possession of Porto Rico by the United States.
3. Coaling station in the Canary Islands.
4. Indefinite retention of the Philippine Islands to ensure payment of indemnity that the United States will decide upon.

According to this it is understood here that General Miles, who left for the South in order to make arrangements for the transporting of troops to Santiago, will be recalled.

YELLOW FEVER AT SANTIAGO.

Washington, July 8.—The authorities of the War Department are much alarmed over reports from Key West that two of the crew of the auxiliary criser Yankee, which has just returned from Santiago, have died of yellow fever at the former place, and that other cases are reported from the same ship.

There is every reason to believe that the men who are now suffering from the disease, and those who have died from it, were infected while on shore with the army at Santiago, and the fact is held to indicate clearly that the germs of yellow fever are with the expedition, and liable to make themselves visible at any moment.

Reports as to the condition of the troops, the dreadful hardships, they are undergoing, coupled with exposure to rain, damp and the night air, from the swamps, the latter being especially provocative of fever, make the officials most apprehensive of the results of an outbreak. It is felt that should the disease once obtain a hold the small army with General Shafter would quickly be rendered in a bad condition for fighting.

It is stated here that the bulk of the reinforcements now being despatched from Tampa and Jacksonville are not intended for Santiago at all, but that they will be sent under General Miles to a point near the Mariel trocha, in northern Cuba, where they will effect a junction with Gomez, join Shafter after the fall of Santiago, and march on Havana. It is said the General Miles has not left for Santiago, but for Mariel.

THINKS OF SURRENDERING.

General Shafter's headquarters before Santiago de Cuba, July 7, via Kingston, Ja., July 8, 8 a.m.—The armistice has been extended until noon on Saturday in order to allow General Linares to communicate with Captain-General Blanco and with Madrid.

General Linares informed General Shafter that he had no telegraph operator, and one was sent into the city, accompanied by the British Consul. Mr. F. W. Ramsden, under the protection of the British flag.

Not a shot has been fired recently on either side, but work is being pushed on the batteries and entrenchments. Our position has been greatly strengthened during the last forty-eight hours, the American lines advancing to within 400 yards of the enemy's, and our hillside batteries overlook and command the city.

Last night General Lawton's division advanced five hundred yards, to the enemy's great surprise. The dynamite gun, in charge of Hallet Alsopp Burrowe, has been beautifully placed in a snug pit.

The streams have been bridged over allowing the transportation of heavy artillery with facility. The roads have been greatly improved. The general health of the soldiers is good. The armistice is affording a long-needed rest for our men, and they are now in good shape to resume fighting.

General Linares is evidently weakening, and the mediation of the Bishop of Santiago and the Consular corps may persuade him to surrender.

In case hostilities are resumed the plan of assault is for Rear-Admiral Simpson to bombard the forts at the mouth of the harbor, driving the men away from the guns, and then land a thousand men and occupy the forts, while launches with grappling irons go in and countermine the harbor. The fleet will then enter and bombard the city, supporting the land attack.

General aGrcia, the insurgent commander, received orders yesterday not to attack the Spaniards while the negotiations are on foot. The wrecked Spanish cruisers are still filled with charred bodies, and the buzzards are devouring the remains. The Cubans, by Rear-Admiral Sampson's orders, have buried the bodies of over one hundred Spanish who were washed ashore.

SPANIARDS ARE INDIGNANT.

New York, July 8.—A despatch to The World from Madrid, forwarded privately across the Spanish frontier, says.—Indignation is increasing among all classes of Spaniards against Admiral Cervera and the commanders and crews of his squadron.

It is openly charged that the ships were not well foghut, that the honor of the flag was not sufficiently defended. Very hard things are said of the behavior of Cervera and his men, especially in regard to the hauling down of the flag without attempting to blow up the vessels.

The public and press clamor for a rigid investigation and condign punishment.

The Queen cried bitterly when she heard the news according to court gossip, but manifested great displeasure when she heard all the details of the sea fight off Santiago.

The Queen has again quietly consulted Marshals Campos, Lopez, Dominiguez, and Primo de Rivera, General Calleja, the captain-general of Madrid, and Senor Silvela, the chief of the Conservatives. All agree with Premier Sagasta that teh war must be continued for some time longer under the conduct of Senor Sagasta, and with his present colleagues, if it is possible, in order to allay the popular and military discontent. Senor Sagasta, like all the personages consulted, told the Queen that he feels most uneasy about what will happen when the news of the fall of Manila and Santiago comes.

Steps have been taken already to break the expected news slowly, especially in the provinces, where the irritation and discontent are more intense even than in Madrid.

These counsellors agree also that the Government ought not to hesitate about displaying the utmost severity and decision in repressing disturbances, because the discipline and loyalty of the army will be brought out by the first collision with the Republicans and the Carlists. The Carlists are most dreaded in the north and east of the kingdom; and Republicans in Barcelona, Madrid, and Bilboa.

The Queen is very anxious, but seems determined to form a military Government if Sagasta proves too weak for the emergency.

BOMBARDMENT TO-MORROW.

Washington, July 8.—General Shafter and Admiral Sampson have agreed on a plan of campaign. At noon to-morrow Admiral Sampson will begin a bombardment from the outer harbor, having absolutely refused to force the channel.

GENERAL SHAFTER'S DESPATCH.

Washington, July 8.—The War Department has posted the following despatch.—

"Hon. R. A. Alger, Secretary of War Camp near Santiago, July 7.—Perfect quit to-day. At the request of Spanish general, employes of English Cable Company were sent in to him to telegraph his Government as to surrendering. Men are in good spirits, and are making themselves more secure every hour. Woun are much less dangerous than similar wounds made with calibre .45. Among the large number wounded there are few amputations. Perhaps ten will cover it. General health of command is good. One hundred and fifty cases of fever, which runs its course in four or five days, but is not serious. I am feeling much better. (Signed.) Shafter, Major-General."

FRANCE WANTS TO INTERFERE.

London, July 8.—Despatches from the Continent capitals still talk of European intervention in the Hispano-American war. France is being represented as taking the initiative, and Germany and other powers as declining to interfere. By way of Berlin comes an interview with Senor Moret a former Spanish Minister of Colonies, advocating that Spain should sue for peace, "because it is ridiculous ever to suppose that she could tire out the United States," and because Spain "can only expect fresh defeats, placing her in a worse position than ever." Senor Moret said it was imperative that the United States should issue victorious out of its first war with a foreign power, because its social problems and surplus wealth compelled it to pursue a policy of expansion.

BOURGOGNE DISASTER

Details which Show the Ungallant and Inhuman Conduct of Men

The Crew Acted the Part of Cowards—Some Were Even Brutal—Several Passengers Murdered—Horrible Scramble for Life

The New York Journal gives the following details of the Bourgogne disaster which have not yet been published in the Toronto papers.

Christopher Brunini, a passenger, was thrown into the water, and swam for two hours before he found a boat. He clung to this as his last hope. After some time another man got hold of the same boat, and together, they managed to right it. Under the seats they found the dead bodies of four men and three women, who had evidently been drowned by the capsizing of the boat.

Brunini said the crew were cruel in their conduct toward the passengers. I was unable to ge tinto any one of the steamer's boats when I came on deck, being shoved away by the sailors. I saw many of my friends being prevented from getting into the boats by the sailors. One passenger who was trying to get upon a raft, was struck over the head with a bar. This man was killed at once

One of the engineers said he did not care whether the passengers were saved or not. He was not there to save passengers, and was not paid for that work. He was also sorry he had not a revolver to shoot some of them. He would not have anything to do with life-saving.

One of the passengers managed to secure a place in one of the rafts and drove of everybody with a large knife, which he brandished murderously and fiercely."

ONLY A SCRAMBLE FOR LIFE.

Otto Seaser of New York, who was going to Paris, said; "We struck at 5 a.m. and were afloat one hour before the ship sink. We were going at full speed in a thick fog. The crew acted the part of cowards, and some of the officers seemed to have lost their heads. I could only see one officer where I was, on the port sidew. There was no discipline, and the boats could not be released. The sailors did not try to pull them down, but the passengers did. I tried to get a boat down, and one of the ship's waiters pushed me away and told me to go to hell. The captain did not appear to be aware of the danger at the beginning. He blew the whistle just before the accident, and he tried another signal, but the water filled th eengine room. Half an hour later he fired distress signals, but it was too late. Then he put up the danger signals. I loosed one of the life boats, of which three were left, on the steamer. They wer esoon crowded with women, wh obehaved quistly and bravely. Then I climbed on the superstructure and all ove rwith two engineers. We fuond two rafts on the other side, threw them overboard and jumped on them. Our raft was damaged with a big hole in it. We had to abandon it, but we were picke dup by boats from the Cromartyshire. We were the first crew, and we saw other boats following us far away."

SAILORS ACTED LIKE DEMONS.

Charles Lieber of Philadelphia, was a second cabin passenger, and with his two little boys, aged five and seven, was on hi away to Paris, his wife having died a few months ago. He said; 'I was in bed when the collision occurred. I dressed, and with my little ones, went on deck as quickly as possible. The steamer did not go down for nearly an hour afte rthe collision, and there was plenty of thime to have launched the lifeboats and to have saved all, but the captain and officers lost their heads completely.

Atrocities of the worst kind were perpetrated when it was found that the ship was going down. The sailors acted like demons. Many passengers who were struggling in the water and trying to reach rafts or boats were struck and killed by members of the crew. who already were in places of safety. The crew thought of nothing but themselves, an dpositively refused to take any passengers in. I was punched in the right eye with an oar whil etrying to crawl on a raft, and was also struck on the right arm with an oar by a sailor who was on theraft. I saw five women who were evidently exhausted, clinging to the lifeline of boat. The French sailors maliciously as the women were in no one's way cu tthe lines, and the women sank, never to rise again," Oswait Kirmer, another second cabin passenger, verified Liebar's story. He was on the same raft. Both men saw the boats could have been put out, for the steamer remained on an even keel for fully twenty minutes beofre she careened. "After the collision," said Kirmer, "La Boudgogne went on her course about fifteen miles before the engines were stopped. No attempt was made to sav ethe women and children, and those that did try to save themselves, either were knocked down or thrown away from the boats. 'Our skins first. To hell with the passengers.' was the cry of the sailors.

"uJst before the ship sank Lieber placed his two children in one of the lifeboats, thinking it would get safely away. There were about forty women and children in this obit, and Lieber was prevented from getting into it. The boat did not get clear from the ship and all in it were lost."

SAW A PASSENGER MURDERED.

Patrick McKeown a second cabin passenger, and an American citizen, told a startling story. "I saw a friend of mine killed by one of the Bourgogne's crew," he said, "and the man who committed the crime is among those saved and is at present on boardt be board the Grecian.

'My friend was struck over the head with the handle of an oar three times. The unfortunate man was attempting to get on the raft on which I was. The name of the man killed I do not know. We became acquainted on the steamer. All I know of him is that his wife and two children ar eat Philadelphia, and that he was a tailor. He wa son hi sway to Paris to see his sister, and was then going to Ireland.

MURDER BEFORE THEIR EYES.

Gasparini Giovani, another survivor managed to ge ton one raft, and his wife on another. "The one on which my wife was," he said, "was overturned, and when those on it tried to get back they were killed or pushed under the water by the frezied crew. I had to battle for my life, and was struck several times, but managed to keep on the raft."

John Burge lost his father and his mother, who were thrown off a raft by the French sailors. He himself was thrown off, but he managed to clutch another raft. He said; "My mother had hold of a rope. One of the sailors drew his knife, cut the rope, any my mother and four or five other women fell backward into the water and were drowned. I think I can recognize him.

Carl Gasella, a steerage passenger, said; "I had a wife and three children I tried hard to get my family into one of the boats, but the sailors pushed them away. The next thing I knew I was in the water, and was beingcarried down. I managed to get into a boat. I saw nothing more of my wife and little ones, I saw the sailors kill several persons who were struggling in the water by striking them with oars."

OARS, BOAT HOOKS AND FISTS

Charles Dutweiler, a German, showing a cut over the eye, which he said he got when men in a boat shoved him off with boat hooks. "I saw women shoved away frm booats with oars and boat hooks, when clinging for life to the life lines of the rafts an dlifeboats, I saw the crew assault many passengers with knives or any implement that came handy, and if no instrument was to be had they punched the men and women helpless in the water, with their fists."

CURSING AND PRAYING FOR HELP

Matteo Zurich, an American, who who speaks very good English, and who proved himself a very intelligent man, gave this account;

"I was on deck at the time, Everything was going along smoothly, although it was very foggy, when I saw a ship loom up right in front of me She was then actually scraping the starboard side of La Burgogne, and when she was a few years astern I saw her masts falling overboard. I heard people on board shout in English, and knew she was a British vessel. I saw some crowds start to lower some boats as the ship sank, but they counln't unhook the blocks. We had only got three yards away when the steamer went down, her main truck almost striking our boat. Our escape was miraculous, for had the truck struck an dnone would have escaped.

"The Bourgogne settled into the water at an angle of forty-five degrees until we could just see her second smokestack; then the bow came up perpindicular, the steamer seemed to stand there for an instant and then disappeared stern first."

Gustay Grimaux, a French passenger, said.—'I heard the shock in my berth, and rushed from the deck. The crew did not attempt to cut any boats loose except those which they needed themselves. I saw women shoved away from boats with oars and shoved deep into the water."

A DESPERATE FIGHT.

Nicolini Secondo, an Italian steerage passenger, said. "On deck I found a raft with five men on it. The raft was tied and chained fast to the deck, and no sailors were near to let it loose. None of the five men had knives. The ship sank rapidly and they were all precipitated into the water. I was in the water twenty minutes and alone. I came up to a boat and got in, but not without a desperate fight with her crew. I was battered with oars and shoved away with boats."

Fred Niffler, a Swiss, cursed the French sailors with passionate earnestness. "I was asleep and never beird the noise of the collision," he said, " waking natrually. I went on deck and saw the splinters. I asked the officer of the watch what was up. He replied that it was all right, that the ship would not sink. I got into a lifeboat, but none of the sailors attempted to cast off the boat. I swam for a long time before I was picked up. I saw an Englishman attempt to get into a boat. The men in the boat, who were sailors of the Bourgogne, bit him over the head with the butt end of an oar. He fell back and sank."

HAWAII IS NOW ANNEXED

President McKinley Signed the Necessary Document Last Evening

Washington, July 8—The President signed the resolution annexing Hawaii at 7 p.m.

Minister Hatch of Hawaii arrived at the State department at 11 o'clock, and held an extended conference with Secretary Day on the consummation of annexing Hawaii to the United States. The Hawaiian authorities had taken steps to convey the news at the earliest possible moment to Hawaii. Mr Hatch sent extended official despatches to the Hawaiian agent in San Francisco to be forwarded by the steamer sailing to-day. The minister will leave here to-morrow to catch the steamer sailing ofr Hawaii on the 113th. Mr. Lewin M. Thurston, Hawaiian commissioner, goe swith Mr. Hatch, but will wait till the 16th, to tae steamer for Hawaii. It is understood also that Mrs. Dominis, former Queen Liliuokalani, and her party, who have been in Washington for many months contemplate taking an early steamer for Hawaii.

Minister Hatch and Mr. Thurston expressed the deepest satisfaction at the outcome of the long struggle. As they entered the State department to-day they received congratulations on every hand. Mr. Thurston remarked that it felt "good t obe an American."

Bad Blood Is a Good Thing

to be rid of, because bad blood is the breeding place of disfiguring and dangerous diseases. Is your blood bad? It is if you are plagued by pimples or bothered by boils, if your skin is blotched by eruptions or your body eaten by sores and ulcers. You can have good blood, which is pure blood, if you want it. You can be rid of pimples, boils, blotches, sores and ulcers. How? By the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It is the radical remedy for all diseases originating in the blood. Read the evidence:

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me by my physician as a blood purifier. When I began taking it I had boils all over my body. One bottle cured me."—BONNER CRAFT, Wesson, Miss.

"After six years' suffering from blood poison, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and although I have used only three bottles of this great medicine, the sores have nearly all disappeared."—A. A. MANNING, Houston, Texas.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH JULY 9 1898

HAWAII ANNEXED.

The first of the American colonies has been definitely decided upon. Both Houses of Congress have at last, probably under pressure of the war-born desire for expansion, voted in favor of the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, and the consenting signature of President McKinley may be taken for granted. This will give the Republic its first outpost, and carry the American flag well out in the promising world of the Pacific. It is, too, a step toward the Philippines. The annexation of Hawaii does not, of course, necessarily imply the holding of the Philippines; but a refusal to annex Hawaii would have been tantamount to the announcement of a final withdrawal from Manila. The march westward may stop at Honolulu, but it would hardly have gone beyond that point without utilizing it as a stepping stone.

So far as the rest of the world is concerned, the taking over of Hawaii will probably make little difference. It has been plain for a long time that these islands would either become American or remain independent. The British Government which is not usually slow to offer a sheltering flag to any loose section of the earth looking for protection, has not once attempted to interfere with Uncle Sam's wooing, which may be taken as evidence that John Bull has long appreciated that he has much to gain and little fear of loss from the entrance of his American cousin into the arena of foreign politics. When it comes to dealing with the Philippines, the Americans will probably encounter more opposition; for there the other Europen Powers have a status.

A problem they must face when this war is settled is the provision of a form of government for Hawaii. Universal suffrage they cannot permit, for that would, it is said, mean the overthrow of the very men who have invited them to take over the islands. It would be awkward to have the first election in the new "State" result in a majority for the restoration of good Queen Lil, with Grover Cleveland as her First Minister. Then government from Washington would hardly be satisfactory to Premier Dole and his supporters, who for quite a period now have been in charge of the affairs of the islands. But undoubtedly statecraft will "find a way;" and the Americans will contrive to harmonize the "conditions" and the "theories" which confront them. Still yesterday's vote in the Senate will be memorable as the beginning of a new state of affairs. Government by the consent of the governed is to be abandoned, and Monroeism given a bad wrench.

Judging by the Spanish war performances against the United States ships, the Maine must certainly have been destroyed by accident.

The fact that Spain's mines in the Bay of Guantanamo were made useless by barnacles is not surprising. There are barnacles upon everything that is Spanish. The spirit, the national force, and the aims of the Spaniards are thickly incrusted with the barnacles of pride, braggadocio, slothfulness, ignorance, cruelty and corruption.

The fact that Messrs. Gibson and Dryden are both without seats in the Provincial Legislature is still causing the Troy press intense anxiety. The Citizen says that five months have elapsed since the elections and they are still standing. It might have added that six months will pass before they need sit down. In the meantime chairs will be provided.

Here is a specimen stanza from a specimen American war-poem; it is a very warm ode to Dewey, and appears in the July number of "Recreation":

Hail! grand, impetuous commodore,
Thou [illegible] hero,
May Heaven guard thee well!
Columbia needs thee for her fleet;
The dying Cuban's prayer [illegible]
That thou the Dons once more mayst meet,
And give them holy hell!

That last line may seem in bad taste. But in defence of the poet it might be interpreted in this way: General Sherman said that war is hell; this war, from the American point of view, is a holy war; therefore, when dying Cubans prayed that Dewey should give the Spaniards holy hell, they meant only that he should continue to fight in this holy war. No doubt the poet is a man whose taste is as refined as his religious feelings are profound.

A STORY OF NAPOLEON.

He Liberated a Scotchman at Oberkampf's Request.

Napoleon had at one time many admirers in England, especially among the commercial classes, who suffered deeply from the war, but he alienated the sympathies of all such by his cruel arrest of the English who were in France at the time of the rupture of the peace of Amiens, in 1803. Some 12,000 English of both sexes were thus detained in irksome captivity till the close of the war, and hardly a family in the middle and upper classes but had to bewail the absence of some friend or connection.

Yet in individual cases Napoleon showed some magnanimity. A young Scotchman, one Robert Hendry, from Glasgow, a scientific dyer and chemist, had taken advantage of the peace to visit the great manufacturing houses of France, and he was staying at Jouy, where Oberkampf has established a huge cotton printing factory, when war suddenly broke out. Hendry was thereupon constituted a prisoner by the authorities, but allowed to remain on parole at Jouy.

Napoleon one day visited the factory unexpectedly, accompanied by Josephine. He made a rapid progress through the works. Villagers and work people, the latter numbering 1,400, assembled to witness his departure, cheering the cortege, and cheering still louder when the emperor was seen to take the cross from his own breast and affix it to that of the modest Oberkampf. Isabey painted the scene, and the picture is still to be found upon the walls of Versailles. But Oberkampf had still something to ask. Napoleon smiled propitiously, but made a wry face when he heard the petition, which was for the release of the prisoner. "An Englishman!" "No, sire, a Scotchman! His mother—his sisters depend on his labors." "Well, he shall be free, then!" said the emperor.—Household World.

TO MOVE AT ONCE

Watson's Fleet to Move at Once and Bombard Frontier Citiy of Spain

The Vessels will be the Oregon, Iowa, Newark and Three Cruisers, Besides Coal Ships—Why Cervera's Fleet Left Santiago—War Notes

Guantanamo, Monday, July 4, 6 p. m., per the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 4, 6 p. m., delayed in transmission.—The steamer Resolute arrived to-day with 508 prisoners including 13 officers and crew of the Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon. The disposition of the prisoners is not yet decided on. The number of killed and wounded on the Cristobal Colon is very small. The captured Spaniards were remarkably cheerful. The officers claim they had nothing to eat for 24 hours before the destruction of the fleet and they had great difficulty in getting the men to their posts and therefore large amounts of liquor were given out. Many of the captured sailors still showed the effects of drink when put on board the Resolute.

The Spanish officers say the order to sail was given by the Minister of Marine of Madrid, and they decided to make an attempt to escape on Saturday night, but it was postponed until Sunday morning for the reason that "Quarters inspection" time and the Americans would not be at their guns.

SPANISH LIGHTER CAPTURED.

Washington, July 7.—The War Department has received a telegram from General Shafter's headquarters stating five auxiliary cruisers, Osceola, has has captured a Spanish lighter loaded with provisions and valued at $50,000.

TO MOVE IMMEDIATELY.

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Long has just cabled Admiral Sampson, ordering him to detach immediately Commodore Watson's squadron and directing the latter to proceed at once upon his mission. The vessels will be the Iowa, Oregon, Newark and three cruisers besides coal ships.

THE REASON FOR MOVING.

Guantanamo, July 4. via Port Antonio, Jamaica, per Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, July 6, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 6, 7 p. m.—When the Spanish fleet left Santiago it was with the intention to make for Cienfuegos, the nearest port to secure coal and provisions all the ships were very short of coal, the Cristobal Colon having only twy days' supply, which she had secured at Santiago. The Spaniards concentrated their fire on the Brooklyn hoping to disable that vessel as they considered her the fastest of the American warships and thus give an opportunity for at least one or two of the Spanish boats to escape. The Brooklyn was hit 45 times. The Spaniards estimated the forces behind the fortifications at Santiago de Cuba at about 11,000 including the 4,000 reinforcements brought by Gen. Pando, which are known to be in Santiago. The forces besides Gen. Pando's men, consisting of 4,000 regulars and 2,000 volunteers, are not to be depended on much and 1,100 marines and sailors were withdrawn from the city where the Spanish fleet made the ill-fated sortie.

FLEEING FROM SANTIAGO.

El Gauey, Province of Santiago de Cuba, July 6, per the Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, via Port Antonio and Kingston, July 7.—Fifteen thousand refugees to-day fill the roads leading from Santiago to El Gauey, Boniato, San Vincent and San Louis, adjacant places. The exodus was in response to a proclamation by General Ros, a political General in Santiago, who gave all people desirous of leaving the city to escape the bombardment a chance to go between 5 o'clock and 9 o'clock this morning. The time between the issuance of the proclamation and the period set for leaving gave a small opportunity for transporting household effects or any of the comforts of life, particularly as the Spanish authorities had forbidden any horse or carriage to be taken from the city, as the horses are needed there for carrying water to the men in the trenches. The way to El Gauey is long and the weather excessively hot. As the fugitives had no means of carrying water and as there is none on the road between Santiago and El Ganey there was great suffering. Men, women and children lay alongside the road, wherever there was a small patch of shade, begging passers-by, particularly soldiers with dangling canteens, for always freely tendered.

PREPARING FOR BOMBARDMENT.

Headquarters in the Field, before Santiago, July 6, via Kingston, July 7.—The artillery has remained in position throughout the day on the ridge above El Pozo, two miles east of Santiago, where it was placed yesterday morning with a view to taking part in the bombardment of the city.

The artillerymen have made preparations to resist a fierce return fire from the Spanish siege guns, are mounted on the outskirts of the town and which have shown they possess good gnuners and accurate range finders. Pits have been dug for men and the horses have been removed to a place of safety, where it is thought the Spanish guns will not be able to reach them. Captain Caprons' battery was withdrawn from the hill last night and sent behind General Lawton's position, from which place it will have cross fire with the batteries on El Pezo ridge and at the same time be able to shell the north end of the town.

The artillery officers are confident they will be able when the bombardment begins to silence the Spanish guns and to reduce the entire position of the enemy so that the forward rush of our troops will meet with little or nothing beyond rifle fire; and they are confident the city can be taken as soon as they are permitted to open fire and to take a hand in the battle.

The incidents attending the death of Lieut. Ord, son of the late General E. O. C. Ord, were dramatic. He was an aide on the staff of General Hawkins, and throughout the day of the battle was active and energetic in getting the troops up to the line. He was right in the front rank, when the 6th, 13th and 24th and 16th regiments made their desperate charge on San Juan hill, and was one of the first officers to reach the summit.

Just as he passed the brow of the hill he saw a Spaniard lying on the ground; and pointing to him said.—"Take care of that man." The Spaniard saw the motion, and, evidently thinking Lieut. Ord was ordering him killed, he raised his rifle and shot the lieutenant dead. The soldiers of the 6th Infantry, as Lieut. Ord was an officer of that regiment and very popular with the men, were wild with rage, and literally tore the body of the Spaniard to pieces with bullets. Then they kicked it into a trench.

HOBSON JOINS HIS FRIENDDS.

Off Juragua, July 6, evening, by the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 7.—Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson, of the flagship New York, and the seven seamen who composed the crew of the collier Merrimac, which was sunk by Hobson and his companions in the channel of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba on June 3 last, were surrendered by the Spanish military authorities to-day in exchange for prisoners captured by the American forces.

Hobson and his men were escorted through the American lines by Captain Chadwick, of the New York, who was awaiting them. Every step of their journey was marked by the wildest demonstrations on the part of the American soldiers, who threw aside all semblance of order, scrambled out of the entrenchments, knocked over tent guys and other camp paraphernalia in their eagerness to see the returning heroes, and set up cheer after cheer for the men who had passed safely through the jaws of death to serve their country.

The same scenes of enthusiasm were repeated on the arrival of the men at the hospital station, and at our base at Juragua. Hobson, who reached there in advance of his companions, was taken on board the New York immediately. The flagship's decks were lined with officers and men, and as Hobson clambered up her side and stepped on board his vessel the harbor rang with the shouts and cheers of his comrades, which were echoed by the crews on a dozen transports lying near by.

Hobson had little to say in regard to his experiences, except that he and his companions had been well treated by the Spaniards, and that they were all in excellent health.

TO BLOW UP THE QUEEN.

Washington, July 6.—Information has been received that an attempt was recently made to blow up the apartments of the Queen Regent of Spain at Madrid with a dynamite bomb. Several men were arrested for alleged complicity in the plot, and one of them, Alexandro Argorano, was confined in the fortress of Monjuich at Barcelona and afterwards executed. The others are still under arrest. It is believed, however, that the bomb was placed by adherents of Don Carlos, who wished to expediate his accession to the throne by the destruction either of the boy King Alfonso or his his mother the Queen Regent. The infernal machine was discovered by a young lieutenant of the Palace Guards while making afternoon rounds with the patrol. It was concealed beneath a heavy marble table, and would probably have gone off about midnight. Extraordinary precautions are being observed and the secret police of the city are unusually vigilant. It is thought that the object lesson which the execution of Argorano furnished will be supplemented by others, as there are at least half a dozen suspects in prison whose fate remains in doubt.

A Prominent Physician.

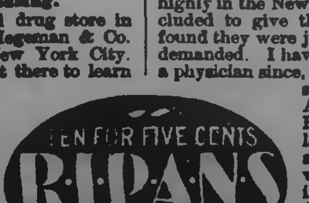
A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."



An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A MARVEL.

An old astronomer there was
  Who lived up in a tower
Named Ptolemy Copernicus
  Flammarion McGower.
He said: "I can prognosticate
  With estimates correct,
And when the skies I contemplate
  I know what to expect.
When dark'ning clouds obscure my sight,
  I think perhaps 'twill rain,
And when the stars are shining bright
  I know 'tis clear again."
And then abstractedly he scanned
  The heavens hour by hour,

THAT SEDAN CHAIR.

"I repeat it," said Jacques d'Eblignac, with an emphasis so curious that all turned to look at him; "it gave me the fright of a lifetime."

"A sedan chair?"

"Yes. Listen, if you would know all about it." And he told us the following story:

"A love tale," said he, "of the city of Lille, of my twentieth year, and my pastry cook's daughter, a mere child, but so pretty, so sweet, so adorably coquettish; moreover, so admirably skilled in all pertaining to her father's business. Nowhere else could I buy such cake, such buns, such sugared almonds. And the stacks and stacks of rich confections that I devoured each day to prove my devotion!

"The fire of my love—which she returned between the smiles bestowed upon her father's customers—alone saved me from gastritis by consuming the heaviness of my stomach.

"This was the state of things, when, one day, I chanced to find the pass key of 'le pere,' who spent half his time in the wineshop across the way and the other half gossiping at his door with his equally idle neighbors.

"Determined to profit by this piece of luck, I managed to speak a word to Victoire, my little sweetheart, and to propose to her a visit to the theater that evening, if she could elude the vigilance of her mother and join me unseen. She could easily re-enter by means of the pass key.

"Victoire was charmed with my inspiration, and six hours after I had conceived the project we had carried it into execution. Although it was the middle of the winter the night was superb, a late rising moon, but thousands of brilliant stars shining from every quarter of the heavens. Victoire trembled like a leaf in the wind, but I was filled with such burning ardor that it mounted to my head like a drink of wine.

"We were young, you see; the theater for us a scene of enchantment, in love with each other and more than happy. Our hearts, like the strings of some delicately tuned instrument, vibrated to the slightest touch. In fact, we forgot everything but each other and never thought of moving when at last the final curtain fell until the lampist appeared to turn out the lights.

"Hurrying then to the street, we found that the night had changed. The stars were gone, the moon hidden under a canopy of clouds, a cold, penetrating rain beginning to fall and all the sedan chairs gone with the stars.

"No, I was wrong; one was left standing by the roadside a little way below us. At sight of it a fatal idea popped into my brain. It was not yet very late, and I had still so many beautiful things to say to Victoire. Why not get into that chair, a refuge from the chilly rain, and talk everything all over again?

"The clock at the corner was just striking 12 as we slipped into our movable apartment, rather cramped, to be sure, but both of us were light and thin; so, drawing close and snug like birds in a nest, we awaited the passing of the shower—cheerfully awaited it, too—when all at once something very strange occurred.

"The door of the house near which the chair was standing opened noiselessly, as if hung on velvet, and two men looked out, evidently desiring neither to be seen nor heard.

"Assured of solitude and a clear coast, they descended to the street, bearing in their arms a heavy burden. Just at that instant the moon slid from under the clouds, and we distinctly saw that this burden was a human being wrapped in a long cloak closely muffled about the face and shoulders.

"This was startling enough, but fancy our horror when the bearers of this strange load moved straight to the chair where we crouched in terror, and one of them already had his hand on the door when Victoire uttered a stifled shriek, answered by a frightful oath, and quick as a flash the men were gone as they had come, and the door reclosed as softly as it had opened.

"The whole thing had passed so quickly that we might have believed it some fearful vision, only doubt was not possible—we had seen it—both of us had distinctly seen the same thing, and without a spoken syllable were filled with the same blood freezing thought—murder—a murder doubtless committed in this very house, from which the murderers were now seeking to carry away and to conceal all traces of the crime with the victim's body.

"'Oh, let us go, let us go!' moaned Victoire tremblingly. 'Let us go at once, Jacques. I am so frightened!'

"Go? Yes, I was willing enough, but how? For as Victoire spoke, two men emerged from the darkness around us—we could barely distinguish them, as the moon had gone behind a cloud again—caught up the chair and were bearing us away into the dismal night.

"This was a predicament. We were stupefied. What must we do? Cry out, and make a dreadful scandal? Betray Victoire, and expose myself to the risk of discovery? Never! It was not to be thought of! It was not to be thought of! It was one of those times when trust in chance was the only resource, hoping by blind confidence to propitiate her favor.

"Perhaps this was our case; perhaps, and I am inclined to think the latter, we were both so frightened that we had neither the strength nor the courage to attempt anything. Victoire had unconsciously thrown herself into my arms. Her warm breath fanned my cheek. Her little hand held fast to mine. No matter what threatened us, it was something at least, to have gained this happiness—we would die together, her last sigh on my lips.

"For these men—we were sure of it—were accomplices of the first two, and by a previous arrangement they had been engaged for the carrying off and concealing of the dead body. Deceived by our joint weight, they believed they had it, and we, instead of the murdered victim, were hurrying away through the shadowy gloom.

"True, so we were, but where were we hurrying? Where were we heading, as the men trotted on with swift, untiring steps, at times almost a run? What were they going to do with us—their sinister burden?

"Presently we saw that we were passing one of the city gates leading into the distant country. Again I was tempted to cry out, to call to the sentinel, but fear for Victoire deterred me, Victoire, whose mother believed her slumbering sweetly under her little white curtains.

"What should I do? What could I do? I was nearly distracted.

"By this time we were clear of the suburbs, but still swept onward. Another lightening of the sky, and I saw ahead of us a glistening sheet of water, the river Deule. I know it well—a deep, rapid stream, the running of whose current we even now could hear.

"Undoubtedly the wretches were going to fling us into this seething vortex.

"This time I would have cried out, but Victoire, mad with fright, clung so tightly to my neck, clasping me with such force that my voice died in my throat, my eyes closed and the cry was strangled. * * *

"How long a time elapsed I never knew. I was brought back to consciousness by the chair striking the ground. They had set it down preparatory to—yes, but where, where? Decidedly not in the river. It was a room, on the contrary, the dirty, grimy chamber of a low country wineshop, where a crowd of rough, coarse men were drinking, swearing and rolling about a lot of boxes, barrels and packages, like merchandise.

"'Mme. Jervaise, Mme. Jervaise!' they shouted in chorus, as our bearers set us down. 'Have you brought us Mme. Jervaise?'

"'She is here,'' the bearers replied.

"'To work, to work, then! We have no time to lose.'

"And the chair door was thrown open.

"But scarcely had they caught sight of Victoire and me, crouching half dead in the bottom of the chair, when a wild stampede took place, a helter skelter rush for the outside. The lights were extinguished, the thud of feet was heard pounding away into the night, and then a deep, bloodcurdling stillness.

"We were alone in black darkness.

"Luckily I had noticed the direction of the door. To leap from the chair, seize Victoire's hand and make my way to it was the work of a second. The clouds had not deepened, the rain had ceased, and by the purest miracle we found the road back to the city. By daylight we were safe at home.

"A fortnight later perhaps an article in a morning paper gave me the key to the mystery of that hideous night in which we (Victoire and I) had been so strangely involved. The article announced the capture by the police of a band of smugglers who had installed themselves in an old, abandoned wineshop in the outskirts of Lille—a regular magazine, as it turned out, of contraband goods, which they had smuggled in and out of the city by means of a manikin representing a sick old woman, partly paralyzed, and which, muffled in wraps and placed in a sedan chair, they carried back and forth under the very nose of the gendarmes without the slightest fear of detection.

"'An invalid ordered by the doctor to take the steam baths,' they told the officers of the law, 'by name Mme. Jervaise.'

"'Mme. Jervaise!' The name told me all and explained everything that hitherto had seemed mysterious and inexplicable in our midnight adventure. Happily for us our nocturnal escapade had never been suspected, and Victoire and I escaped a summons to appear as witnesses before the court of assizes. All the same from that day to this the thought of a sedan chair gives me goose flesh down the spine."—From the French in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Duty.

To do the duty nearest, simple and natural as it may seem, is really the most difficult thing in life. To see it even is difficult. I do not know what it is in man that always makes him enamored of the distant thing. It is always tomorrow and tomorrow. Today we will dream and plan and postpone; tomorrow we will act, and so life gets to be a snarl of neglected yesterdays, a deceiving show of promised tomorrows, nothing really accomplished.—J. F. W. Ware.

He Had a Record.

A person who was bargaining for a mule in southwest Georgia asked the youth who owned the mule:

"Is he a good, lively creetur?"

"I reckon he air," replied the young man. "He kicked dad through a circus tent, broke Uncle Bill's leg in two places and throwed a preacher three times on a Sunday mornin!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Hobson's Choice.—Auntie—Johnny, I see your little brother has the smallest apple. Did you give him his choice, as I suggested?

Johnny—Yes'm. I told him he could have his choice, the little one or none, and he took the little one.—London Tit-Bits.

Almost Beyond Belief.—"Tender-hearted?" said one who knew him. "Very much so. Upon my word, he would not even hurt a baseball umpire."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WISH TO ASSASSINATE TORAL.

El Gauey, July 7, per Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, via Port Antonio and Kingston, July 8.—The Spanish volunteers in Santiago are loud in their demand that the city should be surrendered—so persistent, in fact, that many of them have been imprisoned. It has been learned from reliable sources that Admiral Cervera was practically goaded into making his desperate effort to escape from the harbor. Both he and his sailors were assailed as cowards for not fighting the Yankees. Some marines were assaulted in the streets. The night after the fleet was destroyed the cruiser Reina Mercedes was sunk across the entrance to the harbor—or an attempt was made to sink her there—to prevent the American warships going in.

Mr. Ramsden, the British Consul, when asked by the Associated Press correspondent whether the Spanish general would continue to resist, replied.—"Of course he will; Toral will fight till he dies."

Different stories are told, however, as to the temper of the Spanish soldiers. One consul, who declined to allow his name or nationality to be given, said that so strong was the desire to yield among the rank and file that there was open talk of assassinating General Toral.

General Blanco telegraphed General Toral from Havana. "The Spaniard dies but never surrenders," paraphrasing the historic cry of Napoleon's Imperial Guard. This statement is confirmed by the French cable operators, who have left Santiago.

Washington, July 8.—The War Department has received from General Shafter the following despatch, giving as far as he finds practicable, up to this time, a statement of the total casualties in each division (except General Wheeler's) of the army under his command, as a result of the recent fighting.—In camp near Santiago, July 7.—Impossible so far to get returns but there have been treated in hospital at Siboney one thousand and fifty-two wounded, and there are still two hundred in hospital here. In Lawton's division there are killed four officers and seventy-four men; wounded, fourteen officers and three hundred and seventeen men; missing, one man.

In Kent's division, killed, twelve officers and eighty-seven men; wounded, thirty-six officers and five hundred and sixty-two men; missing, sixty-two men.

In Bates' brigade, killed, four men; wounded, two officers and twenty-six men; missing, five men.

Signal corps, killed, one man; wounded, one man.

General Wheeler's report not yet received.

(Signed.) SHAFTER,
Major-General.

ADMIRAL VILLAMIL DEAD.

Madrid, July 7.—A Spanish Cabinet Minister is quoted as saying that the present Government of Spain will devote itself solely to the defence of the Spanish coast, and that if negotiations for peace must be opened they will have to be conducted by another Government. The Cabinet is of the opinion that the fleet of Admiral Camara should continue its voyage to the Philippines.

The Government has received a telegram from Admiral Cervera, announcing the death of Admiral Villamil, who was in charge of the Spanish torpedo boat squadron at Santiago de Cuba, and the suicide of Captain La Saga. the commander of the Infanta Maria Teresa.

A MILITARY CABINET.

Madrid, July 7.—The Cabinet is now sitting, and its resignation may be regarded as threatened. The sequel will probably be a military Cabinet under Martinez Campos. There will also be, most likely, a suspension of of the constitutional guarantees. At this hour the appearance of the city is somewhat quieter.

BLUE LAWS.

Some of the Peculiar Enactments That Obtained In Old Virginia.

Those who fancy that strict laws were peculiar to New England in colonial days should read some of the enactments of the Virginia assembly.

"It was enacted," writes Professor John Fiske in "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors," that any person found drunk was for the first offense to be privately reproved by the minister; the second time this reproof was to be publicly administered; the third time the offender must be put in irons for 12 hours and pay a fine; for any subsequent offenses he must be severely punished at the discretion of the governor and council.

"To guard the community against excessive vanity in dress it was enacted that for all public contributions every unmarried man must be assessed in church 'according to his own apparel,' and every married man must be assessed 'according to his own and his wife's apparel.'

"Not merely extravagance in dress, but such social misdemeanors as flirting, received due legislative condemnation. Pretty maids were known to encourage hopes in more than one suitor, and gay deceivers of the sterner sex would sometimes seek to win the affections of two or more women at the same time. Wherefore it was enacted that 'every minister should give notice in his church that what man or woman soever should use any word or speech tending to a contract of marriage to two several persons at one time as might entangle or breed scruples in their consciences, should for such their offense, either undergo corporal correction (by whipping) or be punished by fine or otherwise, according to the quality of the person so offending.'"

Men were held to more strict accountability for the spoken or written word than in these shameless modern days. One of the most prominent settlers we find presenting a petition to the assembly to grant him due satisfaction against a neighbor who has addressed to him a letter "wherein he taxeth him both unseemly and amiss of certain things wherein he was never faulty." Speaking against the governor or any member of the council was liable to be punished with the pillory. It was also imprudent to speak too freely about clergymen, who were held in great reverence. No planter could dispose of so much as a pound of tobacco until he had laid aside a certain specified quantity as his assessment toward the minister's salary, which was thus assured even in the worst times, so far as legislation could go.

SERVANTS' LIVERIES.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "liveries" made in history was during the reign of King Pepin of France, who flourished about the year 750 A. D.

A form of amusement to which King Pepin was partial was what were termed cours plenieres. These were assemblies at which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—at Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the larger French cities and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took all his meals in public, bishops and dukes alone being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for abbots, counts and other leading men, and at both tables there was shown more profusion than delicacy, both in the quality of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Flutes, hautboys and other musical instruments were played before the bearers of each course as it was removed from the tables. When dessert was served, 90 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted thrice, "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators shouted and the meaner sort scrambled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the cours plenieres, alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to continue them. One of the severest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Pepin's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. These garments were said to be livree—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Society.

Ambiguous.

The following rather ambiguous advertisement appeared in the "Personal" column of a western newspaper a short time ago:

"Wanted—Information regarding the whereabouts of Ebenezer Jones, who is supposed to have died in this city last year.'

A still more ambiguous personal appeared in a Chicago paper a year or two ago.. It was as follows:

"If this should meet the eye of Lewis J. Smith and he will send his present address to his old home he will hear something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

Duty.

To do the duty nearest, simple and natural as it may seem, is really the most difficult thing in life. To see it even is difficult. I do not know what it is in man that always makes him enamored of the distant thing. It is always tomorrow and tomorrow. Today we will dream and plan and postpone; tomorrow we will act, and so life gets to be a snarl of neglected yesterdays, a deceiving show of promised tomorrows, nothing really accomplished.—J. F. W. Ware.

DOYLE "DOPED"

Collins Turns the Trick on the Peterboro' Man—Many Wagers

The Toronto News last night had the following in reference to the Doyle-Collins wrestling contest—a report of which appeared in yesterday's Times.—

"As a result of a quietly brought off wrestling bout in the Auditorium last night between Nick Collins and Thos. Doyle, a number of Peterborough sports are shy a good part of their financial resources, the well-backed favorite Doyle losing to Collins, whom he has beaten on three previous occasions with ease.

"The loser, apparently, was in wretched condition, and a number of the sore loser swent so far as to accuse the opposing party of 'doping' Doyle. Legal complications are likely to result as an up-shot of the affair, which, to say the least, was conducted in a questionable manner. The match was for $1,000.

"The first bout was won by Doyle in 17 minutes, collar and elbow style. In the second it took Collins 44 minutes to do the trick catch-as-catch-can When time was called for the final struggle it was announced from the Peterborough corner that Doyle was sick, and Lem Felcher asked for an extension of five minutes. The men were called again and Felcher asked for an additional five minutes, offering $25 if his request would be granted. At this time Collins appeared on the mat and demanded that the referee produce his opponent or make a decision. After considerable wrangling between managers, the referee gave the contest to collins. Doyle was removed in a cab to his hotel a very sick man."

The Council Decide Last Night to Purchase New Uniforms for the Brigade

The town council met in committee of the whole last night.

There were present.— Mayor Davis, and Councillors Best, W. H. White, Robertson, Allen, Denne, Cobb, Dawson, McWilliams, Meldrum, Langford, and J. M. White.

The question of purchasing new uniforms for the firemen occupied the attention of the council for some time. It was finally decided, however, to accede to the request of the brigade, and the boys consequently will parade in brand new clothes for their annual excursion.

Mr. H. B. McKay, representing the Sawyer-Massey Co., was granted permission to address the council on the merits of the steam roller manufactured by his company.

No action was taken in the matter. The council then adjourned.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

At the conclusion of the session of the council the Finance Committee met for the transaction of business. There were present.— Councillors Denne (chairman), Best, Cobb, McWilliams, Meldrum and J. M. White.

Mr. Denne, tax collector, submitted his bond, which was accepted.

A number of accounts were considered and recommended to be paid.

A number of other matters were discussed and the meeting then adjourned.

SIX MONTHS' EACH

In the Central is the Sentence the Norwood Burglar Received Yesterday

County Police Magistrate Edmison went down to Norwood yesterday for the purpose of trying Reaves, Simpson and Cross on a charge of burglary.

The particulars of the robbery appeared in Thursday's Times.

The prisoners were accused of stealing 200 pounds of cheese from Mr. E. Squires, proprietor of the Norwood cheese factory, and 22 loaves of bread from W. H. Tucker.

Cross, one of the prisoners, gave evidence for the Crown which convicted himself, Reaves and Simpson.

Reaves and Simpson were sentenved to six months each in the Central Prison. Cross, in view of his giving evidence for the Crown, was released on suspended sentence.

Constable Hill brought the prisoners to town on the 4 p.m. C.P.R. express and lodged them in gaol pending their removal to the Central.

A Bird Foe of the Tent Caterpillar

The Campbellford Herald says —Mr. E. Elcome, hte well-known and expert taxidermist of Peterborough, has mounted for the editor of this paper a fine specimen of the black-billed cuckoo, which was captured two weeks ago, in a clump of woods three miles north of Campbellford. There were two species of this bird in our Canadian woods, the one already mentioned and the yellow billed cuckoo. These birds, we have the authority of Mr. Elcome for saying, are the greatest enemies to that pest, the tent caterpillar, and if they and other species of birds were protected, in a few years the farmer and gardener would have no fear of danger to their trees or plants from the ravages of any grub, fly worm or insect.

SPORTING NOTES

What is Going on in Local and Outside Sporting Circles

BASEBALL.

Toronto, July 8.—Toronto once more is up against it. They played their old hodos Thursday, and the Greys hypnotic influence was quite evident, as usual. Wilkesbarre keeps up the abnormal running streak, and are now, by virtue of Montreal's shutout by Springfield, further than ever in the lead. Toronto's defeat ties them with Providence for fourth place .500 per cent. Syracuse fell down before the tail-enders, but still have a cinch for show money. Springfield is having a hot fight with Buffalo for last place, with Rochester on the chutes, coming fast. The latest advices from the scene of the conflict give this account.—

LACROSSE.

There was a big turnout at practice last night. The boys are getting themselves in shape for the league match with Midland which takes place here next Friday. Midland is bringing down a strong team as they are trying to boom the game in their town and the Peterboroughs will likely have to play a hard match to defeat them. A big excursion is also being run from Midland in connection with the match and it is to be hoped that the Peterborough boys will be able to surprise the visitors, to do which it is necessary that there be full practices in the meantime.

CRICKET.

An interesting cricket match is to played at the Nicholls Park to-day at 2 p.m., the contestants being the single and married men. It is likely there will be a large attendance. The game will start shap on time. The eleven of the single men will be Dr. Young, J. H. Burnham, Harold Burnham, A. Hammond, Dr. H. Pigeon, E. M. Poussette, Dr. B. Boucher, A. A. Hollingshead, Cumberland, Guy Rogers and A. Stethem.

The Montreal cricket club will likely make a tour west this summer, and they have written to the secretary that, if they do, they will certainly make Peterborough one of their stopping pints and have a match here.

An effort is being made by the executive of the cricket club to haev the Canadian eleven, now playing in Chicago, come to Peterborough on their return trip and give a match to the local eleven.

Cumberland, the professional, playing with the Peterborough eleven, is a splendid all-round cricketer, and has done some good playing during the week he has been in town. The members of the club are well pleased with their choice. He is a strong bat, a clever bowler and a good fielder, showing up well on any part of the field.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." MRS. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

PROPOSED SURRENDER

Gen. Toral Offers to Capitulate if Allowed to March Out With All the Honors of War

Guantanamo, July 8. 7 a. m., by Associated Press despatch boat Cynthia, via Port Antonio via Kingston, Jamaica, July 10, 01.30 a. m.—Advices received by Commander McCalla, of the Marblehead, from the City of Guantanamo show that the deaths from starvation there avearge fifteen daily. Gen. Perez, the commander of Guantanamo, has given up hope of succor and the town could readily be taken were it worth while to risk the lives of the American troops.

AN IMPREGNABLE POSITION.

Washington, July 10.—At 4.30 o'clock Secretary Alger received a cablegram from Gen. Shafter and immediately sent it to the President. The Secretary said that the cablegram indicated there was no change in the situation and expressed the opinion that there would be no fighting to-day. Gen. Shafter, he said, occupied an impregnable position and did not fear an attack. The matters contained in the cablegram beyond that he did not care to make public.

BOMBARDMENT HAS BEGUN.

Washington, July 10.—The War Department has just been informed that the bombardmnet of Santiago has begun.

OFFER TO SURRENDER SANTIAGO.

On Board the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, off Juragua, Saturday, July 9, 7 p.m., via Port Antonio, Sunday, July 10, 9 a.m., and Kingston, Jamaica, 10.40 a.m. — The surrender of Santiago was fomally offered by the Spanish commander, Gen. Torat, to-day, but the conditions attached caused a prompt refusal of the offer by Gen. Shafter. The negotiations have resulted in the extension of the armistice until noon Sunday, and while flags of truce still float over the opposing armies.

Gen. Toral's proposal contemplated the immediate surrender of the city, but he insisted that his army be permitted to march away under arms and with flying colors and declared that he would fight to the last ditch unless the conditions were accepted.

Gen. Shafter replied that nothing but unconditional surrender would be considered by him, but he consented to cable the Spanish offer to Washinton, in the meantime extending the armistice.

Shortly before noon to-day, when a little group of Spanish officers under a flag of truce came out from under the yellow wall of the besieged city and slowly made thier way to the American lines. A detail was sent to meet them, and they were escorted to comfortable quarters while the letter from Gen. Toral was carried to General Shafter's tent two miles from the front. The latter was couched in the cold, courteous terms characteristic of Spanish communications and was very brief. It bore the signature of Gen. Toral, who commands at Santiago since Gen. Linares was wounded, and stated that he was prepared to surrender the city provided his army be permitted to capitulate "with honor." This, he explained, meant that the Spanish forces should be unmolested and go in any direction they wished with arms and flying colors. The letter concluded with the bold statement that surrender under any other terms was an impossibility and would not be considered. Gen. Shafter immediately cabled the facts to Washington and sent to Gen. Toral a refusal of his proposal, but added that he would communicate with his government. extend the informal armistice until Sunday at noon.

NO SIGN OF PEACE YET

Europe Talks of It But the Spaniards are too Proud to Ask It

Queen Regent's Appeal to Austria—Ultimatum to Blanco—Austria Advises Spain to Abandon the Struggle

Washington, July 9.—The War Department received two despatches from Gen. Shafter during the night as follows.—

Cable operators were permitted to go in yesterday morning. The English cable was in working order, and some of the operators were in the city. Gen. Toral wanted these there, as they are the principal men. This cable has not been cut, and the men I sent in have not taken it up again. English cable has been working all the time through Havana.

Complete report received to-day of loss on July 1 and 2.—Killed, 22 officers, 208 enlisted men; wounded, 81 officers, 1,203 enlisted men. Missing, 79 enlisted men. The reports giving the names of the killed and wounded are being rapidly prepared, and it is hoped to get them off to-morrow.

THE FIGHT TO GO ON.

Madrid, July 9.—The Cabinet Council last evening considered the questions of new cables and of military measures necessary in view of a United States attack upon Spanish ports.

All rumors as to peace negotiations are semi-officially declared to be unfounded.

A despatch from Santiago says that after the Merrimac prisoners were exchanged General Shafter again demanded that the town should surrender, declaring that otherwise the attack would recommence at noon. The despatch gives no date for the time of resumption, which is believed to be noon to-day. It concluded by saying that although Santiago lacks provisions it will defend itself till the end.

ULTIMATUM TO BLANCO.

Madrid, July 9.—It is rumored here that the Spanish Government has received a despatch from Captain-General Blanco announcing that Rear-Admiral Sampson has sent a telegraphis despatch, summoning the Spanish commander to order the evacuation of Cuba within 48 hours, and announces that otherwise the Americans will bombard all the forts in Cuba.

GERMANY'S SENSE.

London, July 9.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says. "I am in a position to assert positively that Germany has never entertained the idea of preventing an American occupation of the Philippines. On the other hand, she has desired to be in a position to share the cake, if other powers are offered a slice. The rumor that Spain has already ceded a Philippine port to Germany is entirely unfounded."

A CASE OF STARVATION.

London, July 9.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says.— The frequent Cabinet discussions of the peace question have been without result, except that the Ministers who had most strongly advocated war have assumed a slightly more conciliatory attitude and the field of discusion is somewhat narrowed. The idea is that, owing to the immense difficulties of the campaign in Cuba, the United States will probably abandon the system of storming fortified places, and will adopt the plan of starving garrisons out by blockading the whole island.

The Government would probably prefer suing for peace to suffering an indefinite blockade, but it fears the large body of patriotic opinion in favor of resisting to the bitter end, if Cuba is blockaded.

It is to be hoped that the Americans will find some means of controlling the ferocity of their savage allies. A profound impresion has been made here by the rumors that the Americans had handed over Spanish prisoners to Cuban insurgents, who beheaded them.

ADVICES TO SPAIN.

Vienna, July 9.—The official Politische Correspondez publishes to-day an inspired editorial saying.— "We learn that all political circles in France express a desire that the bloody conflict should not be pressed to extremes. It is time that Spain, having earned the world's admiration for patriotic devotion, should cease resistance where she had no chance of success.

The Spanish Government should not hesitate to express a wish for peace in some form, and there is reason to assume that the mediation of the powers would at present find no unfriendly reception by the United States, since it appears cetain that the Union does not intend taking Cuba, and Spain must be prepared to proclaim the island's independence.

Under all the circumstances, the Paris Cabinet will extend a ready hand for such mediation.

A HINT TO THE KAISER.

London, July 9.—The weeklies pay high tribute to the United States navy.

The Speaker says.— "The Santiago fight proves that so far as the fleet is concerned the United States need not fear comparison with any country in the world."

The Spectator says the United Sates fleet could face even the French fleet, without great risk of disaster, and adds.—"So far as the German and United States navies go, there would be no comparison. A struggle between them would be very short and very complete, and it would surprise Emperor William, who thinks himself invincible, but his self-confidence cannot alter history."

APEALS TO AUSTRIA.

New York, July 9.—A despatch to the World from Vienna says Emperor Francis Joseph is disposed to try once more to secure peace.

The Emperor will promptly receive the Archduchess Elizabeth, who will return to-morrow from Madrid with despatches from the Queen, imploring the Emperor to use every influence at his command to bring about a cessation of hostilities.

It is expected in Ministerial quar-

It is expected in Ministerial quarters here that France will take the first step in behalf of Spain.

PEACR PARTY STRONG.

London, July 9.—A special despatch from Madrid says.—

There are numerous evidences that the peace party is greatly strengthened.

Madrid is tranquil, and the expected disturbances have not occurred.

This probably will embolden the Government to yield to the strong diplomatic pressure that is being exerted to bring the war to a termination.

As El Nacional sensibly remarks.—Spanish Ministers who expect prodigies of valor from the army in Cuba cannot compel the Americans to fight there. The Americans may prefere to attack the Canaries, Porto Rico, and the Peninsula; and, as El Nacional says, having succeeded, they might impose still more distasteful

In the meantime there is no relaxation in the work of strnegthening the coast defences. Even the heavy artillery at the formidable French frontier forts has been withdrawn, and sent to the seaports.

Current gosip credits the Infanta Isabella with a wish to assume the regency. She has visited the barracks and addressed inspiring words to the officers and men. It is rumored that Isabella, being a Spaniard could better sign a disastrous peace than herself, who is often taxed with being a foreigner.

LIGHTERS LOST.

Washington, July 9.—The authorities have been advised of the sinking, in a storm off Cuba, of eleven lighters, which were on the way to be of use in transferring supplies and guns from the transports. As they were essential to prompt work before Santiago, they will be immediately replaced. No lives were lost.

SPANISH TROOPS STARVING.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, July 9.—Spanish soldier, almost dead, found by men from the Annapolis on the shore, says that there is absolutely nothing to eat in Guantanamo. Hundreds are suffering from starvation, and they are told that to surrender to the United States means but to be murdered.

NEGOTIATING FOR PEACE.

Rome, July 9.—Italie says that negotiations have been opened among the European powers with a view of arranging peace. The best intentions, the paper says, are manifested at Wahsington, but the Madrid Cabinet strongly oppose any idea of peace.

GERMANY'S PREPARATIONS.

New York, July 9.—A London special to The Post extra says.—"Information reaches me to-day from a high diplomatic quarter that the unprecedented action of Germany in marshalling her whole Eastern squadron at Manila is the prelude to a decisive step. My informant, who cannot well be misinformed, says that a decision already has been arrived at in Berlin to occupy one of the Philippine Islands as a coaling station in the far East, which, the Kaiser said recently, was vital to Germany's position as a graet naval power. Further decision as to exactly which island shall be occupied awaits Prince Henry's arrival at Manila, whither he is now bound, but at most it will be only a question of weeks. The British Government can hardly be unaware of these German diplomatic expectations, supported, as they are, by preparations. The question of pressing moment is what England and America mean to do when Gremany shows her hand."

SPAIN'S DEPLORABLE PLIGHT.

New York, July 9.—A Madrid special to the World shows the hopeless state to which Spain has been reduced, now that her navy is in ruins. A Spanish officer gave the following state,ent.—

"We lost at Manila vessels worth $5,006,000; at Santiago we lost vessels worth $18,000,000. Our fleet under Camara must come home it raelly consisting of only two war vesels, and could not cope with Dewey. Our torpedo boat destroyers have proved worthless against battleships and cruisers properly handled. We have at home no available force radey. Matters are going from bad to worse here for the Royal Family, and Weyler shows a decided tendency to declare himself openly for the Carlists."

SPAIN SUES FOR PEACE.

New York, July 9.—A London special to The Journal says Spain has at length sought peace, applying to Sir Henry Drummond-Wolff, the British Ambassador at Madrid.

The British Foreign Office has presented the communication to Col. John Hay, our Ambassador in England. The terms suggested as acceptable to Spain are.—

1. Cuba to be independent, but to pay Spain an indemnity for several years.
2. Spain to keep a minor Cuban port until this indemnity shall have been paid.
3. The great powers to send small detachments of troops to certain Cuban ports.
4. Philippine Islands to be independent.
5. United States to occupy Porto Rico as security for payment of war indemnity, the amount of which shall be negotiated.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the facination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be described as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking macchine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. A PEG-LEG IN CUSTODY

Montreal Police Think They Have the Murderer

CAUGHT HIM ON A FREIGHT

Montreal, July 9.—The detective department believe thye have captured the murderer of Constable Twohey, the London policeman, who was hsot there some days ago. Conductor Morin, of the Western freight train, notified Chief Carpenter of the man's presence on the train, and he was taken by Detectives Coleman and McLaughlin on the arrival of the train at Point St. Charles yards, at six o'clock last night.

The prisoner, who gave his name as Thomas Ryan, has a wooden leg, like the one described as being characteristic of the murderer. His description was at once telegraphed to Chief Williams, of London, and corresponds in detail with th eexception of indications of French parentage. He said he hailed from Portland, and was a shoemaker by trade.

He is a stout, thick-set man of about 35 years of age. All marks for identification had been removed from his clothing. He is being held on a charge of vagrancy, pending the action of the London authorities.

Tributes of Praise from the British Papers for Uuncle Sam

They Say the Battle Shows that the American Navy is a Most Efficient Fighting Machine—The Lion's Whelps are Made of the Proper Stuff and have Covered Themselves with Glory

Uncle Sam Lauded

London, July 9.—The weekly newspapers to-day, discussing the war, pay glowing tributes to the United States navy. [illegible] review says.—

It is impossible not to feel certain pride in these achievements of men of our own race. Every Englishman, too, will remember that it was the possession of this same quality, the fine marksmanship which the Americans displayed, which gave us victories both on land and sea, from Crecy to the Crimea. [illegible] liar and noble happened in this fight, which showed in [illegible] way our kinship between the two peoples.—"Don't cheer," shouted Capt. Philip, "the poor devils are dying."

It seems to us that this expression of tender sympathy is just as fine as the 'Kiss me, Hardy,' of the dying Nelson.

The Spectator, in [illegible] on the same subject, remarks.— "The first thought of Englishmen is that the American fleet did its work splendidly. The whole performance of Admiral Sampson's fleet was in accordance with the best traditions of the Anglo-Saxon navies, and every Englishman has read of their doings with a flush of rpide. There was the same old hard pounding as the Elizabethan sea dogs used, the same curious mixture of steadiness, daring, [illegible] and reckless dash. The moral aspect of what was almost the first and of what may be the last fleet action between the Spanish and [illegible] very much alike. In both cases it was the man behind the gun who, in the last resort, won the battle.

"The battle shows that the American navy is a most efficinet fighting machine. We did not need to be told that there, we knew it already and realized of what stuff the lion's whelps are made. They did not know it on the continent, however, though they apparently know it now."

Cheap Medical Advice

Ottawa, July 9.—On the report of a committee appointed to look into the internal economy of the Carleton County General [illegible] hospital, the Board of Directors yesedray decided to remove the [illegible] superintendent, Dr. Chipman, who will be replaced by a medical superintendent and assistant at combined salaries not to exceed [illegible].

As in other large hospitals these positions will be offered to university medical graduates of high standing.

Fat Jobs for Jingoes

Washington, July 9.—The President has appointed Senator [illegible] of Illinois; Senator Morgan, of Alabama; Representative Hitt, of Illinois; Sanford Dole, President of the Hawaiian Republic; and W. R. Frear, of Hawaii, to be commissioners under the Hawaiian annexation resolution.

Among the Lost

Toronto, July 9.—A despatch received in the city to-day conveys the information that among those lost in the wreck of La Burgogne was Mr. Elgin A. Angell, of Cleveland, who has many relatives in Toronto.

Mr. Angell was a nephew of Mrs. G. R. Roberts, wife of Mr. G. R. Roberts of the Standard Publishing Co., and a nephew also of the late W. A. Sheppard, of the [illegible] Co. Dr. Arthur Roberts, of Sherbourne street, Mrs. Edmund Gunn, of 23 Bernard avenue. Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. It is liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."

H. R. W. BENTLEY,
Towner, N. D.

PETERBOROUGH JULY 11 1898

SAMPSON'S EXCUSE.

And now arises Admial Sampson with a refusal to take his ships into Santiago harbor, over the fumes, and he says that any attempt to raise or explode the mines would be prevented by the Spanish shore batteries and rifle men.

But how come those batteries there if past reports be true that Sampson's fleet demolished Morro Castle, and the other fortifications, tore the batteries to pieces time after time, blew them up with dynamite shells, sent great Spanish guns hurling through the air, raised great clouds of red earth, and played the mischief generally with the Dons' defences? If all the tales we have been told are true, how is it the Spaniards have even a sand bank or a hill left behind which they can find shelter? Surely, with all the effectiveness of the fleet's gunnery, a few shells judiciously dropped among the riflemen should cause them to "scamper-away, like so many frightened sheep." Yes, that is the way we have been told all along that the Spaniards cleared out when fired on by the gunboats.

Perhaps, after all, the destruction on the several bombardments has not beef as extensive as has been alleged.

THE LATE SEA TRAGEDY.

Peace has its horrors also. There is no romance of heroism to alleviate the fearful tragedy of La Bourgoge, no compensation of any kind for these many hundred lives cut short in a few brief minutes. There have been fews wrecks of gret ocean steamers so complete and terrible as this and apparently so inexcusable, and it will be long before the public mind can recover from the effect of it.

So much has been done in the improvement of ocean navigation, in speed and comfort and general convenience, that each fresh evidence that it is still accompanied by the same dangers as before comes with a renewed shock.

No one who has ever been to sea needs to be told of the terrors of a fog off the northern coast; but why a steamer should be plunging through such a fog at a speed of eighteen knots is not easily explained. And water tight compartments that worked well on the merchantman, seem to have been of little account on the big passenger ship.

But the horror of this wreck is the death of nearly all the passengers, including all but one of the women and children, while sailors and waiters and deckhands and some worse than worthless ruffians from the steerage, saved themselves at their expense. We do not believe that this would have been possible upon an English or American or a upon a German steamer, where manhood usually asserts itself in peril and the ship's discipline seldom falls to pieces in such a way, and the shame of the struggle does not improve our appreciation of the Latin races.

And the Cristobel Colon is to be raised and called the Maine. There's fine irony for you.

If the C. P. R. Co. undertakes the fast Atlantic service this country can rest assured that the service will soon be ready and that it will be fast.

Spanish sailors may not be able to fight, but they know how to die creditably, and that is something that cannot be said of many sailors on the La Bourgogne.

General Miles announces that General Shafter's attack on Santiago resulted in a drawn battle. Admiral Sampson may be a corker but the chap who commands the Spanish land forces is something of a stopper himself.

Some of our contemporaries are no great shakes as advertising mediums. They have for many moons been advertising for a successor to Hon. Mr. J. M Gibson, with no "results." It is different with this great family newspaper. A three line notice brought Mr. Stratton to the fore quick'ern you cou'd say "scat." It pays to advertise in the Times.

There must be something seriously dangerous in the situation of the American army near Santiago. General Shafter's despatches prior to the battle on the 3rd of July are somewhat perplexing. His decision to demand the surrender of of the city, following so closely upon his intimation that the army would be obliged to retire, deserves an explanation that has not so far been vouchsafed. Now it appears that he has actually fallen into a trap and is perhaps at the mercy of the Spanish guns, while his army is suffering from the tropical climate ank lack of provisions. Everything may not be as described by Richard Harding Davis, but at any rate it would seem that a change in the leadership and management of the army in Cuba would probably be an improvement and would perhaps save the army from disaster.

THE NORTH STAR TRIPS.

The Steamer North Star will start her Daily Trips on Thursday, July 7th, leaving Peterboro' wharf at 9.15 a.m each day for Jubilee and Idyl Wild. This was the popular boat last season and is now faster and more complete than ever. GEORGE McWILLIAMS, Proprietor.

A SONG OF LIFE

Weed the way for joy
  Ere life's morning closes.
Let not thorns destroy
  Sweets of all life's roses.

See on earth's green bosom
  Flowers, like stars of night.
See the desert blossom
  With a rose of light.

In the darkness one ray
  Shineth from afar,
Hope's unfettered sun ray,
  Love's immortal star.

See the black night riven

ERRORS OF INSTINCT.

Mistakes of Insects Which Seem to Deny Them the Power of Selection.

The opinion is still very generally entertained that with animals, especially those of the lower order, instinct is the determining guide that incites to the proper performance of action or function, and that as such it is far less liable to err than the reasoning of intelligence. Few scientific prejudices have been more difficult to overcome than that which removes from animals the reasoning faculty, and probably many years will yet elapse before it will be recognized that all animals which come under ordinary observation are endowed with the same kind of faculty, although developed in various degrees of a descending scale, which distinguishes man and the so called higher organisms. The bee and ant have been frequently held up as the best exponents of the instinct class, and more recently of the "exceptional" animals which developed reasoning powers, and it was a rude shock, not only to the layman, but as well to the scientist, when Sir John Lubbock, as the result of an almost endless series of experiments, announced a few years ago that these animals were "sadly wanting" both in their instinctive and intellectual traits. In other words, there were many times when both instinct and intelligence erred for them.

Some most remarkable instances of the erring of instinct among insects have recently been noted by naturalists, and they add an interesting chapter to the physiology of sense. One of these was the case of a butterfly, which persisted in visiting the artificial flowers on a lady's bonnet, mistaking them for the natural product. Another, and perhaps more striking, instance of fault is noted by the distinguished French entomologist, M. R. Blanchard, and concerns a species of sphinx moth, which entered a hotel room in the half obscurity of early morning, and was found to flit with direct intent to definite parts of the walls and ceiling. These were decorated with paintings of leaves and flowers, and to the latter the insect approached in repeated attacks, thrusting forward its proboscis as though intent upon intruding it into the opened cups of the beguiling flowers. After repeated failures and the resulting discouragement, the effort was given up, and the sphinx escaped by the window. This case of self deception is interesting in another way, inasmuch as it proves that it is not always the sense of smell, but at times that of sight, which directs insects to their flowers.—Washington Star.

The Phonograph In Russia.

Edison's phonograph has had a battle royal with Russian press censorship, says The Anglo-Russian. In the pavilion of the public gardens in Tagonrog the machine was exhibited, and attracted large audiences. It played and sang, and laughed and spoke for some time undisturbed, until a police officer heard the machine reciting one of Kriloff's famous fables—viz., "Demyan's Ukha" (soup or hospitality), but with some variations on the original text. The officer got suspicious, and not trusting to his memory, he ran at once and got Kriloff's book, and came again to listen to the phonograph's version of the fable. To his horror he found the fable reproduced not at all as it was passed by the censorship more than half a century ago.

An alarm was raised at once, the higher local authorities communicated with, and the manager of the pavilion, Mr. Parafinovitch, was called upon to explain the behavior of that speaking American beast. All the poor manager could do was to open the mysterious inside of the criminal machine and hand over to the authorities the indiscreet cylinder which threatened to tell the peaceful inhabitants so many undesirable things. But the arrest of the chief criminal was considered insufficient, as it could not have acted without a human accomplice. So, according to he Taganrog Viestnik, the affair has taken its official course, and the innocent manager of the pavilion has lost in the meantime his generally good appetite and sound sleep, as he does not know in what punishment the official proceedings will result, and how long he will have to wait until his fate is decided.—Invention.

Yule Dough.

The first authentic record of Christmas pie or pudding is that of the Yule dough. This was a paste made in the form of a baby and presented by the bakers to their customers as a Christmas gift. In ancient Rome on the vigil of the nativity sweetmeats in the form of images were presented to the holy fathers, and it is probable that Yule dough had its origin in this custom. A belief was prevalent at one time that mince pie, which is composed of fruits and spices grown in the east, was a survival in memory of the offerings brought by the wise men to Bethlehem, when they came to worship the infant Saviour. The pie in later years came to be a wonderful compound of fruits, spices and meats, eggs and sugar, and inspired the poet Herrick to write:

Come, guard this night the Christmas pie
That the thiefe, though ne'er so slie,
With his flesh hooks don't come nie
To catch it.

Plum pudding, now the universal piece de resistance in England, was originally "plumb porridge," and was served from a tureen at all the Christmas festivals—

An Appreciable Difference.

"The chief difference between the man with a lot of new made money and the gentle zephyr," said the corn fed philosopher, "is that the gentle zephyr blows itself quietly."—Indianapolis Journal.

In 1680 the Duchesse de Fontanges had the misfortune to have her hat blown off at a hunting party, and she tied her hair with one of her ribbon garters. Hairdressing with ribbons remained a fashion for seven years.

No fewer than 26,826 doors and windows in London have been found open at night by the police in one year.

FANTASTIC VAGARY.

A PUBLIC MAN WHO CONSULTED THE OUIJA BOARDS.

This is One of the Grounds on Which It is Sought to Show That He Was Incapable of Making a Proper Will—The Estate Involved is a Large One.

The Ouija board, that curious little device which attracted so much attention and furnished so much amusement to many people a few years ago, has got into the courts. It is cited as evidence of a man's mental weakness and his incapacity to make a proper will. This man was Charles M. Pond, once State Treasurer of Connecticut, a Senator in the same State and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. A suit is now under way in New York to break his will. It was instituted by his brother, Anson Phelps Pond.

Among the property which Charles M. inherited from his father was the Prospect Hill farm, on the outskirts of the city of Hartford, and this, with about $450,000 worth of other realty, he willed to Hartford. The disputed farm or homestead which Hartford proposes to turn into a public park, is now valued at about $250,000.

The claim is made by the contestant that his brother had no right to devise away this tract, and counsel bring forward his father's will in substantiation of this position, and quote that part of it which reads: "And it is my express desire that my said son, Charles M. Pond, will not alienate or sell my farm known as the 'Prospect Hill Farm,' but that the same may descend and be from time to time devised to my lineal descendants."

Among the testimony already introduced is that of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, a sister of the Ponds, which it is said showed the deceased brother to be an extraordinary and eccentric person.

In his public career Charles M. was known only as a man of rare judgment and brilliant parts, but it seems that for some time previous to his death his mind was clouded or weakened by dissipation, and he displayed oddities of intellect that were entirely at variance with his character as the public and all but his intimates knew it.

According to Mrs. Porter's statement, some of the evidence that would be important and valuable as corroborative proof has been deliberately destroyed. The destroyed evidence consisted of works on Spiritism and the several Ouija boards that were the property of Charles M. Pond, and were used by him. It is said that the dead man was a firm believer in Spiritism and was an easy dupe of mediums. Luther R. Marsh was not more thoroughly fooled by Miss De Bar than he was by the men and women who pretended to be able to rematerialize those who had passed to the shining shores.

After the death of his wife, it is said, he was almost constantly under the influence of mediums. He had implicit confidence in the oracular qualities of the Ouija board which is a rudimentary sort of planchete. In the latter case the spirits are supposed to communicate with their friends in the flesh by means of writing, in the former the spirits have not got so far in the three R's, and they spell out their communications.

A panchette is a small heart-shaped bit of wood, mounted on two tiny legs with casters, and having for the third leg a pencil. When the little table is placed on a sheet of paper and the hands are permitted to rest lightly upon it, the pencil moves, and some people pretend that the lead-marks made by the pencil are legible messages, and they go through the solemn formality of reading them.

Ouija has a three-legged, heart-shaped little table, too, which the hands rest upon, but it travels not over writing paper but over a smooth rectangular board, on which the alphabet and the numerals are stenciled so that they make the segment of a circle, and the words "yes" and "no" are stenciled in two of the corners. Messages are read by following the movements of the leg at the apex of the heart. It travels from letter to letter and spells out words, the nerves and muscles of the manipulators having much to do with the direction of its movements.

Chalres M. Pond had several of these Ouija boards and he consulted them dozens of times a day. Through them he communicated with his dead wife. The story is told that often he would arise in the midst of a group of friends, excuse himself and hurry off to another room to ask Ouija certain questions.

These Ouija boards with all of her brother's Spiritistic books, Mrs. Porter says, she burned. Her statement is that she went to the office of one of the executors of the will and in his absence obtained from his father, who drew up the will, permission to remove the books and boards from the house, which she did and made a bonfire of them.

There is a great deal of secrecy about the proceedings and a whole lot of mystery, but the plaintiff feels confident that he will be able to show the mental insufficiency of his brother to make a will as well as to clinch his own right to the disputed part by the restricting clause in his father's will, which insists that the property shall not be devised away from the family.

The dissipated habits of Pond's brother have been pretty well established. He seems to have had a wild and terrible mania for morphine and administered it to everybody and everything on his place, even the dogs. The Ouija board weakness, though, appears to be the most fantastic of all his vagaries

Tactics in the Band.

A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. Their uniforms are neat, said the colonel, and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I must insist upon.

What is it, colonel?

You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! one, two!

The Military College.

The Kingston Military College is a very expensive luxury to the people of Canada, and some of the items we have to pay for are very peculiar. An opera glass, $9.25; Prince of Wales hunting belt, $3.53; emigrant's knife, $7.42; trout rod, twelve feet long with three joints, $5.96; a lawn tennis bat, $3.71. The college cost us $70,003. No wonder there is a deficit.—Brockville Recorder.

CAMARA TO RETURN

A Despatch from Cairo Says that the Spanish Fleet

Has Been Ordered to Return to Spain, Presumably to Look After Watson's Squadron—1,750 Spanish Prisoners on Their Way to U. S.

Washington, July 8.—All the Spanish naval officers captured by the American fleet are to be confined within the limits of the naval academy grounds of Annapolis. They will be placed in the quarters vacated by the American naval officers, who left the academy to go into active service and will be treated with the greatest consideration. Admiral Cervera, it is expected, will be among the prisoners, who in all liklihood, will be given the freedom of the grounds under limited parole.

OAMARA TO RETURN TO SPAIN.

Cairo, July 8.—Admiral Camara has informed the Egyptian Government that he has been ordered to return to Spain.

THE SITUATION AT MANILA.

Hong Kong, July 8.—A despatch from Manila, under date of July 4, says that Admiral Dewey will remain in active until General Merritt arrives. The rebels are practically doing nothing, but the Spaniards are strengthening their position, destroying huts and woods and constructing entrenchments. The authorities have enncted a penalty of $1,000 against anybody who shall raise the prices for provisions. The Spaniards assert that despite the loss of the waterworks there will be no famine during the rainy season. They are confident that an ample force from Cadiz will arrive soon and annihilate the Americans, and they still hope to conciliate the natives. In the meantime they declare that they will endure positively whatever comes and resist to the uttermost.

COAL FOR DEWEY.

New York, July 8.—It was learned to-day that 40,000 tons of coal are now on their way to the Philippine Islands, where they will be transferred to the bunkers of Admiral Dewey's ships.

1,750 SPANISH PRISONERS.

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 7, by the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless, via Port Antonio, July 8, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 8.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Harvard has sailed for Portsmouth, N. H., with the balance of the prisoners. The total is now 1,750.

A board of officers to-day inspected the Cristobal Colon and it is hoped that she may be saved. Naval Constructor Hobson is on board the Spanish cruiser and is about to value the Infanta Meria Teresa. The remains of the Vizcaya and Almirante Oquendo are worthless wrecks.

YELLOW FEVER AT SANTIAGO.

Washington, July 8.—The authorities of the War Department are much alarmed over reports from Key West that two of the crew of the auxiliary criser Yankee, which has just returned from Santiago, have died of yellow fever at the former place, and that other cases are reported from the same ship.

There is every reason to believe that the men who are now suffering from the disease, and those who have died from it, were infected while on shore with the army at Santiago, and the fact is held to indicate clearly that the germs of yellow fever are with the expedition, and liable to make themselves visible at any moment.

Reports as to the condition of the troops, the dreadful hardships, they are undergoing, coupled with exposure to rain, damp and the night air, from the swamps, the latter being especially provocative of fever, make the officials most apprehensive of the results of an outbreak. It is felt that should the disease once obtain a hold the small army with General Shafter would quickly be rendered in a bad condition for fighting.

It is stated here that the bulk of the reinforcements now being despatched from Tampa and Jacksonville are not intended for Santiago at all, but that they will be sent under General Miles to a point near the Mariel trocha, in northern Cuba, where they will effect a junction with Gomez, join Shafter after the fall of Santiago, and march on Havana. It is said the General Miles has not left for Santiago, but for Mariel.

THINKS OF SURRENDERING.

General Shafter's headquarters before Santiago de Cuba, July 7, via Kingston, Ja., July 8, 8 a.m.—The armistice has been extended until noon on Saturday in order to allow General Linares to communicate with Captain-General Blanco and with Madrid.

General Linares informed General Shafter that he had no telegraph operator, and one was sent into the city, accompanied by the British Consul, Mr. F. W. Ramsden, under the protection of the British flag.

Not a shot has been fired recently on either side, but work is being pushed on the batteries and entrenchments. Our position has been greatly strengthened during the last forty-eight hours, the American lines advancing to within 400 yards of the enemy's, and our hillside batteries overlook and command the city.

Last night General Lawton's division advanced five hundred yards, to the enemy's great surprise. The dynamite gun, in charge of Hallet Alsopp Burrowe, has been beautifully placed in a snug pit.

The streams have been bridged over allowing the transportation of heavy artillery with facility. The roads have been greatly improved. The general health of the soldiers is good. The armistice is affording a long-needed rest for our men, and they are now in good shape to resume fighting.

General Linares is evidently weakening, and the mediation of the Bishop of Santiago and the Consular corps may persuade him to surrender.

In case hostilities are resumed the plan of assault is for Rear-Admiral Sampson to bombard the forts at the mouth of the harbor, driving the men away from the guns, and then land a thousand men and occupy the forts, while launches with grappling irons go in and countermine the harbor. The fleet will then enter and bombard the city, supporting the land attack.

General aGrcia, the insurgent commander, received orders yesterday not to attack the Spaniards while the negotiations are on foot. The wrecked Spanish cruisers are still filled with charred bodies, and the buzzards are devouring the remains. The Cubans, by Rear-Admiral Sampson's orders, have buried the bodies of over one hundred Spanish who were washed ashore.

SPANIARDS ARE INDIGNANT.

New York, July 8.—A despatch to The World from Madrid, forwarded privately across the Spanish frontier, says.—Indignation is in creasing among all classes of Spaniards against Admiral Cervera and the commanders and crews of his squadron.

It is openly charged that the ships were not well foghut, that the honor of the flag was not sufficiently defended. Very hard things are said of the behavior of Cervera and his men, especially in regard to the hauling down of the flag without attempting to blow up the vessels.

The public and press clamor for a rigid investigation and condign punishment.

The Queen cried bitterly when she heard the news according to court gossip, but manifested great displeasure when she heard all the details of the sea fight off Santiago.

The Queen has again quietly consulted Marshals Campos, Lopez, Dominiguez, and Primo de Rivera, General Calleja, the captain-general of Madrid, and Senor Silvela, the chief of the Conservatives. All agree with Premier Sagasta that teh war must be continued for some time longer under the conduct of Senor Sagasta, sented as taking the initiative, and Germany and other powers as declining to interfere. By way of Berlin pean intervention in the Hispano-American war. France is being repreand with his present colleagues, if it is possible, in order to allay the popular and military discontent. Senor Sagasta, like all the personages consulted, told the Queen that he feels most uneasy about what will happen when the news of the fall of Manila and Santiago comes.

Steps have been taken already to break the expected news slowly, especially in the provinces, where the irritation and discontent are more intense even than in Madrid.

These counsellors agree also that the Government ought not to hesitate about displaying the utmost severity and decision in repressing disturbances, because the discipline and loyalty of the army will be brought out by the first collision with the Republicans and the Carlists. The Carlists are most dreaded in the north and east of the kingdom; and Republicans in Barcelona, Madrid, and Bilboa.

The Queen is very anxious, but seems determined to form a military Government if Sagasta proves too weak for the emergency.

BOMBARDMENT TO-MORROW.

Washington, July 8.—General Shafter and Admiral Sampson have agreed on a plan of campaign. At noon to-morrow Admiral Sampson will begin a bombardment from the outer harbor, having absolutely refuesd to force the channel.

GENERAL SHAFTER'S DESPATCH.

Washington, July 8.—The War Department has posted the following despatch.—

"Hon. R. A. Alger, Secretary of War Camp near Santiago, July 7.—Perfect quit to-day. At the request of Spanish general, employes of English Cable Company were sent in to him to telegraph his Government as to surrendering. Men are in good spirits, and are making themselves more secure every hour. Woun are much less dangerous than similar wounds made with calibre .45. Among the large number wounded there are few amputations. Perhaps ten will cover it. General health of command is good. One hundred and fifty cases of fever, which runs its course in four or five days, but is not serious. I am feeling much better. (Signed.) Shafter, Major-General."

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?" He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said: "The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

TEN FOR FIVE CENTS
RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SHAFTESBURY DRUMMOND,

AN ILL-FATED SHIP

Had Many Accidents and Nearly Went Down Several Times.

New York, July 10.—La Bourgogne had many mishaps since she was built at Toulon, France, in 1886.

In 18 0 La Bourgogne almost met the same fate that overtook her last Monday morning, and curiously enough, it was a British ship that she ran into that time also. The French Liner had left Havre on, January 4, and at midnight was off the Scilly Islands. It was then blowing a hurricane, when suddenly the British steamer Torrider, bound for Glasgow, headed directly across her bow.

The Frenchman crashed into the steamer striking her stern, carrying away her propeller, and otherwise damaging her. She escaped with slight injuries, and the English vessel, after La Bourgogne had lain by her all night, was able to proceed to the nearest port.

In February, 1896, La Bourgogne collided with the steamer Ailsa in the Narrows of New York harbor, off Fort Wadsworth. The Ailsa sank before she could be run aground. The Ailsa's sailors, mostly Spaniards and Italians, acted with the greatest cowardice, taking possession of the only available life boat and beating off the women passengers. The passengers were thrown into the rigging, from which they were subsequently rescued by tugs. The French ship's injuries were very slight.

In November of the same year La Bourgogne while going out of the harbor ran aground off Sandy Hook, but was able to get off after a short time and continue her voyage.

Two of the ship's company were injured by heavy seas in 1894, and in 1895 one of her seamen, August Guillard, fell overboard from the promenade deck and was drowned.

On September 30, 1896, Fireman Jean Lebore, driven insane by the heat, jumped overboard and was lost.

La Bourgogne was built in 1886 at La Seyne. She was a four masted hip-rigged steamer of 7,395 tons gross register and of 8,000 horse power. She was 494.5 feet long, had 52 2 feet beam and was 34 6 feet deep. She was built of steel and iron, had twelve water-tight compartments and carried water ballast.

The officers of La Bourgogne were: Deloncle, commander; Dupont, second captain, Pichard, first officer; Delinge, second officer; Rempier, third officer; Dalido, chief engineer; Brissac, second engineer; Gautier, third engineer; Laine, fourth engineer; Durand, purser; Sool, assistant purser; Dr. Delpech, surgeon.

The British ship Cromartyshire, Captain Henderson, sailed from Dunkirk on June 8 for Philadelphia. She is a full rigged three masted ship of 1,462 tons register. She was built at Glasgow in 1879 and is owned by W. Law & Co., of that city. She is 248.9 feet long, has 32.8 feet beam and is 22 8 feet deep.

LAUGHED AT FRIEND'S FEARS.

Premonitions of Danger Failed to Alarm Madame Achard, Who Was Lost With Her Children in the Wreck.

Baltimore, July 10.—A singular thing in connection with the La Bourgogne disaster was the premonition of friends here of Madame Antoine Achard and her husband and two children that harm would befall them. A cablegram was received from M. Achard to-day at Halifax stating that his wife and children were lost but he was uninjured. Madame Achard was a noted designer of ladies' gowns. She came here from Lyons nine years ago, and was at the head of the dressmaking establishment of a large firm in Baltimore. The family had bought tickets for La Touraine, for which La Bourgogne was substituted last Saturday. Several friends of Madame Achard advised her to wait for La Touraine, declaring that they dreaded her making the change. Madame Achard, however, only laughed at their superstitious fears and said she had crossed the ocean so often that she was not in the least afraid.

TO SAVE CERVERA'S SHIPS.

Wrecking Crew Leaves for Santiago to Get Them Off the Beach.

Washington July 10—Secretary Long is quite hopeful that several of the Spanish ships of the Cervera squadron can be saved, in part, at least, if not as a whole. Assistant Secretary Allen shares in this belief, and thinks that the Cristobal Colon can be gotten off the rocks as an entirety, and that the hull, upper works and guns can be made available. She was the best armored cruiser in the Spanish navy, and if she can be floated and repaired will make a valuable acquisition to the American navy.

Mr. Allen is hopeful also that the Vizcaya and the Oquendo can be saved in part. Information has reached the department that the hulls are not badly damaged. The contract with the Merritt Wrecking Company, entered with to-day, is by the day and may be canceled at any time if the government finds the salvage is not progressing satisfactorily. Two large wrecking vessels left Norfolk to-day to begin work upon the Colon, Vizcaya and Oquendo.

Jubilee Point—$15 in Gold

In order to stimulate wheelmen to speed, and induce travel over some splendid roads, Commodore Calcutt has placed a number of prizes in competition for those who will make the fastest time between the G.T.R. ticket office, George street, and Jubilee Point. The principal prizes are; $15 in gold, and $5 in gold. The record will be kept time of arrival at Sheare's Landing, opposite Jubilee Point, where a ferry will carry wheelmen across the river. Best time to date made by Sud Tivey and Gordon Logan—1 hour and 30 minutes. Here is a chance for wheelmen, as the road is perfect, and "lashins" o' hospitality at the end of it.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today, 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man can talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and— Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—"

Can't Hurt a Reporter.

That newspaper men are full of resources was well illustrated recently. One of the craft who lives on the south side is fond of seeing a chicken fight, and he has some good chickens. Recently he attended a cocking main and took one of his game chickens with him. There had been several lively bouts when a policeman appeared and gathered the crowd in. The newspaper man had hold of his chicken when the policeman arrived, and in his excitement held on to it.

At the hearing the policeman told his story, and no one denied being present or declared that the story was not true. The police magistrate turned to the newspaper man and said, "How does it come that you were there?"

The culprit looked puzzled for a moment, and then a smile broke over his face, and he said: "Why, you know, I am always after news. I heard about this main and got a tip that it was going to be raided, and I went there to get the news."

"That's all right," said the magistrate. "But what were you doing with a chicken in your hand?"

The newspaper man hesitated but an instant and said, "Well, you see, I wanted to clinch my news item as being true, so I just grabbed the chicken to show there was a chicken fight."

The magistrate looked at him a moment and said: "Well, you'll do. You are discharged."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Duty.

To do the duty nearest, simple and natural as it may seem, is really the most difficult thing in life. To see it even is difficult. I do not know what it is in man that always makes him enamored of the distant thing. It is always tomorrow and tomorrow. Today we will dream and plan and postpone; tomorrow we will act, and so life gets to be a snarl of neglected yesterdays, a deceiving show of promised tomorrows, nothing really accomplished.—J. F. W. There was a large number of the Orangemen of the district on parade and they presented a splendid appearance as they marched down Simcoe and Rubidge streets to the church.

The following was the order of the procession.—

Fire Brigade Band.
G. W. Hill and J. Hetherinton, Marshals.
Royal Black Preceptory, No. 261.
Royal Scarlet Chapter.

The Orangemen occupied the centre seats and the congragation those on the right and left. So large was the audience that there was scarcely standing room.

Rev. Armitage, pastor of All Saints' and County Chaplain, preached the sermon. It was an able and eloquent discourse—one that retained the attention of his hearers throughout.

The choir rendered in a faultless manner a specially prepared program.

At the conclusion of the services the procession was reformed and, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, marched by way of Sherbrooke, Stewart, Charlotte and George streets to the Orange hall at the corner of George and Simcoe streets.

A short session was held with the District Master in the chair.

It was moved by W. Bro. J. B. McWilliams, Past County Master, seconded by W. Bro. Robt. Campbell, that the thanks of the Peterborough District Lodge are due and hereby tendered W. Bro. W. L. Armitage, County Chaplain, for the eloquent sermon delivered.—Carried unanimously.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well If We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

VOL 24—NO 161 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JULY 12, 1898 PRICE TWO CENTS

U. S. TROOPS ARE LANDING

5,000 United States Troops Disembark at Santiago to Assist in Capturing the Doomed City

At General Shafter's headquarters, July 10, via Port Antonio, July 11, 10 p.m.—Deserters from the Spanish ranks this morning included one of the non-commissioned officers. He said that the situation in Santiago was bad, but by no means hopeless from the Spanish point of view. He said the troops had food enough for their present needs, were in good health and would make a good fight when they were called upon. He said the men were given $4 each on Saturday and as it was the first money they had received in many months they were feeling very ccheerful. The water supply for the Spanish troops is getting quite bad and the amount of it is somewhat limited, although up to this time there has been serious distress on this account. Desertions from the ranks of the Spanish volunteers continues and it is now said that fully 5,000 men who had a great fight for Spain are out of the city.

DISEMBARKING REINFORCEMENTS.

Juragua, July 10, via Associated Press despatch boat Dandy, to Port Antonio, July 11, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 11, 9.30 p.m.—The shores of this little cove were the busiest place in Cuba this afternoon. Five thousand men were either disembarking from steamers or preparing to take up the march to General Shafter's headquarters.

Near Santiago de Cuba there was as much confusion as if the circuses were preparing to make camp. The officers were looking for horses and mules trying to keep their men together sending sick men to the hospital and attending to rations and baggage. The Engineers were building a rough wharf of heavy timbers to be used in landing artillery from the lighters. The landing of troops here is necessarily made in small boats, carrying 15 to 30 men each. The boats run through a light surf and the landing is as safe at a wharf though the men often get wet. When the Dandy left Juragua it was expected that the whole expedition would soon be strung along the ten miles between the landing place and the front, the infantry going in light order with three days' rations and rain coats.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

Madrid, July 11, 4 p.m.—It is understood that Premier Sagasta has submitted to the Queen Regent a question of confidence in the Cabinet. It is said that Captain-General Blanco has cabled to Madrid declaring that the volunteer army in Cuba wishes the war to continue as the troops hope to secure victories.

A SMALL ARMY SICK

Nearly 3,000 of Shafter's Men Down With Malaria

Schley's Warships Detached from Santiago to Cover the Landing—No Yellow Fever at Jacksonville

Jacksonville, Fla., July 11.—General Lee this morning received a despatch from Tampa, signed by Secretary of War Alger, instructing him to break camp and proceed seven miles south to the St. John river, where transport vessels will convey the nine thousand volunteer troops to the east coast. The impression here is that the troops will proceed direct to Key West and join the forces from Chickamauga, Dade City and Tampa, and that instead of joining General Shafter at Santiago will land at a point near Havana. It is now understood that these troops will not wait for the capitulation of Santiago, but will proceed direct against the Havana district, and will be assisted by the insurgent General Gomez and his men, while the forces of General Garcia will remain with General Shafter. There will, I understand, be no direct attack on the city, the intention being to destroy the smaller fortified positions to the west of the city and back from the coast. This is expected to be done by means of mule-back artillery. The landing of the troops will be supported by several of Commander Scchley's warships, which have already been withdrawn from Santiago. It is known here that some of Schley's guns are utterly worthless so far as an assault on the city of Santiago is concerned, unless he could get right into the harbor, being short in range, and an officcer informs me that Sampson depends upon his long-rangeg uns and the land forces to capture the beleagured city. Those vessels, which include several auxiliary cruisers armed with inferior guns, will proceed at once to the Gulf Stream to meet the volunteer forces, but as the transports may be detained at the several points of embarkation and cannot sail at a rate of more than eihgt knots an hour, it is possible that Santiago may fall before the troops have time to land in Cuba. This information comes from a reliable souccce, and we all believe here that the destination of the volunteer forces under General Lee is some point near Havana. The report published in some of the New York papers that yellow fever had broken out among the troops here is utterly false, and Jacksonville was never in a more healthy condition. Yesterday I spent half hte day in camp and found very little sickness. The water here is good and the provisions have improved in quality, the War Department having taken some of the Army contractors to task. There is an isolation hospital established outside the city and there are some twenty patients, but none are suffering from yellow fever. Two suspects were brought there, but the disease developed into typhoid. A letter received by an officer on Saturday says that Yellow Jack has made his appearance in Key West, and that several deaths have occurred, but btere is no means of confirming this report.

MANY CASES OF MALARIA.

Washington, July 11.—The effect of a campaign in the tropics during the rainy season is already beginning to make itself seriously felt in General Shafter's expedition. The exposure to rain, night dews, and malarial airs is working so much havoc that besides the army encamped under the walls of Santiago, there is another army of smaller dimensions in hospital, suffering from malarial fever. True, the attack does not last very long, but so soon as one patient is discharged his place is taken by another, keeping the hospital accommodation always taxed to the uttermost.

Besides, a soldier who has once had an attack is liable at any moment to a recurrence, for the malaria remains in the system for years, and comes on whenever the conditions which led to the first seizure are repeated. Great alarm is being felt here by reports from headquarters as to the rapid increase in the number of cases. There are at last 1,500 cases in hospital, which, added to the 1,300 wounded men, raises the number of Shafter's men who are out of the fighting to the enormous number of 2,800, an extremely large proportion of his army.

The greatest of carelessness is said to have taken place among the soldiers, many of whom, not knowing the deadly nature of the climate, threw away their blankets during the heat of the day and spent the nights shivering with ague, finally resulting in fever. Many cases of fever are also said to have been brought on owing to the men sitting in the night air without their hats, which is absolutely certain to bring on an attack.

The extent of the sickness may be gauged when it is stated that the army surgeons have been doubled in number and that the store department of Shafter's army is unable to supply all the demands for quinine which come from the hospitals.

MUST NOT BE TOO EXACTING.

New York, July 11.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says.—The Government's plan is to sue fro peace whenever the war situation, according to Spanish ideas, will permit it. The appeal will be made directly to the United States, but the Cabinet is laboring to have powerful European patrons ready "to make President McKinley understand that he must not be too exacting,' to use the words of the representative in Madrid of a great continental power.

Premier Sagasta is more confident now of being able to prolong his stay office.

There is a growing disposition all around to let his Government perform the galling task of negotiating peace. None of the Opposition leaders or parties wants to do it, while the public is fast taking the position that Sagasta is responsible for bringing on the war with America, and should be held responsible for putting an end to it.

The Foreign Minister, the Duke of Almodovar, continues his negotiations with the German and Austrian Ambassadors. Great reserve is maintained, but the Government is hopeful of results.

There was a traditional rebound of spirits from despondency to hope when the Spaniards were led to believe that a misunderstanding between the Americans and the Cubans would prolong the war. The wildest reports of the alleged difficulties of the Americans before Santiago were instantly and unreservedly believed, and for the moment developed optimistic tendencies in the public and the war party.

The Cabinet Ministers simply looked on and let the press sway opinion, only too glad to be allowed a respite to continue negotiations with Germany, Austria and Italy.

GERMANY'S SENSE.

London, July 11.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says. "I am in a position to assert positively that Germany has never entertained the idea of preventing an American occupation of the Philippines. On the other hand, she has desired to be in a position to share the cake, if other powers are offered a slice. The rumor that Spain has already ceded a Philippine port to Germany is entirely unfounded."

GERMANY'S PREPARATIONS.

New York, July 11.—A London special to The Post extra says.—"Information reaches me to-day from a high diplomatic quarter that the unprecedented action of Germany in marshalling her whole Eastern squadron at Manila is the prelude to a decisive step. My informant, who cannot well be misinformed, says that a decision already has been arrived at in Berlin to occupy one of the Philippine Islands as a cooling station in the far East, such a way as there is no reaosn to make complaint. The score was 11 which, the Kaiser said recently, was vital to Germany's position as a graet naval power. Further decision as to exactly which island shall be occupied awaits Prince Henry's arrival at Manila, whither he is now bound, but at most it will be only a question of weeks. The British Government can hardly be unaware of these German diplomatic expectations, supported, as they are, by preparations. The question of pressing moment is what England and America mean to do when Gremany shows her hand."

SPAIN'S DEPLORABLE PLIGHT.

New York, July 11. A Madrid special to the World shows the hopeless state to which Spain has been reduced, now that her navy is in ruins. A Spanish officer gave the following state,ent.—"We lost at Manila vessels worth $5,000,000; at Santiago we lost vessels worth $18,000,000. Our fleet under Camara must come home it raelly consisting of only two war vesels, and could not cope with Dewey. Our torpedo boat destroyers have proved worthless against battleships and cruisers properly handled. We have at home no available force radey. Matters are going from bad to worse here for the Royal Family, and Weyler shows a decided tendency to declare himself openly for the Carlists."

Siboney, Province of Santiago de Cuba, July 10, via Playa del Este, by Associated Press despatch boat Cynthia II.—General Shafter held a conference with the American generals at the front to-day concerning the offer made by the Spanish commander, General Toral, to surrender Santiago de Cuba if the Spanish garrison is allowed to march out with its side arms and have twenty miles' start without molestation.

General Toral agreed that if this were accepted he would not destroy the ships in the harbor, the guns and ammunition in the forts, or the buildings in the city. A majority of the Generals, General Wheeler leading, were in favor of the acceptance of these terms, on the ground that the Spaniards could march out out of the westward any how and could burn the city and destroy all the vessels, guns and ammunition before leaving.

Food and water are very scarce in Santiago. One biscuit was recently sold for $5 in gold.

The Cuban auxiliaries were put to work this morning policing the camp at this place.

It is earnestly hoped that Dr. Guiteras will order all the buildings here to be burned immediately and thus reduce the chances of the spreading of a serious epidemic.

There are only 75 wounded men in the hospital here who are being treated for serious amputations or bone fractures. In the hospitals at the front there are no wounded soldiers. The serious cases and all the rest of wounded are on board the hospital ship Relief or on the transports bound north.

The situation from a sanitary point of view is capable of much improve-

The landing of reinforcements is progressing rapidly.

All the men of the 1st Illinois Regiment, six batteries of light artillery and 851 recruits for the regular infantry are now ashore, and it is probable the 8th Ohio Regiment from the St. Paul will be landed by noon to-morrow.

CAMARA MAY BE WAYLAID.

New York, July 11.—A despatch to The World from Madrid says.—Captain Aunon, the Spanish Minister of Marine, says.—'It will take Admiral Camara's warships, the Pelayo and the Emperador Carlos V., ten days to reach Cartagena, where there is more safety than at Cadiz.

'The torpedo boat destroyers, the Osada, the Proserpina and the Audaz, and the auxiliary cruisers, Patriota, Rapido, Buenos Ayres and Isla de Panay, will be back sooner and will go to Cadiz and to Ferrol.

'The present danger is that if America despatches her fastest cruisers with the Oregon, Texas, New York and Iowa, they will waylay Admiral Camara in the Mediterranean.

"The coast defences will be ready in ten days.'

MAY TAKE ON COAL.

Port Said, July 11.—Admiral Camara's ships have been allowed to take on board some coal after furnishing a written guarantee that the entire squadron is returning to Spain direct.

"GLORY TO THE VANQUISHED."

London, July 11.—A special despatch from Madrid says.—"All the talk of peace seems up to the present to have led to no tangible results. No doubt the Government would welcome an opportunity to negotiate directly with the United States were the signs propitious, but there are so many circumstances to be considered that it looks as though the policy of drift and waiting for something to turn up would continue until Santiago has fallen.

'The fall of Santiago will convince the most sanguine of the hopelessness of the struggle, and will give the Government the desired opportunity at least to suggest an armistice for the discussion of terms. The circumstantial statements are already in circulation to the effect that the war is virtually ended and that the Government has actually opened peace negotiations, but they cannot be verified.

'A detailed account has been published of Spain's naval losses—twenty-one warships and twenty-one merchantmen, as against practically no losses on the American side. This tends to convince the most rabid war advocate, and, as for a long time past, the whole commercial and industrial interests of Spain are bringing strong influence to bear in favor of peace.

"Every day that passes without disturbance strengthens the peace party. It is believed, however, that there is a strong undercurrent in favor of continuing the war, and the attitude of the Carlists and Republicans causes anxiety. A mysterious, black edged, unsigned manifesto appeared in the leading squares of Madrid yesterday, bearing the municipal stamp and headed 'Gloria Victis,' with an angel supporting a dead, naked soldier. The manifesto contains an eloquent appeal from Spanish mothers, calling for the regeneration of the country on the basis of the army, and crying 'Down with the bribed politicians and a bought press.' Four million copies of this manifesto have been distributed throughout Spain, and it is attracting considerable attention.'

SIX TROOPSHIPS ARRIVE.

Off Juragua, July 10, by the Associated Press despatch boat Wanda, via Port Antonio and Kingston, July 11.—Six troopships carrying 2,500 men, six batteries of artillery and a large quantity of ammunition and supplies arrived here at 7.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The transports took the troops and equipment aboard at Tampa, and were joined by their convoy at Key West. They sailed last Tuesday morning and arrived off Juragua early Saturday morning. As the men on the Gate City were trying to make out the lines of the buildings ashore four dead bodies drifted past the ship. They were evidently the victims of Admiral Cervera's ships. The Newark was the first to greet the arrival of the recruits. The landing of the men and stores was deferred until Sunday morning.

PEACR PARTY STRONG.

London, July 11.—A special despatch from Madrid says.—

There are numerous evidences that the peace party is greatly strengthened.

Madrid is tranquil, and the xepected disturbances have not occurred.

This probably will embolden the Government to yield to the strong diplomatic pressure that is being exerted to bring the war to a termination.

As El Nacional sensibly remarks.—Spanish Ministers who expect prodigies of valor from the army in Cuba cannot compel the Americans to fight there. The Americans may prefere to attack the Canaries, Porto Rico, and the Peninsula; and, as El Nacional says, having succeeded, they might impose still more distasteful

In the meantime there is no relaxation in the work of strnegthening the coast defences. Even the heavy artillery at the formidable French frontier forts has been withdrawn, and sent to the seaports.

Current gosip credits the Infanta Isabella with a wish to assume the regency. She has visited the barracks and addressed inspiring words to the officers and men. It is rumored that Isabella, being a Spaniard could better sign a disastrous peace than herself, who is often taxed with being a foreigner.

A HINT TO THE KAISER.

London, July 11.—The weekies pay high tribute to the United States navy.

The Speaker says.—"The Santiago fight proves that so far as the fleet is concerned the United States need not fear comparison with any country in the world."

The Spectator says the United Sates fleet could face even the French fleet, without great risk of disaster, and adds.—'So far as the German and United States navies go, there would be no comparison. A struggle between them would be very short and very complete, and it would surprise Emperor William, who thinks himself invincible, but his self-confidence cannot alter history."

ADVICES TO SPAIN.

Vienna, July 9.—The official Politische Correspondez publishes to-day an inspired editorial saying.—"We learn that all political circles in France express a desire that the bloody conflict should not be pressed to extremes. It is time that Spain, having earned the world's admiration for patriotic devotion, should cease resistance where she had no chance of success.

The Spanish Government should not hesitate to express a wish for peace in some form, and there is reason to assume that the meditation of the powers would at present find no unfriendly reception by the United States, since it appears cetain that the Union does not intend taking cuba, and Spain mus be prepared to proclaim the island's independence.

Under all the circumstances, the Paris Cabinet will extend a ready

LIGHTERS LOST.

Washington, July 9.—The authorities have been advised of the sinking, in a storm off Cuba, of eleven lighters, which were on the way to be of use in transferring supplies and guns from the transports. As they were essential to prompt work before Santiago, they will be immediately replaced. No lives were lost.

SPANISH TROOPS STARVING.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, July 9.—Spanish soldier, almost dead, found by men from the Annapolis on the shore, says that there is absolutely nothing to eat in Guantanamo. Hundreds are suffering from starvation, and they are told that to surrender to the United States means but to be murdered.

For Entertainments

The Times bookstore has a couple of concert graphones which they will rent cheap. For a small social party, or a large entertainment, this magnificent instrument and talking machine is unsurpassed.

British Steamer Ashore

Halifax, N.S., July 11.—A special from Parrsboro says: The British steamer Parklands, Captain Carty, from Boston for this port to load deals for England, went ashore this morning in a thick fog about two miles below West Bay. The rocks broke a large hole in her forward, causing her to leak at the rate of a foot an hour and making her settle so much forward that she became unmanageable and the crew were obliged to beach her at West Bay. She is a vessel of sixteen hundred and twenty-seven tons register. She sailed from Boston on the 6th, and was anxiously expected, as there was two million feet of deals afloat in lighters awaiting her arrival.

It Makes People Well

Paine's Celery Compound is the one true specific recognized and prescribed to-day by the most able practitioners for all diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system.

That eminent medical professor, Dr. Phelps, gave it to his profession as a positive cure for sleeplessness, wasting strength, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles, rheumatism and neuralgia, and in every case it has triumphed over sickness and disease when all other medicines failed.

PETERBOROUGH JULY 12 1898

CANADIANS AND THE FLEET.

The Navy League in Canada is endeavoring by the distribution of literature to arouse in our people a full appreciation of "their dependence on and interest in the naval strength of the Empire." One would hardly think that there was need for much missionary work in this direction. It should be abundantly plain to every Canadian that the power of Britain rests upon the ability of her fleet to defend her, and that the security of Canada from foreign interference is dependent upon the permanence of that power. We here live a life of ideal peace. We have neither fear of war nor the burden of sustaining any adequate protection against invasion. We know that many other peoples must live a quite different life. Their hand is never far from the rifle, and the bulk of their tax money goes into the military chest.

Now no one who thinks of it at all imagines it is to happy chance or any favoritism of fortune, that we owe this immunity from the alarms and burdens of war. We owe it, in the last analysis, to the protection of the British fleet. Until the other day one might have argued that this immunity was continental; for despite their pension roll, the Americans appeared to enjoy it too. But with their young men fighting under a Cuban sun, with the flag about to go up on Hawaii, and with Dewey at Manila, with a war tax meeting their business men and the universal consumer at every point, this explanation of our good fortune collapses. We are safe because we are British; and if the happy future contains for us a working understanding between Britain and the United States, it is difficult to so much as imagine how war can ever come near to us so long as we remain British and Britain remains powerful.

Hence our "interest in the naval strength of the Empire." But, of course, that strength is a matter of money and men. Both of these necessities the United Kingdom is supplying, and is not asking any help from the colonies. Incidentally, however, we are doing a good deal in a way that our taxpayers do not feel. When we built the C. P. R. we simply provided ourselves with a railway that we needed; but the short, all-British route it offers to the East is of value to the fleet. Cape Breton and Vancouver coal are invaluable; and the naval war we have just been witnessing has demonstrated how much convenient coaling stations mean a navy.

But it has come within the experience of most of us that the British navy might get more direct assistance from this country, without putting the slightest pressure on anybody, if the proper means were only provided. One often hears of young men with a taste for the sea who would like to go into the navy if it were at all easy to do so. But at present it is not. We have proposed more than once that a training ship might profitably be placed at a Canadian port and opened to any Canadian youth who might like to try the life. The Navy League in Canada suggests that the Imperial law be amended so that seamen employed upon Canadian registered vessels or in our fishing industries, be eligible for enrolment in the Royal Navy reserve, and that two sea-going cruisers of modern type be permanently stationed, one on the Atlantic and one on the Pacific coast of the Dominion, for the purpose of enrolling and drilling Canadians for the fleet. It certainly seems that good material growing up in Canada should not be permitted to go to waste just for the lack of opportunity; and it is hard to see how our people would be any the losers by the circumstance that a chance was offered to young men who desired to try a naval life to do so under the flag. Otherwise it might easily be possible that they would enlist under another flag, and thus be lost to the British fleet in which we have so real an interest. It would be surpising indeed if the population of Canada never produced any men with that passion for the sea which both the British and the French peoples have on the other side of the water.

THE SHAME OF FRANCE.

French aristocracy was tested at the bazaar fire in Paris, when able bodied men trampled on and beat down helpless women in their fight for safety.

French democracy seems to have been tested at the sinking of La Bourgogne, with results which cannot be regarded as creditable to French manhood.

It is possible that the sailors who acted like wild beasts might have been developed into heroes if they had been instantaneously controlled by the right sort of leadership.

Britain has often enough had reason to weep for the loss of brave men and helpless women and children. Britain has seldom had reason to blush for men, who should be brave, bringing disgrace upon their country and themselves in the hour of trial. It is good to remember that in moments of great disaster British sailors have seldom allowed shame to be added to sorrow.

It is to be hoped that French character is not truly described by the behaviour of the patricians at the Paris bazaar or the plebeians on the La Bourgogne. There is no gloating over the shame of France in the thought that at times British seamen were templed as these Frence sailors were tempted, and by the grace of God it was given them, as Rudyard Kipling says to.

"Stand and be still, to the Birkenhead drill".

The Belleville Sun suggests that the City Council hire a steam roller for a week or two every year. As Peterborough will have one of its own soon with only a few weeks work for it to do every year. The Times would suggest that it hire it out as so much per day or week to one neighbours.

Here is a chance for Peterborough Board of Trade to get in some good work. The people of Hull voted one to the Toronto Rubber Shoe Co., but the company will not build there, because the water power at Tetreauville, the proposed site, is not sufficient It would cost them $43,000 a year to operate their factory there Peterborough can supply any amount of power.

Yousouf, the Terible Turk, seems to have been as deficient morally as he was powerful physically. Although he had in his possession $3,000 of good United States money, he was going home in the steerage, and when La Bourgogne went down, he was seen struggling among a crowd of drowning passengers, beating them off with a stiletto, and trying to reach a boat. He failed, however, and went down, having furnished an object lesson that a big man can be a great coward. Yousouf was 35 years of age, was 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighed 240 pounds. His United States tour was not as successfully financially as he had expected.

Songs That Sing Themselves

How the music comes from a Graphophone cylinder is a mystery that adds much to the fascination of the machine. The songs of the Graphophone are literally songs that sing themselves. The Graphophone is marvellous as an entertainer. The Graphophone might be deescribed as all musical instruments in one. You can get from it any kind of music you want, vocal or instrumental. It is the perfect talking machine; for entertainment at home it has no rival as its repertoire is unlimited. Furthermore it costs less than a cheap musical instrument. SERVANTS' LIVERIES.

They Had Their Origin During the Reign of King Pepin of France.

So far as the present writer is aware, the earliest mention of "liveries" made in history was during the reign of King Pepin of France, who flourished about the year 750 A. D.

A form of amusement to which King Pepin was partial was what were termed cours plenieres. These were assemblies at which, upon the king's invitation, all the lords and courtiers of France were expected to be present. They were held twice in each year—at Christmas and Easter—and generally lasted for about a week at each time. Sometimes these gatherings took place at the king's palace, sometimes in the neighborhood of one of the larger French cities and sometimes in some rural district. While the festival lasted the king took all his meals in public, bishops and dukes alone being privileged to sit at the royal table. A second table was provided for abbots, counts and other leading men, and at both tables there was shown more profusion than delicacy, both in the quality of the meats and drinks and the manner in which they were served. Flutes, hautboys and other musical instruments were played before the bearers of each course as it was removed from the tables. When dessert was served, 20 heralds, each holding aloft a jeweled goblet, shouted thrice, "Largesse, largesse from the most potent of kings!" As they shouted they scattered among the crowds handfuls of gold and silver coins. Then the trumpets were blown, while the better class spectators shouted and the meaner sort scrambled and often fought vigorously for the money scattered by the heralds.

Charles VII of France put a final stop to the cours plenieres, alleging that the expense attendant upon his wars with England made it impossible for him to continue them. One of the severest causes of expense, it was explained, arose from the fact that, beginning with King Pepin's time, etiquette and custom alike demanded that the king should upon these occasions give an entire suit of new and gorgeous clothing not only to his own servants and retainers, but also to those of the queen and all the princes of the blood royal. These garments were said to be livres—that is, "delivered" at the king's expense—and from this word the English word "livery" was derived, as was the custom of providing servants with "livery," from the above mentioned practice of certain of the French kings.—London Society.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

SMOKED CANARY BIRDS.

Do Clouds From a Pipe Develop a Rich Color In Their Plumage?

A little old shoemaker who has a busy, old style cobbling shop on the eas side is a bird fancier, and he has peculiar ideas about canaries. One nigh he was sitting on his leather covere bench, smoking an extremely odorous quality of tobacco in a black pipe. A customer was waiting for him to finish straightening up a worn heel, and he made several remarks concerning the birds which hung about the cobbler's shop. They were fancy birds, and he could not help noticing it. Finally he asked the shoemaker how he got such richly colored birds.

"It's part in the breeding and part in the atmosphere," said the cobbler. "You raise birds in a shop where two or three men are constantly smoking, and in time you will get the darkest orange color if you use a little judgment in mating and they don't run to green."

"I should think that tobacco smoke would be unwholesome for the birds," said the visitor.

"On the contrary, it makes them hardy and seems to be good for them every way. Women who have canaries would do well to put them where they can get a little tobacco smoke once in awhile, although I don't think cigarette smoke would do them much good. What they need is strong tobacco smoke from an old pipe like this or the smoke from a black cigar. I've raised my best birds when I had two jours working in this little shop with me and all of us smoking pretty nearly all the time."

Then the old man sighed and said: 'That was before they half soled and heeled shoes while you wait—before machines were used for cobbling. No two or three jours and an apprentice for me now. I sit here alone, with my birds, pegging away and keeping them well smoked."—New York Sun.

Road and River.

The brave Pierre Stuppa, the Swi general, having been deputed by the 1 cantons to solicit the arrears of pa, which had been owing for a long time to the Swiss officers in the French service, M. de Louvois, the war minister, who was present, said to the king, Louis XIV:

"Sire, those Swiss are very importunate. If your majesty had all the money that your royal predecessors have given to that people, it would form a road from Paris to Basel."

"That may be," observed Stuppa with an air of firmness, "but at the same time if your majesty had all the blood that the Swiss have shed in the service of France it would form a river from Paris to Basel."

The king was so struck with the observation that he ordered M. de Louvois to pay the whole of the money without delay.—Nuggets.

EDMUND BURKE.

An Able and Versatile Statesman Who Never Attained High Office.

Though Burke never attained high office his abilities were so versatile as to qualify him for any post which a cabinet minister could fill. His practical wisdom was as conspicuous as his power of generalization. No one had a clearer comprehension or a firmer grasp of great principles of universal application; at the same time his policy in every department of English politics rested on a wide and solid basis of information and experience. He was steeped in the history of the past, yet penetrated through and through with the reality of the present and ever and always mindful of that future in which the speculations and measures of the day were to be tested and finally approved or condemned. His prodigious activity in public affairs sprang not from an intellectual source alone, nor from his imperial patriotism. It was constantly fed from an inexhaustible store of moral energy. He was animated by a detestation of all forms of oppression, whether by kings or governors, parliaments or peoples, which was in him a consuming passion, from which his noble nature could only obtain relief by denunciation of the oppressor and the destruction of his power.

I cannot help thinking that Burke must have been stimulated, too, and sustained by delight in his studies and his work. It is impossible, without counting this as an additional incentive, to understand the amazing industry which he devoted to the elucidation of all the great questions dealt with in his speeches and writings. How his method reproves the habit, too common in our day, as in other days, of debating subjects affecting the fate of millions of our fellow creatures as if they could be disposed of by echoing the chatter of ignorance, or prejudice, or vanity, or self interest! When we read Burke's speech on Fox's East India bill, we say, "What a great proconsul he would have made!" When we read his speech on conciliation with America, we feel that the greatest of colonial ministers was lost in him, and when we read his speech on economical reform we exclaim, "Here is an ideal chancellor of the exchequer!"—J. O'Connor Power in North American Review.

THE ISOLATION OF A CHILD.

I once knew a dear little mother,
With a beautiful blue eyed boy.
She constantly bathed and brushed him,
And when he had tired of a toy
She would take it and scald it and scrape it
And lay it away in the sun,
And that is the way she took care of
His playthings, every one.

Pent up in his own little playhouse
The baby grew peaked and pale,
And there were the neighbors' children,
All dirty and happy and hale.
If the baby went out for an airing,
The nurse was to understand
That none of the neighbors' children
Was ever to touch his hand.

But they did, and the injured mother
Brought the dear baby inside
And shut him up in his playhouse,
Where the little one fretted and died.
Then the torn heart turned to the Virgin,
And this was the weight of her prayer:
"O mother, dear, don't let him play with
The other angels up there!"

MR. JORDAN'S MONEY.

The Former United States Treasurer Once Narrowly Escaped Arrest.

Ex-Treasurer Jordan frequently amuses his friends by telling of an exciting experience he had while treasurer of the United States. Mr. Jordan occasionally indulges in joking remarks uttered with a serious countenance. It was the indulgence of this proclivity while connected with the treasury department that came near resulting in his introduction to a pair of handcuffs and incarceration in a dingy cell. Mr. Jordan had occasion to make a trip to New York just at a time when a new $5 bill was issued by the bureau of engraving and printing. It happened that the treasurer on the day of starting on his trip drew a portion of his salary, and the cashier handed him a bunch of the new $5 bills, which had reached the office within an hour. When he arrived in New York, Mr. Jordan proceeded to purchase some needed articles and handed the clerk one of the new bills. The clerk had never seen money that looked like that bill, which was spotless and uncrumpled by handling. He examined the alleged money and the man who gave it to him with equal care. Mr. Jordan watched him with suppressed amusement and remarked in a matter of fact way:

"It's good money. I made it myself."

That was enough for the clerk, who went to the cashier's desk with the bill. There was a hurried conference and a message was sent to police headquarters over the telephone. In a short time a couple of detectives in citizens' attire were standing on either side of the treasurer of the United States. They waited there to watch developments, fumbling their handcuffs in their pockets. In the meantime the cashier studied the new bill further, looked carefully over his counterfeit detector and rummaged through treasury circulars relating to the issuance of money. Finally he came across a description of the new $5 bill which was to be issued by the treasury department. His message had not yet reached the clerk, who was exchanging significant glances with the detectives and watching Mr. Jordan, when the latter, getting tired of waiting for his change and realizing that his new money was probably puzzling the cashier, produced his card. At the same moment the cashier's message that the money was not counterfeit reached the clerk, the detectives wandered off with crestfallen countenances and the treasurer proceeded to the nearest bank, where he exchanged his new bills for money that had passed through a thousand hands and was far from being sanitary.—Washington Star.

An Unpleasant Rencounter.

"Why, Ned!" shouted the prosperous looking man as his kindly eye fell upon his neighbor.

"That's my name," the other grumbled, with anything but welcome in his look.

"How are you, old boy? I have not see you—let me see—since we left college. It's nearly six years, by George!"

The seedy passenger grunted and looked nonplused.

"Well, how is the world treating you Ned?" the demonstrative man pursued more intimately than ever.

"Worse than you anyhow," his classmate snarled, jumping to his feet and abruptly disappearing from the car.

The successful man looked sheepish, and as if by way of setting himself right before the other passengers he proceeded quite audibly:

"I pity him, poor fellow. He was one of the brightest in our class, but he never had system in his work or any tact in his dealings with the other students. He always knew any lesson but the one he was called upon to recite, and he would read a lot, but not the books he wanted for his college work, and he always managed to be out of sorts with some classmate or other, if not with the whole class. Still, he is the most honest and good natured fellow you ever came across. I don't know what he is doing, but I have heard he is in pretty hard luck."—New York

Silly Modern Magic.

It would be quite wrong to conclude that the crystal sphere is discredited among the faithful. Large numbers are sold every year—few, by compariso. with the parchment talismans, of course, and for excellent reasons. In the first place, the parchment worn next the skin requires periodical renewal; in the next, the crystal ball will last forever, and is, moreover, expensive. The genuine article—real crystal—may cost as much as £30, but that is a luxury only accessible to the wealthy and earnest prober into the future; for 15 shillings or a guinea you may possess yourself of a composition or glass ball nicely served up in a morocco case lined with satin like a jeweler's casket, and this will answer the purpose equally well. They are usually made perfect spheres, but if you prefer it egg shaped you can order an "ovoid crystal."

I understand that astrology recognises no difference in the relative merits of the two forms. The chief essential to success in using the crystal ball is great concentration. A north light is recommended, for reasons I am unable to explain, but is not absolutely necessary. You recline in an easy attitude, hold the ball up to the light, and center your mind upon it until you see something; that which you see is going to happen. My knowledge of this particular matter is so slender that I will say no more about it.

That crystal balls have their sincere believers would seem to be proved by the prices they command. The richest man or woman does not pay 30 sovereigns for a sphere of crystal the size of a lawn tennis ball unless he or she confidently anticipates some return for the money.—Chambers' Magazine.

NO SIGN OF PEACE YET

Europe Talks of It But the Spaniards are too Proud to Ask It

Queen Regent's Appeal to Austria—Ultimatum to Blanco—Austria Advises Spain to Abandon the Struggle

Washington, July 9.—The War Department received two despatches from Gen. Shafter during the night as follows.—

Cable operators were permitted to go in yesterday morning. The English cable was in working order, and some of the operators were in the city. Gen. Toral wanted these there, as they are the principal men. This cable has not been cut, and the men I sent in have not taken it up again. English cable has been working all the time through Havana.

Complete report received to-day of loss on July 1 and 2.—Killed, 22 officers, 208 enlisted men; wounded, 81 officers, 1,203 enlisted men. Missing, 79 enlisted men. The reports giving the names of the killed and wounded are being rapidly prepared, and it is hoped to get them off to-morrow.

THE FIGHT TO GO ON.

Madrid, July 9.—The Cabinet Council last evening considered the questions of new cables and of military measures necessary in view of a United States attack upon Spanish ports.

All rumors as to peace negotiations are semi-officially declared to be unfounded.

A despatch from Santiago says that after the Merrimac prisoners were exchanged General Shafter again demanded that the town should surrender, declaring that otherwise the attack would recommence at noon. The despatch gives no date for the time of resumption, which is believed to be noon to-day. It concluded by saying that although Santiago lacks provisions it will defend itself till the end.

ULTIMATUM TO BLANCO.

Madrid, July 9.—It is rumored here that the Spanish Government has received a despatch from Captain-General Blanco announcing that Rear-Admiral Sampson has sent a telegraphis despatch, summoning the Spanish commander to order the evacuation of Cuba within 48 hours, and announces that otherwise the Americans will bombard all the forts in Cuba.

GERMANY'S SENSE.

London, July 9.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says. "I am in a position to assert positively that Germany has never entertained the idea of preventing an American occupation of the Philippines. On the other hand, she has desired to be in a position to share the cake, if other powers are offered a slice. The rumor that Spain has already ceded a Philippine port to Germany is entirely unfounded."

A CASE OF STARVATION.

London, July 9.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says.— The frequent Cabinet discussions of the peace question have been without result, except that the Ministers who had most strongly advocated war have assumed a slightly more conciliatory attitude and the field of discusion is somewhat narrowed. The idea is that, owing to the immnese difficulties of the campaign in Cuba, the United States will probably abandon the system of storming fortified places, and will adopt the plan of starving garrisons out by blockading the whole island.

The Government would probably prefer suing for peace to suffering an indefinite blockade, but it fears the large body of patriotic opinion in favor of resisting to the bitter end, if Cuba is blockaded.

It is to be hoped that the Americans will find some means of controlling the ferocity of their savage allies. A profound impresion has been made here by the rumors that the Americans had handed over Spanish prisoners to Cuban insurgents, who beheaded them.

ADVICES TO SPAIN.

Vienna, July 9.—The official Politische Correspondez publishes to-day an inspired editorial saying.— "We learn that all political circles in France express a desire that the bloody conflict should not be pressed to extremes. It is time that Spain, having earned the world's admiration for patriotic devotion, should cease resistance where she had no chance of success.

The Spanish Government should not hesitate to express a wish for peace in some form, and there is reason to assume that the mediation of the powers would at present find no unfriendly reception by the United States, since it appears cetain that the Union does not intend taking Cuba, and Spain must be prepared to proclaim the island's independence.

Under all the circumstances, the Paris Cabinet will extend a ready hand for such mediation.

A HINT TO THE KAISER.

London, July 9.—The weeklies pay high tribute to the United States navy.

The Speaker says.— "The Santiago fight proves that so far as the fleet is concerned the United States need not fear comparison with any country in the world."

The Spectator says the United Sates fleet could face even the French fleet, without great risk of disaster, and adds.—"So far as the German and United States navies go, there would be no comparison. A struggle between them would be very short and very complete, and it would surprise Emperor William, who thinks himself invincible, but his self-confidence cannot alter history."

APEALS TO AUSTRIA.

New York, July 9.—A despatch to the World from Vienna says Emperor Francis Joseph is disposed to try once more to secure peace.

The Emperor will promptly receive the Archduchess Elizabeth, who will return to-morrow from Madrid with despatches from the Queen, imploring the Emperor to use every influence at his command to bring about a cessation of hostilities.

It is expected in Ministerial quar-

It is expected in Ministerial quarters here that France will take the first step in behalf of Spain.

PEACR PARTY STRONG.

London, July 9.—A special despatch from Madrid says.—

There are numerous evidences that the peace party is greatly strengthened.

Madrid is tranquil, and the expected disturbances have not occurred.

This probably will embolden the Government to yield to the strong diplomatic pressure that is being exerted to bring the war to a termination.

As El Nacional sensibly remarks.— Spanish Ministers who expect prodigies of valor from the army in Cuba cannot compel the Americans to fight there. The Americans may prefere to attack the Canaries, Porto Rico, and the Peninsula; and, as El Nacional says, having succeeded, they might impose still more distasteful

In the meantime there is no relaxation in the work of strnegthening the coast defences. Even the heavy artillery at the formidable French frontier forts has been withdrawn, and sent to the seaports.

Current gosip credits the Infanta Isabella with a wish to assume the regency. She has visited the barracks and addressed inspiring words to the officers and men. It is rumored that Isabella, being a Spaniard could better sign a disastrous peace than herself, who is often taxed with being a foreigner.

LIGHTERS LOST.

Washington, July 9.—The authorities have been advised of the sinking, in a storm off Cuba, of eleven lighters, which were on the way to be of use in transferring supplies and guns from the transports. As they were essential to prompt work before Santiago, they will be immediately replaced. No lives were lost.

SPANISH TROOPS STARVING.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, July 9.—Spanish soldier, almost dead, found by men from the Annapolis on the shore, says that there is absolutely nothing to eat in Guantanamo. Hundreds are suffering from starvation, and they are told that to surrender to the United States means but to be murdered.

NEGOTIATING FOR PEACE.

Rome, July 9.—Italie says that negotiations have been opened among the European powers with a view of arranging peace. The bes intentions, the paper says, are manifested at Wahsington, but the Madrid Cabinet strongly oppose any idea of peace.

GERMANY'S PREPARATIONS.

New York, July 9.—A London special to The Post extra says.—"Information reaches me to-day from a high diplomatic quarter that the unprecedented action of Germany in marshalling her whole Eastern squadron at Manila is the prelude to a decisive step. My informant, who cannot well be misinformed, says that a decision already has been arrived at in Berlin to occupy one of the Philippine Islands as a coaling station in the far East, such a way as there is no reaosn to make complaint. The score was 11 which, the Kaiser said recently, was vital to Germany's position as a graet naval power. Further decision as to exactly which island shall be occupied awaits Prince Henry's arrival at Manila, whither he is now bound, but at most it will be only a question of weeks. The British Government can hardly be unaware of these German diplomatic expectations, supported, as they are, by preparations. The question of pressing moment is what England and America mean to do when Gremany shows her hand."

SPAIN'S DEPLORABLE PLIGHT.

New York, July 9.—A Madrid special to the World shows the hopeless state to which Spain has been reduced, now that her navy is in ruins. A Spanish officer gave the following state,ent.—

"Ve lost at Manila vessels worth $5,000,000; at Santiago we lost vessels worth $18,000,000. Our fleet under Camara must come home it raelly consisting of only two war vesels, and could not cope with Dewey. Our torpedo boat destroyers have proved worthless against battleships and cruisers properly handled. We have at home no available force radey. Matters are going from bad to worse here for the Royal Family, and Weyler shows a decided tendency to declare himself openly for the Carlists."

SPAIN SUES FOR PEACE.

New York, July 9.—A London special to The Journal says Spain has at length sought peace, applying to Sir Henry Drummond-Wolff, the British Ambassador at Madrid.

The British Foreign Office has presented the communication to Col. John Hay, our Ambassador in England. The terms suggested as acceptable to Spain are.—

1. Cuba to be independent, but to pay Spain an indemnity for several years.

2. Spain to keep a minor Cuban port until this indemnity shall have been paid.

3. The great powers to send small detachments of troops to certain Cuban ports.

4. Philippine Islands to be independent.

5. United States to occupy Porto Rico as security for payment of war indemnity, the amount of which shall be negotiated.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthopist, and do a beneficent deed—one that would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the basis of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a ketchup and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for these?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the bona fide character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. One gives relief.

SPANISH SHIPS ARE NO MORE.

The Fleet Under Cervera Which Met Destruction at Santiago.

New York, July 16.—Cervera's squadron was made up of four armored cruisers, three torpedo boat destroyers, and several other vessels when he left Spain. The most formidable vessels were the four armored cruisers, fine examples of the armored cruiser type. They were the Almirante Oquendo, the Infanta Maria Teresa, the Vizcaya and the Cristobal Colon. The first three were sister ships, built at Bilboa, Spain, and launched in 1890 and 1891. Their cost was given as $3,000,000 each.

These cruisers were 7,000 ton ships, somewhat larger than the battleship Maine. Their water-line length was 340 feet, beam 65 feet maximum draught 21 feet 6 inches, indicated horse power 13,000, and speed 20 knots. This speed they attained in their trial speeds, but wehn inefficient Spanish engineers took hold of them they could not develop any such speed as this. Their normal coal supply was 12,000 tons and their complement 500 men each.

Heavy armor protected the machinery of the cruisers. They had steel water-line belts 315 feet long, 5½ feet broad and from 10 to 12 inches thick. The two turrets on each ship were constructed of 9 inch steel. The gun positions of the broadside guns were protected by armor 10½ inches thick, and the deck plating was three inches thick. In armor, these ships were far superior to our armored cruisers New York and Brooklyn. The Brooklyn's thickest belt armor is seven inches thick, and on the gun positions the thickest is eight inches.

The trio of cruisers carried heavy armaments. In turrets, forward and aft, each ship mounted 11-inch breech loading rifles. In addition, each mounted ten 5 1 2 inch guns. The Oquendo and Maria Teresa 5 1 2-inch guns were Hontoria guns, but the Vizcaya had rapid-fire guns. Each ship carried a number of small guns, and was equipped with six torpedo tubes. Spain had trouble in buying torpedoes before the war opened—the country has no facilities for making torpedoes and it is doubtful if the ships in Santiago de Cuba harbor were adequately equipped with torpedoes.

The Cristobal Colon was one of the newest ships in the Spanish navy. She was built at Sestri Potente by the Italian government and launched in 1896. Her name was then the Giuseppe Garibaldi II, replacing a previous ship by that name. Spain paid several million dollars for her and named her the Cristobal Colon, in memory of the cruiser by that name, lost near Cape San Antonio, Cuba, in October 1895. She was a 6,840-ton ship, 388 feet on water line, 59 feet 8 inches beam, and 24 feet draught. Her indicated horse-power was 14,000, her trial speed 20 knots maximum coal supply 1,000 tons, and compliment 450 men.

The Cristobal Colon's armament consisted of two 10-inch turreted guns, ten 6-inch rapid-fire guns and six 4 7-inch, ten 2 2-inch, ten 1.4 inch and two machine guns. She also carried four torpedo tubes. Her armor consisted of a six-inch water line belt, six inches on the gun positions and a 1 5-inch deck. The heavy armor was of Harveyized steel.

The torpedo boat destroyers were fine Clydesbank boats—the Furor and Terror, launched last year. The first two were capable of developing the remarkable speed of 28 knots an hour, and the Pluton was credited with 30 knots. No boats in the American navy now in commission approached them in speed. The Furor's and Terror's principal dimensions were: Length, 220 feet; beam, 22 feet; draught, 5 6 feet; displacement, 300 tons; coal capacity, 100 tons; complement, 67 men; armament, two 12-pounders, two 6 pounders and two 1 pounders. The Pluton was a larger boat, registered horsepower of 7 500 1 500 greater than the others.

The Terror was not at Santiago. Recently she was disabled by the St. Paul at San Juan.

SHE THOUGHT IT STRANGE.

Naggley Went Out For His Little Walk Anyway.

Naggley threw down the evening paper he had been reading, yawned and stretched and said he guessed he'd go out for a little while, whereupon Mrs. Naggley said:

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, no place in particular."

"No, I s'pose not. It's anything or any place to get away from home with you. It's mighty strange that you can't content yourself for any length of time in your own home—mighty strange. I was reading this from Goethe today, 'He is happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.' I said to myself when I read it, 'I wish to the Lord Joe Naggley felt more like that.'

"Mrs. Goethe must have been a happy woman to have a husband who could say that. I'll bet a dime she did not have to sit alone evening after evening while Mr. Goethe ripped and paced around anywhere and everywhere, just so he needn't have to be at home with the wife he'd promised to love and honor and cherish, and who had done all she could to make home pleasant for him, and I'll bet Mr. Goethe didn't belong to three or four lodges and clubs that ought to be wiped out of existence, so the members of them would stay at home with their wives, where they belong.

"It's mighty strange that a man can talk so sweet and nice about a home of his own when he's trying to delude some girl into marrying him, and then when he gets her and a home he wants to be on the gad all the time. I say it's mighty strange.

"How many times before we were married did you make me sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' for you, and now if I try to sing it you look as if you'd taken a dose of ipecac. And look at that motto, 'There's no place like home,' that you made me work before we were married so as to have it all ready for our own home. It doesn't appeal to you any more than it appeals to that lamppost out there across the street. I'd like to know why.

"The land knows I do all I can to make home peaceful and pleasant for you. You couldn't scrape up a tablespoonful of dirt in this whole house, and I'll put my cooking against that of any other woman I know of—yes, I'd put it against Mrs. Goethe's even.

"I'll bet that her husband appreciated her a good deal more than you appreciate me, and I'll bet her home wasn't a bit cleaner than mine, nor her— What's that? What did you say about her tongue? I pity the poor woman if she didn't have a tongue.

"There never was a married woman yet who didn't need all the tongue the Lord gave her, and I don't know what I'd do if it wasn't for my tongue, and—Oh, yes; rush off as usual right when your wife is speaking! It shows just how much you respect her. It's mighty strange how soon men change after they are married—mighty strange!"—

Can't Hurt a Reporter.

That newspaper men are full of resources was well illustrated recently. One of the craft who lives on the south side is fond of seeing a chicken fight, and he has some good chickens. Recently he attended a cocking main and took one of his game chickens with him. There had been several lively bouts when a policeman appeared and gathered the crowd in. The newspaper man had hold of his chicken when the policeman arrived, and in his excitement held on to it.

At the hearing the policeman told his story, and no one denied being present or declared that the story was not true. The police magistrate turned to the newspaper man and said, "How does it come that you were there?"

The culprit looked puzzled for a moment, and then a smile broke over his face, and he said: "Why, you know, I am always after news. I heard about this main and got a tip that it was going to be raided, and I went there to get the news."

"That's all right," said the magistrate. "But what were you doing with a chicken in your hand?"

The newspaper man hesitated but an instant and said, "Well, you see, I wanted to clinch my news item as being true, so I just grabbed the chicken to show there was a chicken fight."

The magistrate looked at him a moment and said: "Well, you'll do. You are discharged."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Duty.

To do the duty nearest, simple and natural as it may seem, is really the most difficult thing in life. To see it even is difficult. I do not know what it is in man that always makes him enamored of the distant thing. It is always tomorrow and tomorrow. Today we will dream and plan and postpone; tomorrow we will act, and so life gets to be a snarl of neglected yesterdays, a deceiving show of promised tomorrows, nothing really accomplished.—J. F. W. FANTASTIC VAGARY.

A PUBLIC MAN WHO CONSULTED THE OUIJA BOARDS.

This is One of the Grounds on Which it is Sought to Show That He Was Incapable of Making a Proper Will—The Estate Involved is a Large One.

The Ouija board, that curious little device which attracted so much attention and furnishd so much amusement to many people a few years ago, has got into the courts. It is cited as evidence of a man's mental weakness and his incapacity to make a proper will. This man was Charles M. Pond, once State Treasurer of Connecticut, a Senator in the same State and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. A suit is now under way in New York to break his will. It was instituted by his brother, Anson Phelps Pond.

Among the property which Charles M. inherited from his father was the Prospect Hill farm, on the outskirts of the city of Hartford, and this, with about $450,000 worth of other realty, he willed to Hartford. The disputed farm or homestead which Hartford proposes to turn into a public park, is now valued at about $250,000.

The claim is made by the contestant that his brother had no right to devise away this tract, and counsel bring forward his father's will in substantiation of this position, and quote that part of it which reads: "And it is my express desire that my said son, Charles M. Pond, will not alienate or sell my farm known as the 'Prospect Hill Farm,' but that the same may descend and be from time to time devised to my lineal descendants."

Among the testimony already introduced is that of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, a sister of the Ponds, which it is said showed the deceased brother to be an extraordinary and eccentric person.

In his public career Charles M. was known only as a man of rare judgment and brilliant parts, but it seems that for some time previous to his death his mind was clouded or weakened by dissipation, and he displayed oddities of intellect that were entirely at variance with his character as the public and all but his intimates knew it.

According to Mrs. Porter's statement, some of the evidence that would be important and valuable as corroborative proof has been deliberately destroyed. The destroyed evidence consisted of works on Spiritism and the several Ouija boards that were the property of Charles M. Pond, and were used by him. It is said that the dead man was a firm believer in Spiritism and was an easy dupe of mediums. Luther R. Marsh was not more thoroughly fooled by Miss De Bar than he was by the men and women who pretended to be able to rematerialize those who had passed to the shining shores.

After the death of his wife, it is said, he was almost constantly under the influence of mediums. He had implicit confidence in the oracular qualities of the Ouija board which is a rudimentary sort of planchette. In the latter case the spirits are supposed to communicate with their friends in the flesh by means of writing, in the former the spirits have not got so far in the three R's, and they spell out their communications.

A panchette is a small heart-shaped bit of wood, mounted on two tiny legs with casters, and having for the third leg a pencil. When the little table is placed on a sheet of paper and the hands are permitted to rest lightly upon it, the pencil moves, and some people pretend that the lead-marks made by the pencil are legible messages, and they go through the solemn formality of reading them.

Ouija has a three-legged, heart-shaped little table, too, which the hands rest upon, but it travels not over writing paper but over a smooth rectangular board, on which the alphabet and the numerals are stenciled so that they make the segment of a circle, and the words "yes" and "no" are stenciled in two of the corners. Messages are read by following the movements of the leg at the apex of the heart. It travels from letter to letter and spells out words, the nerves and muscles of the manipulators having much to do with the direction of its movements.

Chaires M. Pond had several of these Ouija boards and he consulted them dozens of times a day. Through them he communicated with his dead wife. The story is told that often he would arise in the midst of a group of friends, excuse himself and hurry off to another room to ask Ouija certain questions.

These Ouija boards with all of her brother's Spiritistic books, Mrs. Porter says, she burned. Her statement is that she went to the office of one of the executors of the will and in his absence obtained from his father, who drew up the will, permission to remove the books and boards from the house, which she did and made a bonfire of them.

There is a great deal of secrecy about the proceedings and a whole lot of mystery, but the plaintiff feels confident that he will be able to show the mental insufficiency of his brother to make a will as well as to clinch his own right to the disputed part by the restricting clause in his father's will, which insists that the property shall not be devised away from the family.

The dissipated habits of Pond's brother have been pretty well established. He seems to have had a wild and terrible mania for morphine and administered it to everybody and everything on his place, even the dogs. The Ouija board weakness, though, appears to be the most fantastic of all his vagaries

Tactics in the Band.

A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. Their uniforms are neat, said the colonel, and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I must insist upon.

What is it, colonel?

You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! one, two!

The Military College.

The Kingston Military College is a very expensive luxury to the people of Canada, and some of the items we have to pay for are very peculiar. An opera glass, $9.25; Prince of Wales hunting belt $3.59; emigrant's knife, $7.48; trout rod, twelve feet long with three joints, $5.96; a lawn tennis bat, $3.71. The college cost us $70,000. No wonder there is a deficit.—Brockville Recorder.

Police Court

A charge of non-payment of wages was preferred against Mr. Geo. Gobiel at the Police Court yesterday morning, but Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the accused, called the attention of the court to the fact that the amount involved, $78, was too high to allow the case to be tried by the court. It will, therefore, be heard at the Division Court.

Scholarships Open

Of special interest to the young people who have written upon the Entrance and Leaving Examinations this year is the announcement of the Central Business College, Toronto, which in accordance with its energetic and efficient management, is awarding a limited number of scholarships to those who have taken the highest standards in the above examinations. It is not yet too late to register for this competition, and candidates who have not yet communicated with the principal about the matter will doubtless find it to their convenience to do so without delay.

A Runaway

Yesterday morning as Mr. John Mervin was driving up from his residence on the Monaghan boundary his horse took fright as he was crossing the track near the Roman Catholic cemetery and ran away throwing Mr. Mervin violently to the ground. At first it was thought that he had sustained severe injuries, but on examination Dr. King found that no bones were broken though Mr. Mervin's leg was sprained at the ankle. The wrench was very painful and Mr. Mervin will be incapaccitated from work for some time. The horse ran into a post, tearing the shafts from the buggy. It was captured after a long run around the country.

CEMENT CHOSEN.

A discussion ensued as to the respective merits of granolithic and cement walks.

Councillor McWilliams, in view of the fact that the delegates appointed to inspect the permanent walks in various cities having reported almost unanimously in favor of granolithic in preference to cement, expressed himself as strongly in favor of the former, more especially when there was only 1 1-2c. difference in the cost per square foot.

The Councillors friendly to cement walks were very much in evidence, however, and the following motions brought the question to an issue.—

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Hamilton, that from Brock street to Charlotte street, on George street, the walks be granolithic, and the balance of the contract be completed with sand and cement.

It was moved in amendment by Councillor Langford, seconded by Councillor Meldrum, that all the permanent walks be constructed with sand and cement.

The amendment was carried.

THE DEPOSITS.

Moved by Councillor Meldrum, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, that the deposits except Bognes, Hayes, Dolan & Sheehey's, and McFadden & Sabin's be returned.—Carried.—Carried.

HOMEWARD AVE. DRAIN.

Moved by Councillor Langford, seconded by Councillor Meldrum, that in reference to the petition for a drain on Homeward avenue, the town pay $65 when the drain is constructed and completed to the satisfaction of the Street Inspector.—Carried.

Some minor street improvements were ordered and the committee then adjourned.

The Committee on Appointments met for the purpose of appointing assessors.

THE ASSESSORS.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Meldrum, that Messrs. McGrath, McKee, Kincaid and Aldridge, be appointed assessors.—Carried.

On motion of Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Meldrum, Messrs. Aldridge and McGrath were assigned Wards Nos. 2 and 4, and Messrs. Kincaid and McKee, wards Nos. 1 and 3.
